Heflin Administration Building. Both events promise to be special performances and equally entertaining.

About the Transforming Lives Now! Campaign

Campaign Aims to Enrich GSC, Community

Pictured above is an artist rendering of the “Pioneer Center”. When completed, the building will house a 24-hour health care facility, a newly refurbished Land Resources Department, and a 3,000 seat sporting arena.

The following article was written by GSC senior Kayla Boggs-White in a February 12, 2009 news article for The Phoenix. The Phoenix being GSC’s student newspaper since October 13, 2005.

Glennville State College is hoping to enrich its campus, community, and students by fundraising through the Transforming Lives NOW! Campaign. This campaign is going to be used to make huge changes on Glennville State’s campus and in the communities surrounding the college. The campaign was created and is led by Glennville State’s President and First Lady, Peter and Betsy Barr. President Barr has many aspirations for this campaign, and believes that “Transforming Lives has long been a hallmark of Glennville State College.”

This campaign is coming together to enhance Glennville through many different programs. The first program and the heart of this campaign is the Hidden Promise Scholarship. The Hidden Promise Scholarship was created by President Peter Barr to help West Virginia high school students get a unique opportunity to go to college and get a higher education.

A handful of students are selected from each high school, in each of the thirteen surrounding counties. These students are chosen by their superintendents and principals in their eighth grade year. They are students that show “hidden promise” and may not have an opportunity to go to college because of various reasons. The students are then mentored by Glennville State and attend summer camps at the college to help them decide on higher education. The summer camps also get them aware of college life and familiar with Glennville State’s campus.

The second cause on the campaign’s agenda is a state-of-the art building called “The Pioneer Center”. This facility will provide a social bridge that will link the campus and community of Glennville together. This facility will provide twenty-four hour health care. The primary and urgent medical center will offer care for minor injuries, primary care, pediatrics, physical therapy, diagnostic procedures, and radiology.

A premier Land Resources area will also be located inside the new building. This will link classroom, laboratory, and the college’s 300 acres of woodland to create world-class natural resources and land management programs.

A 3,000 seat arena has been planned along with a modern athletic facility created to serve intercollegiate and intramural sports. The building will be located to the left hand side of the I.L. and Sue Morris Football Stadium and across from Pioneer Village, where Eberle Hall now exists.

The funding for this campaign is being gathered in two different ways. The first is that “Friends of Glennville State”, such as I.L. and Sue Morris are stepping up to donate money for the campaign. I.L. and Sue say that they are “honored” to lead Transforming Lives Now! Campaign and that their gift to the campaign “demonstrates belief in the vital importance of Glennville State College to students and all of central West Virginia.”

The second form of funding is being raised through a team of “Call Stars” made up of outgoing, active, and caring GSC students. These students call GSC alumni and reconnect them to Glennville by asking them about their fondest memories of the college. After a meaningful conversation, they then tell the alumni about the Transforming Lives Now! Campaign and the changes on campus. They offer a tour of the campus, and also ask if the alum would be interested in making any type of donation to the campaign.

This portion of the campaign is headed up and coached by Bob Henry Baber, GSC Foundation’s Major Gift Officer, who states “the objective of the Call-Star campaign is to remember with and relate to Glennville State College alumni and reconnect them to the college.” That’s why the motto of the Call-Stars is to Remember, Relate, and Reconnect.

These Call-Stars are students who really seem to want the best for Glennville State College and its future. They have a connection to Glennville State and feel like they are helping transform it into something new and exciting. Call-Star Alicia Rose says she is “proud to be a Call-Star for the Transforming Lives NOW! Campaign” and GSC Senior Call-Star, Tashua Allman says “I truly believe that GSC is the perfect school for me. I love Glennville (both the college and the community) and love being involved on campus.”

Even Glennville State alumni have sent in thanks and praise about Glennville State and its new campaign. An alumnus contacted by Call-Star Lee Lauderman writes “So refreshing to speak to a student – one that convincingly seems to understand the potential value of higher education – and who is grateful for the opportunities.” Sincerity is indeed contagious! Another alumnus writes “I LOVE GLENNVILLE STATE COLLEGE! Keep up the great work!”

