This the the last issue of THE MERCURY for this semester and perhaps some are glad to know that they won't be bothered with inquiring reporters and other aspects of the paper. I would like to take this opportunity to express gratitude for myself and the entire staff for the fine cooperation we have received from the students and faculty alike in making easier the task of publishing a student newspaper.

For many this is the last semester at Glenville State and for others it is just the first and still others have many to complete. For all it has been a profitable semester and year.

Enrollment Stays The Same
This is indeed a time in which to muse. As this semester started the enrollment stayed about the same as that of the first although many new faces appeared.

Taking the entire season our basketball team didn't have a very successful schedule but then we tend to forget the unpleasant and look forward to more success next year. One thing that was noticed throughout the season is that the team usually had plenty of the alumni present backing them at every game, perhaps even more enthusiastically than the student body.

Eight Make Straight A's
It is also well to remember that for the first semester eight students received straight A's. That is something to be thinking about, now that this semester is ending.

Near the last of February Frank Bowles was elected president of the student council. This has been a hard year on presidents. Murtin was president for the first semester. He finished his work for graduation, then Bailey was acting president for some time but because of a clause in the constitution forbidding a junior to hold the office of president, a new one had to be elected. Later James Collins was named as head of the council for 1947-48. Here's hoping he has a successful year.

Fairchild Speaks at Glenville
About the first of March Dr. Henry Pratt Fairchild told Glenville State students in a Lyceum program address that the way to peace is restraint of population. Some agreed with his theory and some did not, but most did agree that it was interesting.

In the opening rounds of the inter-collegiate basketball tourney the Pioneers dropped Tech in the first game but lost to Potomac State in the second. The White Wave certainly had an off and on season all year.

Lilly, Marchio Head Pioneers
Pioneer captains for the coming year were selected around the last of March with Jesse Lilly heading the basketball squad and Sam (Continued on Page 4)

Glenville MERCURY Completes 18th Year As Newspaper's Struggles Are Recalled

By Fonda Wellings

This is the last issue of THE GLENVILLE MERCURY for this semester. With this paper THE MERCURY completes its 18th year. THE GLENVILLE MERCURY became the student newspaper in the fall of 1929. Its faculty advisor was Everett Withers who had just returned from the University of Missouri's School of Journalism. Lloyd Jones, financial secretary, and Linn B. Hickman, former faculty advisor, were members of the first staff.

Years ago, before there were regular classes in journalism, the school newspaper had been called the TOWER. The TOWER was not published after 1923.

A year's subscription was offered in the fall of 1928 as a prize to the one who submitted the best name for the new paper. The prize was won by Carmen Rinehart (Moss), sister of Kathleen Saunders, present managing editor, when she submitted THE MERCURY. (Continued in Insert)

Another course that has been planned if enough students are interested is "Directing and Supervising Teaching and Learning." This is a course for elementary principals who are not college graduates, or other persons interested in supervision.

Dean Crawford will be Director of Summer Session.

Seniors Hear Dawson Speak At Exercises

Commencement Activity Features Presentation College Music, Marches

By Esther Harrison

Ninety-one seniors are now scheduled to be graduated in the seventy-third annual commencement exercises here May 25-26.

At 10:30 a. m. Sunday, the seniors will hear Dr. Leonard Riggleman, president of Morris Harvey college, deliver the baccalaureate sermon. Monday, at 10 a. m. Dr. Howard A. Dawson, director of rural service, of NEA, will present the commencement address, using as his subject, "Education and National Well-Being."

Speakers Are Well Known

Both speakers are well-known in educational circles. Dr. Riggleman has served as president of Morris Harvey college since 1931. He holds degrees from five colleges and universities. Members of the Glenville college faculty who have heard him, have been liberal in their praise of Dr. Riggleman's ability as a speaker.

Dr. Dawson represents the interests of teachers in rural schools in national headquarters of the organized teaching profession. Members of the organization, deciding to give more attention to the advancement of the cause of rural education, selected Dr. Dawson to take charge of that work.

Program Is Announced

In addition to Dr. Dawson's address, other features of the commencement program include musical offerings by the college band and chorus; invocation, the Rev. Paul Coblenz; presentation of class, Dean R. T. Crawford; presentation of degrees, President D. L. Haugh; and greetings from a member of the state board of education.

