College Will Send Delegates To Church Meet

Plans are being made for Gall Jackson, president of the Glenville Methodist Youth Fellowship, Frances Myers, and a faculty member to attend a retreat of the Methodist Student Movement at Wesleyan College Saturday and Sunday.

Glenville was the scene of the meeting November 15, 1940, under the direction of Dr. J. C. Shreve and the Rev. Grover J. Johnson.

Two student leaders and one adult counselor from each of the West Virginia colleges have been invited to the retreat to discuss plans to vitalize counseling for college students in war times, organizing local campus groups, and a program for the state-wide conference to be held in February.

Dr. Harvey C. Brown, associate secretary of leadership training of the Methodist Board of Education at Nashville, Tenn., will conduct the retreat. William Hudson, Wesleyan College, is president of the Methodist Student Movement in West Virginia; Rosser James, West Liberty, vice-president; James Grow, University, secretary; and John Ankeny, West Virginia Tech, treasurer.

Council Plans Drive To Give Variety Programs

Student enthusiasm and cooperation were urged by President Steryl Brown and other Council members in the first student body meeting of the year Wednesday.

President Brown appealed to students to cooperate in a move to improve social affairs on the campus, and to remedy ill-manners shown in the dining hall.

June Wilson, vice-president of the student body, announced a new social committee plan whereby three faculty members and three students will work together to improve social life on the campus.

William Whetsell, treasurer, encouraged more enthusiasm and cooperation with the cheerleaders at athletic events by students and faculty members.

Catherine Withers, secretary, said that another letter has been written to Fred Waring, orchestra leader, to remind him of the pep song which he consented to write for the College three years ago.

Army, Navy Officers Here Cite Need For College Work In Officer Training

By Hayward Groves
The orthodox theory that when Army meets Navy there is trouble in the air went haywire here Friday, and except for the color of the uniforms, one would never have known that all were not "birds of the same feather."

Men representing five branches of the U. S. armed forces visited the Campus to explain the setup of the various reserve plans, answer questions, and encourage college men to become the much needed future officers of the armed services.

Major J. B. Feuguay presented the Enlisted Reserve Corps plan; Ens. Harry F. Stimpson, Jr., Naval V-5; Capt. Jackson

To Show Film On 'Bouncing Molecule' Here November 12

John R. Wagner, instructor in chemistry, announces that R. A. McDaniel, representative of the Standard Oil Company, will show a film entitled "Bouncing Molecules," in other words, synthetic rubber, Thursday evening, Nov. 12, at 8 o'clock in the College auditorium. A second film, "The Manufacture of Synthetic Rubber," will also be shown. There will be no admission charge.

Mr. McDaniel and his brother spoke in assembly here and to the Glenville Rotary Club the past summer.

"Letters to Lucerne," by Fritz Rotter, is a Samuel French production which deals with the effect of war on a girls' boarding school in Switzerland.

H. L. WHITE TO BE ASSEMBLY SPEAKER

College students and faculty will hear a talk about better understanding of our aims and objectives by the allies in assembly tomorrow.

Speaker will be H. L. White, head of the English department.

SEA President

Much of the responsibility of the forthcoming meeting of the State Education Association at Huntington rests with this state school leader, Miss Winifred Newman, SEA president, who, it is recalled, came here the past summer and spoke at an assembly program.

The College will send at least six representatives to the S. E. A. Those who will probably go are H. L. White, Miss Ivy Lee Myers, Miss Bessie B. Bell, H. Y. Clark, Dr. J. C. Shreve, and Pres. D. L. Haught.

8-Piece Campus Band Organized

Organizing of a College eight-piece dance band was completed the past week under the leadership of Richard Riggs, freshman, of Parkersburg, who has secured the services of several local players who are not in College but are graduates or former students. One member, Billy Luzader, is a local high school student.

Members of the band have been meeting nightly for practice "jam" sessions and they hope to improve sufficiently to be able to play for regular College dances and possibly other social functions.

Included in the organization are Russell Hugh McQuain, trombone; Domenick Schirripa, drums; Earl Rymer Stalnaker, saxophone and clarinet; Richard Riggs, piano; Clark Wolfe, tenor saxophone; Richard Smith, trumpet; Leon Reed, saxophone, and Billy Luzader, bass violin.

GO EASY, GOLFERS

The third government blow fell on golfers the past week when the War Production Board announced that repair parts for broken, bent, and otherwise disabled golf clubs will no longer be available after current stocks are exhausted. Former orders have cut off production of golf balls and new clubs.

Seniors, Juniors Elect Seven Students To Be Publicized In Forthcoming "Who's Who"

Juniors and seniors elected seven members of their groups the past Wednesday to represent the College in the forthcoming issue of "Who's Who Among Universities and Colleges of America."

