G. N. S. WINS FIRST HOME GAME STATE EMPLOYS 13,194 TEACHERS LATEST ADDITION TO G. N. S. TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN

Shinnston's famous Five Captains fell before the Normal's attack by a 33-15 score Friday night. This was the first time that we have seen the Normal in action this winter and its play was very satisfactory.

The first half was very hard played with Shinnston playing almost an entire defensive game. They had a few long, hard shots but failed to score any field goals this half. In the second half the Five Captains scored five field goals, and Glenville caged eight. Miller and Treacy were the leading scorers for Glenville, while Pirene played the best game for the Captains.

C. N. S.	Line-Up	Position	F. Captains
Whiting	L.F.		Holbert
Miller	R.F.		Pyle
Treacy	C.		Pirene
Westfall	L.G.		Brannon
Lorentz	R.G.		Bock

Substitutions: Glenville; Holsberry for Whiting, Rogers for Holsberry, Bennett for Lorentz, Kidd for Treacy, Holsberry for Westfall.

Field Goals: Treacy 6, Miller 4, Holsberry 3, Lorentz 1, Whiting 1, Pirene 4, Pyle 1.

Fouls: Glenville 3 out of 4. Five Captains, 5 out of 8.

MISS BRAND TO LECTURE

Miss Willa Brand, Head of the English Department at the Normal, will appear before the Webster Springs High School on Friday, February 13, when she will deliver her lecture on The Shakespeare Country.

Miss Brand spent the past summer touring the regions of Shakespeare, Scott and Burns, and while on this tour secured much interesting material on the life of Shakespeare which she will use in her lecture. She spent considerable time at Stratford-on-Avon where she attended the performances at the Memorial Theatre. While living in this section she availed herself of every opportunity to visit those scenes intimately concerned with Shakespeare's life and to hold converse with the folks of that neighborhood in order to secure, if possible, personal glimpses of the poet, hitherto unpublished.

Schools offering courses in Shakespeare are very fortunate in securing Miss Brand's authoritative lecture.

Tommy Arnold has completed his high school course at Parkersburg High, and is again affiliated with the Kanawha Union Bank of this city.

Public school teachers in West Virginia have increased from 13,632 in 1923-24 to 13,941 in 1924-25 as shown by statistics compiled by John W. Cooke, chief clerk in the state department of education. Mr. Cooke's follows:

"While the increase is small, being 309, a healthy growth is shown in the elementary and high schools of the state. An increase in the number of teachers employed is found in 25 counties while 28 counties show no increase. Roane and Tyler counties show fewer teachers for the present school year than for the year 1923-24, the former being one short as compared with the previous year and the latter having a loss of two.

"While an adjustment of salaries of county superintendents of schools is now being made in the state department of education this will be completed soon enough that checks covering amounts due for adjustments and the regular salary for the month of January will be mailed out at the usual time.

"Since the salary is determined by the number of teachers in each county, a number of county superintendents will receive substantial increases. Counties showing no increase in the number of teachers employed will receive the same salaries as last year and two counties will suffer small reductions.

"Eleven county superintendents receive $175 a month, the maximum salary allowed by law. The minimum salary of $108.33 per month is received by four superintendents while salaries of others range from minimum to maximum. The average total salary for the current year is $7,740.76 per month for all county superintendents.—Charleston Gazette.

In a short time it will be no longer necessary for the Glenville Normal Athletic team to stage its indoor contests in a "box-car." Visiting teams will no longer hesitate to come here on account of the disadvantages of a small gymnasium, and incidentally they will have no plausible excuse for defeat because of a small gymnasium.

The fact is that the new gymnasium will soon be ready for use. Its construction is being rushed to the fullest possible extent. It is expected that it will be ready for use by the middle of next week. When fully completed the Glenville Normal gymnasium will be one of the most up-to-date and modernly equipped gymnasiums in the state.

It will consist of an indoor court suitable for either basketball, indoor baseball, or tennis. In addition to this there will be dressing rooms and sleeping accommodations for visiting teams. However the lack of funds will not permit the full completion of the building at the present time. It is planned to put the building in usable condition now, and finish it later.

