There's a velvety touch to the talk in "There's Always Juliet." It has cat's paws, and it dabs at your humor and feelings without ever leaving a scratch. The play opens with Leonora Perrycoste, a young English lady, at the telephone trying to learn the identity of a handsome American she has just met at a tea party. In the midst of her inquiries, Dwight Houston, (Harry Holbert), the young American in question appears. They are off on a mad adventure, loving each other and wondering. He proposes, she hesitates; they part.

We hesitate to reveal the rest of the plot so be in the college auditorium at 8:00 p.m. on May 18 or 19.

Marilou Locke is directing the play and is assisted by Paul Rippe.

Other Ohnimgohow-Alpha Psi Omega three-act productions this year have been "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Uncle Vanya," and "Arms and the Man."

'Open Door' Policy of Mr. Elpoep

HAVE YOU SEEN Mr. Elpoep (pronounced el po ep')? I've seen him. He's a funny, amusing character and I enjoy knowing him. A child would call him an elf; a superstitious person might call him a ghost or spirit. Whatever you call name him, he does exist.

MR. ELPOEP, I'll refer to him as Elppy, is hard to describe. He can change his stature at will; one day I'll speak to him, and he's so short I can barely see him; the next day he may be so tall I have to shout to converse with him. On his good-humored days he is of average height, varying from 4' 9" to 5' 9".

ELPPY IS FRIENDLY, (usually remembers the names of his friends), will help with little chores like washing a car, sweeping a dormitory hall, typing a term paper, or finding a library book; he is an active little imp, dividing his time between baseball games, watching the girls play badminton, attending assembly programs, dancing in the Union and studying for an exam.

HE'S ALWAYS AROUND, although only the alert see him. He flits in and out of the chemistry laboratories, the MERCURY office, the physical education building. And Elppy tries so hard to stay out of mischievousness, though, I'll have to admit, he's sometimes awfully tempted to play tricks and dream up pranks.

YES, ELPPY HAS SUCH A GOOD HEART! And his intentions are generally admirable. He believes in democracy, motherly-love, loyalty to his country (and, since he is temporarily living here, loyalty to this campus), freedom and liberty, and freedom of speech.

SPEAKING OF SPEECH, here Elppy really shines! He is the best little soap-box orator I've seen in years. He can take the middle of the floor and keep his listeners spellbound with his gestures, jokes, and jibes. He assiduously proclaims his beliefs, ideas, and opinions. He loudly asserts his independence, dismay with existing affairs, complaints, and disgust with various institutions, organizations, and events.

BUT POOR ELPPY has such a terrible fault, and he doesn't realize it. I just haven't the heart to point it out personally to him. You see, confidentially, his eyes are closed. He can't see well at all. All he knows are the general outlines of things, the vague impression his eyes send to his brain. He only sees parts, not the whole.

AND WHAT MAKES this so lamentable is not his closed eyes so much as his open mouth; with the two traits combined, Elppy becomes a creature to be pitied. If only he could get his eyes open, or else learn to close his mouth part of the time — oh well, maybe he can't help it.

NOW THAT YOU KNOW about Mr. Elpoep, can you recognize him? It's easy; read his name backwards. Mr. Elpoep, may I present . . .

Speech Students Enter State Meet; Coleman Is Dramatics Chairman

On May 7, 8 and 9, 12 speech students will attend the 20th annual State College Speech Festival at Jackson's Mill. Glenville will enter in the one act play, debate, men and women's radio, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and oral interpretation.

The one act play entry is Eugene Ionesco's avant garde comedy-drama, The Lesson. Featured in the cast are Rodney Busch as the professor, Ellen Lynch as the Student, and Gail Ratliff as the Maid. Miss Ratliff and Marilou Locke will manage costume and make-up, John Chippis will operate sound; and Paul Rippe, Ronald Stonfer, and Gary Fields will manage the staging. Associate Professor William Coleman will direct.

Mr. Coleman is chairman of dramatics for the state collegiate speech association this year and will manage the festival. The Lesson is a surrealistic fantasy that has been much admired abroad. Glenville's production is one of the first in this country and the author has requested pictures and information about this production of the play. At least six other colleges in the state are entering the play festival. Plays will be presented every evening of the festival and admission is free.

The debate team for the festival includes James Buck and Jane Ruckman for the affirmative and David Wayland and Ralph Everett for the negative. Wayland is also entering radio and extemp.

Beverly McComis is entering in oratory with the topic, "Population Tempo Breeds Dilemma" and Marilou Locke is entering women's radio. Rodney Busch will read portions of "Ash Wednesday" by T. S. Eliot as an entry in interpretive reading. Last year Glenville was outstanding in interpretive reading, drama and placed third in oratory.

