State Celebrities Attend Ceremony For Dining Hall

The Honorable Governor Cecil H. Underwood will deliver the main address during the Student Union-Dining Hall dedication ceremony that will get underway this morning at 10:15 in the college auditorium.

Officials from all over the state have gathered on the Glenville campus to take part in the service. Special guests of the college will include members of the West Virginia Board of Education, the Board of Public Works, the State Legislature, representatives from the state colleges, representatives from utilities served by the college, representatives of the daily area papers, and those who have regularly furnished scholarships for Glenville students.

The program will begin this morning in the College auditorium at 10:15 with an organ prelude by Bertha E. Olsen, assistant professor of music, followed by the invocation by the Rev. William Richards, pastor of the Grantsville Methodist Church and a graduate of Glenville.

Greetings will be given by the West Virginia Board of Education, the Board of Public Works, and by Paul Hughes, president of the student body. Retired Professor Bessie Boyd Bell will then present "Glenville State College In Its 85th Year."

Highlighting the morning's activities will be the address by Gov. Underwood. President Harry B. Heflin will recognize distinguished guests and give the announcements. The Rev. Richards will close the morning program with the benediction.

Construction on the new building, which has been in full operation since the second term of summer school, began in the spring of 1956 with the entire college combining efforts to raze the old gymnasium. The new building is now the center of all dining facilities, located on the main floor, and the Student Activities located on the second floor.

College Dismisses For Thanksgiving

By BETTY LOU SISK

Thanksgiving holidays will begin Wednesday, Nov. 27 at 12:15 p.m. and end Monday, Dec. 2 at 8 p.m. discloses Dean Delmer K. Somerville. There's just one little catch to this "recess deal." If a student misses a class before or after the scheduled holiday, he adds more work to both himself and the instructor.

The instructor is obligated to assign extra make-up work which will be presented to the Credit's Committee. Both the committee and the instructor have to approve the work. If the completed assignment is not satisfactory, the student will be forced to rewrite it.

Consideration Given

False rumors have been on campus that students cutting a class on Nov. 27 or Dec. 2 will have to take two cuts instead of one. This is not true. They take their usual cut with extra make-up work, of course.

One should talk to the Dean of Men, Robert E. Higgins or the Dean of Women, Pearl Pickens if it is necessary for him to miss a class. Consideration will be given students with special problems.

Student Council Sponsors Tours

The Student Council has sponsored visitations to other state colleges by groups of students announces Council President Paul Hughes.

The purpose of the visitations was to study the other state college's problems concerning student government, cafeteria style, commuting students, and other phases of college life. President Hughes says, "We hope that we will get new ideas from the other colleges about ways to solve our own problems."

Six Make Trip

Each group of visitors included one member of the administrative staff, the college dietitian, one person from town, and three students selected by the Student Council.

Of these three students, one was a representative from the men's dormitory, one was a representative from the women's dormitory, and one represented the commuting students.

Colleges visited were Fairmont State College, West Virginia Wesleyan College, and West Virginia Institute of Technology.

The findings of the visiting groups will be given to the student body in an assembly program at a later date.

Five New Pioneers Are Enrolled Here

Five new students have enrolled for the second term of school announces Registrar Brown Trussler. These new students are Alice Ann Huffman from Gassaway, junior transfer student from West Virginia University; Benjamin Lepley, from Rainelle, a sophomore transferring from Concord College, Athens; William Lepley, from Rainelle, a sophomore transferring from West Virginia Institute of Technology, Montgomery.

Edward J. Trussler from Glenville has enrolled as a freshman.

Traveling Professor Sees Europe, Meets People; Is Considered Rich

By DOROTHY BUTLER

Dr. Joan Doyle, assistant professor of history at Glenville State College traveled abroad this summer.

Originally from Indiana, this is her second year on the GSC faculty and the second time in recent years that a faculty member has traveled extensively in Europe.

Miss Doyle was in a great many cities in Europe, and visited many historical scenes, but in her words, "I didn't go to see the buildings; I wanted to get to know Europeans."

It seems that she was successful. Some of the interesting people she met were a steel manufacturer from Lancashire; a French surveyor; a shoemaker in Vienna (who told her that Americans don't know how to make shoes); two professors; three Scottish girls who were school teachers; and a Cockney bus driver who referred to Miss Doyle and two girl friends (one German and the other French) as the "League of Nations."

Few From W. Va.

When told that she was from West Virginia, Europeans almost always thought it was Western Virginia and then remarked that they didn't meet very many people from there.

People in Europe assume that most Americans are well-to-do, and that any American who traveled abroad is rich. (Dr. Doyle said she personally denied this belief—with emphasis!) The fact that she had a car (regardless of model) made her well-off in English eyes.

Europeans wanted to discuss American politics; they seemed well informed on our political situation. Almost all persons she talked to said that if they were in America they would be Democrats.