Work on the dormitory has been stepped in order to have more workmen for the gymnasium. At the present time the construction of the dormitory has proceeded to the process of lathing. It is hoped to have the building completed by June the first. The new dormitory will be much more commodious than the old one.

When these buildings have been completed Glenville Normal School will have something of which to be proud.

FACULTY STUNT

On Saturday evening, January thirty-first, the first formal reception and stunt of this year will be given. The faculty will entertain at this time. For the past two weeks many vague murmurs have been heard concerning the splendid program which the members of the faculty are sure to present. All is shrouded in mystery, however, in spite of the few things one has heard here and there. If the stunt is as good as that of last year, it is sure to be a "howling" success.

Pauline Cunningham and Kate Cain have resumed their school work after several days of illness.

Everett Withers has been acting as principal in the training school this week, owing to the absence of Charles Pelt.

Early on the morning of January twenty-fourth, many were astir to smoke their glasses in preparation to see the eclipse of the sun. Total eclipses of the sun are not every-day happenings, since it will be one hundred years before another total eclipse.

An eclipse of the sun can take place only at the time of new moon, and when the moon is near the plane of the earth's orbit, called the ecliptic. Owing to the station of the moon's orbit, the sun passes the moon's node after an interval of 346.62 days, which is known as the "ecliptic year." A total eclipse of the sun is caused by the shadow of the moon on the earth.

The eclipse which occurred early on the morning of January twenty-fourth was the first one in this section since June 24, 1778. The next one will appear in nearly a hundred years, on August 21, 2017.

BASKET BALL TEAM OFF TO BROADDUS

"Bia" Dawson and his basket ball squad left here Thursday morning for Philippi, where the team will meet Broadus College Thursday night. We are expecting our team to return covered with the glory of success.

PRESIDENT ROHRBOUGH AT CHARLESTON

President Rohrbough returned from Charleston on Saturday, January seventeenth, where he attended the meeting of the representatives of the Teacher Training Institutions of the state. While he was in Charleston he also attended the meeting of the Legislative Committee of the State Education Association, and a meeting of the Executive Committee of the West Virginia Athletic Conference. Besides attending these meetings Mr. Rohrbough transacted some business with the State Board of Control.

VIOLIN COURSES

Miss Bertha Holman seems to be untiring in her efforts to develop our orchestra into one of which we shall all be justly proud.

A special class for those interested in the violin has been organized, and new members are being encouraged to join. At any hour during the day weird sounds issue from the music laboratory. Don't be alarmed—it is only the new violinists at practice.

THE ECLIPSE

As a result of the instruction given by Mr. Rohrbough in chapel Friday morning, a great number of pieces of glass got their faces blackened with smoke while others were broken in the attempt to be blackened. The reason for this disfiguration on the part of the pieces of glass was to make it possible for students to look at the eclipse of the sun which occurred from the time of its rising until ten o'clock on last Saturday morning. This eclipse was watched by people ranging in age and wisdom from the bald headed faculty members to the green freshmen. Although the eclipse was not total here, it was interesting to watch the form of the sun be gradually covered until there was but a small semicircle of it left to cast light upon the hill-tops and valleys. At the fullest part of the eclipse, there was not enough light to bring distinctly into view objects which were some distance away. This lack of light cast a gloomy and dreary atmosphere over Glenville for about one half hour.

Through the gloom of it all, Mr. Cooper was keeping a steady record of time in the manual training laboratory and taking pictures of the sun at regular intervals. Mr. Cooper had his kodak placed on a tripod just outside of the normal training laboratory door. The smallest stop was used and the shutter was set at 1-100 of a second. He also had a piece of exposed film pasted over the end of the lens. By placing the kodak so that the sun shown in the lower right hand corner, he was able to start his exposures.

At the intervals mentioned before, he made he made exposures on the same film without turning the film up. The sun did the moving so that no two exposures were together. Now Mr. Cooper has a succession of pictures of the sun in one negative. The pictures range in size and shape according to the eclipse, beginning at nearly full size and varying regularly in size to the fullest part of the eclipse and back to normal size. Mr. Cooper's ability to use the kodak may be judged by the fact that there is in the West Virginia Review for January, 1924, a river scene which was taken by him.

