WHY STUDY HISTORY

By Miss Bessie Boyd Bell
Teacher of History at G. N. S.

The individual who conceives history to be a collection of data (always so difficult for him to remember) has made slight progress in his study of a subject which is as broad as the world. Just what does history deal with? Writers of history may record the rise and fall of governments and nations, they may picture the life of great personages, or they may enumerate events. But history is more than that. It is change, movement, orderly progression, because it concerns the development of the human race. The story is a long one and can not be understood and appreciated in its present stage unless one has some knowledge of the preceding chapters.

The study of history may be undertaken with a variety of motives. No matter what the motive is, the value of the study and knowledge resulting from it cannot be expressed in dollars and cents. The practical minded person will see little use in studying history. But one does not "live by bread alone." History furnishes material for all classes of readers. The reading entertainment will find it an inexhaustible field. Biography and romance abound. Or, history may be studied merely to obtain knowledge. To desire to know is a common human attribute. The well informed person must have a knowledge of history. It increases his confidence and makes him an intelligent citizen. And that after all is the chief value to be derived from studying history. One cannot yet intelligently unless he has some understanding of the times in which he finds himself. The present can be explained only by the past.

MISS MABELLE SCOTT TO RETURN TO THE NORMAL

All friends of the Normal will be glad to learn that Miss Mabelle Scott of Carlisle, Kentucky, will return to Glenville Normal for the spring term of school.

For the information of those who do not already know Miss Scott, we may say that she is one of the very best equipped teachers in West Virginia, both as to native ability and as to training. She has had the benefit of excellent training not only in the universities of the United States but has studied in Germany and France and has traveled extensively through England, Scotland, Italy and Austria.

D. & E. GIRLS TO PLAY G. N. S. GIRLS FEBRUARY 8

The G. N. S. Girls will open their basket ball season with the fast Davis Elkins College team here on February 8. The Senators always have good athletic teams, and this promises to be a battle which no lover of the floor sport can afford to miss.

THE SCOTCH HIGHLANDERS APPEAR

Nell Patterson and his assisting company, Miss Mildred Naleen and Miss Mary Bews appeared before a large and appreciative audience at the Normal Auditorium on the evening of February fifth.

The program presented consisted of Scotch songs sung in costume by Mr. Patterson and Miss Bews, interspersed with pianologues and sketches by Miss Naleen. Mr. Patterson also appeared in the role of a piper in the British army, playing the Scotch battle song, "Cock of the North and other selections on the bagpipe.

The program throughout was typical Scotch and Mr. Patterson kept his audience in a gay mood with his flow of wit and his humorous stories, told for the most part at the expense of his countrymen.

On the whole this was probably the best liked entertainment that has been given so far on the Y. M. C. A. Lecture Course.

BROADDUS COLLEGE DEFEATS G. N. S. 25-15

In one of the hardest fought games of the season the G. N. S. boys lost to Broaddus College. The first half ended with the score standing 7-6 in favor of Glenville. During the last half the score was tied three times, but the game ended with Broaddus on the long end of the score. Both teams scored seven field goals. Dare for Broaddus and Wilfong for Glenville were the outstanding players.

Line-up and Summary

Glenville 15	Broaddus 25
C. Wilfong Forward	Roberts
Lorenz Forward	Chandler
Treacy Center	Withers
Reed Guard	C. Young
Powell Guard	Huff

Substitutions: Glenville—Lynch for Reed; Broaddus—Jeffreys for Roberts, C. Dare for Chandler, Woodburn for Withers, Conley for Young, Cummins for Huff, Roberts for Jeffreys, Young for Cummins.

Field Goals: Treacy 2, Wilfong 2, Lorenz 2, Lynch 1, Jeffreys 1, Roberts 2, Dare 1, Woodburn 1, Young 2.

Fouls: Wilfong, 1 in 2; Dare, 9 in 10; Roberts, 1 in 2; Chandler, 1 in 3.

Referee: Griam of the University of Maryland.

