He explained that scouting was first advanced by an English officer stationed in South Africa in 1907; that the work was first started in the United States in 1910, and that since its birth here there have been more than seven and one-half million boys enrolled. At present there are approximately one and one-half million boys doing scout work in the United States.

He explained that the fundamental objectives of the Scout program are: Have a vision, have a plan, and do the work.

Preceding Mr. Hall's talk the Club heard Earl Boggs invite the organization to sponsor an all-civic club luncheon on Tuesday, May 31, in connection with the College's commencement exercises. Action on the invitation was postponed until next week.

R. T. CRAWFORD TALKS IN CHAPEL HERE WEDNESDAY

Points Out Major Objectives He Considers Important For Teachers

IS A FORMER PROFESSOR

Plays With Students to Become Social Beings Self-Reliant, Not Recluses

A plea for College students to become social beings and not recluses was offered by Robert T. Crawford, Superintendent of schools in Lewis County, in a twenty-minute assembly address here Wednesday morning.

Mr. Crawford, a former instructor in the College, told his audience some of the observations he had made as a county superintendent during the past year, and in brief, terse style, summed up major objectives which he considers important for the student who would become a teacher.

"First," he said, "a student should be well grounded in subject matter. Second, he should acquire a high degree of professional knowledge—in other words, know and understand people. Third, a student should cultivate ethical conduct. Fourth, a student needs to learn the value of self-reliance."

He explained that under the present school system it is not possible for the teacher to have close supervision in his classroom. For this reason, he explained, the teacher often will have to rely on his own judgment and will have to determine for himself what constitutes proper ethical conduct.

He condemned the practice of one teacher trying to root out another fellow employee.

In closing Mr. Crawford observed: "While opportunity is yours, learn as much subject matter as you can, learn the best methods of teaching, and become a social being, not a recluse."

Mr. Crawford was accompanied here by Robert Holbert, assistant superintendent in Lewis County.

PART-TIME WORK AID TO STUDENTS

U. S. Office of Education Makes Survey of 'Self-Help' Colleges in Southern States

Studies by the United States Office of Education reveal that thousands of college students perform regular tasks as a part of their scholastic work and that this helps rather than hinders their studies.

Two types of colleges which are based on this theory are known as the "self-help college" and the "co-operative college."

A small group of colleges, largely in the South, require all students, regardless of financial status, to assist in the operation of the institutions. Such schools are Berea College in Kentucky, and Berry College in Georgia.

Cooperative colleges enroll approximately 10,000 students. Commercial and industrial firms offer students practical training along with the theory they receive in classrooms, plus regular wages. This type is represented by the University of Cincinnati which was a pioneer in 1906.

WHO'S WHO IN THE COLLEGE?

As the end of the school year approaches many students, and particularly members of the senior class, are wondering as to the probable "who's who" in this year's senior class. Customarily, the four most outstanding seniors, whose four-year record appears best, are selected and their photographs published in the American College Yearbook. While there will be no publication of any selections which might be made this year, it would seem desirable, for the benefit of the faculty and the student body of the College, that this practice be continued.

Such a selection might well serve a dual purpose. Not only would deserving students receive the recognition which is due them, but the value of a permanent record of such recognition would prove invaluable also to the senior class, the College administration and the student body of future years.

Certainly this would be a task requiring no great effort, and one that the Student Council might well sponsor in collaboration with the members of the College faculty. Obviously the realization of a "who's who" in the College this year will rest largely upon the wishes of the student body and its interest in the matter. Shall we make such a choice this year?—Jarrett Jones.

LESS CRABBING—MORE SCHOOLING

A total of 31,515 students from 101 colleges voted in the Brown Daily Herald—United Student Peace Committee Survey on Peace—voicing their sympathy for neutrality, withdrawal of American troops from China, passage of the billion dollar naval appropriation bill and establishment of R. O. T. C. on an optional basis.

The most that can be accomplished by an immense poll of this kind is to make the United States appear ridiculous in the eyes of the world. If there should come a time when the United States is forced into a war to protect the lives and liberty of her people these same college boys will shoulder a gun, march and like it.

Let all agitators leave well enough alone, then allow the youth of America to settle down to serious work in colleges. Much valuable energy has been lost by the age old habit of crossing bridges before they are reached, so why can't we stop crabbng and do something really worth while instead?—Hazel Smith.