Chosen because of their character, leadership, personality, extra-curricular activities and other qualities that go to make outstanding students, were: Steryl Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilden L. Brown, of Arboreale; June Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Wilson, of Clarksburg; William Whetsell, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Whetsell, of Kingwood; Velda Betts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fenton W. Betts, of Harrisville.

Halloween Dance Features Floor Show

More than 135 persons, including eighteen members of the faculty and fifteen former students, watched a floor show and danced or played games at a Halloween party sponsored by the social committee in the gymnasium Saturday night.

Orange and black ropes and streamers hanging from the lights, black cats, and jack-o-lanterns added a festive touch to the room in which couples danced to victrola music before the floor show and to a College band, organized recently by Richard Riggs, after it, and played bridge and other games.

Master of ceremonies was John McCutcheon, who presented eight girls from Verona Maple Hall who sang "White Christmas" and "I Threw a Kiss in the Ocean"; Peggy Gainer, who sang "St. Louis Blues," and Peggy Williams, who offered the "Lampighter's Serenade." Other floor show specialties included impersonations by Russell Hugh McQuain, Nina Moore and McCutcheon.

Verona Maple Hall girls who sang were Jamie Bingham, Elma Emrick, Peggy Williams, Mary Kay Mackey, Betty Adkins, Neva Cross, Nora Pauline Jones, and Geneva Proctor.

Former students present were Ted Kemper, Frank Bailey, Charlotte Hyer, Edith Pell, Dorothy Queen, Jack Stalnaker, Roanna Gainer, Pearl Stalnaker, Marjorie Bush, Jean McGee, Kermit Fisher, Thelma Gainer, Loreta Kemper, Gladys Reynolds, and Jack Allen.

Shreve, and John R. Wagner. From Carl G. Bachmann comes announcement that Gov. M. M. Neely will personally direct the state-wide blackout scheduled for Nov. 10. The order for test No. 1 will be issued by the governor from the reception room of his office in the Capitol, taken to the mobile unit of the West Virginia Highway patrol radio system stationed nearby by messenger, which in turn will flash it to the South Charleston station from where the order will go to each of the 55 counties.

Present plans also call for a complete report of the blackout in each of the fifty-five counties to be assembled in Charleston thirty minutes after the signal for all lights out is given.

On What We Don't Know

What we don't know about world geography is appalling. We can listen to a news broadcast and never blink an eye (or hunt a map) when half a dozen places we never heard of are mentioned. And by the time we have heard of a place three or four times, it never even occurs to us that we don't know where it is.

Worse than that, we can't understand many of the activities of the war without knowing something of climatic and living conditions in areas of battle and in the homelands from which the soldiers come. Yet we berate military leaders for not achieving the results we dream of.

When the war is over, it has been prophesied by people in the 'know,' our trading will be intercontinental more than ever before. People will talk and think in terms of the globe and the needs of one part of it that can be supplied by another. We, who are ignorant of such needs, will find ourselves sadly behind the times.

Elsewhere in this issue are some questions concerning things closely connected with the war. Do we know the answers? Where can we find the answers to these and similar questions that should arise every time we read a newspaper or hear a news commentator on the radio?

Magazines and newspapers constantly provide us with maps, graphs, and charts that would clarify matters of confusion if we would only take advantage of them. To keep a world map near the radio and refer to it often is one of the best ways to learn the location of spheres of action, and reading interpretative articles to be found in every publication will inform us of climatic and living conditions in other parts of the world.

We are pitifully ignorant of world geography; our soldier friends will return amazingly well-informed. The world will be more world-conscious after the war, and to relieve ourselves of an embarrassing situation it is expedient that we learn more geography.—Frances Myers.

Problem For the Colleges

Lowering the draft age to eighteen will strike home in the American college of today.

The question now is what to do or what policy to use in our colleges. As it looks now, only men in uniform and the physically unfit will be attending college in another year.

This question is being discussed behind closed doors in Washington and as yet the solution is unknown to us. Many plans or policies have been suggested, and the plan of President James Bryant Conant, of Harvard, has been agreed upon by the American Council of Education.

President Conant proposes that we "let military authorities and the college faculties pick from the nation's ablest high-school graduates the members of an Enlisted Training Corps, limited by military quotas. Each enlistee, put into uniform and provided base pay and a living allowance, would choose his own college, there get four semesters of basic officer training under R. O. T. C. or college instructors. After this training, picked men would stay in college for advanced professional or technical training; the rest would go directly into the armed forces.

No decision has been made, but it is likely that we will be allowed to remain in college this year, even if we have not completed the four-year course.

Since this may be the last year of college for some of us, it would seem that we should make the most of our opportunities. We should not attempt even a "one-year-loaf," and certainly we should forego any of the so-called "country-club philosophy" in case we lean in that direction. Truly, as we have been told time and time again, these are serious times.—Clifford Stalnaker.