Frank Bowles, retiring president, will inaugurate the officers of the student council for next year.

Boggs Declared Second Highest Among Seniors

Fonda Wellings, of Troy, is graduating from Glenville State college in the graduating class of 1947 with highest honors—Summa Cum Laude—with an average of 2.98 covering four years.

Miss Wellings, an English and mathematics major, is a graduate of Doddridge county high school and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Wellings of Troy.

While in college Miss Wellings was a member of the International Relations club, Who's Who among College Students and feature editor of THE MERCURY.

Eloise Boggs Ranks Second
Graduating with high honors of Magna Cum Laude are, in this order, Eloise Boggs of Porter, Nellie Fought Foutty, of Newark and Warren A. Cunningham, of Ripley. These students have four year averages between 2.5 and 2.9.

With honors of Cum Laude—four years average of 2-2.5 the following students are graduating in order of academic rank:

Senior Class Gives Chapel

Senior Class day, an annual event, is to be Thursday, May 22 when graduating students will have control of assembly program to be given in the auditorium at 10 a. m. According to class president, Clarence Hinkle, the program will be opened with devotions and prayer by the Rev. Talbert G. Bennett, a ministerial student.

Social studies award will go to Nellie Foutty this year, being presented by club president Bayard Butler. This is given to the senior who, with at least 33 hours of work, in this field makes the highest grades in these studies.

Among freshmen who will receive Time magazine awards are Hugh Moore and Thomas Boggs. These will be presented by Bessie Bell and Dr. Genevieve Brown, of the history department.

"Everybody works but Father" is Not True of Living in San Blas Islands

By Esther Harrison

For a lonely, suppressed, frustrated co-ed in this cruel man's world, life can be beautiful—and profitable too, if she can eye the world with more than a jaundiced squint and a blasé smirk, and sail quickly to the San Blas Islands, off the coast of Panama.

Here she'll find a society where women rule the roost and the men do the sewing. She might investigate the idea of joining the tribe, surreptitiously, of course, because these same islands have repelled foreigners and successfully maintained the purity of their race.

But before sneaking in among these primitive folk, she'd better learn the language and customs or she might be forced to pose for the rest of her days as a "moon child"—albino to the uninitiated.

The "nose" have it

In considering this type of career, girls, one finds many advantages. For example, the high cost of cosmetics, with which we're all too familiar, withers to a mere pittance in San Blas, for here one merely paints a dark line down the crest of the nose to make it appear longer and more prominent. A huge gold ring in the end of the nose highlights what is considered to be the gauge of beauty. Mere men are not allowed such a mark of distinction. Jimmy Durante in skirts would create quite a sensation here.

The clothing problem for women is solved by a few yards of any old material wound round the body from the arm pits down. Shawls are worn over the head—and what a bright gayly colored shawl can conceal! The gala dress for the men consists of a derby, which the lady of the house purchased a few years ago from a Scotch sea-captain who bought a job lot of them at a fire sale in New York, and then sold to the natives as the last word in style.

A Land of Milk and Money

Money is not the essence, for it grows on trees within the grasp of all in this island paradise. The medium of exchange is coconuts. And in this item, as well as all others of importance, Mammy wears (Continued on Page 2)

PRESIDENT EXPRESSES THANKS

A few more days will bring to a close another college year. We hope that for all persons who are connected with the activities of the school it has been a successful term and that your work has been attended with a reasonable amount of happiness.

May I take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation to the administrative staff, the faculty, the students and all others who work or serve the college in any manner for any and all constructive assistance you have rendered.

It has been said that loyalty, good will and hard work always find ample reward. If this be true, I am sure that those who have striven well will reap generously in this area.

Faithfully yours,

"Black-clad line winds slowly..."

A long, black-clad line winding slowly across the campus... hails and farewells... tears and smiles... solemn pledges of eternal friendship and casual calls of "see you next fall."

Yes, we've come to the end of another college year, and for some of us it is the cessation of our school careers. It's been amusing, maddening. The days have flown for some and crawled by for others. We've grieved and we've cheered, but on the whole, it's been an experience we'll always look back upon with appreciation and fond reminiscence.

Warm sunny days which ordinarily mark the end of the school year have been conspicuously absent during this year's late, cold spring; but the tennis, baseball, golf and camera enthusiasts have managed to spend many hours in pursuit of their favorite pastimes in spite of it.