YOUNG PEOPLE INTERESTED IN CHURCH

Everywhere people are asking whether or not young people are interested in the church. Some sections of West Virginia would say that they are; certain other sections would have proof that they are not. The pastor of a large church in the southern part of the state says the youth movement sponsored by the churches in his city indicate that young people have returned to the church.

Two week-ends past the young people of a major denomination in West Virginia met in their annual convention in the southern part of the state. More than 400 young people came from all sections of the state to attend. They remained consistently through sessions which lasted two days. Conferences such as solving personal religious problems, religious art, Christian friendliness, church music, evangelism, and stewardship and life service were well attended by young people of high school and college age. The keynote sermon was brought not by an older minister but by a young one. The large majority of young people were there because they expected to profit from the convention.

From this instance, and many others, two things are indicated: Young people are interested in the church, its activities and message; and the church has a message and activities for young people.—Lela Susan Wright.

What They're Saying

"A liberal education tends to modify our political, religious and social prejudice. In this way a college education should put us in a position where we can control our prejudices instead of being controlled by them. This is the main purpose of a liberal education."—University of California's Professor E. C. Bollquist points to one of the reasons behind his new course on propaganda.

Need Specialized Training

"There seems to be a new tendency to hold fairs with increasing frequency as a means of celebrating national or local historical events. It is safe to assume that the need for experts in this field possessed of specialized training, knowledge and experience will be increasingly great." So, announces Hunter College's Prof. Broderick Cohen, his institute will inaugurate a course in international exhibitions.

Will Need Sheepskin

"It's a good thing graduates get a sheepskin when they leave school for they will need an extra skin when they get out in the struggle of real life." An Alabama Polytechnic institute student newspaper editorial columnist makes an old saw into a cutting remark.

"This world was created several years back, and really was continuing several years more I hope. Changing hats, changing dresses, changing styles, etc., are all indications of this changing world." Natalie Simpson, Texas State College for Junior Women wins a speaking contest with her version of "This Changing World."

The Mercury extends congratulations to the many College students who have obtained teaching positions for the coming year. May your efforts in the teaching profession be directed toward the building of high ideals among those with whom you come in contact.

Few students, we would guess, have noticed the beautiful painting job which George Firestone has completed in the hall of the Old Building. Take another look at the George Washington picture. Do you agree?

Prof. John R. Wagner
Glenville State Teachers College
Dear Professor Wagner:

Just two weeks ago was "High School Day." That is a splendid institution and Koppers Company was pleased to have a part in it. It would be a fine thing if other schools would establish a similar tradition of such high standards. The stimulation of curiosity in our young people in natural philosophy is one sure way to add to the sum total of human happiness.

You and your staff and the Chemistry Club are to be congratulated on the breadth and quality of the exhibits. Kindly convey my kindest regards to all whom I met in Glenville, and with the kindest regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

Some Quotable Quotations.....

"It is not too much to say that forces playing on education from without, forces over which educators themselves have little or no direct control, are making it necessary for educators to redefine their goals." University of Chicago's Prof. Newton Edwards points an unwavering finger at one cause of what may call today's educational revolution.

"Any education which would seem to have as its slogan 'training in techniques which will prevent a sucker from getting a 'break' or training in techniques of friendliness that will enable you to get the better of the other fellow simply falls without the pale of true education. It represents the lowest standards of our society and can not but be condemned. Prof. A. B. Williamson, New York University, speaks his mind on a publicly-popular phase of education.

"The universities are in the present juncture on the side of the scientific spirit and freedom of inquiry. Business will be well advised to welcome the dynamic force of education." University of Michigan's Dean C. E. Griffin calls on business to accept the aid of its best ally.

PEGGY COVERS WASHINGTON, by Emma Bugbee Dodd.

Continues the story of Peggy Foster, heroine of PEGGY COVERS THE NEWS. This time she is sent to report an international convention of women meeting in Washington and succeeds so well she is given an appointment in that city, where she covers the "women's angle" of political situations. The author is a staff reporter on the New York Herald Tribune.

A survey at the desk in the library reveals that the following students have signed for the first of the Peggy books: Martha Jean Daniels, Lucille Spray, Rhoda A. ## DAVIES PITCHES STRONG GAME TO WIN FOR RHOADES

Wolfe's Team Loses 8 to 3
After Threatening Seriously in Third Inning

MAXWELL GETS 3 HITS

Wright's Nine Conquers Norfolk's
Team to Hold Undefeated
Intramural Lead

By Sexton Wright
Robert ("Red") Davies, ace right-hander for Rhoades' team, won his second straight game Thursday by defeating Wolfe's team 8 to 3.