BROADDUS QUINTET COMING TO GLENVILLE FEBRUARY 22

The Broaddus College basket ball team will come to Glenville on February 22 instead of February 23 as was formerly announced. Broaddus has a great team this year which defeated the G. N. S. Boys in a game at Phillippi on January 25. Broaddus also won from Marshall College recently. From all appearances the game on February 22 will be one of the best home games of the season.

EXAMINATION DAY

The rain was raining cheerfully
As if it had been May.
The class-room too appeared inside
Unusually gay;
And this was strange, because it was
Examination day.

The Class was sitting awkwardly,
Their paper work was done,
They wanted much to go away
To ride or row or run;
"It's very rude," they said, "to keep Us here and spoil our fun."

The papers they had finished lay
In piles of blue and white,
They answered everything they could,
And wrote with all their might,
But though they wrote it all by rote,
They did not write it right.

The teacher and the Principal
Beside these piles did stand;
They wept like anything to see
The work they had in hand;
"If this were only finished up,"
They said, "It would be grand."

"If seven E's or seven F's
We give to all this bunch,
"Do you suppose," the Teacher said,
"That we can get to lunch?"
"I hope so," said the Principal,
"Don't let them get a hunch."

"O gentlemen will you now come up?"
The teacher did beseech,
"And let us see if you can learn
As well as we can teach."
We cannot do with more than two,
To have a word with each."

Two seniors softly ambled up,
And slowly took a seat;
They knit their brows and hit their thumbs,
As if they found them sweet;
And this is odd, because you know
Thumbs are not good to eat.

"The time has come," the teacher said,
To talk of many things,
Of accidents and adjectives,
And names of Jewish Kings;
How many notes a sackbut has,
And whether shows have strings."

"Please, sir," the elder senior said,
Turning a little blue,
"We did not know that was the sort
Of thing we had to do."
"We thank you much," the teacher said,
"Send on another two."

Two Juniors came, and then two
Sophes,
And Freshmen near a score,
And some looked upward at the roof,
And some down at the floor,
But none were any wiser than
The pair that went before.

"I weep for you," the teacher said,
"I deeply sympathize!"
With sobs and tears he gave them all
F's of the largest size,
While at the Principal he winked
One of his streaming eyes.

"I think," observed the Principal,

G. N. S. LOSES TO DAVIS ELKINS COLLEGE 28-38

On January 26 Davis Elkins College won a whirlwind game from the Glenville basketballers. The Normalites gave the Senators a real battle, and the final outcome was uncertain until the last few minutes of play. Loulin was the star for D. & E. while Wilfong featured for the locals.

Line-up and Summary

G. N. S. 28	D. & E. 38
Wilfong (C) Forward	Wolfe
Lorenz Forward	Loulin
Treacy Center	Keyser
Reed Guard	Hare
Powell Guard	Newcome

Substitutions: Lynch for Powell.
Field goals: Glenville—Wilfong 5,
Treacy 3, Reed 2; D. & E.—
Fouls: Wilfong 8 in 13; D. & E.—

PHI DELTAS TO GIVE PUBLIC PROGRAM FEBRUARY 16

On February 16, the Phi Delta Literary Society will give a program open to the public. This society gives only one public program each term, and literary followers cannot afford to miss this one.

Every day and in every way the Dormitory grows better and better. This time it is new furniture. Two new davenport and some arm chairs in fumed oak and Spanish leather have been added to the furniture for the reception hall greatly to the improvement of that room and to the delight of the members of the household.

Nor has Cora and the kitchen been forgotten. If you want your eyes put out just visit her in her domain and see her gleaming new cook's table with its rows and rows of shining aluminum kettles, spoons, cake turners, and all the what-nots that a cook makes use of in the mysteries of her art. Cast your eyes, provided they are full good for casting after this display, beyond the tables and behold her massive, new range with its handles and ornamental plates gleaming like headlights on an engine.

