Lest We Forget

As we prepare to leave Glenville State College:

LEST WE should forget that college is work, we would remember the midnight-oil we have burned, the no-doze pills we have consumed, the days and nights we have spent in studying and running (more of the latter, less of the former), the all-night drill sessions we have spent before comprehensives and finals, and the hours of labor we have spent in term papers and projects.

LEST WE should ever forget that college is fun, we would remember the bull-sessions in the dorm, the ball games, the dramatic and musical events, the dances, picnics, parties, and even the classes in which we experienced clean wholesome fun.

LEST WE should forget the friendships we have found here, we would remember the times when we have completely failed in our relationships with others in such a way that we were entirely unworthy of the friends who refused to like and trust us any less and who insisted upon the continuance of a friendship which we had betrayed.

LEST WE should ever fail to appreciate our college education, we would remember the sacrifices made by our parents and families in order to send us to school, nor would we forget the pride they have taken in our successes during our four years here and in our graduation.

LEST WE should feel that college is of little benefit because of low teacher income and prestige, we would remember the faculty members who stayed in a little college set in the hills of West Virginia and taught, simply because they loved to teach and loved young people.

LEST WE, in the glory of graduation and the conceit of our newly found occupations, should ever forget our own ignorance, we would remember the times when professors have quizzed and we have failed as well as the times when dormitory friends have questioned and we have been without answers to their searchings.

FINALLY, LEST WE should forget the responsibilities we are assuming upon receiving our degrees, we would remember the privileges we have been granted in their reception.

THESE THINGS, among countless others, we would remember, lest we forget all that Glenville has been to us.

Glenville Students Receive Honors In Poetry, Oration, Drama At Mill

Glenville State College's entry into the 20th annual speech festival of the W. Va. Intercollegiate Speech Association resulted in commendations in poetry interpretation for Beverly McComis and in drama for the "Rondo" cast, a third place in oratory for Lee Kessinger, and the election of Associate Professor William Coleman to two offices. Mr. Coleman declined re-election to his previous post as State Chairman of Extemporaneous speaking so he could serve more actively as State Chairman of Drama during the 1958-59 school year.

Mary Lee Kessinger, speaking on the topic "The Sin of a Nation" placed third in the highly competitive oratory contest behind Morris Harvey and Marshall. This was her first entry in oratory. Beverly McComis, a junior in speech and English, and Herbert Proffitt, a former student at Glenville, were singled out as being outstanding in the non-competitive interpretive reading event.

The critic-judge, Prof. Harry Wright of Kent State University, noted that Miss McComis received "tremendous audience response" and also cited her "complete loss of herself in her reading and a complete use of the poetry's imagery."

Coleman Is Author

In drama Glenville entered "Rondo," a tragic-comedy in verse by Mr. Coleman. Jim White was selected for the All-State Cast for his portrayal of Alec, an impressive achievement because he had rehearsed mainly for the part during the third quarter. Glenville's play was one of two to receive a lengthy ovation from the Festival audience. The other play was West

Virginia Tech's production of Paul Green's "Unto Such Glory."

Wright commended the "Rondo" cast for their ability to speak verse effectively and noted that "...the verse was beautiful... the writing, imagination, poetry of the lines, and the execution of the play were to be commended." Glenville's production was probably the most elaborate of the festival. In a conference with the cast and director, Judge Wright told the cast he was most impressed by the Glenville's production because "it challenged the audience."

Receives Special Mention

Loretta Pernell and Gerald Kress entered in radio. Miss Ferrell received special mention from Judge DeWitt Wyatt of WPDH for her handling of her feature in the news. Both entries were termed "eminently employable for professional work." Albert Sommerville entered in the difficult extemporaneous speaking event.

Glenville State College was entered in every area of the event except debate. Nine colleges entered the festival. They were Davis and Elkins, Fairmont, Glenville, Marshall, Morris Harvey, Concord, West Virginia University, West Virginia Tech and West Liberty.

Benedum Offers Scholarship Fund

Glenville State College has received $1000 from the Claude Worthington Benedum Scholarship Fund to be awarded to five entering freshmen, according to an announcement made recently by Dr. Harry B. Heflin.

