GLENVILLE QUINTET DEFEATS BETHANY

Bethany—January 10
 Biz Dawson's Glenville Normal quintet ended their two week's trip by defeating the strong Bethany College five, in one of the most exciting games ever played on the Bison's floor. The Glenville players by their superior passing and accurate shooting deserved the hard earned victory. The game was fast and furious from whistle to whistle, Glenville scoring first, when Treacy tossed a goal from the field. This seemed to instill more pep into the Glenville five, for they raised the score to 12 to 7 by the end of the first half. The second half was full of thrills. Near the end of the game Bethany tied the score at 20—20. There remained but a couple of minutes to play. Bethany fouled and Lorentz scored one. Whiting and Treacy, by some nifty passing, advanced the ball to the Bethany goal, where Treacy tallied a field goal on a beautiful pass from Whiting. This made the score 24—21 in Glenville's favor. The game ended without any more scoring.

Herman was the chief scorer for Bethany with four baskets from the field. Barlow and Carey were next with two each. Shumake was the loser's best defense player.

For the visitors Treacy, with six field goals, was the high point man for Glenville. Lorentz with 3, and Whiting with 2 goals were next. Hardman and Miller starred on the defense.

PROF. ROHRBOUGH ELECTED PRESIDENT

Clarksburg, W. Va.
 The West Virginia Athletic conference was born here yesterday when representatives of the various schools and secondary colleges of the state met in session at the Waldo and adopted a constitution and by-laws. This culminates in achievement of an endeavor that the West Virginia department of education has been working on for more than a year. M. P. Stewart, state director of physical education, has been the chief factor in the movement.

Officers were elected before the conference adjourned Friday evening. E. G. Rohrbough, president of Glenville normal school, was elected president; S. C. Bond, president of Salem College, was elected vice president, and French A. Yoke, dean of the New River State school was elected secretary and treasurer.

Article 2 of the constitution states the object of the conference in the following words:

"It is the purpose of this conference to promote all forms of intercollegiate athletics, to encourage and promote a spirit of true sportsmanship, to keep athletics within proper bounds, making them an incidental, rather than the principal feature of collegiate life, and to regulate them to the end that they may improve the physical condition, strengthen the moral fiber of students, and form an integral part of that education for which universities and colleges are maintained."

Article 1 of the by-laws reads as follows:

"No member of this conference shall compete with a West Virginia institution which is not a member of the conference."

It was the spirit of those who attended the meeting after the session last night that this section would have to be amended or West Virginia University would have to be brought in to the conference, for it was the belief that Wesleyan, Davis and Elkins,

Salem and Bethany at least would not enter if they were barred from attractive games with the state university.

Sharp criticism of the West Virginia University athletic authorities for their not taking the lead in this movement was voiced by one prominent secondary school official present but others addressing the meeting on this subject held that the West Virginia University would bear the same or a similar relation to this conference that Ohio State University does to the Ohio conference. They believed that the university would then act only in a "big brother" capacity or that of an advisor and not as an active member.

The agreement entered into becomes effective March 1, 1925.

It was decided that the annual meetings of the conference shall be held each year in Charleston.

M. P. Shawkey, president of Marshall College State Normal, presided at the session, with Melville G. Stewart, state director of physical education, acting as secretary.

Those Attending

Those present at the meeting were: W. H. S. White, president of Shepherd College; W. R. Legge, athletic director at the same institution; H. A. Brown, president of Morris Harvey College; Art L. Brandon, athletic director at Broadus College; M. P. Shawkey, president of Marshall College State Normal; Melville G. Stewart; Joseph Rosier, president of the Fairmont State Normal; Jasper Colebank, athletic director at the same school; French A. Yoke, dean of the New River State School; Thomas W. Haught, dean of West Virginia Wesleyan College; J. W. Stayman, president of Potomac State School; Bushrod Grimes, athletic director at the same institution; and George Parish, head coach at the school; J. A. Murphy, of Concord College; S. Orestes Bond, president of Salem College; M. H. Vanhorn, dean of the same institution; T. Edward Davis, athletic director at the institution, and Francis L. Casey, the head coach.

FAIRMONT DEFEATS GLENVILLE, 23-15

Fairmont—January 6
 Glenville Normal suffered its first defeat of the school season at the hands of Jasper Colebank's Fairmont five. The first half was a nip and tuck affair, ending 7 to 4 in favor of Fairmont. The second half saw more scoring and nifty passing on the part of the Glenville players, but they seemed unable to locate the iron hoop, thereby losing many chances to score. The final score was 23—15. Samples, Hickman, and Hefner were the bright lights of Fairmont, while Lorentz and Treacy were the point getters for Glenville.

MISS GIGER TO TAKE MISS KUNDETT'S WORK.

The students of Glenville Normal School were sorry to learn that Miss Kundert, head of the Expression Department, was unable to return to school for the winter term. Miss Kundert's health has been very poor for some time, and finally kept her from assuming her work.

