Always as you see it now. You let your eyes wander to the stacks of note books, papers, cards, pens, college sweaters and things in the glass showcase which separates you from Mrs. Engelke. You become aware of the stacks and stacks of textbooks, dictionaries and reference books farther back and the revolving rack of paperback books on your right and wonder how all this could have possible been taken care of in what is now the office of Mr. Lloyd M. Jones college business manager.

On second thought you know that such a variety of materials was available when textbooks were distributed from Mr. Jones' office the 1st of September, 1971, for Mr. Bumgardner as manager since 1951 the Book Store has come a long way and many changes to true cooperation. She takes the little cuticle that is the book store from the frowning quarters of the students. They present a picture of real cooperation as she takes the student's order, finds his book and ships them on the counter for Mr. Bumgardner to check out.

Mr. Bumgardner says this line usually lasts for two or three days. He feels the store open until 5 p.m. to accommodate students. He then sends the order for the books to the publishers so that they will be ready when classes start and students can come.

Should you have chosen to visit the Book Store on the first or second day of any given term, plotting an undisturbed course toward the first door to the right at the top of the stairs, you would, no doubt, have been halted rather abruptly by some very hearty, body, line form the rear.

Every GSC student, it seems, is trying to get at his books at the same time. Mr. Bumgardner and Mrs. Engelke can be seen through the glass partition that separates the little cuticle that is the book store from the frowning quarters of the students. They present a picture of real cooperation as she takes the student's order, finds his book and ships them on the counter for Mr. Bumgardner to check out.

Glenville Has Four All Conference Places One On Little All America

A quick glance at the WVIAC football first team defensive unit might make one think it was the Glenville roster. Four of the first eleven were Glenville players, including the defensive captain, Elsworth Buck, defensive back, who was voted defensive captain.

Buck missed being a unanimous all-conference choice by one vote.

Buck, a senior from Richwood, had played four years of outstanding football here. The most memorable moment of Buck's career was the West Liberty game his sophomore year. With only three seconds remaining, he broke off tackle and raced 83 yards to win the game.

Bill Shinn was selected to the second team positions. Shinn has also played four years of football here at Glenville. For the past two years he has been the most underrated player in the conference. Shinn was the spark of the defense in this season. He is a product of Elkview High School.

Phil Clarke, a senior from Mount- ville, was named as a defensive end. Clarke was one of the few players to go both ways this season. The hard charging end also led the way to many TD's with his driving and blocking. All of these three men are seniors, while there are five sophomores on the squad.

The fourth member of the squad was tackle, Vinsen Post. Post is a native from Burnsville and also a physical education student. Post was certainly a man to be reckoned with and will be around to terrorize the conference again next year.

Along with these members of the first unit were four on the second team and three honorable mentions. Summers and Gunlee were second team offense, Proctor and Smith second team defense. Honorable mention were Williams, Speener, and Haimett.

BULLETIN

Along with playing defensive end for the Pioneers, he led the team in scoring and was second in the nation small College Punters. One other West Virginia player, Ter Lex Boggs of Davis & Elkins, was named to the second team.

G-Men Will Face D and E, Wheeling

Tonight the Pioneers will go to Eclipse for the second basketball encounter this year with Davis and Elkins. In the previous tilt the Pioneers won 103 to 51.

The Senators were recently ranked as the number ten small college offensive team in a release by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. Bob Reed, Davis and Elkins leading scorer in the scoring race in the nation small college. He averages 34.3 points per game.

The G-Men will not have the advantage of a home court going against them. It could prove to be a fatal disadvantage.

Saturday night Jan. 13, the Pioneers will play Wheeling College here. Coach Joe Blisha, the young Wheeling basketball coach, has done well with the material on hand. Wheeling has recently occupied the hot rung of the Western Division.

Pioneers Lose In Wellsburg Action

The Pioneers participated in the Wellsburg Tournament Dec. 15 and 16. This year as last, the Pioneers fell to the College of Beaver in the first round 97-60. G-Men won then made their way to the championship game with West Liberty 79-72. Steubenville won the tournament by defeating Allience College.

Mike Eberbaugh led the team in scoring on both occasions. Eber-baugh had 21 the first night and 32 the second night. In the W-L game Bob Lambert was close behind with 22.

Although the Pioneers did not win the tournament, it did give the G-Men a good look at West Liberty. Pioneers played the Hilltoppers here Jan. 6.

Results of this game and the tournament were not available when the MERCURY went to press.