Trees have come out in full foliage, the familiar campus is carpeted in soft green, tulips in front of the administration building dance gaily in the chill wind, and the climbing ivy spreads its kindly green mantle over the stark, smoke-blackened walls. GSC has put on its best dress to bid us all a bittersweet farewell.

Wherever our divergent paths lead in our later lives, there will be times when we will look back to those relatively carefree college days with thankfulness and enjoyment.

World Is Still An Armed Camp

According to a survey conducted recently by The New York Times, an estimated 19,000,000 men in 40 nations are at present under arms in this, the second year of the post-war era. Despite the disappearance of Germany and Japan as major military powers, there are today more men under arms than are estimated to have been in the years just before the outbreak of World War II.

Surprising as it may seem to some, The Times reveals that China leads the world in the number of men in armies, with 5,750,000 men, "amorphous, half-armed masses" divided between the National government forces and those of the Communists. In second place is Russia, which still maintains a fighting force, which although its size is shrouded in secrecy, is estimated to be 3,800,000 men. The United States has 670,000 men in the army now.

In naval power, however, the U. S. outstrips all others with total tonnage of 3,820,000, based upon: battleships, and battle cruisers, aircraft carriers of all types, cruisers, destroyers, submarines. Great Britain is next with 1,531,000 tonnage while Russia is supposed to have a tonnage of about 445,000.

In the air, too, the U. S. leads in strength with an estimated 37,000 military planes of all types ready for immediate use. No figures were available for Britain but Russia's air force was guessed to be 25,000 military planes. With fabulous sums still being spent to maintain armed forces according to the Times survey a total of 27 billion a year, 10 billion in excess of the amount spent in 1938, the last year before the global war began, what tangible hope is there for international peace?

Can there be peace in a world full of armies and a subdued but nonetheless determined race for military supremacy? Will the economic systems of the individual countries be able to stand the strain upon their finances necessary to carry out arms programs of such astronomical proportions?

History proves to us that in the total wars of modern times when all the resources of a nation have to be mobilized to meet the demands of global war, even the victor loses. Democratic processes must be curtailed and it is difficult to recapture them after the war, which does not end with the cessation of fighting but goes on in the economic field long after.

For those who long for a "world in friendly peace" the outlook seems dark, for Russia refuses to submit to inspection in regard to atomic weapons which will undoubtedly play a major part in any future conflict. As much as we wish for the reduction of armaments it seems scarcely wise to throw away our guns when others, less averse than we to aggression, as history shows, still brandish weapons.

It seems we must either disarm, thereby exposing ourselves to possible attack, or resign ourselves to high taxes and a static standard of living.

Exit Seniors

"All good things must come to an end" best describes the departing seniors of 1947.

Theirs has been a year filled with both certainties and uncertainties. Many have come back from the depths of the war to the solemn quietness and pensiveness of the campus and the classroom.

Their reconversion to civilian life has not been easy, but they have proved themselves. For most of the others it has been a year with only the ordinary seemingly inescapable stumbling blocks, disappointments and joys that go with life.

They, too, have proved that they are capable of carrying out their obligations to themselves and to those with whom they will come in contact in later life. Many of our departing friends will go out to teach and the lessons that they have learned here will be reflected in the future students of Glenville State college, both positively and negatively.

We say, to quote the inimitable poet of Avon, "Parting is such sweet sorrow," to the seniors of 1947 who once again are at the crossroads of life. There are many trails to be fol-

On The Campus

By Janet Boggs

Come the last paper and the end of the year almost and it kinda causes a senior to start thinking... even if he never has before.

Four years of college may have seemed like a lot of too much work wasted, unfair teachers, and just grips in general, but how many of us now that we've almost reached the end don't just wish we were coming back again?

Being out on our own may be all right, but aren't there just a lot of things we're gonna miss maybe more than we'd care to admit. Little things that couldn't seem like much to anybody else.

Dormitory snacks at mid-night, the running to be in on time at night, waiting and listening for the clock to strike at the end of every hour, the fun of cutting classes for no reason at all, the slippery, icy steps and walks every winter, and the campus in the springtime.

Won't we sometimes maybe remember the noisy, carefree gaiety of Lion's and kinda wish we were still a part of it? Or think about loafing and laughing with the gang at "Skebo's" and want just a little bit to be back?

