Rural Development Conference Is Set For GSC Campus April 16

'Youth' Will Play Role in Meet

YOUTH will play a major role in the Rural Development Conference this year. Plans are underway to enlist the aid of youth in discussion and development of plans of action centering around the cultural, economic, and social problems of the 19 county area served by Glenville State College.

The Rural Development Conference arose from the belief that the educational system of any given locale is dependent upon the social, cultural, and economic status of that area and that there should be an effort on the part of the educational system to serve its area in every possible way.

Somerville Is Director

Within the framework of this belief, the advisory committee of the Rural Development Committee felt that the ideas of youth must be considered, for, according to Dean Delmer K. Somerville, director of the conference:

"The young people who are in our high schools and colleges at present will be the leaders in their communities 10 or 15 years from now. If they can acquire the proper concepts of the social, economic, and cultural problems of our area at an early age, they will be much more able to deal effectively with these problems than the present generation of adults.

"Participating in the discussions of the conference sessions and meeting personally many prominent leaders in business, industry, agriculture, education and the professions should be an invaluable experience for the youth who attend. Also, many of the problems concern young people. They can contribute their ideas and suggestions to the conference for consideration. This will make them feel that they have a real part in a program which has the improvement of the quality of living as its chief aim."

A special committee, a sub-committee of the Human Resources Division, has been established to bring

Students Attend Charleston Meet

Members of the music department will leave at 1:30 this afternoon to attend the three-day State Music Conference at Morris Harvey College reports Dr. Harold Orendorf, Chairman, Fine and Applied Arts Division.

Students who will attend the conference are Harold Johnson, Carmen Amos, Tom Howard, Stanley Burns, Charles and Ruby Massey, Harold Hudnall, Francis Angelos, Bob Row, Joyce Brannon, Shirley Hager, and Stanley Pickens.

Faculty members attending the meeting will be Dr. Orendorf; Miss Bertha Olsen, assistant professor of music; and David E. Wallace, instructor of music.

The group plans to return Saturday from the meeting. Last week's issue of the MERCURY carried the names of Glenville State students who are to take part in the All-College Orchestra, a regular feature of the State Music Conference.

Future Homemakers Hold Annual Conference Here

Regional Meeting Is Set For Campus March 1

Approximately 500 high school members of the Future Homemakers Clubs, representing Region Four, will be on the Glenville State College campus Saturday, March 1, for the Western Regional Meeting.

Committees Visit College Campuses

Student Council sponsored a visiting committee to the campuses of Fairmont Wesleyan and West Virginia Tech, reports Dr. Robert Higgins.

Mrs. Eileen Wolfe, Dr. Robert Higgins, Albert Somerville, Barbara Taylor, and James Gay toured the campus of Fairmont.

Those who traveled to Wesleyan were Mrs. Donald Barker, Mrs. Eileen Wolfe, Thelda Strader, Mrs. Fern Rollyson, Orton Jones, and Marvin Stemple.

Sue Click, Silas Hicks, Mike Ferrell, Steve McMillion and Dr. Robert Higgins were the group who visited W. Va. Tech's campus.

Two years ago, according to Higgins, representatives of GSC traveled to various colleges and received benefit from these tours.

These groups were cordially received on all campuses, stated Higgins, and he hopes to have representatives here from these schools visit with us.

Extension Class Schedule Listed By Dean's Office

Extension classes are being offered by Glenville State College this semester in Craigsville, Clay, and Elizabeth, according to Dean Delmer K. Somerville.

Dr. James Gay Jones is teaching course in Social Science 303 at Clay on Tuesday nights. This class is West Virginia History, Government, and Geography.

Geography 303, World Geography, is being taught in Craigsville on Tuesday nights, under the direction of Asso. Prof. Stanley Hall.

Asst. Prof. Nicholas Murin is teaching History 102, Development of Social Institutions from the Seventeenth Century to Today, in Elizabeth. This class meets on Friday nights.

STUDENTS SELECT RECORDS

Five new records will be purchased for the juke box in the Student Union every two weeks, states Thelda Strader, Student Council secretary.

Everyone is asked to place his selection for his favorite records in the ballot box in the Union. Student Council is sponsoring the voting and the records will be selected by the largest number of votes.