Glenville Takes Win From Morris Harvey Eagles; State Yellow Jackets Will Play Here Tomorrow

The Fairmont State Falcons invaded Rohrbough Field on Friday April 24 and handed the Glenville State Pioneers their fifth straight diamond loss 9-3. The Falcons could gather only seven hits off the offerings of Jim Stalnaker but three big Glenville errors made Fairmont's chore easier.

Stalnaker and Fred Hickel, the Fairmont hurler, were hooked up in a scoreless pitching duel until the top of the fifth when the Falcons broke the ice and jumped into a one run lead. In the seventh the Falcons exploded for three more runs on five base hits, one a two-run homer by rightfielder Ott. Fairmont then added five more runs in a big eighth inning rally putting the game beyond the reach of the Pioneers.

Glenville was kept in check by the offerings of Hickel for eight innings before they finally pushed across three runs in the ninth. Hickel started his own trouble as he walked Oliver and Nichols to lead off the ninth and then Cox and Mann followed with back to back doubles to account for three Glenville runs.

Young Leads Hitting

Bill Young with two singles in three trips led the Glenville hitters while Van Meter had two for five to lead the Fairmont hitters.

Stalnaker went all the way on the hill for the Pioneers picking up his second loss in as many outings.

Morris Harvey Here

The following day the Morris Harvey Golden Eagles invaded

Glenville and the Pioneers proceeded to defeat the visitors in a ten innings thriller 8-7 for their first victory of the season.

Bob Oliver, usually a second baseman, started on the mound for the Pioneers and pitched seven and a third innings of good baseball in his first start of the season. Morris Harvey jumped into a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning as Oliver got off to a rocky start; however, he then came back to shut them out until the sixth when MH tallied again on a homer by Ed Finchan. By this time though, the Pioneers were holding a 6-3 lead as they scored one in the second, one in the fourth and four big runs in the 5th featuring a bases loaded double by Tim Carney.

In the seventh inning with Oliver weakening somewhat the Golden Eagles rallied for two runs putting them within one run of the Pioneers. In this rally Morris Harvey knocked Oliver out of the box and "Big John" Pisapia took over the pitching chores for the Gee Men.

Morris Harvey came up with two more runs in the eighth against Pisapia to take a one run lead and make the Glenville cause look dim. A long triple by their third baseman Lovejoy highlighted this rally by the Eagles.

Then in true Frank Merriwell finish Jim Cox stepped up to the plate in the bottom of the ninth and slammed a Shelton offering over the left field fence for a game tying homerun sending the game into extra innings. After Pisapia had set down the MH batters in their half of the tenth Manlove led off for the pioneers with a single and the game winning rally was started.

Jordan attempting to sacrifice forced Manlove at second. Pisapia then walked moving Jordan to second bringing Gandee to the plate.

Gandee forced Pisapia at second moving Jordan to third with the winning run with two out. Junior Wilson then played the role of the hero by hitting a game winning single scoring Jordan.

Glenville was led in hitting by George Manlove with 3 for 4 and Wilson with 3 for 6. Carney also had an important bases-loaded double for the Pioneers.

John Pisapia picked up the win in relief, his first, and Shelton went all the way for Morris Harvey absorbing the loss.

Friday afternoon, April 30, the Alderson-Broadus Battlers handed the Gee Men their sixth loss of the season 1-0. Roger Hall of Glenville and Ron Kittle of AB, both pitching good baseball, hooked up in a scoreless pitching duel through six innings before A-B scored the only run of the game.

Hall and Kittle kept the hitters muttering to themselves most of the afternoon and there were few base runners during this fray. Glenville got only three runners as far as third and A-B two.

Alderson-Broadus scored the lone run of the game in the seventh with the help of some shoddy fielding on the part of the Pioneers.

GSC rallied briefly in the eighth

Pioneer Linksmen Win First Four

The GSC golf team defeated W. Va. Wesleyan and Davis and Elkins last week to remain unbeaten in four matches this season. The two wins give the Glenville "slammers" a match record of three wins, no losses and one tie.

April 25 the team handed the W. Va. Bobcats a 9½ to 5½ defeat. Based on one point for each the front and back nines and one for low score over 18 holes, Jack Reed and Ed Grose swept 3 points each from their opponents to lead the win. Wendell Ware had 2½ points, and Ben Lepley and Jim Wyant ½ point each to account for the Glenville total.

The Davis and Elkins Senators were the next victims of the Pioneers as they went down to a close 8-7 defeat on the Glenville links. In this match Reed once again swept 3 points from his opponent to lead Glenville. Wyant chipped in with 2½, Ware 2 and Lepley ½ to give GSC the win.