Won't we miss the very friendly atmosphere of the people and of the town in general? For we know that just coming back can't mean that we're still a part of it all; new students will take our places and we won't ever belong again.

Oh, incidentally, does anyone have a bright new blue and white freshman cap and handbook they'd like to trade for a still unused cap and gown and a shiny white new A. B. degree?

Chorus Will Present Music Sunday

Members of Glenville State college choir will present two numbers at the Baccalaureate services on Sunday morning, May 25. Numbers by the choir will be "Gloria Exultis Deo" by Mozart and "Bless the Lord" by Tippelov-Ivanoff.

Bertha E. Olsen music instructor will serve as accompanist.

For commencement program on May 26, the music department has arranged the following program: Processional, March Militaire, Schubert and Heroic Overture, Taylor, by college band; "The Stars in Heaven," Rheinberger, and "I Love Life," Mana-Zucca, by the chorus.

Jean Nottingham will accompany the chorus.

MERCURY Writes "30"

THE MERCURY wishes to thank its advertising supporters, those who from a mechanical angle have helped with the paper, loyal members of the staff, a critically alert reader audience and faculty who have aided us in publishing this year's paper. Realizing that in order to publish even a fair student newspaper much effort is required, the editors of THE MERCURY are especially grateful for the cooperation which has lightened the task and made it more pleasant.

lowed, none of them easy, so it is our solemn prayer that they may indeed put their knowledge and experiences to good use in whichever road they take.

'January Thaw' Theater Maps Is Applauded Major Repair

By Fonda Wellings

An enthusiastic audience heaped coals of approbation on "January Thaw," three-act play presented by Alpha Psi Omega and Omicron Kappa Tau last Tuesday night.

The play began when a New York family bought a house in Connecticut and renovated it, installing modern plumbing and such. Everything was lovely until members of the Connecticut family who had lived there, but were supposedly dead, returned and as both claimed a right to remain there and neither would concede to the other, the situation became more and more involved until the "January Thaw."

Congratulates Director

Opal Vincent, director, should be congratulated on the casting of characters. Also Margaret Ullom and Eula Ferguson for make-up and costumes.

Royce Bode in the role of an elderly country lady was certainly well cast. Her make-up and costume were perfect.

Concerning minor roles, several comments were heard on how well Olsten Wright was cast and made up as the irresistible Casanova and Grover Weaver as old Uncle Walter. Equally well cast were the other characters.

Properties Are In Taste

Properties including the antiques and lighting caught the eyes of several. It was regrettable that the stage furniture delayed the curtain so as to detract from several last scenes.

All in all everyone seemed quite pleased with "January Thaw," the first three-act drama since 1942.

Three Students Attend WVPA Meet at Marshall

Three students represented Glenville state college at the first post-war West Virginia Inter-collegiate Press association meeting held last weekend at Marshall college.

Kathleen Saunders, managing editor of THE MERCURY, Fonda Wellings, feature editor, and John Fryatt, sports editor, accompanied Advisor and Mrs. Essey W. Miller to Huntington.

While at Marshall the group participated in roundtable discussions, visited the plant of the Huntington Publishing company where they saw the mechanical aspects of a modern daily newspaper.

Mrs. Opal Tharp, 48 resident nurse for students living in the dormitories, was called away last Wednesday by the death of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lura Ann Tharp of Sutton.

Now that the debris is cleared away, it is announced that the extent of the damage done to the Picturand theatre was confined to the projection room. Two projectors, the sound system, 10,000 feet of film, and a candid camera were destroyed.

Another 10,000 feet of film, having never been removed from the steel container, was saved. Although the exact date for reopening is indefinite, Gray Barker, manager, says it will be within three weeks.

Latest equipment has been ordered for the theatre and a new beaded screen will be installed when the equipment arrives. The projection room and equipment will be fire-proofed so there will be no danger of another outbreak of fire.

A new picture policy has been set up at the Lyric until the other theatre is again in operation. Equipment at the Lyric is being improved, and extra seats have been installed to take care of the patrons.

The schedule which started last week-end is:

Saturday and Sunday—continuous showing from 2 p. m. until 11 p. m. Two shows Monday night, at 7 p. m. and 9 p. m. One show Tuesday through Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Saturday, a double feature, one western and one action picture.

