

FRESHMAN PLAYS TO BE PRESENTED SATURDAY NIGHT

"The Ghost Story," Written by Booth Tarkington, Has Ten
Members in Cast

IS COOPERATIVE EFFORT

"When the Clock Strikes" is Burlesque on Mystery
Dramas

Students and faculty will be privileged to witness the results of the first freshman cooperative effort of the year in the College auditorium, Saturday at 8:15 p. m. Two one-act plays will be presented by members of the freshman class under the direction of two members of the Ohnimgohow Players. Admission will be fifteen cents.

The first play will be "The Ghost Story," by Booth Tarkington. The cast includes: George, William Hamilton; Anna, Sadie Harliss; Mary, Joyce Trusler; Grace, Imogene Dy; Lennie, Marjorie Craddock; maid, Virginia Gibson; Tom, Roy Smith; Fred, Laddie Bell; Lynn, Harold Winters; Floyd, Robert Davies. Avon Elder is director.

Tells Ghost Story

In this play George, William Hamilton, home from college for the holidays wishes to be alone with Anna, Sadie Harliss, who is very popular. In order to frighten her friends away he tells a ghost story with an unexpected and startling result. Anna cooperates with George until she finally gets a chance to say "yes, George."

The cast of "When the Clock Strikes," by John Parrish and directed by DeWitt Mowry is: Percy Van Dyke, Robert Kearns; Rajah, Paul Collins; Madame Bozo, Edythe Mae Oxendale; Mrs. Van Dyke, Winifred White; John Jones, Whitman Hull; Percy Van Dyke, Jr., Elbert Backus; Mary Riley, Velda Betts.

Murderer Confesses

This play is a burlesque on mystery plays. A big pretzel manufacturer (Robert Kearns) is foully murdered in the beginning of the play. The admittedly "greatest detective in the world," Whitman Hull, questions in turn the wife, Winifred White, the son, Elbert Backus, and the world's most famous phrenologist, Edythe Mae Oxendale. He has succeeded in learning the true identity of Madame Bozo of the Jones family and where the son purchased his tie when the real murderer calmly announces her guilt.

MR. WAGNER TALKS TO CLUB

Chemistry Group to Invite Speaker
From Wesleyan College

An illustrated lecture on book binding, by John R. Wagner, instructor in chemistry and physics, was the subject of the Chemistry Club meeting, Dec. 7, in Room 201. Dr. J. E. Judson, instructor in biology at Wesleyan College, will give a lecture and magic demonstration here in the near future, according to Merle McClung, club president, who presided at Tuesday night's meeting.

Dr. Judson's talk will probably be given in the College auditorium and will be open to the public.

Students and faculty of the College were entertained in chapel Wednesday by the Tebo Gospel Trio, of Homer, N. Y., now conducting a union revival service at the Baptist Church.

A brief prayer service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Musser, who also introduced the group. Other features of the program included instrumental music: Piano accordion duet, "I Gave My Life To Thee"; saw solo, "In The Garden"; solo on piccolo bells, "Love Found A Way"; instrumental trio, "In My Heart There Rings A Melody"; and vocal solo, "When the World Forgets."

Most Students Prefer Teaching School—Few Say They Will Marry

Approximately eighty per cent of the students enrolled this semester in Glenville State Teachers College plan to teach school upon completion of their college course, it is revealed in a survey made last week by Carey Woofter, registrar.

Statements were received from 418 students, and of this number 338 carried the information "I plan to teach."

Other professions College students plan to enter, that is, any appreciable number, are law, medicine and matrimony. Nine students wrote "plan to get married." Fourteen will choose law and nine medicine.

Six students will take up nursing, six will become coaches, five will be engineers, three long to be chemists, two will continue their music and six will engage in forestry service.

Three plan to enter the field of journalism, two will be dentists, one will do agricultural extension work, two want to be librarians, one is to be a minister, one a flier, one a store manager, two will be undertakers, one will work on the stock exchange, one chooses to do public health nursing, one to take a business course, one to enter the Marine Corps and two will enter business (no preferences). One elects to become an economist.