In conclusion, the Transforming Lives NOW! Campaign and all of the people involved have nothing but inspiration and good news to share about this project. For more information, you can check with the GSC Foundation’s Department at (304) 462-4125. You can also view the college website www.glennville.edu for more updates on the Transforming Lives NOW! Campaign.

GSC Professor Judges International Conference

Glenville State College Music Professor and Fine Arts Department Chair, Lloyd Bone, served as Head Judge for the International Euphonium Solo Competition Young Artist Division at the International Tuba and Euphonium Conference (ITEC) in Cincinnati, Ohio in June 2008. Bone was the lead judge on a panel of five esteemed international euphonium soloists and educators from around the country.

Professor Bone also was one of a handful of euphonium and tuba professors from around the world to perform on one of two college professor recitals. As a soloist, Bone performed three works, one of which was a major world premiere written for him. The piece will be published by one of the world's most respected music publishers.

The Glenville State College Tuba and Euphonium Ensemble, conducted by Bone, also had the honor of performing at the International Tuba and Euphonium Conference (ITEC). The GSC Ensemble performed twenty minutes of a shared recital. The GSC Tuba and Euphonium Ensemble includes: GSC Alumnus and Gilmer County High School Band Director John Lopez '06; GSC Alumnus and Pleasant County Middle School Band Director Mike Sutton '05; GSC Alumnus and graduate student at the University of North Carolina-Greensboro Scott Smith '07; senior Music Education Major Chris Cales of Summers County; junior Music Education Major Kenny Nolan of Maryland; sophomore Music Education Major Ryan Deems of Clarksburg; senior Music Major Travis Truax of St. Mary's; senior Music Major Shawna Elmore of Spencer; sophomore Music Education Major Chris Baber of Summersville; and senior Music Education and Math Major Timmothy Walker of Elizabeth.

"Our ensemble performed extremely well and received many great comments from some of the finest brass musicians and brass teachers in the world. They played so well that we have been invited to perform an even larger program at the 2010 International Tuba and Euphonium conference at the University of Arizona,” said Bone.

Performing at ITEC is a major honor as this conference is only held once every two years and is the largest event in the tuba and euphonium business. Thousands of tuba and euphonium performers and educators attend the event and to be selected to judge, perform, and conduct at a conference of this magnitude is a great honor for Professor Lloyd Bone and the GSC Ensemble.

GSC Bluegrass Music Professor Performs in Washington, D.C. for PBS TV Show

Glenville State College’s Bluegrass Program Director performed in the nation’s capital for a television show broadcast. GSC visiting instructor of music Buddy Griffin ’71 played the banjo at the National Heritage Fellowship Awards Concert in Washington, D.C. on September 19, 2008. The concert was presented in the Music Center at Strathmore in Bethesda, Maryland in part with the National Endowment for the Arts.

“Our performance was in honor of Mac Wiseman. He is an old friend with whom I have recorded and performed on several occasions,” said Griffin. Wiseman, born in Crimora, Virginia, began singing in public at age 12. He began his career in 1946 singing with Molly O’Day. This start eventually led him to becoming an original member of the Lester Flatt’s and Earl Scruggs’ Foggy Mountain Boys and part of Bill Monroe’s Bluegrass Boys at the Grand Opry in Nashville, Tennessee. In 1958, Wiseman co-founded the Country Music Association, and was the first secretary treasurer. During the 1960’s, Wiseman opened for Johnny Cash at various concerts and folk festivals.

Wiseman was unable to attend the concert this year. “I accompanied Jesse McReynolds and his band in Washington, D.C. for Wiseman,” said Griffin. “I was honored to be included in the performance, and it helped me get the name of Glenville State College and word about our new bluegrass music degree into new and wonderful circles.” Wiseman and McReynolds are both on GSC’s Bluegrass Program Board of Advisors. Griffin was raised in Nicholas and Braxton Counties and has worked at GSC for eleven years. He is also a regular performer at the Grand Ole Opry.

The National Heritage Fellowship Awards Concert was recorded and scheduled to air on PBS around Thanksgiving (2008). For more information about the National Heritage Fellowship Awards or the GSC Bluegrass music program, please contact Buddy Griffin at (304) 462-4130.

