VOL. I

GLENVILLE, W. VA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1922

NO. 1

HARRY G. WHEAT

Vice President of Glenville Normal School and Head of the Department of Education.

THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The pupil's view of the school is a limited one. He sees only a routine of lessons to be studied, of examinations to be passed, and of a next grade or course to prepare for. The fact that there are problems of the schoolroom different from the ones set for him by the teacher never occurs to him. Preparation of study, lesson assignments, classroom organization, and the various methods used by the teacher are taken as a matter of course. He goes through the school with the notion that the teacher is nothing more than the official announcer, benevolent or otherwise, (mostly otherwise) of the school tasks he must perform from day to day. It is for this reason that schoolroom experience in mastering the various subjects of study is only a partial preparation for the profession of teaching.

The Department of Education takes the normal school student behind the scenes and lets him look at the school from the viewpoint of the teacher. Here for the first time he becomes aware of the fact that teachers have their problems and special tasks as well as pupils. Here he is made acquainted with some of the many problems every successful teacher must solve for himself and he is given the opportunity to try his hand at solving a few of them. The Department conducts courses in General Methods and Principles of Teaching, in School Management and Supervision, and in Special Methods of Teaching each of the common branches, and gives opportunity for Observation and Practice Teaching under competent supervision.

THE TOWER

At a recent meeting of the senior class, a permanent name was chosen for the school paper, whose titular number was christened, "The Glenville Normal Bulletin". But that name is no more. At least in so far as a regular school paper is concerned. After considering several very pretty and appropriate names, two favorites, "The Tower," and "The Rhododendron" were discussed and voted on. The latter was eliminated, and our readers will from this time forward be anxiously awaiting the arrival of "The Tower."

This name was chosen for two main reasons. First, Glenville Normal School is the only normal school in the state whose original tower is still standing, or in fact the only one that even has a tower of any kind. For this famous old tower in whose lofty apex is the home of the "Normal clock," whose familiar voice has hastened many of our readers hurriedly along the "flowery paths of knowledge" to the class room, this paper is named. Second, it shall be the sole aim of this paper to be a real tower. By that we mean that it is our highest ambition to edit a paper that will not only compare favorably with those published by students of other schools, but that will be looked upon as the loftiest tower among student newspapers in West Virginia.

THE CLASS OF '22

Faye Arthur, poet laureate of the senior class last year, is teaching in Charleston.

Earle Bush, of Sinking Creek, is a member of the Wallace High School Faculty.

A. L. George is teaching near his home at Flemington.

Mary Kee of this town, is teaching music in Clarksburg.

Edweth Withers is taking post graduate work, this year, at the Glenville Normal School.

Madeleine Gainer, of Sand Fork, will probably enroll as a student of the G. N. S. at the beginning of the winter term.

Charles W. Morrow, of Taylor county, is dealing quite extensively in live stock.

E. B. Chapman is a student at West Virginia University.

Asa V. Cooper is teaching at Pine Grove, Wetzel County.

Carl B. Doddrell is teaching at Richwood.

Leonard B. Furbess is teaching in the graded schools of Smithfield, Wetzel County.

W. H. Maxwell is teaching near Richwood.

THE HAYS CLASS OF '23

When the senior class honored Miss Lucile Virginia Hays by electing her sponsor, it made no mistake. Miss Hays was graduated from G. N. S. in the class of 1913, and from the University of West Virginia in 1920. Since that time she has been a member of the Glenville Normal School faculty, and has always been a staunch friend of the student body.

The Hays Class of '23 is composed of more than sixty members at the present time, and we are expecting it to increase its numbers to seventy ere the day of graduation comes. Besides being one of the best classes to attend school in G. N. S., it has the distinction of being the largest in the history of the school. With our motto "We will win" ever in mind, we shall expect our class to take an equal place with the many good classes that have graduated from G. N. S.

MR. WHEAT'S NEW BOOK

During the past two years Mr. Wheat of the Department of Education of Glenville Normal School has been working on the manuscript for a new textbook on his favorite subject, The Teaching of Reading. Some months ago this manuscript was submitted to Glan & Company and Mr. Wheat has just been notified that it has been accepted and that the book will be published in the near future.