Mercury Stages Annual Contest

Campus Cover Girl Contest, sponsored on Glenville State College campus by the MERCURY, will be held Thursday, Feb. 27, announces Miss Virginia West, MERCURY adviser.

Each organization on campus is asked to select its entrant by Monday, Feb. 24. On that day a representative from each organization will meet with other group representatives and eliminate all but six of the contestants.

Pictures of the six remaining candidates will be placed on display in the Student Union before and during the election. Voting, to be supervised by MERCURY staff members, will be held in the Union from 9 until 4 o'clock on Feb. 27. All students are eligible to vote in the election.

Armstrong '57 Winner

This is the fourth year that this contest has been held on GSC campus. Last year Reta Joe Armstrong was the representative from Glenville State. In 1956 Mary Burk Greynolds was elected on this campus and then placed third in the final contest.

According to John Patterson, editor of Roto Magazine, which sponsors the Campus Cover Girl Contest each year, the contest will be carried out a little differently this year.

Formerly there were no prizes for the winner, and she was chosen entirely by the picture submitted to the judges. This year, however, judges will select five girls from the candidates pictured in Roto. These girls will then be invited to a luncheon in Pittsburgh so that they may meet and talk with the judges.

This will give the judges a chance to learn about the young women's school activities, their poise and personalities. From these five girls a Campus Cover Girl will be chosen. The others will serve as a kind of court for the queen and their pictures as top winners will be carried when the Campus Cover Girl story appears.

Higgins Releases Testing Schedule

Dr. Robert E. Higgins will be visiting 16 area high schools this spring to administer scholastic aptitude tests to the junior class of each school.

This testing program is a service function of the college, and is offered in cooperation with the statewide junior class testing program. All the colleges in West Virginia and the West Virginia Department of Education are cooperatively sponsoring this program. Each college within the state is assigned a list of high schools, to which college faculty members administer the scholastic tests.

Dean Higgins will be giving tests to the junior class in each of the

Glenville Budget Shows Increase

Even though the West Virginia Legislature did not take action upon the Glenville College request for funds to build a new girl's dormitory or complete renovation of Unit C of the college Administration Building, the budget for next year as released recently by President Harry B. Heflin shows an increase of approximately $28,500 over this year's budget.

Glenville will begin operating on their new budget July 1, as a school year lasts from one July to the next. The budget is divided into four main parts, which are personal service, current expenses, repairs and alterations, and equipment.

The new budget includes $349,275 for personal services, an increase of approximately $21,000 over this year's allocations in this area. According to President Heflin, the $21,000 increase for personal services will be used to pay the salaries of any new faculty members, with any remaining money being

Summer Session Program Planned; Will Begin June 3

Classes will be held six days a week during the second term of Glenville State College's summer session. This was announced recently by Dr. Delmer K. Somerville, who is preparing the 1958 summer school bulletin.

Registration will be held June 2 for the first summer term, with classes beginning June 3. The first term will feature five days of classes per week, and will continue for six weeks. The first term ends July 11.

Registration will be held July 14 for the second summer term. Classes will begin July 15 and will run from Monday through Saturday. The entire second term will last only five weeks, ending August 16.

Payment for dormitory students will be $92.41 for each term. A complete listing of classes will be available at a later date.

ACTIVITY CALENDAR

Feb. 19-22 — College Basketball Tournament, Buckhannon.

Wednesday, Feb. 26—Secondary Principal's Meeting. All Day (Luncheon) Louis Bennett Lounge.

Sundays, 6:15 — College Vespers, SCA, Louis Bennett Lounge.

Second Semester Enrollment Down

Eight states are represented in the enrollment of Glenville State College for the second semester. These states are West Virginia, Michigan, Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and New York.

The total enrollment for the second semester is approximately 632 students. Of this number, 575 are full-time on-campus students.

The freshman class leads the enrollment with 128 men and 101 women, for a total of 229 students. The sophomore class lists 89 men and 65 women for a total enrollment of 154 students. The juniors have an enrollment of 100, with 52 men and 48 women. The senior class is the smallest one, with 92 students of which 51 are men and 41 are women.

The part-time resident enrollment includes 17 men and 24 women. The extension enrollment was not complete as this paper went to press; however, it was estimated at 16, all women.

GSC Students Earn Doctorates; 6 Are Members Of Glenville Staff

Quality rather than quantity seems to be the best index to Glenville's academic program. Glenville's graduates do "quite well for themselves" as witnessed by the 17 graduates during the last 20 years upon whom have been conferred doctorates.

