the political affairs of our state and country? This reporter sought an answer to this and similar questions on politics at GSC from Paul Cochrane, senior class president, and Mike Morrison, Student Council President, seemingly two of the more political-minded students on

When asked what the student reaction was to the coming election, Mr. Morrision replied, "Students seem to be very interested. For example, they have taken a definite ition on each candidate and his philosophy of government. From now on until Nov. 8, the political candidates in this election will be a chief topic of consideration." Morrison added, as an afterthought, that some students, including him-self, are busy working for their parties on the precinct level in their communities.

To the same question Mr. Cochrane gave the following answer: ing the coming mock election there have been few opinions expressed. There should be much enthusiastic interest concerning this election considering its importance at such a crucial time in our country's existence. Perhaps one of the greatest reasons for lack of interest is Glenville State College's status as a state institution, instead of being privately owned.

A mock election was held vesterday on campus by the IRC-Politi-cal Science Club to enable students to cast their ballot. Mr. Cochdents to cast their ballot. Mr. Coon-rane and Mr. Morrison were asked what value they thought such an election might have. To this ques-tion Mr Cochrane answered, "Val-ues in mock elections are two-fold. First, they create student interest in governmental affairs, and second, they provide a learning process in casting a ballot."

"The main Mr. Morrison says. objective in having this mock elec the opportunity to become familiar with the democratic process, which is the essence of our society.

This reporter was curious as to why these two young men were so interested in politics. Mr. Morrison shed a little light on the subject by saying, "Politics is the adminis-tration of public affairs. In a de-mocracy, the people have the op-portunity to select the officials who administer the affairs of the public In other governmental systems such though a little shaky at the begin as fascism, nazism, and communism, ning. In a democracy, political opinion generates from the people the officials; in a dictatorship, the opposite occurs. Therefore, as a citizen in a democracy, I am interested in politics."

Mr. Cochrane's view is: "As we are an integral part of democracy, everyone, including myself, should strive for character development but take an active part in politics, es-pecially in such an election which veying an idea, which I believe it can determine the success and fut-ure of our country."

Mr. Cochrane has no definite plans for a future in politics; how-ever, Mr. Morrison's life ambition is to combine a career as a pro-fessional politician and a political science professor.

Culture Is Where You Find It

CULTURAL ENTERTAINMENT is where you find it even in Glenville

TALK ABOUT a lack of activities on campus seems to be discussed about as much as the weather. But entertainment and culture are here in many different forms. The only requirement is that you look for culture-either as a spectator or an active participant.

FOR THOSE WHO COMPLAIN of "no culture on our ampus," here are a few examples that prove them wrong.

TO START AT HOME, the MERCURY plans to sponsor the annual Christmas poetry contest again this year, as well as a literary supplement in the spring. A literary supplement will give those student who are interested in writing a chance to express their views.

MERCURY ALSO PLANS to carry book reviews, guests feature stories, and list new books received in the library. This, we hope, will inspire or at least interest, a few students in visiting the library.

LOOKING OVER THE various activities on campus, we can readily see that the lyceum programs are what some students would call of a high-brow nature. The first lyceum program of the 1960-61 series featured the American Arts Trio. The second lyceum program of the year will be presented by the Manhattan Soloists on Thursday, Nov. 17. The Manhattan Soloists consist of a female trio presenting a varied program of ensemble and solo numbers, ranging from the classics to selections from modern musical comedy.

He then cut up the left sidelines and raced 80 yards without being touched to tie the game at 6-6. Kicking specialist Gene Alkire booted the ball squarely between the uprights for the point that meant the difference as Glenville held on to win 7-6. Game was a night contest at West Union, Oct. 22.

Salem scored the first time they had the ball in the first quarter as they drove 61 yards with Betan-court going the last three yards for the marker. The extra point kick was blocked. Salem completely dominated the play the first half as they had the ball for 39 offensive plays while the G-men had the ball only 10 times.

Neither team was able to score in the fourth stanza as the Glenville defensive began to get tough but the offense was still sputtering. Shortly after the start of the fourth quarter Drake and Alkire teamed up to give the Big Blue the lead they never relinquished. Drake turned in another clutch perform-ance late in the fourth quarter when he intercepted a Salem pass at mid-field and returned it 20 yards to the Salem thirty.