ALUMNI

SAPP-FELL

On Wednesday evening, January fourteenth, Frances Fell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker Fell, and Marcus D. Sapp were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a graduate of Glenville Normal School, having completed both the academic and standard courses. At the present time Mrs. Sapp is doing post graduate work at the Normal.

Mr. Sapp is the son of the late M. D. Sapp, a well known citizen of Lewis County. Mr. Sapp is an electrician, and is now working for the Garrett Building Company.

Charles S. Whiting '12, has a page of verses for children in the current issue of the West Virginia School Journal. The editor, Walter Barnes, comments very favorably on the works of this son of G. N. S.

USE PATRIOTIC TEXT BOOKS

Addressing the southern section of the California Teachers' Association in the city of Los Angeles, Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, said, referring to the textbooks in use in the schools of California:

"Our elementary courses in reading no longer contain well-written biographies of great Americans like Washington and Franklin. They omit those splendid selections of prose and poetry dealing with American life.

"Instead, we find that our children until they reach the sixth grade spend most of their time reading selections of fairy tales, fables and folklore brought here from Europe and the Orient.

"And again, when we survey the high school courses in literature, we find that most of them give scant recognition to American literature, ninety-tenths of the time being given to the study of English authors."

It is time for the people of California, and other states as well, to cease putting up their good money to further the spread of anti-American propaganda thru the public schools.

IF YOU MUST "CUT," "CUT"
 HONESTLY
 "I cut your class because I was out on a party last night, Professor So-and-So. You know I had one coming from you anyway; so just watch my smoke in the next recitation."
 This is the type of excuse preferred by one of the members of the faculty in the College of Arts and Sciences.
 "A cut is no crime; if it were, none would be allowed. Why then," he questioned, "are students afraid (or should one say ashamed) to face the instructor, go out of his way to avoid him, and deliberately 'cut' him outside the classroom soon after the class has been skipped?"

"Most instructors do not object to an open cut when the student is honest about it," he affirmed. "Many cuts are forgotten by the teacher soon after enjoying a smile at a poorly improvised excuse, but everyone remembers the student who, upon seeing the professor right after class deliberately turns his back upon him, pretending to see something far off on a hill, or to speak suddenly with someone and continues to turn as the instructor brushes past, avoiding a friendly 'hello' in hopes of not being noticed."
 "Friendship between the instructor and the student has its origin in the student's attitude toward the instructor. The student has more occasion to accost him than vice versa, and his attitude and first impression daaw from the instructor a fitting reaction. Thus a student who cuts and openly ignores an instructor leaves a bad impression which develops into an unfriendly relations between them. Soon the student assumes a defensive attitude, and eventually he becomes unconsciously antagonistic. But he is the only loser. The average student's absence from class does not hinder its procedure, nor does it harm the average instructor's good feeling toward him. The average teacher does not object to absences, provided the student eventually 'produces the goods' in the end," he concluded.—The Athenaeum.

"THE GHOST BETWEEN," TO-NIGHT.
 To-night at eight o'clock, the third number of the lyceum course will be presented in the auditorium. At this time Vincent Lawrence's much discussed play entitled "The Ghost Between," will be given.
 Vincent Lawrence is a noted playwright, and his play "The Ghost Between" ran for months at the Thirty-Ninth Street Theatre where it made an instantaneous hit. It is a wholesome love story, full of thrills, suspense, and yet bubbling throughout with clean-cut comedy.
 "The Ghost Between," as the title implies, brings one constantly face to face with the unexpected. Often what seems to be its most serious moments suddenly become its most humorous. There is a real human touch to the play—and probably that is one reason why it has been so popular. There are some big dramatic moments in the play, as well as lots of sparkling comedy.

MISS BRAND CONDUCTS CHAP-EL.
 Since Sunday, January twenty-fifth was the birthday of Robert Burns, Miss Brand gave a most interesting talk concerning him, last week in chapel. Having visited the Burn's country, Miss Brand was well prepared to give some information concerning Scotland's poet.