GSC Marching Band Featured at Mountain State Forest Festival Parade

GSC “Wall of Sound” Marching Band performing at the 2008 Forest Festival Annual “Spectacle of Bands” as the Featured Exhibition Band in Elkins

The Glenville State College Pioneer Marching Band was chosen to be the featured college band at the 72nd Annual Mountain State Forest Festival parade on Saturday, October 4, 2008. In previous years, the WVU Marching Band, the Marshall University Marching Band, and the Shepherd University Marching Band have served as the lead bands for the parade.

“We were honored to be asked to be the featured college band at the Forest Festival Parade. Our outstanding performances during the last couple of years increased our reputation and resulted in our invitation to the Forest Festival parade,” said Lloyd Bone, GSC Band Director and

Fine Arts Department Chair. In addition to marching in the Forest Festival Parade, the GSC Band was the featured performers at the Forest Festival Band Field Show, also on Saturday, October 4th.

In 2006, the GSC Marching Band was the featured band at Music of the Mountains Tournament of Bands in Kingwood, West Virginia, and in 2007, it was the featured band at the Ritchie County Band Festival.

The 2008 Pioneer Marching Band was 60 members strong as they grow in numbers and popularity. The Marching Band members performed at each of the four home football games for Glenville State College. Their half time show this past season featured Russian Classic Music. They were also chosen to be the featured college band at the 57th Annual Black Walnut Festival Band Competition in Spencer, West Virginia on October 11, 2008.

The GSC Marching Band is part of the Glenville State College Fine Arts Department which offers Bachelor of Arts Degrees in Music with concentrations in Bluegrass Music, Instrumental Music, Music Performance, Music Technology, Vocal Music, and Music Education (PreK-Adult). "Performing at the Forest Festival and other similar events is great exposure for the programs we offer at GSC. We have been able to use them as tremendous recruiting tools," said Bone.

Music Fest 2008 A Rousing Success

Glenville State College's annual Music Fest, a concert comprising brief performances from the college's several sponsored bands and choral programs, was held in the Fine Arts Building at 7 p.m. on October 14, 2008. In all, eight groups performed an average of two songs each, in the space of two hours.

The night's performances were dedicated to Professor Emeritus Dr. Espy Miller. Dr. Miller, the retired chairman of GSC's English Department and a longtime supporter of the fine arts, passed away October 6, 2008. He was honored with a short speech by Bluegrass Band director Buddy Griffin '71 halfway through the show.

Beginning the show was the Jazz Band, performing for the first time under new director Dr. David Lewis. Dr. Lewis also led the Woodwind Ensemble, in a performance of "Horkstow Gra-nge."

The Chamber Singers' performance of "Tango to Evora", under the direction of Ms. Teresa Dody, was an inspiration change from the group's usual madrigals. Dody also directed the Concert Choir in stirring performances of "My Home Among the Hills", a sort of induction of their new director to the campus, and the spiritual "Soon-ah Will be Done."

Popular as always was the GSC Bluegrass Band, part of the first four-year bluegrass program in the United States. Years (make that decades) of professional experience allows Buddy Griffin '71 to command a stage like few other directors at GSC, and the small cluster of students that learn under him are talented to say the least.

The Percussion Ensemble, directed by John McKinney '73, is another longtime GSC favorite, known as much for its music as for the lavish special effects and massive crowds seen at its yearly concerts.

Another medley came courtesy of the impressive Brass Ensemble, conducted by Fine Arts Chairperson Lloyd Bone. Their arrangement of selections from the Sound of Music, the classic Rodgers-Hammerstein play, included the aforementioned and near impossible "listenable" version of "The Lonely Goatherd" as well as a mournful, tear jerking "Edelweiss," among its highlights.

Bone also directed the final act of the evening, the GSC Pioneer "Wall of Sound" Marching Band. Of all its groups, the Marching Band should always be the pride of the college, and ours delivered again in 2008.

Did you know...

that College memorabilia was placed in a Centennial Time Capsule and officially sealed in a Time Capsule Ceremonial on September 22, 1971, not to be opened for 100 years.

