"I Love a Parade" is being sung all over campus and town this week as the spirit of Glenville State college's 22nd annual Homecoming reigns supreme in the minds of the townsfolk as well as in the minds of the college students.

According to officials who have been mapping plans for the high-light social and athletic event of the Fall season, this year's home-coming activities will feature 60 units in the parade, and six high-school and junior high school bands.

Following the homecoming pa-rade, corporation ceremonies will serve as a fitting prologue to the 22nd annual homecoming football contest between Gienville State college Pioneers and Concord col-college Pioneers and Concord Col-lege Mountain Lions.

Lead units in the parade will form in front of the church on College street with the rest of the units joining the parade at the Boulevard at the Weston end of

Thanks for Homecoming

To those who have worked to make this 1955 Homecoming a success, we offer our thanks. We speak not only for the editors and MERCURY staff, but for the entire student body when we say that we deeply appreciate the interest of the town people, the alumni, faculty members, and all students.

We believe those responsible for the success of this event should be doubly commended as time has been limited and beginning school activities have been heavy. Many have worked frantically in order to make this day a success, and we know it will be as great as it always is. May all enjoy the festivities as much, or perhaps even more, than in previous years.

To all Glenville State alumni, we extend a welcome. We hope you'll enjoy your stay on campus and that you will come back soon.

Housing Presents Problem

Enrollment this year at Glenville State is an increase of approximately 12 per cent over that of last year. This fact has several implications. One of these is that more young people are entering college than ever before. Another implication is that Glenville State is the choice of more students from this area.

From the administration we learn that enrollment would have been much higher this year than it actually is had it not been necessary to refuse entrance to many students because of a lack of housing facilities. This need is quite definitely limiting the growth of our college, and will continue to limit it until the problem is solved.

While the Mercury does not presume to be clairvoyant, we believe that the present lack of housing facilities will become more aggravated in the years to come. All ready there are harbingers. Consider, if you will, the present upsurge in high-school enrollment which in a year or more will begin to spill over and move on to college.

Add all these factors and they can only spell out the singular fact that more and more pressure will be exerted upon all ready over-taxed facilities.

So far as this newspaper is able to determine, and the recent recommendations of President Heflin to the State. Board for a new dormitory would seem to confirm this, there is an problem here that is as pressing at present as pres Gienville State college 41-piece band will add to the grandeur of Homecoming festivities this weeken end when it makes its appearance under the direction of Prof. Henry-Fasthoff of the College music department. The band will be featured in the parade, at the coronation, and will also perform at the football game.

Ray Carson, a junior transfer student from West Virginia Tech, has been chosen to lead the band as drum major. New majorettes are: Clende Black, junior; Beyerly Clark, Anna Lou Hall, Patricia, Ann Helmick, and Mary Allce Menry, all freshmen. All of these students have had previous experience as drum majors or majorettes in high school. More than one-half of the band's members are non-music majors, according to Professor Fasthoff.

Scheduled for 2 p. m.
Glenville's spirited but inexperienced Pioneers will again assume the underdog role this Saturday afternoon when they play host to the powerful Mountains Lions of Concord on the local gridiron in the 22nd annual homecoming clash. Kick-off time is set at two o'clock.

The visiting team has gained quite a bit of publicity so far, with many of the sports writers around the state touting the Mountain Lions as the tog contender for the conference crown.

Coach Murin, with help from Coach Byrd and Bob Weaver, has