G. N. S. READY FOR D. & E.

When G. N. S. leaves for Elkins next Friday to battle the Maroon and White she will have the best chance in her history to bring home the bacon. Every man is in good condition, and anxious to get into real action.

There was much disappointment when the Wesleyan Reserve's failed to get here Saturday, but I guess someone tipped them off to what was waiting for them. So after coming as far as Weston, they got cold feet and said the roads were too bad, and hurried back to Buckhannon. In order to give the students and the ones that had come in from the country a chance to see the boys in action Coach Dawson arranged a game between the first and second teams. At times it was hard to tell which was the "Varsity" for the "Scrubs" put up quite a battle. "Red" Wilfong and "Dick" Powell were easily the outstanding stars for the "Varsity"; the former contributed several long sensational runs, and run the team in good style. While "Dick's" line plunging was hard to beat, the "big blonde" crashed through the "Scrubs" line three touch-downs. Paugh, Bias and McQuain also played good football.

For the "Scrubs", Harry Wilfong and Hays Johnson were the outstanding

EXTENSION WORK

The province of this article is to give a brief summary of the need, the procedure, and the difficulties of extension work.

Approximately one out of every ten teachers of this state are untrained and have had but little, if any work in school above the eighth grade. Certain requirements in regard to scholastic and professional requirements must be met in order to secure a first grade certificate. These requirements are being advanced steadily. Extension courses are primarily for the purpose of enabling teachers to improve themselves while teaching in order to give more effective service in the public schools of the state.

In the extension work given by this school, the minimum number of students in each class is twelve. The classes are organized and meet once a week for a two-hour recitation period. The instructor and the class select the subject to be studied. Upon the completion of each course an examination is given, and when the work is satisfactorily completed, full credit is given for the course. The tuition for the full time of the classes, which corresponds to the fall and winter terms of the normal, is $7.50. The students buy their text books and other material which the instructor thinks essential to the course.

The chief difficulties connected with this work may be found in the attitude manifested toward it by the teachers in whom it is offered. Some people think that, because they enroll in a course and pay the tuition, that it is not essential for any work to be done; others imagine that irregular and partial attendance ought not to have any bearing on determining the credit for the course; still others are not sufficient

SUNDAY SCHOOL REVIEW

The fourth regular Sunday School review of the Glenville Sunday Schools was held in the Southern Methodist church on Sunday evening, September 24th. It was a decided success, as all the reviews have been, and it is our opinion that no better movement for creating interest among the students of Glenville Normal School could be undertaken by the Sunday Schools of Glenville. At these reviews the members of all Sunday Schools meet to hear the lessons of the entire quarter read and intelligently discussed. It has been, and continues to be the aim of the program committee to give the students an opportunity to take part in these quarterly lessons. This is a thoughtful move on the part of the Sunday School leaders, whose aim it is to have students feel welcome and at home in the church exercises. At these regular services, students and friends of all the Sunday Schools are thrown together, where they can serve in union and harmony, thus becoming better acquainted, and at the same time realizing more fully that the Sunday School movement is a big force in which churches everywhere are working in co-operation.

We are glad that this movement has been set on foot, and we believe that the student body as a whole will respond willingly to the call to contribute in any way to make the program more interesting and instructive. A Sunday School worker recently said to the writer, "If I only knew some way to get all the students in some Sunday School." Students, we are needed, and we are earnestly invited to attend. Let us decide to give the Sunday Schools of Glenville one hundred per cent of our attendance, and in this way, not only strengthen the Sunday Schools, but also make ourselves stronger and better prepared to meet the problems of life during the weeks that follow. It is for a more lively interest and thus stimulate better attendance, that these reviews are being continued. We hope the plan which is just in its infancy here, will continue to grow in interest, and that it may be a greater power for good than its originators even dreamed.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

For the first time in the history of the Glenville Normal School physical training has been made compulsory for both boys and girls.

Miss Trotter puts the girls through a series of gymnastics each day, and Mr. Dawson does the same for the boys. However, each student is required to have only three training periods each week.

Of course students who have good and sufficient reason for not taking physical training are excused from it by the faculty. One third of a credit is given each term for this work. Reporting for practice with the various athletic teams is considered the same as physical training.