According to Dr. Doyle, some Europeans left the impression that they felt the United States was big, when questioned closely, they had no conception of its true geographical size. Also they seemed more confident about the future and were less worried about the threat of war than we are. "Americans seem more afraid of it," remarked Miss Doyle.

Frenchmen Are Gallant

When Dr. Doyle left the United States in June, her sister warned her that with such a heavy suitcase she would have to spend all of her money on porters. "Twasn't so. In France she had plenty of help with her luggage; she hardly had to pick it up. Frenchmen are gallant, just as we've been led to believe.

Although she hated to admit it, Dr. Doyle said that Americans probably would not be so friendly to a foreigner as the people she met were to her. But then, from her description of herself on one particular occasion, we can understand why people were friendly to her. They must have felt sorry for the poor lady.

In her own words she was "dressed in a wrinkled travel-suit and carried a heavy red-plaid suitcase in my right hand. Across one shoulder was a camera and light meter; the other shoulder sported a Florentine over-the-shoulder bag (weight, one ton); in my left hand I carried a flight bag with 'Flying Tiger' written across it." Besides this, she had purchased a Venetian gondolier's hat which couldn't be packed, so . . . (But it was such a good buy!) She also purchased a beret in France and a Scottish head-piece.

Traveled Extensively

Dr. Doyle, who speaks French adequately and German slightly, met people who were French, Italian, Austrian, Danish, Australian, German, Dutch, Belgian, Belgian-Congo, Swiss, English, Scottish, Irish, Welsh, and Swedish. In Copenhagen a Swedish lady approached Miss Doyle and asked her where the nearest bank was. An Irish priest in Rome told her how to tell American tourists from other tourists; the Americans were the ones with tight meters.

Just before she returned to America in August, Miss Doyle went to Ireland and met many relatives—mostly cousins. She saw the house her great-great grandmother had lived in and her descendants are still living there. The house is located outside of Killarney.

According to Dr. Doyle, "I went to see as much as I could, do as much as I could; I expected to enjoy myself and I wasn't disappointed. There was just one thing wrong with the trip—it ended."

Dr. Doyle seems to have observed a side of Europeans which a casual tourist might have overlooked. Her intense interest in people helped her get the "feel of the country."

An excellent program of dance music will be offered by the "Collegeians." Two vocalists and a dance team will be featured in the floor show.

The dance will be held in the student union from 9:00 p.m. till 12:00 p.m. Admission is $1.50 per couple and $.75 stag.

Yearbook Staff Indicates Progress

Final date for ordering the 1958 Kanawhachen is Nov. 26. No orders will be accepted after this date because the exact number of copies to be printed must be specified with the first deadline.

A campaign to increase the number of copies sold is currently being conducted. In the earlier sales period 303 copies were sold. Students may order yearbooks in the Dining Hall from 5 to 6 p.m. The members of the yearbook staff will accept orders anytime.

At this time, the class pictures have been completed, and scheduling is underway for photographing the Student Council and the class officers.

Full page pictures of the campus buildings will be featured as section division pages in this year's Kanawhachen. These pictures are being produced by a double negative process devised by Bill Deel and Randolph Stein.

Five New Pioneers

Dean Rhodes Wright from Spencer is a freshman transfer student from Potomac State College, Keyser.

Janice Arnold, Linger Arnold, Denzil Barker, Edward Clutter, David Hall, Lanty Rose and Shirley Lightner Lowe have also enrolled. These last named students have been enrolled at GSC at some previous time.

Members of the Advanced Sewing Class will model the garments they have made in class this semester. Mrs. Lillian Chaddock, assistant professor of home economics, is in charge of the class and is one of the advisers for the Club.

SHOOT TO KILL!

Holy Roller Court will sponsor a turkey shoot Nov. 23 at Rohrbrough Stadium. Fifteen turkeys will be shot off at the cost of one dollar a shot. The weight of the turkeys is estimated at 20 to 25 pounds each. All shells will be furnished.

A Hollow Thanksgiving

At this another Thanksgiving time, it is only fitting that this, the richest and most blessed nation in the world, should give thanks.

Let us give thanks:

For the oceans which separate our land of milk and honey from nations plagued with disease and starving people.

For our own selfish natures which permit us to glory in our own blessings and persuade us that our responsibilities do not include Korean war orphans and homeless Arabs.

For our education which will separate us from the "common people" back home.

For educators who have drilled into our unenlightened minds that we "can't go home again" to the "ignorance" of our own people.

For our jobs which lend is social prestige, that we may be considered a "better class."

For our riches, that we have need of nothing; that we are not sick, nor hungry, nor naked, nor in prison, nor a stranger, and that we, in our own Pharisaical self-righteousness, may say on this Thanksgiving season, "Thank thee, Lord, that I am not like other men or women."

For our love, which given in hypocrisy and with hope of much return, binds us together with others like us until we have set up firm boundaries against our enemies, and that we live in a society which does not call us to love our enemies, to bless them that curse us, or to do good to them that hate us.

