SPEECH CONTEST TO BE HELD HERE SAT., MARCH 20

Fifteen Schools Are Expected to Send Representatives
This Year

MISS PICKENS CHAIRMAN

Contestants to Compete in Debate, Poetry Reading, Oratory, and Extemporaneous Speaking

The eighteenth annual meeting of the Interscholastic Public Speaking Contest for the sixth district will be held at Glenville State Teachers College, Saturday, March 20, announces Miss Pearl Pickens, instructor in English in Troy High School, who is chairman of this district. This is the fourth consecutive year the contest has been held at the College, and according to Prof. Wilbur J. Kay, head of the speech department at West Virginia University and promoter of these contests, the former meetings have been of the largest held in the state.

Fourteen schools were represented in the contest the past year. Miss Pickens estimates that approximately fifteen schools will send representatives this year.

The first contest was held in April, 1920, at the University and was participated in by representatives of twenty-seven schools. Since this time the popularity of the contest has increased until now nearly all the first class high schools of the state are represented in it. The main objectives of the meet are: To stimulate among the students of the secondary schools of the state a more general interest in the study of questions of public concern as an aid to better citizenship; to develop habits of original investigation, clear thinking, and sound reasoning; to furnish drill in the use of vigorous expression.

PEAKS BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

Miss Bessie Boyd Bell Explains New Phases of War Debts

Significant trends of thought concerning the settlement of World War debts were explained by Miss Bessie Boyd Bell, instructor in social sciences, in a talk before the Glenville Rotary Club, Thursday noon, at the Whiting Tea Room. Miss Bell was introduced by H. Y. Clark, instructor in education, who is chairman of the club's program committee.

Using large cardboard charts, Miss Bell called attention to the work of the United States Debt Funding Commission of 1922 and also the arrangements for war debt settlements as fixed in 1927. Also, she pointed out the debts charged against each of the major foreign powers, the interest accumulations and maturity dates. She also called attention to export and import trade having an important bearing on the possibilities for war debt reparations.

Miss Skidmore Attends Funeral

Miss Elizabeth Skidmore, a student in the College, was in Sutton the past week to attend funeral services for her uncle, Mr. J. M. Gillispie of Webster Springs. Mr. Gillispie was buried at Centralia.

Pres. and Mrs. E. G. Rohrbough Give Impressions of Trip to New Orleans

By OTIS REXROAD

"From the dual standpoint of inspirational and recreational values realized, it was one of the most satisfying conventions we have attended," say President and Mrs. E. G. Rohrbough who recently returned from New Orleans, where they attended the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association.

President and Mrs. Rohrbough were enjoying a game of table tennis, one of their favorite in-door pastimes, when they were asked to talk about their impressions of the convention. After agreeing to a draw in the games won and lost, they graciously interrupted further play. Seated in the tastefully furnished study of their home on the campus, they further agreed that President Rohrbough should talk about the aims and problems discussed during the session, while Mrs. Rohrbough would talk about the general setting and atmosphere characteristics of such a large gathering of people.

"The improvement of education; its interpretation for democracy; was the general theme under discussion," said President Rohrbough. In order to promote free and unhampered exchange of ideas on the subject leading educators from all parts of the United States are invited to attend, he said. Since the Department of Superintendence endorses no individual or group of individuals, or any sentiment by any speaker except by motion approved by a vote of the members, there is no attempt to limit free speech. From the mildest conservative to the most violent radical, each is invited to make his contribution to the subject under discussion, he added.

"The entire program," said President Rohrbough, "seems to have been planned with the idea of fostering more liberality in education and a closer cooperation among local, state and national agencies in eliminating illiteracy and making an education available to all our people who hope to make the most of an opportunity to become better citizens."

In commenting on the general atmosphere and setting, Mrs. Rohrbough said: "We have never attended an educational meeting where more consideration was shown for the comfort, entertainment, and general welfare of guests. The charm and the hospitality of the Old South were everywhere in evidence. More than ten thousand gorgeously colored Camellias were distributed at the opening of the meeting by gay-costumed girl students of the parochial, private and public schools of New Orleans. A pageant by the pupils of the public schools of New Orleans portrayed 'The Glory of Dixie' in five episodes beginning with the social life of the Old South and ending with the Mardi Gras. A Creole breakfast was served under the Old Dueling Oaks to more than 7,500 members of the convention and their guests. During the serving of the breakfast, visitors were entertained by mock duels, vendors of the early day crying their wares, and real negro spirituals. The New Or-

SHOULD WE STUDY AGRICULTURE?