The Tower is heartily in favor of physical training in the school, for, although some one has said, "Tis the mind and not the might that makes the man", the editor has an idea, lodged somewhere within the gray matter which so sparsely covers the convolutions of his cerebrum, that the old Greek motto, "A sound mind in a sound body," was a good one, for today it is known that a healthy body is necessary for the best mental development.

Furthermore, physical training will, undoubtedly, soon become compulsory in our public schools, and it is well that something is being done toward training our future teachers for this important work.

Some, perhaps, will say that physical training is not important, but is merely a fad adopted for the purpose of amusing the children. However, if they will consider for a moment the great number of diseases each year by school organs contracted each year by school children through improper breathing habits and other causes which can largely be corrected by physical training we believe that they will become advocates of physical training.

FOOTBALL "PEP"

Lots of school spirit and football "pep" was stirred up when it was known that opposing forces from Wesleyan were going to move against the football ranks of the G. N. S.

The whole of the student body as well as every member of the faculty has been bolsterously upholding our team. Last week President Rohr, though very generously allowed the chapel period to be turned into a "house" meeting.

Leaders, such as Lucy Ewing, Stanley Hall, and Miss Trotter, who are full of dash, vim, and "pep," were called upon the stage to lead the yells and songs. Under their guidance and leadership every student of the G. N. S. used his voice to its full capacity and volume. The yelling was above reproach, and the singing was superb. It could have been set to the tune of thunder and lightning and cannon and heard for a great distance.

Wesleyan probably heard it for her men came only as far as Weston and then turned and faced the other way. It is probably well for them that they did not come, for with the kind of men the G. N. S. has, and backed by the whole school, Wesleyan would undoubtedly have fallen and great would have been the fall thereof.

Determined and self-reliant students are well-fitted for extension classes.

Those who get their only stimulus from class and school surroundings are not advised to attempt this work on a very extensive scale, if at all. The earnest mind, with the resourcefulness of initiative and perseverance can, on the other hand, achieve good results in the mastering of subjects in an extension course.

With regard to admission requirements there is a liberality not found in regular resident study. Extension classes are not closed to students just because they cannot meet the regular entrance requirements, or have not had the necessary prerequisites. It would be contrary to the spirit and purpose of this work if opportunity to do it were restricted to narrow groups. On the other hand the authorities ought to be in possession of fairly convincing evidence that each student taking a course has the ability to pursue it with both profit and pleasure. As a general rule, students taking these courses are more mature than those taking resident work

Organizations

INDEPENDENT LITERARY SOCIETY

The members of the Independent Literary Society are showing great spirit this year. This was shown, not only by the good program rendered October 6th, but also by the number of candidates presented for membership, and received as active members. The candidates were as follows: Marvin Miller, Fred Wolfe, Eunice Gerwig, Virginia Morris, Nina Karickhoff, Grace Karickhoff, Lestile Lorents, Mary Whitting Masel Shifflett, Flora Coberly, Violet Miller, Mary Stealey, Ruth Fitzpatrick, and Kate Cain.

COSMIAN LITERARY SOCIETY

The Cosmian Literary Society met Friday evening, September 29th, at 7:00 o'clock, and gave its second program of the year. The program was good, and showed that the members are working and taking an interest in school work.

The members have not only shown interest in the programs of the society by bringing good numbers, but they have been busy soliciting new members for the society. At this particular meeting eleven new students were voted into the society for active membership.

The signs and omens are to be rejoiced in, the Cosmian Literary Society have the best organization that it has ever had in its history. There is little reason to doubt that it will be one of the strongest and most influential organizations in the town.

Y. M. C. A.

The first program of the Glenville Y. M. C. A. was rendered Friday evening at 7:00 o'clock in Mr. Wadsworth's room, and was as follows: Song service by the members; The Lord's Prayer in concert; What the Y. M. C. A. should do to support the organization; Elton Bush; Outlook for the Y. M. C. A. Organization this year; A E. Singing by the Y. M. C. A.

There were thirteen young men present to hear this short, but excellent program. This is a very small attendance, when we consider that there are at least seventy-five young men enrolled in school, all of whom should be affiliated with this splendid organization. If the Y. M. C. A. has a successful year, the members must become sufficiently interested to attend its regular weekly meetings, and to be boosting it continually. If it succeeds, it will be because the members work unitedly for its success, and they will receive the praise. If it is allowed to lag, the members will be at fault, and they must share the blame. It seems that many students are little interested, perhaps due to the fact that they are not acquainted with the nature of the organization. To the students, who have been here before we open our doors to you, and urge that you come. We need you. To the students who are in G. N. S. for the first time, we ask you to come, for we need you and you need the Y. M. C. A.