Junior Rhoades led off with a double to start the last half of the first and went to third on McMillen's error. Gibson singled over second to score Rhoades and was advanced to second on Davies' sacrifice. Maxwell singled to score Gibson for the second run of the game. In the second inning Woolfster was safe at first on an error by Wamsley, then Rhoades got his second hit, a Texas league double into right field to advance Woolfster to third. Gibson came through with his second straight hit of the game to score Woolfster and Rhoades and make the count 4 to 0.

The only serious threat Wolfe's team made came in the third inning when McMillen doubled down the right field line with one out and went to third on Edwards' scratch single between third and short. A long double by Porterfield brought in McMillen and Edwards, but Dyer struck out to end the inning.

Rhoades' team tallied four more runs in the last of the fourth and was never threatened from that point.

Woodrow Maxwell had a perfect day at the plate with three hits in three times at bat.

Wright's team won over Noroski's team 8 to 7, in the other game of the week. Score:

Shreve Brothers Win Singles to Boost Score; Scott Outstanding
Performer

After losing the second straight match of the season to Fairmont State by a 6-2 count on the local courts last Tuesday, Glenville's revamped tennis team invaded Charleston last Friday and defeated Morris Harvey, 4-3, on the Laidley Field courts. This victory was the Pioneer's third win of the season.

Against Fairmont on Tuesday the Pioneers were very ineffective, losing three double and three single matches. However, Wolfe and F. Shreve managed to win their single matches to prevent the locals from being shut out.

Performing with a revamped lineup against Morris Harvey on Friday, the Pioneers displayed rare form to subdue the strong Eagles, 4-3, the same count that the Capital City team defeated Glenville by a week ago. Scott was the outstanding performer on this trip, winning his single match and pairing off with Edwards to cop a double match.

Glenville's additional points were added by the Shreve brothers, Robert and Fred.

The Pioneers do not have any matches scheduled this week, consequently, Captain Robert Shreve and his mates will have sufficient time to prepare for their next match which will be played with David Gray's Wesleyan powerhouse on the local courts Tuesday, May 17.

Lelia Paxton Elected Sport Leader

Miss Lelia Paxton, a freshman in the College, was elected sport leader of the Girls' Horsehoe Club, Thursday evening in the College auditorium. A tournament will be held May 18 and 19 and any College girl is eligible to join the club and enter the contest.

G CLUB TO STAGE ANNUAL HOP
BOHENSKY MAY BECOME PILOT
ATHLETES DOMINATE STUDENT COUNCIL

If pre-ball enthusiasm is any indication as to how the dance will be, the G Club's tenth annual athletic hop, scheduled for Friday evening in the gymnasium, should be extravaganza and surpass by far any other similar affair held here in recent years. Of special interest will be the crowning of the G Club Queen and the naming of a Pioneer basketball captain for 1939.

Judging from the returns of recent campus elections, it looks as though the 1938-39 Student Council will be dominated by representatives of the athletic department. Earle Bickel, Pioneer football center and vice-president-elect, heads the group, followed by James McMillen, Glenville football and basketball star, who is the new sergeant-at-arms. Paul Collins, veteran athletic manager and Harold Noroski, Pioneer court ace, newly elected presidents of the senior and junior classes, respectively, will also be represented.

Several of the campus' would-be potentates were somewhat stupefied with the election returns in several instances, and since have been wondering how such a body will perform in its new capacity. In answer to this expected query, this corner has only to say, "Wait and you shall see." Because every athlete does not make straight A's is no indication that he is mentally incompetent.

For some reason or other tennis enthusiasm swept over Glenville's campus this spring like a Caribbean typhoon. Maybe this is the reason for disinterest in intramural baseball. As it is the courts are crowded from daylight until dark, and with the W. A. A. scheduled to move in this week it looks as though quite a number will have to cease their racket-wielding, unless nocturnal matches can be arranged or additional courts be added.

John ("Beau") Bohensky, rated as one of the best field generals ever to don a Pioneer football uniform, may be piloting an entirely different type of machine this Fall if his present plans materialize. Bohensky recently learned from the Adjutant General of the U. S. Army at Washington, D. C., that he had successfully passed a flying cadet's examination and may be asked to report for duty early in July.

Miss Eleanor C. White, prominent local feminine tennis enthusiast, informs this scribe that Glenville State Teacher College will be represented by women's inter-collegiate net team in the near future. A match has already been scheduled with the Wesleyan ladies, and officials of the W. A. A. are dickering with other colleges in this vicinity for additional matches.