Is it any wonder she serves us such heavenly fried chicken, flaky pie crust, flannel cakes that are no more related to the ordinary blanket variety than is ambrosia to army gold fish, and hundreds of other delicious things, as Mr. Mr. Dooley says, too numerous to mention?

"We're getting on too quick;
Are we not putting down the F's,
A little bit too thick?"
The teacher said with much disgust
"Their answers make me sick"
"Now students every one," he cried,
"Our fun is nearly done;
Will anybody else come up?"
But answer there, come none;
But this was scarcely odd, because
They'd blanked them every one!

SLACKERS

During the war we heard the word slacker used very often. It is now used to term anyone who shirks his duties. Slacker is especially applied to one who seeks to avoid enlistment in military service. Indeed a slacker is one who shirks his duties in any place in life, whether a teacher, a student, an employee, or an official at the head of our government. The purpose of this discussion is to point out the slacker in our schools of America; especially to emphasize the rural schools.

One of the greatest problems before the American people to-day is the rural school problem. Why? Because the schools have too many slackers in them as teachers. Indeed a slacker in the greatest institutions we have is a very serious matter. The foundation of our government rests primarily on the rural school teacher. The boys and girls of today will be the men and women of to-morrow. They must not be neglected. Our school system must be raised to a higher standard of efficiency. This cannot be done without putting into our schools, teachers that are not afraid to work. Our schools are too full of "flappers" and "pinched back sports." A teacher that is industrious and has good common sense will far excel the "college flapper." A teacher that is industrious and tries to do anything, will see his inefficiency and will strive to improve himself. The strength of our schools lies in the few industrious teachers we have. While the greatest source of weakness to our schools is the slackers in them, we cannot condemn our whole teaching force of America because we have many good teachers doing excellent work.

We must not think that we find slackers in the teaching force of the schools alone. Indeed if any difference the number and effectiveness of slackers are greater with the patrons. There are many patrons who do not even like to help support the schools by paying taxes regardless of their attitude toward the school in their community. There are always a few people in every community who are like the fellow who said that he had all political parties represented in his home—that his wife was a Republican, his son a Prohibitionist, he a Democrat, and the dog a Socialist. On being asked why he called the dog a Socialist, he said that, he did nothing but sit on his haunches and howl. Too many of the patrons in our rural schools to-day are acting like the dog. They will not perform their duties toward the schools as good citizens. What else should we call people like those except slackers. The people should strive to make the schools better instead of continually finding fault. In many cases the patrons are justifiable in what they say about the schools. We have many good loyal citizens that are trying to build up a better system of schools and make them clean, pure, and a fit place to send our children for instruction.

The rural school system has been emphasized, but there are slackers in the high schools and colleges. The high school student who fails to work and to put forth every effort that is in him in order to prepare himself for future service is a slacker. There are many students who loiter around and do not even try to prepare their lessons, thinking they will get through some way, and that is all they care about.

In conclusion I may say that there are just two classes of people in the world, "the people that lift and the people that lean." To the latter class belongs the slacker.

Words and Music by C. E. Waworth

O child of the storm, clad in thunder
 Of the nation's lurid light
 Arise to thy glory in wonder
 In thine armor flaming bright,
 Thy righteous sword is gleaming
 For the truth that maketh free
 And our God with might will defend
 the right
 West Virginia, for thee.

Rejoice, O ye freemen, victorious,
 Let the hills with anthems ring
 Rejoice in thy heritage glorious
 And thy song exultant sing,
 Our shield and fortress ever
 Is the truth that maketh free,
 And our God with might will defend
 the right
 West Virginia for thee.

Chorus

West Virginia, West Virginia,
 The land of the strong and the free,
 Our God with might will defend the

THE CANTERBURY CLUB

On January 24, 1923, a meeting of the Canterbury Club was held on the stage in the Auditorium. Carl Jarvis was elected to membership, making the membership of the club twenty-five all that can be admitted according to the constitution. This is the first time in the history of the club that it has had twenty-five members.