Premier Aviatrix Tells Mercury Reporters "I Knew I Had to Fly"

By Woodrow Wolfe — Isadore Nachman

"I didn't wear a parachute on my trans-oceanic trips but I do while traveling long distances over land. If I were to fly over the mountains of West Virginia I would use one all of the time," Miss Amelia Earhart said in an exclusive interview at the home of President and Mrs. E. G. Rohrbough, following her lecture Saturday night.

Reclining leisurely in a living-room chair on the east side of the room, Miss Earhart answered questions as rapidly as asked, laughed, now and then inserted a wise crack, and made us feel at home.

COLLEGE ASSURED NEW DORMITORY COSTING $122,212

Baker and Coombs Submit Bid
Accepted by State Board of Control

WILL BEGIN WORK SOON

Three Story Structure to Be Ready
For Occupancy When School
Opens Next Fall

Glenville State Teachers College is assured a new dormitory for boys according to President E. G. Rohrbough, who, with Mrs. Rohrbough, was in Charleston Saturday when the State Board of Control opened and accepted the low bid of $122,212, submitted by Baker and Coombs of Morgantown. Six other bids, all higher than that of the Morgantown firm, were received. Baker and Coombs recently completed work on a dormitory project on the University campus in Morgantown.

This was the second time the board has considered bids for the dormitory project, the initial ones being rejected a few weeks ago because they were too high.

Will Repay Loan

Construction of the dormitory will be a W. P. A. project, with forty-five per cent of the cost to be provided through a W. P. A. loan, and the remaining fifty-five percent to be borne by the state. It is planned to repay the loan with receipts obtained from student use of the dormitory.

President Rohrbough said work on the dormitory would be started soon, and would be completed in time for occupancy at the beginning of the school term next fall.

To Be Three-Story Structure

A three-story structure, the building will contain sixty rooms with accommodations for 120 students. The Morgantown firm will construct only the building, with no fixtures supplied.

Work on the stone wall to be built along the south side of the College campus will also be started soon, President Rohrbough said. Sixteen W. P. A. workers under the direction of D. W. Bannon, are now taking rock from a quarry on the farm of the late A. L. Holt, on Sycamore, to be used in the construction of the wall.

Mary Byrne Newlon, '35, of Sutton, attended the Amelia Earhart lecture here Saturday evening.

Work Will Be Offered to All
Ranking

For the first time a course in library science is to be offered in Glenville State Teachers College, President E. G. Rohrbough said today.

The subject, "The organization and administration of school libraries," will be taught the second semester by Miss Laura Ann Miles, librarian. Miss Miles was added to the faculty at the beginning of the 1935-1936 term. The course will be open to all students above freshman ranking.

Blanks on which teachers are to list proposed class schedules for the second semester have been issued, according to Dean H. Laban White.

Auditorium Filled As World Flier Gives Lecture

IS DELIGHTFUL SPEAKER

Visit Here Marks First Anniversary of Record Pacific
"Hop"

More than 700 persons, the largest crowd to attend an artists' course number since the appearance of Lowell Thomas here two years ago, heard blonde, blue-eyed Amelia Earhart—world's premier aviatrix—tell her vivid story of that history-making flight from Honolulu to Oakland, Calif., and declare that "the lure of flying is the lure of beauty."

Coming here Saturday night to speak in the College auditorium on the subject, "Aviation Adventures," Miss Earhart reminded her audience of the anniversary of her famous Honolulu-to-California air voyage and naturally confined most of her lecture to a description of the unsurpassed 3,000 mile solo "hop" which added another "first" to her already lengthy list.

Introduced by Lloyd Metheny

Wearing an informal gown with a brown net skirt, bolero satin jacket, with egg-shell satin collar and bow to match, the tousle-headed flier, who has made more aviation "firsts" than any woman of her generation, was presented by Lloyd Metheny, president of the Student Council.

Miss Earhart captured her audience with her individual smile, held attention with her interest in subject matter—often interspersed with unrestrained humor—and left the stage, only to be greeted at the entrance door by scores of persons who lingered for an opportunity to add a personal touch to the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Hears Lecture

Among the more than 700 persons who heard Miss Earhart was Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., the former Miss Helen Varner of Clarksburg.

Miss Earhart said she had often been a subject of mistaken identity. Once, she added, I was taken for the mother of Charles A. Lindbergh, once I was referred to as Mrs. Roosevelt and another time a well-known newspaper man "guessed me to be Gracie Allen."