A Vital Campus Program

Vital to the life on any college campus are the committees that plan the social activities. Whether the students enjoy wholesome recreation during their leisure hours depends largely on the type of programs these committees plan.

It takes work, and plenty of it, to build a good program, and the more effort that is put into planning such programs, the more good we will get out of them.

This is the age of cooperation—to do so is one way to keep up morale. Each student has a responsibility, and each student should assume that responsibility.

Nothing can stop us if we all work, play together. We should think it over; maybe we have been loafing on the job. Do we have what it takes to build our own wholesome entertainment?—William Whetsell.

NOTES FROM The Robert F. Kidd Library

By Eunice Wilfong

This week College students and others like them throughout the nation are being reminded of the 10th annual American Art Week, the purpose of which is to publicize, advance and emphasize the work of American artists.

The library gets four outstanding art publications monthly and one semi-monthly. These are the Architectural Forum, a monthly survey of outstanding contemporary architecture and its allied arts; Art Digest, news of exhibits, auctions, prizes, meetings and items about artists; Design, which emphasizes creative art education and appreciation, crafts and industrial design; School Arts Magazine, which illustrates and describes art, drawing and handwork in a how-to-do-style; and The Studio, which is printed in England.

During air raids over London, the "Studio" publishing house was bombed, causing some of the issues to be late. In articles by artists and experts, the Studio discusses the art of English-speaking countries. The August issue featured American Indian art; the October issue will carry a section on Australian art.

A. G. R.'s Correspondent Reports from Washington

The wettest week in Washington (referring to the recent six days and nights of rain) was also a week of the greatest historical significance to American colleges. Strong currents also are running through Congress and administrative offices referring the bill to draft 18 and 19-year-olds.

That bill may determine whether you continue your education and, if you do, what shape it may take.

By the time you read this perhaps you may be able to prompt us on some of the points, but here's the way the picture looks now.

Most teen-aged college students won't be called into military service until the end of this school year. This is particularly true of competent students, especially those taking scientific and technical courses.

After this year, when inroads on college teen-agers are likely to be relatively heavy, the question of who shall remain in school will be a stickler. The draft bill itself isn't likely to lay down strict stipulations on this matter—it will be left to administrative decision.

Broadly, administrative officials will base their decision on two major considerations: The course a student is taking and his scholastic record.

Obviously, here, as in Eng-

Worth Quoting

"As educators we are faced with a change in the entire structure of our school system, present and future. Moves are under way to take away from the public schools all duties except those academic. If this is accomplished the first step in the destruction of our educational set-up has been made. To cope with these changes, our school system must make adjustments without making basic changes in its first duties as an educational institution."

The Collegiate World

It's Singular But It's True

A few collegians will soon start howling about that Christmas vacation that's (they say) always too brief. Wonder what they think the men in the service are to do when they learn that the fighting men are to skip Thanksgiving and Christmas in so far as a respite from duty is concerned. . . . There'll be no cessation of affairs except that inductions may be put aside one day.

What Others Say and Think

Ray Lyman Wilbur, president, Stanford University, says schoolmen should consider their highest duty the training of technical talent for a mechanical war. Says he: "An engineer who can develop an idea for making an airplane go 20 miles an hour faster is worth as much in this war as a hundred thousand men in uniform."

R. Fernando Alegria, student from Santiago, Chile, on a recent stay in the U. S., observed that "American coeds would be wonderful if they weren't always trying to act . . . They should be themselves instead of trying to impress—I don't know whom."

Encourages College Literature

Carey Wilson, of the MGM studios, believes Hollywood has never made a motion picture that faithfully reproduces American college life because the vast majority of Americans are as unacquainted with actual college life as Hollywood ace script writers are.

Wilson, after a survey, said he was amazed to discover "the magnificent democracy in college life, the absence of snobishness, the practical streamlining of curricula . . . that school spirit is a tremendous thing."

"I find that college students today debunk themselves and debunk the old rah rah 'collegiate' factor. Values are accepted by the 20-year-old in pretty much the same fashion as those values would appear to the 50-year-old."

The Hollywood writer encourages the writing of college literature, which he believes will help pass on the "higher inspiration" to be found in American college life today. In other words, the idea is that Americans don't know their American colleges.

Glenville Smothers Fairmont 25-6

Karantonis And Mates Too Much For Teachers

By John McCutcheon

The Glenville Pioneers, sparked by the performance of six seniors making their final home appearance, rolled over the Fighting Teachers of Fairmont, 25-6, here Saturday and retained their first place lead in the West Virginia football conference.

Scoring twice in the first half and twice in the second, the Pioneers yielded only once to the visitors who pounced on a Glenville fumble in the fourth quarter and pushed over their lone tally.