In this day and age when we are more than ever dependent upon proper utilization of the soil for crops sufficient to sustain life for more than 120,000,000 people in the United States, it would seem to reflect credibly upon our democratic ideals if there were established in our educational system better opportunities for those who choose to earn a living by farming. Despite all the technological improvements in manufacturing and better farming methods, there are still hundreds of submarginal farms in West Virginia that are producing little or nothing. While the whole of our state's economic life is not concerned with agriculture, there are enough people engaged in farming to justify some recognition in all our state schools. We think it safe to say that in our state fewer than ten per cent of our high schools offer courses and practical training in farming methods. Neither do our colleges offer many courses closely related to agriculture.

There is a great deal of truth in the words of Dr. Richard Aspinall who said that "Education is best which will teach us to do better the things which we will do anyway." If then it is true that many of us will return to the farm it would seem advisable that more emphasis be placed on the study of agriculture and its related branches.—Denzel Garrett.

EDUCATION, OUR ONLY HOPE

It is interesting to note in the estimated distribution of major state expenditures, minus administrative costs, for the fiscal year 1937-1938 as approved by the State Board of Public Works that the proportionate amount allotted to education has been reduced while the relief and public assistance allotment has been increased. For the fiscal year 1935-1936 the fund designed to be used for educational purposes was 34.48 per cent of the total state expenditure, while that of relief was 6.65 per cent. For the ensuing year the proportion is 33.07 per cent for education and 13.46 per cent for relief. Of course this increase in relief was augmented greatly by the recently adopted public assistance program. At first glance this reduction in educational appropriations seems slight, but when one considers the estimated expenditures for the 1937-1938 biennium total $52,015,000, even one per cent of that amount is $520,150.

Education may not be a panacea for all social ills, but surely no one will disagree that education will ultimately result in a decrease of the relief rolls. Then should we not be far-sighted enough to realize that as we increase the relief appropriations and reduce educational expenditures we are only offering society a temporary opiate which will presently result in social chaos.

Education must be given a chance to alleviate social difficulties. As stated recently by Dr. Richard Aspinall, "Education is our only hope, our only outlook. So let us keep our eyes toward the light."—Avon Elder.

The LETTER BOX

Ryan, West Virginia
 Miss Marie Ellyson
 c/o The Glenville Mercury

Dear Miss Ellyson:
 I was graduated from Glenville Normal School with the class of 1893. It was called the Columbian Class for the World's Fair at Chicago that year.

I taught my first school in 1889-90. I went to Glenville in 1891 and stayed until next June, after which I passed the county examination and taught four months.

There are some people about Glenville I would be very glad to see. There no doubt have been a lot of changes in the nearly forty-four years since I was there.

I have reared four sons and all have taught school. I have three granddaughters attending high school at Walton. I have no one to send to school, so it is no use to ask for a catalog.

My first trip was made to Glenville on horseback, a distance of about forty miles in one day. I made about six trips, all on horseback. An old teacher, Josiah Hughes, persuaded me to take school.

AT THE LIBRARY

By MARY E. YOUNG

Books received recently at the College library are principally biography and drama. Books of biography are: "In the Evening of My Thought," Georges Clemenceau; "Curzon," Harold Nicolson; "What Me Befell," Jules Jusserand; "Pilsudski," D. R. Gillie; "William Byrd of Westover," R. C. Beatty; "An Inconvertible Irishman," E. Somerville.

New books on drama include "Twentieth Century Theater," Frank Vernon; "Dramatic Technique," George P. Baker; "Aspects of Modern Drama," F. W. Chandler; "Study of the Modern Drama," Barrett H. Clark; "Old Drama and New," William Archer; "Contemporary Drama of England," Thomas H. Dickinson.

Books dealing with general subjects are: "Letters to Susan," Mary C. Banning; "World Almanac 1937"; "Debate Handbook: Minimum Wages and Maximum Hours," Egbert Nichols; "Book of American Types," American Type Founders.

"War" by Kerr Eby, is a new book of etchings and drawings of war scenes, showing the futility and horror of conflicts and written by a veteran of the World War. The scenes are not imaginary. The artist saw them and recreated them as a contribution to his thesis that "we who know something of what war really means should get up on our hind legs and do or say what we can."

Miss Lestelle Smith was teacher of instrumental music. Typewriters were first introduced there in 1893. There were two literary societies—Cosmian and Independent. There were no athletics.