The program for the evening consisted of two stories which were: Half-past Ten told by Charles Lynch.

CLASS GAMES

The third set of class games was played on January 27. The games were all very interesting and hotly contested. The most interesting game was the one between the senior and freshman girls. The sophomore boys showed the most remarked improvement of any of the teams since the last games.

The fourth set of class games was played on February 3. The junior-senior boys' game which had been looked forward to with a great deal of interest by every one resulted in rather an easy victory for the juniors. The most outstanding players on February 3, were, Johnson for the junior boys and Cain for the sophomore boys.

Mr. Harry Baker had just returned from his first spring term at Glenville. Trotting along a country highway, he was thinking complacently of the erudition he was possessed of. He was quite certain that he knew all there was to know, and perhaps some besides. Observing an old farmer hoeing corn, he hailed him with the laudable intention of imparting to him a few of the points on corn raising, that he had

THE BOOKSHELF

We try to be as up-to-date as possible amidst all our other activities, but we may as well admit that we had never read any of the lately re-discovered Herman Melville's rather voluminous writings until last week when we encountered "Moby Dick; or, The Whale." * * * It is a thin strand of a story upon which are strung beads of panegyrics ancient whales in general and a great white whale, Moby Dick in particular; and interspersed are buttons of all sizes and colors for the crew and the captain and the staunch whaling "Pequod." * * * We enjoyed the buttons and the glimpses of the string upon which they slid were variegated and interesting, but the beads, while well rounded and painstakingly polished, rather left us cold. * * * In spite of Mr. Melville's insistence upon the general wonderfulness of whales we couldn't seem to be very emotional about them. * * * We doubt if we should feel much animosity toward him if Moby Dick himself should swim into the circle of our acquaintance, and as for acquiring any degree of affection for him or any of his colossal kindred.—Well a sort of unbelieving curiosity is about the best we can do. * * * The apostrophes in praise of cetology (that's a new one on us) affected us about as if we listened to someone making a speech to a particularly unresponsive mountain. * * * Except that they were a bit more irritating because we can see no reason why, if a man can write at all as Melville does sometimes, he can't do it oftener. * * * We haven't seen a more felicitous remark for a year than his in regard to the way Captain Ahab's mates lived in the cabin of the Pequod: "They lived in the cabin rather as a street door may be said to live in a house—they turned in, and were immediately turned out again." * * * But we don't like to read every word of some hundreds of pages for fear we shall miss something like that and then find that there were only a few such sentences to miss. * * * However, he has our old friend Cooper nailed to his masthead.

As between biographies of men and whales, we rather lean toward the (more or less) human. * * * We can't, as we said before, care much for whales—We'd as soon have an Ichthyosaurus for a pet. * * * And we're no hero worshippers, either, but we do think the anonymous author of "The Mirrors of Washington", shows more zeal than is entirely commendable as an unbiased idol-breaker. * * * He isn't content to knock off the idol's usual finish of clay feet but goes over his subject with meticulous care and picks out bits of mud here and there, and he knows so well just where to look for these bits that we wonder if he gained such knowledge legitimately. * * * Or if his anonymity gave him chances he wouldn't otherwise have had. * * * If we were a great man we shouldn't like to have a casual guest for a week-end turn biographer and reveal to a grinning public that we insisted on drinking a glass of hot milk before going to bed. * * * Or that we quarreled with our wife because the laundress starched our collar bands—or didn't starch them. * * * Especially if, like our friend of "The Mirror," he had a gift for pungent criticism and the faculty of fixing far longer in the public mind a sentence of ridicule than pages of praise. * * * Maybe, that is because he quite evidently enjoys his opportunities for derision more than he does his obvious duty of giving credit where it is due. * * * If we could find a few pages of newspaper blattery to combine with the sketches in "The Mirror" we think it would help. * * * We're afraid we have a tendency to believe the worst, anyway, and the worst as "The Mirror" informs us is pretty bad, and we felt when we had finished it as if we needed an antidote. * * * As we remember Bernard M. Baruch is the only person in the book who receives the author's unqualified approval. * * * We wonder if it contributes as much to one's self-esteem to criticize the great as to be one of them.