Wet Grounds Drive WAA To Gymnasium

Rose Gerondo's team won over Jo Ann Foreman's league 16-5 in a WAA softball game Monday night at Rohrbough field. Wanda Burkhammer and Jeannette Hamilton of Gerondo's team made two and one home runs respectively.

Betty Rose Hardman's team played Hazel Reedy's team in soccer Wednesday evening in the gymnasium. Final results were nine runs for Hardman and six for Reedy.

"Tick" Lawrence is ready to give a demonstration to any willing student on how to strike out on three kicks. It seems that "Tick" and the ball just couldn't connect.

Ross Morgan and Ronnie Gainer held to their decision in the soccer game even when the girls threatened to mob them. For further details, consult Peggy June Adams.

the trousers. She it is who buys, sells, and barter without interference. Papa may not exchange one old sea shell or so much as buy a gift for Mamma without her permission.

In this matrilineal society, kinship and descent are reckoned through the mother. In the matter of marriage, the girl puts the finger on the youth. He has the privilege of refusing her offer, but eventually, must accept some one of the girls, for everybody gets married in San Blas.

Every Man's a Jacob Polygamy is acceptable but rare, since the bridegroom must work without pay for the father-in-law until he sires a daughter, after which he can set up a home of his own. Incidentally, Pappa makes the clothes for all his household and teaches this manly art to his sons.

The Moslem law of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, but these are not vicious people, nor are they sad nor unhappy. Rather they are prideful and jolly, and life there could be wonderful for a modern, lag who knows her coconuts.

Commerce Workshop Being Inaugurated

An orientation program comprising complete teaching plans for four commercial subjects and for one in a minor field is affording student teachers practical experience, announces Mrs. Roland Mutchler, instructor.

Part of the class work for the last week of the semester in the commerce directed teaching group will consist of these plans and the collection by the students of workbooks, textbooks, and other materials needed for teaching.

A study will be made of achievement standards, seating arrangements, group adjustments, importance of neat and prompt reports—items of practical value and calculated to help the beginning teacher.

GLENVILLE MERCURY

Miss Rinehart, an alumna, had taken a course in mythology while here and named the paper for Mercury, messenger of the gods.

It was decided to add Glenville to the name to make it more distinctive as Mercury was a common name for English and American journals. Thus the student newspaper became THE GLENVILLE MERCURY.

"News out of the Normal" was chosen as slogan for the first paper. It was suggested by the name of early English newspapers such as News out of Kent and News out of Spain.

During the MERCURY's first years it was a four page paper of five columns, contained no national advertising and had a circulation by subscription only. Not even all the students took the paper. It was prepared by two journalism classes which made up the yearly offering in journalism.

Weekly publication of the MERCURY during the first year saw a deficit in publication expenses. Thereafter, the paper was published bi-weekly until an established and growing national advertising made financial ends meet.

A special edition has been one of the experiences of the paper. In 1930 THE GLENVILLE MERCURY brought news to the townspeople that the school had been made a four year college before arrival of the morning dailies.

Now the MERCURY has a circulation of 550 papers weekly with cut-of-state subscriber in nine states and Washington, D. C.

College Band Included In Festival Newsreels

The Glenville State college orchestra will appear in movies as it performed at the Music Festival May 12 at the Gilmer county fairgrounds.

President D. L. Haight, State Superintendent W. W. Trent, and college, high school and elementary students will appear in the movies which will be shown at the local theatre.

Students Visit Playground

Rosamund Allen, physical education instructor, accompanied a class of recreation students to a municipal recreation center in New Martinsville last Thursday. The college bus served as transportation for the group.

Paul Brannon, '41, of Spencer, was recently inducted into the Epsilon Kappa of Kappa Delta Pi, a national honor society in education at Michigan State college.

Hour of Worship Changed At Local Baptist Church

A change in the hour of evening worship service at the First Baptist church from 7 to 8 o'clock has been made known by the Rev. Cornelius DeBlock, pastor.

Church services on June 1, at First Baptist church, will be conducted by the deacons, since the Rev. Cornelius De Block will be attending the Northern Baptist convention, which will be held from May 19 to June 1, at Atlantic city.

Other officers elected were: Willard Frymier, Glenville, vice-president; Lorene Miller, Gilmer county, treasurer; Willard Ice, Beckley, secretary.