Six members of the present Glenville State College faculty and administrative staff compose part of this list of 17 graduates who have obtained doctorates. These are President Harry B. Heflin, Dr. Robert Higgins, Dr. James Gay Jones, Dr. Delmer K. Somerville, Dr. Byron J. Turner, and Dr. Max Ward.

Dr. Harry Heflin, who was graduated from Glenville in 1937, received his doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh in 1942. He has served as president of Glenville for the past 11 years.

Known not only for his teaching in the fields of education and psychology, but also for his work as dean of men at Glenville, Dr. Robert E. Higgins was graduated from this college in 1949. He received his doctorate from Indiana University in 1955. Dr. James Gay Jones was graduated from Glenville in 1936. Now a professor of history at Glenville, he received his doctorate from West Virginia University in 1952.

Dean of Glenville State College, Dr. Delmer K. Somerville received his doctorate from Cornell University in 1952. He was graduated from Glenville in 1936.

Dr. Byron J. Turner was graduated from Glenville in 1934. He was awarded his doctorate from Columbia University in 1952 and is now serving as professor of chemistry at Glenville.

After being graduated from Glenville in 1940, Dr. Max Ward received his doctorate from Harvard University in 1950. He is now Chairman of the Science and Mathematics Division at Glenville.

Dr. Homer Tenny Blackhurst, a graduate of Glenville with the class of 1935, received his doctorate at the Agriculture and Mechanic College of Texas in 1947. He is now Associate Professor in the department of horticulture at Texas A. and M.

Boggs At Longwood

Being graduated from Glenville in 1932, Dr. Earl R. Boggs was awarded his doctorate from George Peabody College for Teachers in 1949. He is now Dean of Longwood College in Farmville, Va.

Dr. James Spencer Collins was graduated from Glenville in 1948. In 1953, he was awarded a doctorate from Columbia. He is now teaching at Montclair High School in Montclair, N. J.

Recently named president of the University of Maine, Dr. Lloyd Hartman Elliott was graduated from Glenville in 1937. He was awarded a doctorate from the University of Colorado in 1948. Before assuming his new position in Maine, Elliott was an associate professor at Cornell University.

Dr. Charles Fitzwater was graduated from Glenville in 1937 and received his doctorate from Cornell University in 1948. He is a specialist in county and rural school administration for the United States Office of Education.

Graduated from Glenville in 1940, Dr. Kenneth William Hybert received his doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1953. He is now director of rehabilitation at Penn State.

Dr. Norvel McClung was graduated from Glenville in 1936 and was awarded his doctorate from the University of Michigan in 1949. He is now assistant professor in the department of botany at the University of Kansas.

Dr. Scott At WVU

Being graduated from Glenville in 1938, Dr. Grace Doris Scott was awarded a doctorate from the University of Maryland in 1954. She is now director of education of supervisors at West Virginia University.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson Morris was graduated from Glenville with the class of 1938. He received his doctorate from Ohio State University in 1954 and is now an associate professor of education at Marshall College.

The second woman graduated from Glenville in the past 20 years to receive her doctorate is Dr. Mary Moore Shinaberry. She was graduated from Glenville in 1940 and received her doctorate from Pennsylvania State University in 1954. She is now on the faculty at Bucknell University in Pennsylvania.

This list of graduates from Glenville to whom have been awarded doctorate covers the years 1936-1956. List was supplied by the National Academy of Sciences.

The Emma Joseph's Memorial Audio-Visual Committee arranged for the worship service of "The Society of Friends," held in the Social Room of the Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m. last Sunday evening.

Sue Click Heads Governing Board

Sue Click, junior physical education major from Ripley, has replaced Patricia Mannon of Logan as president of the Kanawha Hall Governing Board. Pat Knieley, a junior from Webster Springs, will serve as vice president.

Carol Lee Singleton, physical education major from Craggsville, was recently elected junior representative for the Board.

Five new members are living in Kanawha Hall this semester. They are Barbarg Huggins, sophomore, Parkersburg; Kathryn Godfrey, freshman, Weston; Pat Porter, freshman, Ansted; Nancy Bowles, freshman, Parkersburg; and Peggy Cooper, freshman, Grantsville.