However, we were glad to welcome Miss Wilhelmina Giger as expression and physical education instructor. Miss Giger is a native of Colorado, and is a graduate of the Columbia School of Expression. Miss Giger is already busy organizing her work, and real study has started.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Cross-word puzzles are the rage! Where are the Mah Jongg and Bridge sets of yesterday? They are covered with dust, while Mother and Father wrangle over the news sheets that contain the cross-word puzzles. In the restaurants, on the street cars, in the trains, in the libraries, in the kitchen, at parties—everywhere—cross-word puzzles! When before did the youthful collegiate sit far into the night pouring over "What killed Cleopatra?" or "Hip-less fish?" We doff our hats to cross-word puzzles.

California, Pa.—January 8
 Glenville Normal lost a very hard game here tonight by the small margin of one point. Glenville led all the way up to the last two minutes of the game, in spite of the work of Wagner, the Referee, who called 18 fouls

GREETINGS

The Christmas holidays have long since gone and are now but faded memories. Vacations are certainly fine things if it were not for the reality of getting down to hard labor afterwards.

However, many are always glad to get back to work again. It makes no difference how good a time one has at home, there is always a pleasure in coming back and meeting old friends.

Then—there are always the new set of New Year's resolutions that one wants to put into effect. There is the firm resolve that one heroic soul made—not to overuse his cuts this time; there is the daily grind who feels that he must study harder this term; there is the spouting bluffer who resolves to put it over in earnest this time.

Yes, it's good to be back at school but sometimes, when one is literally swamped with exams and notebooks, what wouldn't he give for just one day of Christmas vacation?

Courtesy is more than duty! It is a great privilege. It is not the cringing servility of the feudal serf, nor the impolite effrontery of the modern trouble maker; it is the golden mean between synchpancy and impudence. There is no monopoly on it. High or low, rich or poor, Jew or Gentile, young or old, can practice it and reap rewards which follow from its use. It is just as becoming to the humble mechanic as to the famous diplomat.

The servant should be courteous to his master; in other words the subordinate to the superior, certainly; but the obligation of the latter, to be courteous, is even greater.

"Noblesse Oblige," that stirring mitory spent the holidays at their French motto, impels him to the prac...tice of courtesy, even though the man to whom he speaks is an illiterate foreigner. No man who represents a company, an institution, or a party, can afford to be discourteous to the most insignificant person of these organizations.

No matter how busy we may be, it always pays to be courteous. The dividends will be in currency of good will and mutual respect. A distasteful truth, a merited rebuke, if phrased with courtesy, lose their sting but retain their lesson.

Like charity, courtesy covers a multitude of defects. It is the tribute of one person to other members of the human family, and it always evokes the sympathetic interest of the other fellow.—The Northern Review.

WHAT COLLEGE DOES TO BOYS
 Elmer had been looking forward to this day for a long time. It was now Christmas vacation, and Elmer was home to give the folks a treat.
 Elmer was a changed man—oh, yes, indeed. He had been away at college for three whole months, and the things that happened to him—my goodness! He had joined a greek letter fraternity, he had been out with women, and even (whisper it) his lips had known the taste of wine and gin. He knew a great number of big men on the hill (by sight, at least), and has busted a prelim or two. He was utterly sophisticated. Mon Dieu, he was blasé—ultimately so.

And now he had been home for two days. His mother had greeted him with affection, and his father was glad to see him. But he was beginning to be worried. They did not seem to notice any difference in him. Could it be true that they really did not?
 Oh, that was impossible. They were horribly shocked, but were concealing it. This was the dead and helpless calm of despair.
 But he could not be sure. Tormented, he finally put the question to them:
 "Don't you—don't you notice any great change in me?" he demanded.
 They regarded him. Suddenly his mother's eyes filled with tears. She rushed to him, clasped him to her bosom.
 "Oh, Elmer, I didn't know what it was. Look, Father, Elmer parts his hair in the middle now!"

PROTECTING THE BIRDS
 Sixty-four bird refuges are now administered by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. These are located from Porto Rico to Chamisso Island near Kotzebue, Sound on the Arctic coast of Alaska, and to the Hawaiian Islands. Some of these are celebrated breeding places for wild fowl, and each breeding season are occupied by marvelous colonies of interesting species. The maintenance of these refuges is the principal insurance against the extermination of some of our most beautiful and attractive birds. The Biological Survey takes steps in connection with each of them to render conditions favorable to the birds. Thus, on Laysan Island, where hundreds of thousands of albatrosses and other beautiful sea birds rear their young, it was necessary about a year ago to destroy the rabbits which were eating the vegetation on which the birds depended. At Big Lake Bird Refuge in Arkansas, a number of hollow nesting boxes were put up for the tree-nesting ducks, and headlights used in fishing were prohibited on the lake because of their disturbance to the wild fowl nesting there. At Clear Lake Bird Refuge, in California, more than a mile of woven wire fence was built across a point jutting into the lake, to prevent sheep from eating the shrubs used by breeding birds. Similar precautions for conserving bird life are taken on any of the reservations when the occasion requires.