For the fact that we certainly should not have to give the kind of love which would call us to lay down our lives for our friends.

For teachers who do not call from us our best, but teach us contentment with half truths.

For a society which also says to us, you must be neither hot nor cold; you must maintain a middle of the road philosophy; you must adopt a doctrine of neutrality, being neither conservative nor liberal, turning to neither to the left nor right; for the golden rule of our nation, which says that we must reach a happy median, that we should become as jelly-fish like as possible.

For the fact that we neither have to join in the crucifixion of Christ and His church, nor do we have to join it. "Pilates of America," we merely wash our hand of the whole affair; we are called neither to join in the fellowship of Christianity nor the destruction of its principles; that we can stand off objectively and never really enter into the works upon which Christian faith rests; that we as students of Glenville, can assume a philosophy whereby we can go to Church on Sunday morning and leave our religiosity there until the next Sunday; that we would not be called to make Christ the center of our lives everyday, so that our entire campus life would be a witness for Him.

For Thanksgiving Day, which comes once a year, at which time we take time to give thanks unto the Lord for all his merciful blessings, holding out our hands for anything He has to add then putting off our thanks-giving for another year.

Voice Of The Students

Last week the MERCURY celebrated its 28th birthday, and this presented the opportunity for staff members to ask themselves, "Is the MERCURY really serving as the voice of Glenville State College?"

It has always been the MERCURY's policy in the past to publish letters to the editor if they were signed, sensibly written, and well-thought-out. This policy still continues, and thus far no letters have come to the editor's desk as yet.

We know that there are several controversial issues existing on campus, so why not express your opinion in your paper instead of complaining to fellow students. This year the MERCURY is also willing to publish a Student Forum column, if enough students are interested. If you are approached in the near future to express your views on certain issues, we hope you will cooperate with us in our efforts to make the MERCURY a better student paper.

Although some observers believe that a newspaper should have no editorial policy, we firmly believe that a publication should formulate opinions and back them on certain issues concerning politics, student government, and campus, state, national, and international affairs. Not to be left out are comments on the fine arts.

It is true that news in itself often has a great effect on public opinion, but the MERCURY also believes that the duty of a newspaper is to help form opinion through the editorial page.

Rudy Poole, Bob Reynolds To Lead Glenville State Basketball Attack

By EDWIN WARE

Basketball takes the spotlight as Glenville opens its 1957-58 season against the West Virginia Tech Golden Bears Dec. 3 in the GSC Field House. This will be followed by a home game with the Salem Tigers on Dec. 10.

Practice has been underway for sometime and Coach Leland Byrd has his squad rounded into good shape for the season opener.

Six Lettermen Return
Only six lettermen return to do battle for the Pioneers. Among these are Glenville's twin pistons, Rudy Poole and Bob Reynolds. These men can be expected to lead the GeeMen through the season.

Poole, a consistent scorer who last year averaged 24 points per game, is a two time all conference choice. Reynolds, also capable of burning up the nets, averaged 17.7 points last year. He should have little difficulty in increasing his total this year.

Rounding out the lettermen are Tom McPherson, Dorsey Scott, Charles Watt and Larry Barker.

McPherson, a senior is a dead shot and might well be a pleasant surprise in the Glenville camp. Scott, a junior, is one of the teams best shots and is also the smallest man on the squad.

Watt, a sophomore, is capable of scoring consistently from the outside and could be the man to replace Al Reich, who was lost by graduation.

Barker, a sophomore, is also in contention for the Reich spot, having come along well in the waning moments of the 1956-57 season, especially in the WVIAC tournament.

In addition to these lettermen there are several men who have shown quite a bit of promise during practice.

Three Sand Fork products, Larry Ford, Melvin Edwards and Bud Minner will certainly add depth to

Notes from

The Robert F. Kidd Library

Would you like to see a movie? A service offered by the Robert F. Kidd Library which few students seem to be aware of is the number of filmstrip and movie catalogs available for use.

These catalogs list movies and filmstrips which can be rented for use in any field. Besides educational and instructional films, there are movies strictly for entertainment.

Campus organizations interested in making money by presenting a movie or improving their programs might rent a movie or film. According to Dr. Byron J. Turner, there is a movie projector which is available to students or student organizations.

Walt Disney films, westerns, comedies, old movies which are no longer shown, famous plays, and modern movies are all available for rental.

Rates for renting a movie run from $1.50 to $22.00, depending on the type of film.

Some of the names listed in the catalogs are "Hot Rod," "Lorna Doone," "Davy Crockett, Indian Scout," "All The Kings Men," and "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

Because many students who have "T" grades due to illness, it is believed that it may be helpful to postpone the date of report of grades to the office of the Registrar until Monday, Nov. 18 at 9:00 a.m.

This will give students an opportunity to make up their work before grades are recorded and sent to parents. Please notice that this will make a delay in the date on which students will be able to get grades.