Staff Observes College Birthday

College faculty and administrative staff consumed four birthday cakes Monday night at a party whose theme was "A February Celebration."

The February celebration included four major events—the 86th birthday of Glenville State College, George Washington's birthday, Abraham Lincoln's birthday, and Saint Valentine's day.

Refreshment included the four birthday cakes, nuts, candy and coffee. Miss Jearl Stump, college senior, directed the recreation.

Committee in charge of the party included Miss Erma Edwards, Mrs. John White, Mrs. Mary Fest, Mrs. Leland Byrd, Mrs. Silas Hicks, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, and Martin Riggs.

Whiting Contest Closes March 15

Assistant Professor John White, secretary of the Alumni Association, announces March 15 as the deadline for the Whiting Photography contest, sponsored in honor of Charles S. Whiting, an outstanding printer and photographer who was graduated from Glenville in 1912.

All students enrolled in Glenville College during the full school year of 1957-58 are eligible to enter the contest. Shirley Russel Cawthon, a senior at GSC this year, was last year's winner of the contest. She won total tuition and fees for this school year.

Should Be W. Va. Scene

Pictures to be submitted for judging may be of any standard size, but a three by five glossy print has been requested. The picture should be of a typical scene or landscape of West Virginia. Contestant must have his own name and address attached to the back of the entry, as well as the location of the scene. Students may submit as many entries as they wish.

All entries must be submitted on or before March 15 to be eligible to compete for the one hundred dollar scholarship by a member of the Alumni Association in honor of Charles S. Whiting.

Court Sponsors Class Tournament

The Holy Roller Court is planning a student mix Friday, March 14, for the entire student body. Vice President Larry Stanley urges every one to attend. Those serving on the committee for the mix will be Stanley, Steve McMillion, and Larry Meyers.

Vice President Stanley also announced that the Court will sponsor its annual Class Basketball Tournament in the near future. Those making arrangements for the tournament are Jim Dotson, Richard Ward, Ronnie Evans, and Stanley. There will be a men's division and a women's division in the tournament.

A Reasonable Request

In theory, one of the main objectives of a higher education is the preparation and training of the future leaders of our country, in business, in politics, in philosophy and in all positions of responsibility, to think. This responsibility is not being directly acknowledged on this campus.

Students entering college are required to take certain basic courses, such as biology, history, physical education, English composition, literature and social science. Some must enroll in education and foreign language courses. These varied courses are intended to give the student (yes, "intended to," for he merely memorizes facts for tests and immediately thereafter proceeds to forget them) a well-rounded liberal arts background. Then he continues his studies in his chosen field or fields, gathering facts, ideas, and abilities, all of which form an ideal potential foundation for reasoning, objective thinking, planning and developing insight.

The very nature of many of his classes affords some opportunity to speculate and to think creatively, but this is not enough. A man trained to teach one subject or to do one job is not necessarily taught to think. The rare, isolated attempts to encourage logical thinking that occur in the classrooms are far from being adequate, and far from being effective in their subordinate position in relationship to the subject matter.

To be effective and to fill this gap in the educational process, logical and creative thinking should and must be taught as an entity, a course in itself. Such a course would attract the most ambitious, the most capable students in every field. It would better prepare them to deal with the problems in their field of concern; it would enable them to better understand life; it would develop a "common sense" that would figuratively keep both of their feet on the ground. The experience of taking seriously this course in logic would govern (we think) the flights of fancy of the artistically inclined and would lessen the intensity of the introverted nature of scientists and their stereotyped oblivious attitude toward society.

It can be seen that such a course developed by Glenville State College would be a valuable asset to the educational program on this campus. Logical thinking, as a course in the college curriculum, has the potentialities, more than any other course, of directly meeting the educational objective of developing students' abilities, of arranging the facts and experiences derived from other classes into an orderly over-all comprehensive utilization.

A course in logic should greatly aid in forming and reviewing decisions, in confronting and connecting the abstract and the concrete, and most important, in formulating and practicing a philosophy, a way of life that is Christian, that is practical and that will make the student a better citizen and a more capable leader.

The question naturally arises as to how one three-hour course could do all this. The establishment of the course itself is only the first step in this direction. The existence of such a course would be mute evidence that the college is aware of this need for creative thinking. If the class were a success, as indications show that it would be, the course would be expanded and would be augmented by argumentation and debate, English composition, general psychology and other courses that fringe on logic.