Victory Is Decisive

The Pioneers' victory was clean cut and decisive, even though two of their four touchdowns resulted from pass interceptions in Fairmont territory, Fairmont's offensive, which had clicked so efficiently in four previous games this season, was stalled all but one time by Glenville's rugged line.

Billy Karantonis, aided by excellent blocking by his teammates, continued where he left off in the Tech game and kept the rain-soaked spectators on edge by his running attack.

Glenville scored first early in the first quarter, driving from their own 38 to the 2, from where Karantonis plunged through the line. Rodriguez converted the only extra point of the day.

Karantonis Goes Over

An intercepted pass on the Fairmont 30 by Tharp, Pioneer guard, led to Glenville's other first-half score. Tharp carried the ball to the 10 where Karantonis took over and after three line drives scored.

A blocked punt on the 6-yard stripe by Kafer led the Pioneers to their third touchdown. It took two of Karantonis' famous line plunges to put the ball in pay dirt.

The final Glenville tally was a gift. Balles snared a Fairmont pass on the 35 and galloped unimpeded across the pay line.

Fairmont took advantage of a Glenville fumble in the final stanza and struck fast and furious. Recovering on the Pioneer 45, Owen, Pence and Marra took turns carrying the ball and brought it to the 2, from where Pence scored on a center plunge. Pence's placement failed.

Glenville stood on the heavy side of an 11-6 first down count and completed 1 of 4 passes compared to 5 of 14 for the Teachers. The lineups:

William Kafer, Pioneer guard, above, will wind up a great season with the Glenville eleven Friday when the locals meet Morris Harvey in a night game at Charleston.

Scrap Drive Nets 70 Tons Here Per Month

Participation in the scrap drive is not limited to the Holy Roller Court, judging from figures compiled by A. F. Rohrbough, chairman of the Gilmer County scrap collection drive.

Since the beginning of the drive in Gilmer County, a total of 320 tons has been collected with an average of seventy to eighty tons gathered monthly.

W. P. A. and State Road trucks, used to pick up and transport the scrap materials, have been weighing their loads almost every morning on the College scales.

County schools also are assisting in their drives with Roland Butcher, assistant superintendent, in charge of the project.

And as to the importance of collecting, shipping scrap, the WPB has this to say:

"Of the important shortages, that of steel is one of the most serious. Therefore, the importance of collecting all available scrap iron and steel can not be exaggerated."

Miss Alma Arbuckle, Miss Louise Whitlow and Miss Ivy Lee Myers are among faculty members who went to Clarksburg Saturday.

Glenville Will Meet Eagles There Friday

The Glenville Pioneers will seek to blot out the memory of last year's defeat by Morris Harvey with an upset victory over the Rossmen under the arches at Laidley Field in Charleston Friday night.

The Rohrboughmen will meet a team composed of former West Virginia Wesleyan players and a host of stars held over from last year's Morris Harvey team. When Cebe Ross transferred to Charleston to take over the M. H. coaching duties, he took with him several of his Bobcats, among them Billy Pugh, one of the leading backs of the state.

In all probability Coach A. F. Rohrbough will start the same eleven that opened against Fairmont Saturday. The game probably will be broadcast by Station WCHS, as was the Morris Harvey-Moorehead (Ky.) game the past Friday when the final score was 0-0.

LIBRARY NOTES

Life and Coronet magazines also have noteworthy art sections and some of the best photography. These seven magazines represent quite an investment for the library, and it would be well to broaden our interests and knowledge by getting acquainted with them.

Outstanding among famous artists whose lives and loves have fascinated the world is the Frenchman, Paul Gauguin. In 1919 W. Somerset Maugham wrote a novel suggested by the curious career of Gauguin, which he called "The Moon and Sixpence." The book, which has become a minor classic of English fiction, is in the library. From the novel, United Artists made a movie which is now ranking among the top pictures of the year.

land, the liberal arts courses will suffer most. Officials in the Office of Education believe that American arts colleges haven't done all they should to cope with that inevitable situation. They feel that some educators are slow to recognize the inevitability of the drop-off in enrollment, slow to prepare for it.

First, say the officials, educators should expand their curricula, and quickly to include courses that tie in more closely with prosecution of the war.

Conversion, in many cases, hasn't been thorough and it hasn't been prompt.

Second, arts educators should devise a plan right away for keeping their best students—scholastically speaking—in school. The need in this war for trained, educated men and women is as great as the need for front line fighters. It is highly important that the "right" students remain to study. Recommendations of the arts colleges will probably de-

I have been receiving The Mercury regularly, and Glenville being my home, I doubly enjoy reading the news it contains.

Again I wish to thank you for your fine contribution toward making Army life a little more pleasant. Very truly yours, H. P. West, Fort Sill, Okla.