Let all the young men unite to make this a banner year for this phase of work in the Glenville Normal School. Let us ever remember that in unity there is strength, and that there is no such word as fail in the dictionary of the Y. M. C. A.

The President for the year is Mr. Harry Baker, a young man who is putting forth every effort to get started right in order to have a record-breaking year. He asks us through the columns of this paper to urge that all young men in Glenville attend the next meeting, Friday night, October 13th. Watch for the programs that are posted in the normal hall.

CAPTAIN "RED" WILFONG

On the Hays athletic field an election took place last Saturday afternoon that must be recorded as one of the most important events of G. N. S. this year. Our football team, while waiting for its old rival, Wesleyan Reagrees, to appear, unanimously chose Captain Wilfong captain. No better material for a leader could be chosen from anywhere, and with such a leader as he to guide and direct, the football squad of the star old Blue and White will not be defeated, even though its members should be outclassed and overpowered. "Red" is an experienced player, whose fighting spirit and cheerful disposition, inspires undivided team work from the men. With so many stalwart fellows on the team and Captain "Red" to lead them on, it is no wonder that Coach Dawson is expecting much from them ere the season closes.

GLENVILLE'S RECENT VISITOR

Glenville was honored recently by the presence of an aeroplane which made its headquarters here.

The aviator was Mr. Scott from Marietta, Ohio, with his famous aeroplane, the "Scotty."

The lighting place of the famous aeroplane was the Hays field better known as the Athletic field. Mr. Scott did us the honor of saying that Glenville had one of the best places to light that he had ever seen in his extensive travels over the United States. This may cause surprise to persons who think of Glenville as a very hilly place.

The aviator made many short flights each day, sometimes exhibiting his skill in flying and again taking up passengers. Several students and many town people went up, and are still talking about the wonderful experience. When the football game took place on at Fairmont, Mr. Scott flew over taking passengers from Glenville to witness the game.

Last Sunday a great many people went out to the field to see "Scotty" close range. Several persons drove from the country, and the field resembled a fair-ground. On that day "Scotty" was busy all day taking passengers.

Now "Scotty" is gone, but we hope to see it again before long.

The dusty roads are a thing of the past since the splendid road is now many are wondering why we have such muddy, disagreeable weather.

CHAPEL

President Rohrbaugh has arranged for different ministers of the town to conduct chapel exercises for a week each.

Rev. Brown McDonald, pastor of the local Baptist church, is now in charge and is giving very interesting and practical talks each morning.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Nora Holbert, a pupil of the sixth grade, has returned from Mason Hospital, Clarksburg, where she underwent a successful operation for appendicitis.

Several pupils in the upper grades are expecting to enter the story-writing contest that is being given by the State Tuberculosis Association.

Miss Mae Bramlett, teacher of the fifth and sixth grades, was at Weston several days last week, where she was being treated for a severe attack of laryngitis.

Several pupils from the rural schools of Gilmer county have enrolled with us this year, which gives us a total enrollment of almost one hundred fifty. We learn there are a few others who will enroll later. Among the new pupils are Ira and Carr Peterson, Cecil and Helen Kenser, Creed, Edwin and Vonda Powell, and Mary Virginia Warder.

Two cases of diphtheria having developed in the lower grades, the county board of health closed school at noon Thursday. It is to be hoped that the delay will be of brief duration, and that there may be no more new cases.

Our janitor this year, Mr. Doyle Fitzpatrick, is a fellow who believes in keeping the school property in excellent condition. He is always finding something to do that adds to the appearance of the building, to the convenience of the teachers and pupils, and to the delight of everyone. We do not hesitate to say that we believe he is as good as the best anywhere.

Mrs. Sample, the newly-chosen supervisor, is a teacher of a number of years successful experience, having taught for several consecutive years in the primary grades of the town school. With her at the helm, we may reasonably expect the best grade work from the teachers, student teachers and pupils.

At a late hour, we learn that school will be discontinued until Monday, Oct. 16, at which time, unless there are further developments, school will again re-assemble. During this week's absence, the county and circuit courts will be in session.