Many times during her lecture Miss Earhart, who in private life is Mrs. George Palmer Putnam, wife of the New York publisher, referred to her husband as the one person who has been largely responsible for making possible the many record flights, both over land and sea.

Says Many Ask Questions

She said the question most often asked is: "Why do you do such things?" "My reply is simply this— (Continued on page 6)

POPULARITY CONTEST

Who is the most popular boy on the campus? Also, which one of the fair coeds do you consider to be most popular? These questions are frequently asked. The answers, of course, seldom are the same. To settle the argument, the Mercury has decided to conduct a popularity contest, beginning next week. Begin now figuring out the selections you will make. Watch next week's issue of the Mercury for full particulars. All subscribers will be permitted to vote.

Chester Starts To Return To School

Chester Staats, who has been a patient at a Weston hospital for several weeks as a result of injuries received during the football season, will be able to return to his home next week. At the present time he is recovering from a recent operation, according to Andrew Edwards, student, who visited him last week. He will return to school next semester.

Comments on Lecture

When asked—How did you like Miss Earhart's lecture?—here is how they answered:

E. R. Grose—"She has a wonderful personality and was at ease all the time. I enjoyed her lecture more than any other number of the artist's course. In my opinion she is one of the most outstanding women in the United States."

Miss Bessie Boyd Bell—"She had a good story and told it very well, considering that she is an aviatrix and not a public speaker."

Hunter Whiting—"Altogether charming, in appearance, in manner, in speech."

Miss Margaret Dobson—"Her talk was highly entertaining and told in a pleasing manner. Her charm lay in her friendliness and her adventures were related in a simple and direct manner with no trace of boasting and yet with no element of assumed modesty."

Lloyd Metheny, president of the Student Council—"Miss Earhart was very interesting and a most unusual personality. She was very easy to talk to. Her speech was entertaining as well as persuasive."

Many students were contacted and their answers as a whole were "Very Good," "Wonderful," "Marvelous," "The best I ever heard," etc.

Lou Brown, of Camden-on-Gauley, who was severely burned during the Christmas vacation, returned to Verona Mapel Hall, Sunday.

[The death of Will Rogers, and more recently the movement to raise funds with which to build a monument to his memory, brings the following editorial comment, contributed by Lillian H. Rohrbough.]

'TIS NOT FOR US TO BUILD

We have no sympathy with those individuals who are sponsoring a movement to raise funds for the erection of a monument to the memory of Will Rogers. One feels that if he accomplished something during his lifetime, that should prove a sufficient memorial to him. Writing as one who saw him on various occasions both in vaudeville and on the lecture platform, one feels that the thing proposed is the last sort of tribute Rogers would have favored either for himself or for any friend of his. He constantly disavowed ostentation and garish display.

We have mouldy and tarnished statues and cold, empty, kiosk-like memorials erected here and there over this country supposed to be shedding honor on the memory of some benefactor or faithful public servant. The statement was made by some promoter of the present project that it would serve to remind future generations of the service Will rendered his country and his times. One wonders just how many of the young people living in any of the cities of the country where these other memorials stand, ever give them a thought or know or care to know whom they represent and why. Most of these memorials serve as bird refuges and frequently have their features partly obscured by several years' accumulation of guano, or perchance there may be one lucky enough occasionally to play the role of a super in some movie masterpiece such as that in the opening scene of "City Lights."

Will Rogers might be pleased to learn that so many people admired him and looked toward his homely homilies to strike a sort of keynote for them on many national problems. However, one assumes Mr. Rogers knew all that, anyway. He knew the following he had on the stage, the lecture platform, in pictures, through the daily news, and over the radio. The homes of the highest in position in this land and abroad were open to him. What else of tribute could he have asked? He liked the idea of joking with himself about running for the presidency, but he knew better than anyone else how absurd was any serious contemplation of such an event.

More than any individual who has appeared in public life in the past century, perhaps, he preserved a sane, dispassionate view of questions of national and world import. He saw the foolish lengths to which irritation or wounded ego can drive otherwise amiable and capable leaders. He knew how easily, inflamed by anger and prejudice, the public momentarily forgets the gratitude and respect it owes to some public servant. Here is where, with homely platitude and sly jest, he restored situations to their true balance and perspective.

