GSC Partners with Marshall University

Glenville State College has partnered with Marshall University to offer students a program of study leading to a Professional Master of Science in Athletic Training (PMSAT) degree. The agreement combines an undergraduate course of study at Glenville State with students later being accepted into the College of Health Professions at Marshall University.

said, “Four years might seem like a long time when you’re first starting out, but they’ll go by more quickly than you think! Enjoy every minute of it – take chances, challenge yourself, and don’t be afraid to go after what you really want.”

In April of 2016, Whitney had the opportunity to attend and present at the Western Jewish Studies Association Conference. At the conference, she presented, “Marketing Anne Frank: The Creation of an Americanized Icon.” Stalnaker was also the recipient of the Baron Award for Best Graduate Paper at the Western Jewish Studies Association Conference.

Whitney is a native of the Glenville, West Virginia area and was fortunate to be exposed to GSC at an early age. By the time she had graduated high school, she had already completed a semesters worth of credit hours at GSC and was very impressed with the quality of education that she received, so naturally she chose to continue her education at GSC.

We are proud to feature Whitney in this week’s alumni spotlight and proud to call her an alumna of Glenville State College.

Each year, Marshall University will reserve three seats for prospective PMSAT students attending Glenville State. To apply for admission to the program, students enrolled at Glenville State must have an undergraduate GPA of 3.0 or higher and submit a transcript, resume, complete an interview, and provide at least two letters of recommendation as outlined in Marshall University’s Graduate Catalog. Applicants who score 70 or higher on the Marshall University PMSAT Applicant Admission Assessment Form will be admitted to those seats based on their score ranking. Additional applicants may be admitted depending upon overall demand for the application year.

Making a Lasting Impact - What's Your Legacy?

The Glenville State College Foundation is pleased to announce the formation of the Freshwater Family Scholarship. The scholarship is designed to support students from Roane and Calhoun Counties attending Glenville State College who wish to teach in a STEM-related field or in the oil and gas industry. The fund has been established by David and Scott Freshwater, named in honor of the Freshwater family who understand the importance of education and the opportunities it can provide.

In 1970, David A. Freshwater founded D.A. Freshwater Well Service Company to provide oil and gas well servicing, trucking, pipeline construction, and roustabout services to oil and gas production companies in central West Virginia. In 1993, D.A. Freshwater Company changed its legal name to Contractor Services Inc. of West Virginia. In 1998 the company principals, J. Scott Freshwater and David A. Freshwater, co-founded Reserve Oil & Gas, Inc. and later two other independently owned and managed companies, and began further diversifying their client base and service offerings. The Freshwaters said, "The West Virginia oil and gas industry has been good to our family and enabled us to provide employment to hundreds of central West Virginians over the last 50 years. It is important that we give back to the communities in which we operate and do all we can to get the next generation ready to be future leaders."
