Seventh Annual Day of Giving a Success

With 1,283 gifts from 1,052 donors, Glenville State University has raised over $1,000,000 during the seventh annual Founders

Church.

A Charleston, West Virginia native, Christopher graduated from Glenville State College in 1997 with a degree in Music Education (K-12). During his time on campus he was a member of Kappa Delta Pi and was president of GSC's chapter of the Music Educators National Conference (now known as the National Association for Music Education). He also performed with the Brass Ensemble, Trumpet Ensemble, Concert Choir, Chamber Choir, Vocal Jazz Group, and Jazz Band and appeared in several campus musical productions. He went on to graduate with a master's degree from Eastern Kentucky University, is a National Board Certified instructor, and completed the three-year Chorister's Guild Institute certification.

His teaching career has included stops in North Carolina and West Virginia at the elementary, middle school, high school, and collegiate level. He has also directed or assisted with music and choir programs at several churches.

Christopher is especially proud of the Appalachian Children's Choir and their accomplishments. Recently the students went on a choir tour to New Orleans and performed in the famous Immaculate Conception Jesuit Church, they opened for the "An Evening with Dolly Parton" event hosted by West Virginia Public Broadcasting, collaborated with up-and-coming Broadway actor, singer, and dancer, Hannah Jane Peterson, performed at the WV State Capitol inside the Senate Chambers, collaborated with River City Youth Ballet and University of Charleston singers for an "Evening on Broadway" event, and performed with the Day of Giving fundraising campaign.

The fundraising event took place throughout the week of February 12, culminating on February 19 – the anniversary of Glenville State's founding.

Donations supported 52 projects across campus, including each academic department and athletic team, scholarship funds, alumni and student projects, the Pioneer Fund, and the President's Circle. Specific projects included Alumni Center renovations, the Pioneer Pantry, an education abroad trip for Land Resources students, and many more.

"Our Founders Day of Giving celebration shows exactly what makes Glenville State University so special. Our alumni and friends, faculty, staff, and students all came together to celebrate our great institution while helping to meet our fundraising goals. We recognize that prices have gone up, from groceries and gas and beyond, so for everyone to still step up and make our annual fundraising day so successful...we truly appreciate every gift. I want to especially thank the Morris Family Foundation for their generous $500,000 match that was in place for Founders Day," said Vice President of Advancement, David Hutchison.

As part of the celebration, students, faculty, and staff also came together on Monday, February 19 to write thank you notes to donors, enjoy special blue and white Founders Day cupcakes, and view a Glenville State historical display that was set up inside the RFK Library.

"I join Vice President Hutchison in sending our most sincere thanks to the Pioneer Family," said Glenville State President, Dr. Mark A. Manchin. "This was a successful fundraising campaign, but it was also our Founders Day celebrating 152 years! Our campus community is better because of each of our supporters... and that includes every employee, student, alumnus, business partner, parent, and friend who participated. Again, thank you all for stepping up to the challenge and ensuring the brightest future for our students and our institution."

Christopher and his wife Amanda reside in Charleston, West Virginia; they have four children. Their daughter Akasha is currently attending Glenville State.

When asked what Glenville State means to him, Christopher said, "Glenville State University was the place where I was able to explore all forms of music, and develop my skills as a reflective educator. I was very fortunate to have some of the most incredible teachers who truly cared for development as an educator, musician and person."

We are pleased to feature Christopher in this month's Alumni Spotlight and are proud to call him an alumnus.

GSU Day Celebrated at the West Virginia State Capitol

Glenville State University students, faculty, staff, alumni, and administrators traveled to the statehouse in Charleston, West Virginia on Tuesday, February 13 for Glenville State University Day at the Legislature.

The Glenville State delegation was on hand at the capitol that morning to meet with lawmakers and share information about academic programs, new initiatives, student, and faculty successes, and more. Admissions and Alumni Relations staff joined representatives from various academic departments outside the Senate chamber for the event.