These things he did with the finesse of a Talleyrand but always cloaked under the awkward, deprecating air and flavorful vernacular of the cowboy of the plains. He knew that when he spoke the world listened, sometimes laughed, often pondered. This is all the monument he would have wished.

WHAT ONE WOULD BE

Ideals are common property to all mankind. They form the guiding principles for our conduct and ambitions. True, fantastic dreams evolve from them. But success comes only when we couple these highly imaginative conceptions with determination and a willingness to work.

The New Year affords us an opportunity to improve our plan of attack upon the stronghold of ideals. A goal is of very little value after it has been attained. As Robert Browning would have us believe, "A man's reach should exceed his grasp." The value lies not so much in gaining the ideal but rather in the methods we employ and the amount of effort we expend in the process.

Probably very few of us need to change our concepts of values. They are generally sound and of a worthy nature. But we do need to remove these ideals from the pigeon holes of our minds that we have labeled "impossibilities" and fix them in our daily program as workable possibilities. Let us remember that it is not so much what a man accomplishes in life that gives him social value; it is rather what he would accomplish.

Way of the World

IN THE DAY'S NEWS—

Professor Burgess of Chicago University has advised unmarried women in this country to make the most of the 1936 Leap Year because there will be few eligible men in 1940.

From the queen of Italy on down, all the women of Italy have been giving golden trinkets and jewelry to fill the war chest.

Shirley Temple was the biggest money-maker at the movie box office during the year of 1934-35. Will Rogers, Clark Gable, Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Dick Powell, Wallace Beery and Joe E. Brown follow in order named.

Greta Garbo was awarded the honor of being the finest female performer for the year 1935 in the portrayal of the tragic "Anna Karenina."

Miss Connie Boswell, of the three singing Boswell sisters, recently married her personal manager, Harold Leedy.

—AND SOME HUMOR

Mr. Whiting—What are you going to do when you graduate?

"Dick" Dyer—I'm going to do newspaper work.

Mr. Whiting—Don't you think you're old to sell papers.

The clock in the College tower had struck twelve when Paul (Babe) Jones shouted, "Has anyone seen my coat?"

"Sure, Babe," said Frank Martino, "and you've got it on."

"Right and I have," replied "Babe," gazing solemnly at his bosom, "and it's a good thing you saw it or I'd have gone home without it."

So you saw Alice on the street today. Tell me, has she kept the girlish figure which she had ten years ago?

"Kept it! She's doubled it!"

COMMENTS ON LIFE—

A cynic, a man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.—Oscar Wilde.

Selfishness and self-centeredness are the greatest enemies of human progress.—Nicholas Murray Butler.

No wonder there is a lot of knowledge in the colleges—the freshmen always bring a little in and the seniors never take any away.—Abbott Lawrence Lowell.

—FRESHMEN SHOULD KNOW

Examinations, pride and joy of the College instructors, are soon to be upon us.

There is no rest for the studious. Loafers learn more by saying than by doing.

You are expected to study the greater part of your spare time.

The lovable student must be a good listener rather than a good talker.

Student Sees Story in Those Scores of 1935 Movie Titles

By Avon Elder

"When a Man's a Man" in Glenville State Teachers College he must be without a "Shadow of Doubt" a "G-Man."

"Two Fisted" "Men of the Hour" are in demand by the "Gold Diggers of 1935" as well as the campus "Princess Charming."

"She" may be "Naughty Marietta" or just "Our Little Girl" but still "She Gets Her Man."

"Little Men" lack "Power" to "Make a Million," so the "Biography of the Bachelor Girl" continues until "Public Hero No. 1" comes along and "In Spite of Danger." "The Affairs of Susan" are thereafter conducted in "Harmony Lane." But "Calm Yourself" "Little Big Shot" there is still "Music in the Air," "The Night is Young" your "Runaway Queen" may be waiting for you just "Behind the Green Light."

Naturally this "Age of Indiscretion" places much "Accent on Youth." You may have the opinion that you are a "Bachelor of Arts" and that "Life Begins at 40" but "The Girl Friend" says "Here's to Romance" and hops the first "Honeymoon Limited," for "Mississippi." So "Laddie" take a "Hot Tip" and quit "Flirting With Danger," because if you do not you may find yourself a "Wanderer of Wasteland."