W. V. U. FRESHMEN OUTPOINT LOCALS

Morgantown—January 7
In one of the hardest fought games seen here in years, the West Virginia University beat Biz Dawson's five from Glenville Normal 34—24. The game was a battle from start to finish, with the freshmen leading by a small margin throughout the game.

Lepero and Ashworth were the star shots for the first year men, and Treacy and Lorentz led the Normal five with four and three goals from the field.

Line-up and Summary

Call a Mechanic

A negro woman of mammoth proportions and inky complexion was in an automobile accident. She was transported to the hospital, where she soon regained consciousness. The doctor, seeking to comfort her a bit, said to her:

"You undoubtedly will be able to obtain a considerable amount of damages, Mrs. Johnson."
"Damages!" said Mrs. Johnson. "What Ah want wif damages? Ah got enough damages now. What Ah want is repairs."

The Practical Side of It

Husband (looking at volcano):
What a wonderful scene!
Wife: By the way, dear, did you turn off the gas before we left home?

Made to Order

Dear Old Lady: I want a thermometer.
Clerk: Yes ma'am, how high do you want it to go?
D. O. L.: Not too high or too low, but one that will keep the house just about right.

Cheering Thought

Harry McCartney—My intellect is my fortune.
Slim Treacy—Oh well, poverty isn't a crime.

Well??

Enthusiastic American (viewing Niagara Falls)—Look at that tremendous volume of water hurling off the edge into space.
Stolid Swede (nearby)—Veil, vot's to hinder it?

No girl now marries a man for better or worse. She marries him for more or less.

Death of a Man-About-Town

"Ah, well—boys—I'm dying—it's all up. When I'm gone—tell Tilly my last words—my last thoughts—were—of her. And Ethel—tell Ethel the same thing."

No Danger!

Miss Holman: "Why are you so late this morning?"
Marvin: "I must have overwashed myself."

Time to Retire

Women are like automobiles—It takes a lot of money to run one. The faster they are the more money it takes.

They go faster when warmed up. A little paint does a lot for both. The heavy slow ones are used for work, not speed. They need a guiding hand. Each year the new models are faster and snappier.

If too many ornaments are put on, they look cheap.
If run too fast they are liable to burn up.

Insurance Up-to-Date

The ways in which application forms for insurance are filled up are often more amusing than enlightening, as the British Medical Journal shows in the following selection of examples:

- "Mother died in infancy."
- "Father went to bed feeling well, and the next morning woke up dead."
- "Grandfather died suddenly at the age of 103. Up to this time he bade fair to reach a ripe old age."
- "Applicant does not know anything about maternal posterity, except that they died at an advanced age."
- "Applicant does not know cause of mother's death, but states that she fully recovered from her last illness."
- "Applicant has never been fatally sick."
- "Father died suddenly, nothing serious."
- "Applicant's brother, who was an infant, died when he was a mere child."
- "Grandfather died from gunshot wound, caused by an arrow shot by an Indian."
- "Applicant's fraternal parents died when he was a child."
- "Mother's last illness was caused from chronic rheumatism, but she was cured before death."

Fast Mail

She: I have so much correspondence that the letters are just rolling in.
He: Huh, they must be circular letters.

Miss Holman resumed her work on Wednesday, January seventh, after spending her Christmas vacation at her home in the South.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Stingy

Junior—Here's that quarter I borrowed from you last year.
Senior—You have kept it so long that I don't know whether it is worth while to change my opinion of you for just two bits.

All Cut Up

"Where have you been?"
"In the hospital being censored."
"Censored?"
"Yes, I had several important parts cut out."

The Irony of It!

Sentimental Sally (over washtub)—You lazy, no-count nigger! Whyfo' did I marry you? You neber did lob me nohow!
Restful Rastus (whittling stick)—Lob yo'! Woman does you cognosticate dat if it warn't for you ah couldn't exist?

Smart!

Fresh—Who is the smallest man in history?
Soph—I give up.
Fresh—Why, the Roman soldier who slept on his watch.

Fair Enough

"Seen any mysterious strangers around here lately?" casually inquired the detective from the city.
"Waal," answered Uncle Eben, "there was a fellow over to town with a circus last week who took a pair o'rabbits out o' my whiskers."

Mary Had a Little Slam

Mary had a little slam
For everyone, and so
The leaves of her engagement book
Were always white as snow.

How Shall He Know?

"Does your food contain many vitamins," the kind lady asked the hungry gob.
"Well, there's bound to be a few insects in the best of chow, but you get used to it after a while."

IN ROME
A couple were sitting within the beautiful colonnades of St. Peter's Rome. His countenance differed not from that of an ordinary wop. She, however, was a wonderful olive-skinned Italian. I seated myself on the bench with them, beside her. He kissed her once—then twice. I reached over and proceeded to do the same. With words that meant, "Leave her alone, you fool, she's my wife," I struck the pavement.
And, I had always believed that when you were in Rome you should do as the Romans do.