Yours respectfully,
 MARTHA H. RYAN.

P. S. I made a number one grade the first examination. I hold three other number one certificates and a six-year state grade. I am now sixty-eight, but strong for my age. I hope to come to Glenville in the near future.

The Mercury acknowledges receipt of a brief message from Isadore Nachman, A. B. '36, a former member of the staff who is now a student in the School of Journalism, University of Missouri. Mr. Nachman states he is taking, along with his other work, a course in country newspaper production. The past week he accompanied one of his instructors to Jefferson City, the capital of Missouri, where he says, "we saw many politicians, and yet it was not a bad place."

Mr. Nachman also was in Bethany the past week where he and other members of his class assisted in putting out two papers in three days.

W. P. A. THEATER PROJECT

Survey Shows 240 Persons Get Jobs in Private Industry

(Special to the Mercury)

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Actors, scenic designers, stage hands and writers formerly with the W. P. A. Federal Theater Project are connected now with major Broadway productions including "King Richard II," "The Nigger in the Wood," "You Can't Take It With You," "White Horse Inn," and "The Eternal Road."

Two hundred and forty Federal Theater workers, including actors, stagehands and writers, left the project for private industry during the past year, according to the latest official re-employment figure made public by the project.

This announcement follows closely the Federal Theater's production survey revealing that more than 5,500,000 persons had attended W. P. A. productions in New York City since the project opened its first play in Harlem in February, 1936.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Units of the W. P. A. Federal Music Project have given four American works their world premieres within the past fortnight. These include Clark Eastman's "Mirage," in Philadelphia; Florence Grandland Galajian's "Tragic Overture," in Chicago; Thomas Gorton's piano concerto, in San Bernardino, Calif.; and a symphonic poem by Edna Pietch, in Milwaukee.

Shirley Westfall, coach in Normantown High School and an alumnus of the College, all but produced a Little Kanawha Valley basketball championship team this year. His squad, a dark-horse entrant, swamped Calhoun County High School, barely nosed out Sand Fork and then held Glenville to a close score in the finals. Mr. Westfall will be the director of a junior high school tournament which is to be held soon in Normantown's new gymnasium. Paul Fulks, a senior in the College, will be the referee.

THE LITTLE PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA COMES HERE TOMORROW FOR CONCERT AT 8:15 O'CLOCK

Tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock the Little Philharmonic Orchestra will present a concert in the College auditorium.

The orchestra, under the direction of George Shapiro, symphonic and operatic conductor, is no "reduced" full orchestra, but a musical organization capable of giving definite color to the great master pieces. The personnel of the Little Philharmonic consists of fourteen talented, internationally known musicians. One member, Carl Brueckner, cello, was with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for forty years. Two others, Joseph Silberstein, violin, and Oscar Wemhewer, bass, were with the same organization twenty-four and twenty years respectively. The youngest member is Arthur Hansen, clarinet, of whom Mr. Shapiro has to say, "A young man of great musical ability. His tone is pure and his technique is phenomenal."

The committee on arrangements announces that doors will be open at 7:30 p. m. at which time students may exchange activity tickets for reserved seats.

TROY LICKS SPENCER

Gymnasium Packed For Every Session — Daugherty and

Before a packed house here Saturday night, Glenville High School's basketball team won an exciting and thrilling court skirmish from Normantown High School by a 43-34 count in the final game of the fifth annual Little Kanawha Valley Sectional tournament to annex the sectional championship for the third time. Other titles were won in '34 and '35. This decision over Normantown gave the Red Terrors the right to represent this section in the regional tournament this week-end at Clarksburg.

The Terrors reached the finals in the tournament by trouncing Walton, 40-26, in the tri-final round, and trimming Troy, 41-30, in the semi-finals. Normantown's 38-28 victory over Grantsville in the tri-finals, and a 34-33 decision over Sand Fork in the semi-finals enabled the Vikings to appear in the finals.

Normantown jumped into an early lead and set the pace throughout, holding a slim margin of 11-9 at the quarter and a 21-19 advantage at the half. In the second period, the Terrors came back strong, and steadily outdistanced the tired Vikings, canto, Glenville rolled up a 34-27 who fought so valiantly in the initial advantage at the third chapter and went on to win by a nine-point tally.

Ellison, Glenville center, ran away with high-scoring honors with fifteen points, while Woodyard, a teammate, got eleven tallies for second honors. Westfall and Vannoy of Normantown registered nine and eight points respectively. Shreve and Musser of Glenville, and Moore and Stump of Normantown played outstanding floor games.