"Nitwits" marry the "Dizzy Dames." But don't get the "Swell Head" and start "Gambling" with the "Girl From 10th Avenue" merely because she has "Green Eyes" or you think she is a "Million Dollar Baby." She may hold "The Winning Ticket" and in a few days you will be saying "Behold My Wife" and wondering why.

It is always better to take "A Shot in the Dark" as a "Live Wire" would then to be compelled to enter the "Port of Lost Dreams."

Student Forum

Justice—As Was Intended

To the Editor of the Mercury: Webster defines justice as "The principle of rectitude and just dealing of men with each other."

We ask: Is the Student Council being just to the freshman class, or is partiality shown in the administration of freshman rules?

At the past few meetings of the Council many first year students have been reprimanded for failure to wear their caps, failure to speak to upperclassmen, etc. But is this fair? Are all of the rule-breakers being brought to justice? Many answer "no," most emphatically.

We are strongly in favor of freshman rules, but we dislike seeing a few students suffer when there are ten times as many violators running rampant.

If the Council is to enforce its rules, there will have to be some method of checking-up on violators. Who is supposed to report offenders? Has the Council made any arrangements for a person or persons to report the violators?

If our rules are to be a success there must be a "police force." Can we find an efficient, non-partial force? If so, let's have one.

Writes Prize Advertisement

Mrs. Cleora Rohrbough, former student in the College, won a first prize in the sixth week of the Right Ad Contest sponsored by the Clarksburg Exponent-Telegram. Mrs. Rohrbough's prize-winning advertisement carried the title "Hamlet On Modern Lighting," a parody on Hamlets' soliloquy and was written for the Monongahela West Penn Public Service Company. Mrs. Rohrbough recently won another first prize for an advertisement written for the Palace Furniture Company.

Sees New York Stage Plays

Curtis Baxter, English instructor, spent four days of his Christmas vacation in New York City, where he saw three plays: "Pride and Prejudice," "Taming of the Shrew," and "Victoria Regina." He also saw Gayer, a Spanish dancer, and Trudy Schoop and her twenty Swiss dancers.

In the Movies

"CALL OF THE WILD"

For almost two months, Clark Gable, Loretta Young and Jack Oakie braved snowslides, starvation and death in sub-zero weather, Mount Baker, Wash., to make the twentieth century production "Call of the Wild," which comes to the local screen this week-end.

The screen play is an adaptation by Gene Fowler and Leonard Praskins of Jack London's immortal story of love and treachery during the Yukon gold rush, which precipitated a wild era of violence, tumult and heroics in Alaska.

Alaskan pioneers from as far North as the Arctic Circle came south to take part in the picture, in which Frank Conroy, Reginald Owen, Sidney Toler and Katherine de Mille carry prominent supporting roles.

The film also introduces a new dog star in the role of "Buck," perhaps the best known and best loved canine hero in all fiction. "Buck" is an eighteen months old St. Bernard, with no former film experience.

Although the location company included only ten actors, more than 100 technicians made the 1,200 mile trip to Mt. Baker—the biggest film expedition ever sent out of Hollywood.

Cronin Depicts English Mine Life

A coal mining community in northern England furnishes the setting for the novel, "The Stars Look Down," which has been added recently to the book shelves of the Robert F. Kidd Library. The author is Archibald Joseph Cronin. The story deals with English industrial life during the years from 1903 to 1933. There are many characters, principally miners, but the two chief figures are Arthur Barras, son of a mine owner, and David Fenwick, who is killed in the mine disaster, around which the story is woven.

Variety Offered in New Books

Among the recent books added to the Robert F. Kidd Library are: "Red Sky in the Morning," Coffin; "Vein of Iron," Glasgow; "South to the Orient," Anne Lindbergh; "The Stars Look Down," Cronin; "Mont-Saint Michel and Chartres," Adams; "International Book of Names," Mawson; "The Story of an African

ATTENDS MEETING IN CHATTANOOGA

Miss Bell Represents College At Historical Association Assembly

Miss Bessie Boyd Bell, instructor in history, attended the fiftieth annual meeting of the American Historical Association, at Chattanooga, Tenn., December 27-30.