Such a course has been considered by students at Glenville who have discussed it with the Dean. Present indications are that a course in logic may be instituted at some future time. Only then can we realize the full implication and importance of adding a course in logical thinking to the curriculum of Glenville State College.

Glenville Enters Tournament Play; Proves Strong Contender In Past

Glenville State entered the WVIAC tournament this week with high hopes of winning after a mediocre season. In view of past seasons, the Pioneers are not to be underestimated.

In 1956 with a conference standing of only ninth place, the Pioneers went into the tournament a decided underdog only to upset the big ones for a chance at the championship crown. However, West Virginia Tech's Golden Bears proved too much for the locals as the Gee-Men had to be satisfied with runner-up honors.

Fortunately, the win gave the White Wave the opportunity to enter the NAIA playoff with the winner of the tourney and the two top teams in the conference standings.

In Semi-Finals

Again last season the Pioneers proved their tournament power by advancing to the semi-finals before being defeated by the Alderson Broaddus Battlers, 79-73. Earlier, in the opening round, the Gee-Men walloped the West Virginia State Yellow Jackets 81-75 in a last half rally.

Advancing to the quarter-finals, the Pioneers met second-seeded Fairmont in a game that was practically given to the Falcons before being played. However, the fired-up Pioneers were not to be denied as they outplayed, outrebounded and out-scored the Falcons in one of the biggest upsets of the tournament, 91-77.

Fall To Battlers

The semi-finals were the next step and the Alderson Broaddus Battlers were the next opponent. The Pioneers met their match in the Battlers and big Joe Miller. Miller canned 47 points in the Pioneer loss.

The Pioneers have shown in recent years, that they are one of the most feared teams in the tournament. Two consecutive tournaments have seen the Gee-Men drown the hopes of favored teams such as Morris Harvey in 1956 and Fairmont last season.

The drawings for this year's WVIAC tournament were not made until the past Sunday; therefore the pairings were not available when the MERCURY went to press.

Even though the Pioneer's opponent is not known at this time, the Gee-Men can certainly be considered a darkhorse in this playoff. None in the conference can equal the Pioneers ability to upset the leaders.

Chisler Placed On OSU Honor Roll

John Chisler, former Glenville State College student, recently was placed on the dean's list of honor students at Ohio State University, where he is currently enrolled in the college of agriculture. Chisler was placed in the group who had semester averages ranging from 3.5 to 3.99.

A graduate of Lost Creek High School with the class of 1955, Chisler attended Glenville College for two years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chisler of Mt. Clare.

Filmstrip Featured For Wesley Program

A film, "Our Protestant Heritage," will make up the program for Wesley Foundation next Sunday night, Feb. 23. The meeting will begin at 7:00 p.m. in the Trinity Methodist Church.

youth into the conference. This committee includes Dr. Robert Higgins, Dean of Men at Glenville College; the Rev. Robert Gay, Glenville Presbyterian Minister; Harley Cutlip, director of Jackson's Mill State 4-H Camp; Frank Sohn, community relations representative for the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation of Ravenswood; Miss Girtha Engle, Clendenin High School teacher; Miss Mary Louise Rinehart, Weston High School teacher; Miss Edna Boyles from Parkersburg; and Miss Connie Sams, student at Glenville.

This committee met at Jackson's Mill in December and drew up plans to invite youth to enter the activities of the conference. These plans included recommendations to invite high school students, college students, and youth from the drop-out group to participate in the meeting.

The committee will meet again March 5 at Jackson's Mill to make final plans. Youth participating in the conference will be invited to participate in the discussion group of their choice. These groups include agriculture, business, education, human resources, natural resources, and industry.

April 16 has been set for the date of the Rural Development Conference. All the principal speakers have not yet been named. Dr. Truman Pierce, Dean of the College of Education, Alabama Polytechnic Institute will be one of the speakers. The advisory committee will meet this week to discuss final plans for the conference.

Members of the advisory committee are C. H. Archer, coordinator West Virginia Continuing Program in Educational Leadership, State Department of Education; John D. Lough, agriculture agent for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; Walter C. Gumbel, soil conservationist for the Monongahela Power Company; H. Cliff Hamilton, supervisor of instruction, West Virginia Department of Education; Dr. Harry B. Heflin, president of Glenville State College; Adonis Hunt, cashier