Items chosen to relate the story of Glenville State College when the time capsule is dug up in 2072 include the following: short messages from the President of Glenville State College, Governor of West Virginia, Mayor of Glenville, Chancellor of West Virginia Board of Regents, President of Student Congress, the President of Faculty-Administrative Organization, and messages by those who paid .25 per message to have their message(s) included.

A complete roster of the student body, faculty, and staff as of September 1971, copies of the Glenville Memory, Confrontation, Glenville Democrat, Alumni Bulletin (aka newsletter), programs of the Centennial celebration, Freshmen handbook, and residence hall regulations were included. Along with these was the statement of the purpose of the College, schedule of athletic events and a schedule of cultural events for 1971-72, and The History of Athletics at GSC compiled by Dr. Robert Dollgener, then Athletic Director at the College.

Other articles placed in the Time Capsule was a map of GSC's campus, a map of the City of Glenville, a schedule of classes for 1971-72, Faculty-Administrative Organization constitution, Student Congress constitution, a short history of GSC, the list of all former college presidents and principals, and a list of all campus social and honor organizations.

A copy of the original deed, a list of the "Alumni of the Year" recipients, the Faculty Wives Handbook, a copy of the week's menu from the cafeteria, a Folk Festival Program, a list of 100 Outstanding Alumni, and a copy of the Alma Mater /school song were also included.

Other items selected were a copy of the original Governor's Proclamation, information on the Wesley Foundation, copies of an enrollment form, grade slip, permanent record card, copy of a diploma used in 1971-72, a parking ticket, and Centennial souvenirs such as automobile tag, license plate, and bronze pocket piece.

Pictures of the Centennial Queen, Centennial Pioneer, campus buildings, and the President of GSC plus the transcripts of messages and addresses given at the Centennial celebrations, a freshman beanie, statement of the purpose of the Time Capsule and a brief description of items included, a copy of the West Virginia Hills and a short explanation pertaining to its having been written here were also sealed in the Capsule. Two hundred Centennial placemats, to be used in the 200-year celebration, were also in the Time Capsule.

The items were incased in a metal capsule which was obtained from the Dowell Company (located in Glenville at the time). It measures 4 ½ feet long and 5 ¾" in diameter. The capsule was built with a tube inside of a tube with a cap for sealing. The articles were placed in five separate containers, after each had been sealed in a water-proof plastic bag and all were put in the time capsule.

The capsule was sealed with cement and buried in front of the Administration Building following a convocation address by then West Virginia Governor Arch Moore. After the ceremony, the Time Capsule was covered by a cement slab with an inlayed plaque and a park bench over this to commemorate the celebration.

Faculty Wives Friendship or Album Quilt

The college colors of blue and white dominate the above quilt, a lovely memento to the Wilburns of the 13 years they were at GSC.

The quilt that will be presented to the Glenville State College Alumni Center during Alumni Day activities on April 25, 2009 by Mr. Lacy Jones on behalf of his wife, Jo Anne Wilburn Jones, daughter of former President D. Banks and Vivian Wilburn, was given to the Wilburns when they retired from Glenville State College in 1977 by GSC's Faculty Wives.

Professor Emeritus James W. "Jim" Rogers '63, when he was an art instructor at GSC in 1977, designed the quilt and drew the suggested patterns for thirty-two of the squares to be transferred to white material. The patterns were then appliquéd, cross-stitched, embroidered, creweled, or silk-screened. Members of Faculty Wives, department representatives, and various volunteers did the finished work.

Campus activities, organizations, and scenes were used to portray highlights of the president's tenure at GSC. Dr. Byron Turner and his wife, Elizabeth, helped with the joining of the quilt and the addition of unique quilting was done by Mrs. Minnie Burton of Glenville.

Included in the quilt and two additional pillows were: Clark Hall, Wesley Foundation, Clock-Tower, Information Center, Robert F. Kidd Library, Social Work Department, WGSC Radio Station, Commencement, Foundations, Art, Audio-Visual, Business, Centennial Seal, Science, English, Publications, Ladies of the White Rose, State of West Virginia Outline, Maple Leaves, the Alma Mater, Pioneer, GSC Seal, the Homecoming Crown, Forestry-Homecoming, Forensics, Drama, Greek organizations, a Gavel, Christmas party, various sports at GSC, the President's Home, and Music Department.