Results of the tournament are shown in the following box scores. Results of the finals are listed first.

Glenville's Pioneers locked up the West Virginia Conference championship here the past week when they downed Bethany, 68-45. Coach A. F. Rohrbough's smooth-working floor-men lost only two conference games this season... They scored 1171 points, an average of 53 per game... And now they are in Clarksburg to battle for the championship of the intercollegiate tournament... Ten men, three juniors, two sophomores, and five freshmen make up the squad. Robert ("Red") Davis poured the oil on Bethany's Bisons the past week... Archer, one of Coach A. F. Rohrbough's later discoveries, also came through in fine shape... Archer will be out for football and probably will see action for the next three years... We were happy to see James McMillen back in uniform recently... The Preston County boy was clicking off a fast pace until illness slowed up his stride.

More people than could crowd into the gymnasium were here for the finals of the Little Kanawha Valley basketball tournament... One of the more exciting games was the Normantown-Sand Fork fracas, which ended in a 34-33 victory for Coach Shirley Westfall's gymless wonders... Maurice ("Tooney") Miller says games like the Normantown-Sand Fork clash will make old coaches of young ones... Perhaps the biggest upset of the tournament was Normantown's victory over Calhoun County High School... Robert Butcher of Sand Fork displayed unusual sportsmanship when he shook hands with both officials after they had ruled him out on personal fouls... Basketball fans from far and near enjoyed seeing William Wolfe, of Glenville High School, enter the final game Saturday night... We hope William is able to enter the regional at Clarksburg... The two tournament referees handled the games here in good style... As a matter of fact, the tournament as a whole went off without a single interruption... And now that we are off to the state college tournament, we promise you more in the field of sports next week... Will you join us in Clarksburg?

The contest this year comprises competition in four events: Debate, extemporaneous speaking, poetry reading, and oration. The two poems selected for the poetry reading are, "Mending Wall," by Frost and "The West Wind," by Masfield.

The subject assigned for the debate is: "Resolved, that all electric utilities should be owned and operated by the government." The orations may be either original or selected, and the subject for extemporaneous speeches is: "Timely Subjects of National and International Importance."

This district is one of the eleven districts in the state that participate in the contest, and the winning contestants from each district will go to Morgantown where they will compete in the state contest.

Mrs. E. G. Rohrbough and Miss Margaret Dobson are helping with the arrangements for the contest here. The members of competing teams and their coaches will be guests of the College at a luncheon in Kanawha Hall. PRES. AND MRS. E. G. ROHRBOUGH GIVE IMPRESSIONS OF TRIP leans Public School Teachers' Association staged a Carnival Ball in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium for the entertainment of convention visitors. The theme of the Ball was, "The Triumph of Education." Visitors were invited to enjoy the pleasures of masking and participating in the real carnival spirit. Trips were conducted through the Old French quarter of the city where time has wrought little change in the narrow streets, the over-hanging balconies of lacy ironwork, and the remains of its fortified boundaries.

"As a climax to the activities sponsored by the city of New Orleans," said Mrs. Rohrbough, "came the parade of the Krewe of NOR—New Orleans Romanesque—from the celebrated Mardi Gras. The parade consisting of sixty-eight floats depicted 'What New Orleans Makes' and was manned by hundreds of school children of the public and parochial schools."

In response to an inquiry about flood conditions in New Orleans, Mrs. Rohrbough said, "The crest of the flood had not reached the city by the time the convention ended. The people, however, were not alarmed by the threat of flood water."

"The trip to New Orleans was pleasant and enjoyable but our trip to Seattle where we attended the N. E. A. convention the past year was more so," said Mrs. Rohrbough, and added, "the south has a charm that sets it apart from any other section of the country. But in the West, Nature always puts on her grandest display."

Miss Lois Thompson, Edward Meadows, and Elwin Wilson were the guests of Miss Evalene and Evert Robinson at their home in Wilsonburg the past week-end.

Miss Virginia Frymier spent the past week end in Richwood.

Helen Jepson tells why she chooses Luckies for her voice

LOVELY PRIMA DONNA OF METROPOLITAN OPERA SAYS:

"A season of opera and concert means my voice and throat must be consistently in perfect condition. Therefore, although most of my smoking is done while I am on vacation, it is all important to me that I be careful in choosing my cigarette. I smoke Luckies because I enjoy their taste and because I feel it is wiser for me to choose a light smoke for my voice."

Helen Jepson

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Jepson verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.