Meetings were divided between the Reed House and the Hotel Patton. The host of the association was the University of Chattanooga. The true southern hospitality was shown when the University entertained the association at a luncheon, an evening reception and a dance at the Reed House ballroom, and a Sunday afternoon reception at the home of Dr. Guerry, president of the University of Chattanooga.

Among the professors attending from West Virginia were: Dr. C. H. Ambler, Dr. Summers, and Dr. T. E. Ennis, from West Virginia University; Dr. B. B. Chapman, '22, Fairmont State Teachers College; Dr. Shaw, Betheny State Teachers College; Dr. Cushman, State Teachers College. Dr. Minnie Clare Boyd, of Columbus, Miss., a former instructor in the College, was also there.

David Lillenthal, head of Tennessee Valley Authority, addressed a dinner meeting and showed the advantages to be derived from the government project, Norris Dam, near Knoxville.

Because it was a railroad center with connections to all parts of the south, Chattanooga, center of association activities, was the scene of much activity during the War between the States.

Miss Willa Brand Attends Eleven Plays in Eight Days in New York

Miss Willa Brand, lover of the drama in general and Shakespeare in particular, made a record well to be proud of when she attended eleven plays in eight days in New York during the Christmas holidays. When asked about her trip and the plays, Miss Brand quickly responded, "I don't want anything I say put in the papers." But she added:

"The eleven presentations I saw were: 'Pride and Prejudice,' 'Romeo and Juliet,' 'The Children's Hour,' 'The Taming of the Shrew,' 'Three Men on a Horse,' 'Tobacco Road,' 'Victoria Regina,' 'Boy Meets Girl,' 'Dead End,' 'First Lady,' and 'Ghosts.'"

When asked which of the plays she enjoyed most, Miss Brand said, "This would be hard to determine. All were of different types. I believe if I were to see any of them over again I would choose 'Pride and Prejudice,' as the costuming and staging was superb.

"However, 'Romeo and Juliet,' in which Katherine Cornell appeared was well done. The other Shakespearean play, 'The Taming of the Shrew,' was presented in an entirely different manner than I had ever seen it before. Lunt and Fontaine kept up their 'horseplay' throughout the performance.

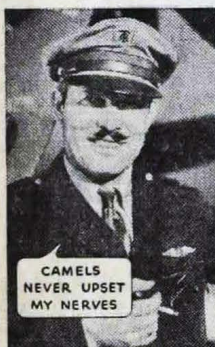

"The best characterization was done by Nazimova in the play 'Ghosts.' Her work was simply uncanny. Helen Hayes also acquitted herself nobly in 'Victoria Regina.' This play dealt with the romance of Queen Victoria and the Victorian settings were beautiful."

Miss Brand seemed to be greatly impressed with the new play "First Lady," and said, "This is a comedy which satirizes present day Washington society." Miss Brand continued:

"This was the cleverest play that I saw."

PIONEERS LOSE TO SALEM TIGERS IN CONFERENCE TILT

Coach Rohrbrough's Squad Drops Hard-Fought Game, 47-40, in Ragged Contest

LILLY TOPS SCORERS

Martino and Cottle Are Lost on Fouls Early in Second Half

The Salem Tigers, clawing and fighting every inch of the way, barely nosed out a quintet of traveling weary Pioneers, 47-40, on the Pioneer court Thursday night. Sweeping into an early lead, the Tigers held the Pioneers at bay until six seconds before the end of the half, when a foul shot by Martino tied the count at 20 all. The victory was the second the Tigers have been able to chalk up over the Pioneer court squad in the past nine years.

The Tigers opened the game with scoring burst that put them ahead, 40, with but five minutes of play. Al Lilley, freshman center, then broke the ice for the Rohrbrough machine, and at the end of the first quarter the Pioneers trailed 12-5.

Martino and Lilley Lead Rally

The second quarter saw the local sharpshooters, paced by Martino and Lilley, go into action and tie the count with only a few seconds remaining before the sound of the horn. Lilley seemed to be the only one who could ring the bell on the court up to this time. Martino's expert work from the foul line aided materially in catching the game.

Shortly after the second half ended, the Pioneers took a four point lead. With five minutes of play gone, both Martino and Cottle were ejected from the game via the personal foul route. The local pack faltered and then completely went awry. At the close of the third quarter the count was 32-31, in favor of the Pioneers.