Four entering freshmen have already been granted a Benedum Scholarship. They are Margaret Rossi, Coalton High School; Carol Sue Reed, Roosevelt High School; Loulah Belle Whegy, Sand Fork High School; and Winona Stewart, Sutton High School.

The Claude Worthington Benedum Scholarship Fund was established at Glenville State College in 1955. Since then a total of $3000 has been received from the Foundation. Five scholarships of $200 each are awarded each year, with $100 being paid to the student at the beginning of each semester. These awards are made to West Virginia students only, and are good for one year only.

West Virginia Board of Education scholarships have been awarded to the following persons: Marretta Russel of Cowen High School, Rebecca Shawver of Richwood High School, and Delores Radcliff of Sand Fork High School in elementary education. State Board scholarships in secondary education have been awarded to Doris Hosey of Sutton High School, Doris Conkle of Clear Fork High School, and Wila Wells of Glenville High School.

The West Virginia Board of Education scholarships pay tuition and fees and are good for four years. A student accepting one of these scholarships must agree to teach one year in West Virginia for each year he uses the scholarship money.

At the time the MERCURY went to press, the list of scholarship acceptances was not complete.

1958 Pioneer Baseball Squad

Freshman Roger Hall Strikes Out Eleven Tigers As Glenville Pioneers Down Visiting Salem Nine 14-1

Coach Carlos Ratliff's Glenville State baseball team has compiled a record of four wins against five losses with the latest win being an impressive 14-1 victory over the Salem Tigers, May 15 at Glenville.

Freshman Roger Hall took the mound for the Pioneers and proved he has what it takes to stay up with the best as he struck out 11 Tigers and gave up only three hits in his first starting assignment on the GSC squad.

Glenville collected 13 hits from Tiger-pitcher Travis Parks. First baseman James Cox had a home-run in the first that drove in three runs. Shortstop Larry Nichols also collected three RBI's for the day.

Beat Batteries

Alderson Broadus was another White Wave victim as the Batteries fell to the Ratliffmen 8-5 on May 14 at Philippi. Kenny Wright was the moundsman against the Batteries. Wright bound the big bats of the Batteries and took the win by allowing only six hits.

Two games immediately preceding the A-B game were entered in the loss column. Fairmont came up with an 11-1 victory and Salem defeated the Pioneers 7-6.

Fairmont accomplished the task dreamed of by every club when Fairmont pitchers Barone and Matlick combined to pitch a no hitter at the GeeMen. Oddly, the Pioneers sent George Cook across the plate as they capitalized on Fairmont errors and bases on balls. McKown took the loss for the Pioneers.

Salem squeaked by the Pioneers in a 7-6 victory at Salem on May 2. The GeeMen led in the game until a three run rally in the fifth sent three Tigers to paydirt and gave them the lead at 7-5. Glenville rallied briefly in the seventh but managed to score only one run.

Only one regularly scheduled game remains to be played, that with West Liberty at Glenville.

Last Saturday was the scheduled date for the Davis Elkins game at Elkins but results were not available when the MERCURY went to press.

Other games to be played have been postponed from earlier in the season. Opponents for these contests are A-B, Wesleyan, and Fairmont.

Stanevich Seizes Softball Tourney

Delores Stanevich led her team to triumph in the WAA softball tournament. Stanevich paraded to victory after winning two close games last night. Butler was downed 13-12 and Reed was defeated 19-18. Rebounding to the victory road after two upsets at the beginning of the playoff, Stanevich led her team to six victories and took two defeats.

Members of the hard-hitting, victorious team are Delores Stanevich, captain; Joyce Jackson, Iolene Harding, Sue Click, Virginia Davis, Linda Mayo, and Dortha Isch.

Dorothy Butler, Hester Reed and Delores Stanevich were captains for the softball tournament. Jane Spray served as point secretary.

Virginia Davis, president of WAA announced tentative plans for a werner roast before school is out. Plans are incomplete.

Officers for the coming year will be selected at the next meeting.

COURT, KAPPA SIG'S BATTLE FOR HONORS

Basketball finally bows off the scene tomorrow as the MAA finals are held with the Holy Roller Court and Kappa Sigma Kappa battling for the honor of being known as the Men's Intra-Mural Basketball League Champions. Both teams have survived the double elimination tournament which began early in April.