We are in sympathy with such a movement, and sincerely hope that it proves to be a big success. As a whole, co-eds of West Virginia colleges have very little opportunities to participate in athletics outside of insignificant intramural leagues. Progress like this would not only benefit the girls but also be conducive to better athletic relationships between neighboring schools. If a tennis move proves to be worthwhile, there is no reason to believe that women's inter-collegiate contests could not be started in other branches of sport.

John P. Hunter of Richmond Says 'Let Opportunity Knock Just Once'

(The following story, written by John P. Hunter of Richmond, appeared in the May issue of the West Virginia School Journal. Mr. Hunter was a student in the College during the 1935-'36 school year.—The Editors.)

Today throughout this land of ours thousands and thousands of American youths are fervently voicing this prayer. No defeatist are we; we are only twenty-one. We make no extravagant demands, advocate no one reform, we beat no hands against any heritage.

All we want is an education; a chance to learn and learn to learn. Is there so great a barrier between Main street and any campus? God forbid that we are doomed to be consigned forever to the mills with an empty heart.

Our educational leaders sadly rue the state of affairs, but are they entirely helpless?

Education is limited. Far too many of us go through our high schools only to learn that that is as far as we can go. Have we then been amply prepared to face the world, a smile on our lips, nothing in our hearts? Is there so great a barrier that we must stop there? Is it forbidden fruit that we have tasted? Tantalus-like are the things we want forever beyond our reach: Fabled Tantalus had sinned; he was a glutton. But have we sinned; is our plea a gluttonous one?

America is proud of the vast number of ivy-covered towers that rear proud heads to every sky from Maine to Oregon. Are they but an unattainable dream for us?

Are their dreams barred to us because our 140 pounds of flesh will never fill a stadium for Old Alma Mater? We have seen them go, the brawny lads eagerly tempted one by one by some ardent alumnus. We have watched a few come back; proud; covered with glory and little else to show that they had a chance.

Cost of Education Prohibitive. Has our educational system reached such a degree of perfection that only those with an accurate toe, elusive hips can trod learning's sacred halls? Must every campus have a price that is prohibitive to those who have little else to give but gratitude? Our economic system has not so far advanced that it could retrace its steps to its first medium of exchange, barter. There is not a university in America whose floors I would not scrub in exchange for lectures. I have no wish to make this a personal history; necessity makes it a personal issue. Our educators deplore the widespread illiteracy throughout the land but heed little the vast number of unfinished products which they have taken from their assembly line incomplete, incompetent, only partially prepared to take a place in the American scheme. Are we thus to be condemned to live our allotted span as an unfinished product in an age which boasts loudly of its rapid advances in the dissemination of knowledge?

Would Have "Shakespeare Back" Is the future so helpless that none can give Shakespeare back to us? Our schools plan in our minds the creeds of doubt that destroy our needs, and leave us no answer when we want to dispel these growing doubts.

Are there no eager hands to give us a pen, brush or chisel to help us mold irrefutable truths in our souls? Then gladly will we take the hoe, the pick or the shovel.

You who have had that chance make us articulate; give us a purpose and you will give us peace.

LET OPPORTUNITY KNOCK JUST ONCE.

JOHN P. HUNTER.

MIGHTY MAN O' MIGHT ON LOCAL DIAMOND PUTS STAR TO SHAME

John Marra, College baseball luminary, is a very happy man today. And why not? It isn't everyone who can knock three home runs and a double in four times at bat in the same day. Yet that is how Marra's box score for yesterday's intramural game read. "It was against the best pitcher in the league too," says Marra. "Who is this guy Seeds, from Newark, anyway?"

CITES NEED FOR HOME ECONOMICS

President of A. H. E. A. Says
Subject Will be Important
Part of Education

NEW YORK CITY (ACP)—Predicting an expanding future for the study and teaching of home economics in U. S. colleges and universities, Mrs. Kathryn Van-Aken Burns, president of the American Home Economics Association, told a group here recently that "educators generally are placing new emphasis on education for home and family living."

"For a long time home economists have realized that their area of interest has much to contribute to successful living. At last it seems to have occurred to administrators that almost every one lives in a home and within it are established the ideals that largely guide that individual in later life," she said.

"It seems fairly safe to say that home economics is going to be much more important in general education in the next ten or fifteen years than it has in the past," she predicted.