The next meeting of this organization will be in the N.Y.A. building at Retreat, near Grantsville, June 20-25.

Tigers Work Con Game On GSC In Tilt

Salem Calls Game Rainout
In Fifth Inning With GSC
Leading by Score of 3-1

By John Fryatt

For five and two-third innings Tuesday afternoon, Glenville and Salem played baseball in a steady rain, then to have the umpires call the game after two Salem men were down to save the Tigers a 3-1 defeat. The score at the end of five innings of play was 1-1 which is officially a tie game.

Lefty Herndon allowed Salem only three hits in the five and two-third innings while the Pioneer batters were collecting seven off the offerings of Ern Sherman, Salem's star hurler. Herndon registered three strike outs and gave up no bases on balls while Sherman was striking out eight and gave up five free passes.

Ball, Keenan Lead Hitting
Norman Ball and Charlie Keenan led the hitting attack for the Pioneers. Ball collected two singles out of four trips to the plate while Keenan connected for a double and single out of three official times at bat.

Salem was first to score getting their lone tally in the third but Glenville came back in the fourth to tie it up on Stump's double. Keenan's infield hit and Lilly's single led to driving Stump over for the score.

From The SIDELINES

By John Fryatt

Faithful followers—this is the end. You are now reading the last writing of "From The Sidelines" for this college term. It is only natural for a person to want a vacation and from the looks of a few, that time has arrived.

For your information here are some things to look forward to this coming summer. Boston Red Sox will be leading the A. L. by July 4. St. Louis Cards will manage to be out of the cellar by that time and Toney Zale to make it two straight over Rocky Graziano July 16.

Notre Dame should have little trouble in going through an undefeated football season come fall and be crowned National Champions. October will find Boston's Red Sox taking the World Series four out of five games.

Marchio Starts Tennis Tourney
Sam Marchio is starting men's intramural tennis tournament this week with 14 entries so far. He hopes to have it completed by the week-end. Medals will be awarded the winners and only double matches are to be played in the tournament.

Larger crowds have been watching W.A.A. softball since the weather has warmed up and is equally as interesting as men's intramural games. Maybe it is the result of the schedule, W.A.A. Monday evenings and a light class schedule the next day.

Pioneers Play Last Game
Tomorrow the Pioneers will play their last baseball game of the season when they meet Salem Tigers at Rohrbough field. The Glenville nine will be trying to get even with the Tigers for the deal they received at Clarksburg last Tuesday when the umpires called the game and prevented the Pioneers from winning a 3-1 ball game.

Three different times during the afternoon they halted play but each time returned to the muddy field when the rain would let up. Salem needed the victory to put them in-

PIONEERS LOSE TECH TILT 9-5

For five innings Friday afternoon, Glenville Pioneer nine led West Virginia Tech, then went scoreless the remaining four innings to drop a 9-5 game. The last four innings the Pioneers were able to get three hits off of Davidson. Tech's ace hurler.

"Big" George Adams who started on the mound for the Pioneers gave the Golden Bears 11 hits and gave up 7 cases on balls. Glenville collected 13 hits off pitchers, Crim and Davidson.

Mike Christo and Benny Stump collected doubles for Glenville, while Vargo and Bill White did the same for Tech. Stump led the hitting for Glenville getting 3 to 5.

Eleven Pioneers were left stranded on the base paths, and Tech had ten. Adams struck out three, Crim two and Davidson eight.

to a tie with W. Va. Tech for the conference lead.

Jack Miles is hoping to finish the horseshoe tournament this week if weather is premissible. For the past two weeks wet grounds has halted play.

Fryatt Team Upsets Watson
John Hensley pitched four hit ball Wednesday evening to lead Fryatt's team to a 12-4 victory, over conference leader Watson in an intramural softball game. Hensley struck out five men and allowed one man to reach first by hitting the batter.

Harry Pritt led the hitting attack for Fryatt's team getting four for four and Ralph Fazio collected two of the hits for Watson's aggregation. Moore and Fryatt have one victory each to lead the league and Watson is trailing with two wins and one defeat.

By John Fryatt

With one down in the last of the game, West Virginia Tech pushed over one run to win a 6-5 decision over the Pioneer baseball nine at Montgomery last Saturday afternoon.