CANTERBURY CLUB
 On Wednesday evening, January twenty-first, the members of the Canterbury Club met for the first time this term. A short program had been prepared.
 George McQuain, a story-teller of unusual ability, told the story entitled The Lonesome Road, by O. Henry. Quality, by Galsworthy, was told by Joy Allman. This was Miss Allman's first appearance on a Canterbury program.
 Following this the officers for the new term were chosen. For president, George McQuain was unanimously elected to serve this term. Fletcher Reip was selected for vice president. Vada McCutcheon will serve as both secretary and treasurer.
 With such a body of efficient officers as these, much improvement is predicted for the Canterbury Club for the winter term.

I WONDER
 I returned to her, as I knew I would, with repentance written very broadly across my countenance. I approached her with chastened mein, determined to again instate myself in my adored one's graces.
 My heart thumped like a hick-town drummer or aspiring piano teacher. There she stood in the garden among the chrysanthemums and roses. I approached and stood before her with downcast eyelids. Suddenly I seemed to be afflicted with curvature of the eyelashes. I stood meekly before her.
 With a squeal she wound her arms tightly about my neck. She whispered and squealed all in one breath:
 "Oh, those lovely flowers. You just knew I adore orchids, didn't you? I forgive you everything. It was only a little quarrel."
 I still was a dejected figure as I stood there with her arms wound about my neck. Of course, I wasn't sent to college for nothing, so I did my share. But I was still puzzled.
 Finally, she got out of breath from thanking me so profusely for the orchids. I then had a chance to collect my thoughts.
 "I wonder who sent her those flowers?"

PERSONALS
 Ottis Rexroad, of Camden—on—Gaulay, is a new student here in Glenville Normal. Mr. Rexroad was formerly a member of the teaching staff of the junior high school of that city, but is now preparing himself for his entrance into Ohio State University at Columbus, where he will enter the medical school.
 Vernon Brannon and "Bunk" Holbert, two members of the well-known aggregation, "The Five Captains" of Shinnaton, remained in town over Sunday, visiting with friends and relatives here.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Teachers' pensions are urged upon the attention of many State Legislatures this year, according to reports received by the Interior Department, Bureau of Education. In several states the problem of retirement of superannuated and incapacitated teachers has received careful study by State teachers' associations and similar bodies.

Two sets of lantern slides showing types of kindergarten work were shown to 21 groups aggregating more than 2,000 people during the last 10 weeks of 1924. These, as well as slides on rural schools, may be borrowed from the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Education, by interested people.

The executive board of the International Kindergarten Union held its mid year meeting in Washington December 29 to 31, 1924. Plans were formulated for the annual meeting of the union, which will be held in Los Angeles, July 8 to 13, 1925. Means of closer cooperation with other agencies working in the field of preschool education were also considered.

PROHIBITION IN AMERICA

The Englishman had not been in America long. He was painfully conscious of the Prohibition Law. "I don't suppose there is any chance of getting a glass of beer now," he asked the waiter.

"Sorry, sir, no; but how would you like a whiskey straight?"
They carried him out on a shutter.

So he drank a few gills,
And decided that alcohol wood.

IN ROME

Nip—I bet Roman prisoners were terrors in their college days.
Tuck—Don't say!
Nip—Yep, it says here they paddled the Roman galleys.

THOSE LEARNED GUYS

Two Phi Beta Kappas at whist
Smote each other real hard on the wrist;
Cried the one with fervescence,
"You superexcrecence!"
Cried the other, "Desist, now desist!"

THEY WEREN'T DUG AT POMPEII

Korne—I didn't know till today that Crossman was a collector of antiques.
Cobb—I don't believe he is. What makes you think he is?
Korne—Why, he told me he bought some Roman candles today.

CAUGHT HIM TOO

Sollicitous Neighbor: And where is that boy of yours?
T'other One: He's been in Harvard three years now.

S. N.: Too bad. My brother's boy turned out the same way. They got him in Leavenworth.

TO CYNICISM

"Don't you know!" thundered the Public School Inspector to an errant pupil, "that a preposition is something that you should NEVER end a sentence with?"
"It's a mistake that I've constantly warned him against," smugly remarked the Public School Teacher.
And the potentially intellectual soul of the child fled, shrieking, down