Coach Ratliff and his linksmen were due to end the regularly scheduled season on May 1 and 2 in three way matches. May 1 the team travelled to Fairmont for a three way match with Fairmont and West Liberty. On the 2nd the Glenville golf course was to be the scene of another three way match between GSC, Wesleyan and Alderson-Broadus, weather permitting.

The results of these matches were not available at the time the MERCURY went to press.

Poluszek of A-B had two of his teams three hits to pace the Battler batting attack while Ray Gande and Junior Wilson each had two singles to lead Glenville.

Hall Allows Only 3 Hits

Hall pitched a beautiful game for the Pioneers giving up only three hits and certainly deserved a better fate than going down to his second defeat against no wins. Kittle went all the way for A-B picking up the win.

The Pioneers were slated to travel to Elkins on May 2 as guest of the Davis and Elkins Senators and to Fairmont on May, weather permitting, but the results of these games were not available at the time the MERCURY went to press.

A Visit With Mrs. Edith Robinson

By Dorothy Butler

I knocked on the door, a smiling woman greeted me, asked me to be seated, and then excused herself for a minute. She wanted to help her three-year old son Stevie who was speaking with one of his friends, Tammie, on the phone. I sat down and glanced around me. The music of a child's record filled the room; the journals at my elbow were titled "The American Psychologist", "Journal of Consulting Psychology", and "Journal of Projective Techniques." Thus I met Mrs. John D. Robinson.

Edith Carilla Robinson was born in Numancia, Philippines, daughter of educator-parents. Her father was a district supervisor, her mother a home economics teacher. She has two brothers and a sister, all younger. Her formal schooling began when she was four. At the time there were no kindergarten schools, and she "visited" the first grade. The teacher soon placed her in the second grade (her father didn't know this was happening) and she continued her education.

Seasons Aren't

Filipino elementary schools include grades one through seven, then four years of high school follow. Classes are held from June to March. As Mrs. Robinson says, seasons, as we know them, just aren't in the islands. If it is the hot season, you know the sun will come up; if it's rainy season, you know everything will be drenched. It's that simple, so the weather is not too important as a topic of conversation.

Mrs. Robinson entered pre-medical training at fifteen, and was there for two years. Following this she attended the University of the Philippines for a year and a half, until World War II broke out, and the Japanese invaded the islands. Of the occupation she said simply that to some it was an inconvenience, to others a nightmare.

Came to the States

Following the war she finished her degree, a Bachelor of Science in Education. She then taught English in high school and botany in college, simultaneously. The next year she came to America, to Rochester, New York. Here she went into the field of music at the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester. This was not an alien field to her however. She had been doing musical work in the Philippines - directing a Glee Club and taking voice lessons. She was chiefly interested in sacred music. Also at the University of Rochester she took guidance courses and psychological development studies.

Received Ph. D. at Un. of Michigan Awarded a four-year Borbour Scholarship for graduates, Mrs. Robinson then went to the University of Michigan. Here, in addition to meeting John D. Robinson, she received a Ph. D. in the counseling phase of educational psychology.

Her next move was to Merrill-Palmer School (which she praises highly) in Detroit. Here she did intensive post-doctoral training in clinical psychology for two years. It was at Merrill-Palmer that she says she gained an over-view of her field of work.

Studies here were highly specialized, devoted to the study of the individual from pre-natal life to gerontology (aging of older people, their role in community and society). This school embraces as much as possible all aspects of human life. The cultural anthropologist's work, marriage counseling, psychological research and group work are all parts of the training available at this school.

The "holistic approach" is used at Merrill-Palmer to the study of an individual. This includes all factors which influence human development and the study of an individual as a whole. The entire fields of guidance, counseling, clinical psychology are part of the training.

Worked at Indiana University

Mrs. Robinson worked as a clinical psychologist in the psychological clinic at Indiana University when she and her husband moved to Indiana in 1955. This work was, she says, dealing with children, students and adults from the community and surrounding communities.

Sometime in the future, Mrs. Robinson states, "I'd like to do intensive research in cultural child psychology." This would involve cultural anthropology. Her spontaneous love for children seems to direct her toward specialization in child development. This work she says, is challenging, rewarding, and creative. Living with a child is most creative, and enriching, she added. She learns things from her own son, Steve, which can be applied in clinical cases, to unhappy as well as happy children.

The printed word seems cold as I try to describe the talented, versatile, and friendly person with whom I visited. A wife and mother, Mrs. Robinson continues to be an individual with her own interests and abilities. She seems most aware of the world about her, and her aliveness and enthusiasm, coupled with warm regard for humanity, are infectious — and I found myself returning her smile as I left her home.

Dr. Byron Turner, professor of chemistry, has indicated that Chemistry 101 and 102 will be offered during the summer sessions.

The annual Ohnimgohow picnic will be held at Lake Riley on May 17.