G. N. S. LOSES TWO FAST GAMES TO BROADDUS AND DAVIS AND ELKINS COLLEGES.

Southern Trip To Be Taken This Week

The Normalites left here on their annual trip to Philippi and Elkins, and they surely put up a brand of basketball that any one wouldn't mind paying to see. Of course the large floors were quite a handicap to the players, but the scores show that there was not any runaway for any one when the Blue and White came to town. Our good friend, Salem, put the trimmings on Wesleyan College to the tune of 12 points while they beat the locals only 14 points after they had made a trip that cut down their vitality very much.

Just a few remarks on the trip. We arrived at Philippi on the evening before the game, and had a good workout on the Broaddus gym, which, by the way, is the best in the state.

Concerning the game there is very little to say except that it was one of the hardest fought games of the season, and the outcome of the game was doubtful up until the very last minute of the game. The only thing to mar the game was the inability of the referee to keep up with the game; in other words, the game was too fast for the referee, which was no fault of the Broaddus management. They got what they thought was the best available man in their community, and we couldn't ask for any more. The way strangers are made to feel at home over there is an art that is hard to acquire. Thanks to our friend Mr. Corder, we had a good time hearing the Honorable Judge Kittle hold forth.

The next day we journeyed to Elkins, the city of the Senators. Here we were treated to a wonderful dinner cooked by one "Mother Henry," and the best the boys have had for many moons—baked steak and everything. The boys ate so much that it was not advisable to eat any supper.

The Grafton Boy Scouts played the Elkins Scouts as a preliminary to our game. Our game started at 8 o'clock and a battle royal it was. The game started like a whirlwind and the Nor-

HERE AND THERE

"Skee" Lorentz is developing into one of the best cheer leaders the G. N. S. has ever had. "Skee" certainly has the "old pep" when he gets out on the floor to lead yells for the freshman teams.

After the game which the public school played with the Gassaway Junior High School the other night, the Gassaway coach remarked that Glenville's team was just built up around a few star players. Well, the public school has the best junior team we have ever seen in action, and it is built up around just five star players and several good substitutes.

When we saw "Alley" Cain playing against "Aber" Paugh the other evening we were convinced that "variety is the spice of life."

The other day we heard some students remark that they hoped a certain girl on the school team would not make a field goal in the game to be played with the Davis Elkins College girls here on February 8. Well that kind of petty peevishness might be all right in children eight or ten years of age in the grades, but it certainly is out of place and unbecoming in students of the G. N. S. The school team represents the school and not the individuals who play on it. Loyal students should never permit their personal prejudices, or class spirit to take precedent over their school spirit by knocking members of the school team from purely personal motives.

Has any one taken a peep at the G. N. S. Football schedule for next year? It certainly is good for sore eyes (and probably sore shins too). Salem College, Broaddus College, Davis Elkins College, Fairmont Normal, California Normal, Spencer, W. V. U. Freshmen, and other strong teams will be played.

The debates which we have been hearing at the literary societies recently remind us of the "good old days" when debates were the big attraction on every program.

He: Henry married an heiress.
She: for better or worse?
He: For more or less.

mal team was leading for a few minutes, but they couldn't hold the Loudin boy down. That lad certainly can drop that ball in the basket, and if you think we are kidding just look up his record. The treatment that we received was all that could be desired. Good sportsmanship ruled the day, and we have only the highest regard for D. & E. students and players.

California Normal was compelled to cancel its game here on January 31st, on account of other changes in their schedule, but we hope to have them here later in the season. Westinghouse Tech is being considered for a game here February 16. This is a fast team hailing from Pittsburgh and it would give us a real battle to beat them.

The Normalites leave on their southern trip Wednesday, playing Clendenin Athletic Club, New River State, and Marshall College.