PERSONALS

Miss Mary Stealy recently visited home folks at Weston.

Mr. Francis Woofter, one of our biggest and best football players, spent a recent week-end at home.

Miss Ruth Fletcher was among those to report for school last week.

Mr. Bernie Gerwig took his father and mother over to their farm on Steer Creek, Friday, September 29th and returned Sunday evening. Bernie says that apple picking is great sport, and that he picked several apples that would fill a gallon bucket. We do not doubt Bernie's word, but we wonder how many it took.

Mr. Dana Farnsworth spent a week-end somewhere ????

The following G. N. S. people attended the West Virginia—Wesleyan football game at Fairmont September 29th: Ar. Rohrbaugh, Mr. Wheat, Mr. Woofter, Mr. Dawson, Mr. Cooper, Miss Trotter, Mary Davis, Fernie Huff, Henrietta Gainer, Elizabeth Holt, Clayborne and Harry Wilfong, Carl McGinnis, Lazel Bush, Stanley Hall, Delbert Lovett, Edward and Graydon Cooper, Clarence Spray, and Chas. Martin.

Mr. William McGinnis, a member of the Sample Class of '22, was in town over Sunday.

Mosses, Tom, Gilbert, and Ruddle Reed were in town over the last week-end. They came in expecting to see the football game, but were disappointed when the Reserves failed to appear.

Mr. Roland Boggs, a member of the junior class last year, was in town Saturday. Mr. Boggs is thinking of going to Virginia.

Mr. J. A. Pirkey, a member of last year's class, was in town lately. Mr. Pirkey is the owner of a new Ford.

Mr. Hall Dent, a member of the class of 1922, spent Sunday, October 1st, with friends in Glenville. He is teaching the Little Cove School, near Troy, this year.

Miss Mary Kee, who is teaching music in the Clarksburg schools, returned to her work Monday, October 2nd, after a short visit with relatives here.

Jewell and Hunter Powell, former students of the Glenville Normal School are at Marshall College this year.

Mr. Wayne Paugh, of Kincheloe, enrolled in school Monday, October 2nd. He reported for football the same day, and promises to become one of the best men on the squad.

Mr. E. R. Grose spent the week-end at his home in Urshur County.

Mr. Glenn Callaghan, of the Grafton High School, spent a recent week-end visiting Mrs. Callaghan.

Mr. Stanley Hardman, of the class of '22, was in town over the last week-end. Stanley is attending school at Salem College this year, where he is a regular backfield man on the football team.

Miss Alice Fair, a former student of this school, was calling on friends here Saturday.

W. Hale Maxwell, of the class of '22, but now principal of a ward school at Richwood, spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks here.

Mr. Frank Conley is seen on our streets almost every week end.

Miss Lucile Hays, of the English Department, was in Clarksburg several days last week.

Mrs. Lorena Fries Arbuckle, a former member of the faculty, taught Miss Hays' classes during her absence.

Mr. Cline Ralston was in town over Saturday.

New bulletin boards placed in the main hall by the Independent and Cosman Literary Societies are attracting attention.

Ward Gainer spent the week end with his mother at Tanner.

DRY HUMOR

Dry humor! After all, what other kind could one expect after such a protracted dry spell? We happen to remember that in polite society that classical subject, the weather, is taboo. We are covered with confusion over having made such a break right at the start, but are compelled to continue.

We labeled this column as we did, because we are noble and upright, and have no wish to enter an innocent and confiding reader into a perusal of its contents, by holding forth promises of convulsive mirth and ear-splitting laughs. We are being perfectly above board about it. Anyone who reads will do so at his own hazard. We wash our hands of the whole affair.

Synonymous Situations.

Adam lived in a garden bright,
He was better off, yes, a long sight
Than most of the people are now.
But a snake put a notion into his pate,
As a result he was kicked through the garden gate,
And had to live by the sweat of his brow.

So the students upon the campus green,
Strolling in twos used to be seen
Treating the hours as useless junk,
But the President came with a stately bound

And ordered them off the campus ground.

Now they are doomed to study or flunk.
If Adam had'n't been such a pig
Eating the apple ripe and big,
The students might be strolling by brooks
Instead of humping over their books.