Capt. Jones Plays Well

Captain Jones, Martino, and Davies were the outstanding Pioneers in defense while Lilley led the offense with eight field goals and six charity shots. Martino and Davies were tied for second place with ten points each. Davies scored three times from the floor and once on the foul line, while Martino scored one double-decker and five free throws.

The game was the first conference tilt for the local cagers.

Paul (Babe) Jones, above, of Richwood, captain of the 1936 Pioneer floor squad, has been displaying a brilliant brand of floor work against Glenville opponents so far this season. Captain Jones will be seen in action here Wednesday night against the highly-rated Alderson-Broadbent quintet, coached by a former Pioneer sharpshooter, Rex Pyles.

BAPTISTS PLAY HERE TOMORROW

Pioneers Play Wesleyan Bobcats on Buckhannon Court Friday Night

The Glenville Pioneers will open their home season tomorrow night, meeting Alderson-Broadbent at 8 o'clock. The Pioneers will be paced by Captain Paul (Babe) Jones and Frank Martino veteran guards. Many local fans will see Al Lilley and Robert Davies in action for the first time. Both boys are playing their first year for Coach A. F. Rohrbrough. The second game of the week will find the Pioneers journeying to Buckhannon Friday to battle the Wesleyan Bobcats.

An added touch will be found in tomorrow night's game with the Baptists, as Rex Pyles, coach, is a former Pioneer. The Baptists will be paced by Neil (Zip) Sappington, another protegee of Coach Rohrbrough.

Pre-game indications call for a close, nip-and-tuck battle. The Baptists have been running up large scores in their opening games. The Pioneers will be out trying for their second conference victory.

The second game of the week will find the Pioneers invading Bobcat territory to seek revenge for the defeat on the football field last fall. Coach Ross will send a veteran team against the local cagers. Coach Rohrbrough will probably carry fifteen men on this trip, the same number he took to Fairmont.

Mrs. Geraldine Stalnaker Dent, 30, of Spencer, attended the Amelia Earhart lecture, Saturday night.

Substitutes Dot Line-up During Most of Second Playing Period

After suffering three successive losses in as many starts, the Pioneers broke into the winning column Saturday night, defeating the "Fighting Teachers" of Fairmont College, 53-40, at Fairmont. It was the fourth game Glenville had played within a six-day period and on foreign courts.

The Pioneers took an early lead with Lilley, Jones, Davies and Martino leading the offensive drive. Lilley, center, was the high scorer for the night with nineteen points. Captain Jones played the best game he has all year. Besides being a tower on the defense he connected with five buckets for ten points. Davies and Martino were close on his heels with nine and eight points respectively.

Coach Rohrbrough used many substitutes throughout the game in order to rest his first five as much as possible. The Pioneers were ahead 26-17 at half time. In the second half, with substitutes dotting the line-up, the Pioneers outscored their rivals twenty-seven to twenty-three. Fourteen men saw action for the local team.

The game was the second conference battle of the season. Winning it gave the Pioneers a .500 conference standing to date.

PIONEERS LOSE TWO GAMES

Waynesburg and Westminster Have Tough Time—Winning

Coach A. F. Rohrbrough's 1935-36 basketball edition opened the season by dropping two tilts on Jan. 6 and 7. The opening game played at Waynesburg (Pa.) was lost 53-49 after a nip and tuck game that was not decided until the closing minutes of play. The second game was lost to the nationally famous Westminster Titans, 53-28.

The opening line-up found two freshmen at starting posts—Lilley at center and Davies at forward. The other three positions were filled by veterans of last year's team—Captain Paul Jones, Martino and Cottle. The Pioneer attack was ragged in both games but Coach Rohrbrough was well pleased with the showing his team made after a long lay-off during the Christmas holidays. The local cagers had but four practice periods to prepare for the two gruelling battles in the Pennsylvania territory.

AMELIA EARHART CAPTIVATES AUDIENCE WITH VIVID STORY OF HER FAMOUS SOLO FLIGHT

my own desire to fly; for I believe that each successful flight I make builds faith in aviation. And I am interested in seeing air travel a modern means of transportation."

Directing her remarks to the women, Miss Earhart urged them to "get out of your own sphere and do for yourselves what men have done for themselves." She contended that women "are the greatest sales resistance" and that in general they had retarded the progress of aviation. She expressed the belief that women are rapidly changing their views regarding airplanes as a means of travel, and added: "Thirty percent of all passengers on commercial airlines today are women."