"We always enjoy sharing news about the good things happening at Glenville State University," said Glenville State President, Dr. Mark A. Manchin. "Each year I look forward to seeing our lawmakers and capitol staffers in Charleston during Glenville State University Day. This is also a wonderful opportunity for our students to see the legislative process in action and to visit our seat of government."

A reception for alumni, friends, and lawmakers was also held the evening before GSU Day. The reception provided an opportunity for several Pioneers to come together for a nice evening of food and fellowship. Special thanks to Professor Emerita Janet James Bailey '79 and the Woman's Club of Charleston for hosting the event.

86 Years After Her Disappearance, Remembering Amelia Earhart's Visit to Glenville State

Amelia Earhart is not only a famous figure in American history, she is also one of Glenville State's most famous visitors. When Earhart came to the campus of then-Glenville State Teachers College in 1936, her presentation on "Aviation Adventures" captivated audience members.

On January 11, 1936, just a year and a half before her disappearance during an attempted around-the-world flight, Earhart visited campus and gave a lecture in the Administration Building Auditorium; she was welcomed by more than 700 people.

"The question most often asked of me is 'Why do you do such things?'" Earhart said. "My reply is simply this – my own desire to fly; I believe that each successful flight I make builds faith in aviation. I am interested in seeing air travel a modern means of transportation."

Earhart directed her remarks to the women in the audience and urged them to "get out of your own sphere and do for yourselves what men have done for themselves." She also expressed her belief that women were rapidly changing their views regarding airplanes. "Thirty percent of all passengers on commercial airlines today are women," said Earhart. "Don't worry about flying and don't try flying until you have reasoned with yourself, until you have reckoned with the risks to be taken and have succeeded in overcoming those risks. To worry retards action and makes clear-cut decisions impossible," Earhart advised the audience. She also informed the audience that speed is the most important factor in overseas flights or long over-land voyages. She did, however, caution against speeding in automobiles, saying that "one should get into the air when one wishes to travel safely at more than forty-five miles an hour."

A little over a year after her campus visit on July 2, 1937, Earhart and her navigator Fred Noonan would disappear during an attempted around-the-world flight.

After years of speculation about what fate befell Earhart and Noonan, an ocean exploration company based in South Carolina recently announced that it captured sonar images of what may be Earhart's aircraft at the bottom of the Pacific Ocean. You can read more about that discovery here.

Although we may never know for certain what happened to Earhart, the so-called "Queen of the Air" will forever be a part of the history of Glenville State.

Scholarship Corner

A monthly spotlight on one of the scholarship funds managed by the GSU Foundation

Thelma (Wilson) Samples receiving the Silver Sisterhood award from Tracey Moats in 1992.

Thelma Wilson Samples Delta Zeta Sorority Scholarship

In recognition of Women's History Month, the March Scholarship Corner features the Thelma Wilson Samples Delta Zeta Sorority Scholarship.

Thelma (Wilson) Samples '64 is one of many notable ladies with ties to Glenville State. She came to campus from Cowan High School (WV) in 1960. With plans of becoming a librarian, Thelma remembers that GSC was "the place to go" for those who were interested in that field. After graduating, she became the Circulation/Reference Librarian at the Robert F. Kidd Library until she and her husband Mack '64 relocated to Wood County, WV. There she worked as the Librarian at Edison Junior High. When she and Mack returned to Glenville State in the early 70s, she became Alumni Director.

In 1992, Thelma was recognized with the Silver Sisterhood Award by the sisters of GSC's DZ chapter. Thelma was a charter member when the chapter at Glenville State was first established in 1963.

After leaving Glenville in 1995, Mack and Thelma traveled all over America and they became active ballroom dancers. They remain mainstays on the square dancing stage at the annual West Virginia State Folk Festival.

Thelma established the scholarship in 1996 to support members of GSC's Theta Xi Chapter of the Delta Zeta Sorority, this scholarship is awarded to a female student who is a "legacy" of a member of this Chapter or a DZ in general.