Success Due to Preparation

"Two-thirds of the success in flying is dependent on preparation—seeing that all equipment is in perfect condition. Don't worry about flying and don't try flying until you have reasoned with yourself, until you have reckoned with the risks to be taken and have succeeded in overcoming those risks. To worry retards action and makes clear-cut decisions impossible."

She declared speed is the most important factor in over-seas flights or long over-land voyages, but cautioned against speeding in automobiles, asserting that "one should get into the air when one wishes to travel safely at more than forty-five miles an hour."

She said the take-off is the most hazardous part of flying and often the deciding factor between success and failure, illustrating by picturing the take-off when she left Honolulu, where her plane, weighing approximately 8,000 pounds, was forced to lift itself from a muddy field in which the wheels had all but buried. The plane, on that famous "lift" took a run of 3,000 feet before it got into the air.

Is Guest at Private Dinner

Miss Earhart arrived here about 6:30 p. m. Saturday evening, coming direct from Staunton, Va. Upon arrival she became a guest at the home of President and Mrs. E. G. Rohrbough.

Together with Mrs. Rohrbough, Miss Earhart was entertained at a private dinner given at the Whiting Tea Room by Miss Goldie C. James and Miss Margaret Christie, of the College faculty.

The famous flier talked freely to those who met her in the auditorium immediately following her lecture, graciously consented to an interview with two students on the Mercury staff, and posed for two pictures, one with Miss James and Miss Christie and another with Isador Nachman and Woodrow Wolfe. She retired at an early hour and left Sunday at 6:30 a. m. to fill a dinner engagement with her husband in Washington, D. C. She traveled alone and drove her own car, a Franklin sedan.

Alumni Wed During Holidays

Announcement was made over the Christmas holidays of the marriages of several alumni and former students of Glenville State Teachers College. Miss Genelea Neff, '33, of Gilmer, and Harold Burke, '33, of Sand Furk, were married in Lexington, Va. Other weddings included those of Miss Olive Lynch, '25, of Glenville, and Mr. Clyde Jividen, of Charleston; Miss Claire Stalnaker and Mr. Lake Norman, '35, of Glenville; and Mr. Paul Coberly, of Glenville, and Miss Mary Gerasco, of Clarksburg.

Aviatrix Says, "I Knew I Had to Fly"

as I have taken so many trips. Probably the most trying flight was the non-stop journey from Mexico City to New York." She then exhibited a pin presented her by the government of Mexico.

Asked if she had ever had a serious crack-up, Miss Earhart nonchalantly replied, "I'm still here." She did admit she had "nosed-over" a few times but had never been seriously injured.

Requests Good Mechanics

The noted aviatrix then exploded the popular theory of her superstitions. "I would rather have a good mechanic than all of the good luck pieces there are."

Miss Earhart gives her husband, Mr. George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, much of the credit for her success.

"My husband is a great help to me in planning my various trips," she said. "Without his assistance I would not be able to accomplish my aims." Manifesting a keen interest in college students, Miss Earhart paused to offer these suggestions:

Her Advice to Students

"Before a student should decide on his chosen vocation he should try different things until he finds one for which he feels he is suited. Only a small percentage of college graduates find their life work immediately after they finish their schooling."

Speaking of her trip to Glenville, the premier aviatrix asserted, "I saw so many mountains today that they made me half sick, for this was the first time I have driven through this section of West Virginia." She added: "In my opinion trains are the lowest form of transportation."

Feeling we had already taken too much of her time, we blunderingly extended our many thanks for the courtesies shown and then said good night. Oh yes, and we got an autograph, too. It was like this: We asked, she smiled, took our pens and wrote "Amelia Earhart."

Students to Discuss Current Topics

Six current topics are to be discussed by members of the Social Science Club tonight at 6:15 p. m. in Room 104. John P. Hunter will review the day's news. Other talks will include "When Congress Reconverts," Jason Meadows; "An X-ray of the Campaign," Millard Cunningham; "Our Biggest Peace-time Army," Rosa Craig; "Teacher Oaths," Phyllis Sims. Officers for the next semester will be elected.
