Also being featured are the Marceles, who gained their fame with "Blue Moon," and "Heartaches." The Napoleonic Wars, one of the hottest groups on the eastern seaboard, will be the back-up band.

Beryl Langford, GSC Registrar, has announced the enrollment for the second semester of 1967.

There are 1330 students enrolled at Glenville State, as compared to 1219 at the beginning of the semester last year.

This semester's 1256 full-time students outnumber last year's enrollment by 107.

Mr. Langford remarked that it will not be long before there are more women than men enrolled on campus. Now the junior class has four more women than men enrolled. At the first semester's end, the enrollment was reduced due to several reasons.

There are 700 applications for admittance next year.

The break-down of classes are as follows: freshman, 540; sophomores, 289; juniors, 250; seniors, 177.

Woodwind Quintet Appears in Lyceum

The Richards Woodwind Quintet will be presented as the 4th in this year's Lyceum Series on Monday, Feb. 27, at 8 o'clock in the auditorium.

The Quintet will present "music for the audience of general taste and discrimination and music approved by only the most esoteric of listeners." In presenting a program, the Quintet always tries to offer music which is at the level of the expected audience.

Organized in 1948 by Dr. Roy Underwood, the Richards Woodwind Quintet was one of the first quintets in residence. Since its inception, the Quintet has performed in Philadelphia, Atlanta, Washington, Detroit, Chicago, and has toured extensively in the Midwest.

The quintet consists of the following four people and one other person whose name has not yet been announced.

Daniel Stopler, Oboe, received his B.M. and M.M. from Eastman School of Music. He has studied with many major symphony orchestras throughout the nation. Mr. Stopler is a visiting instructor at Eastman Summer School.

Elsa Lubewig, clarinet, received her B.M., B.M.E., at Oberlin Conservatory of Music, her Performer's Certificate, and her D.M.A. at Eastman School of Music. She has acquired many outstanding honors in many symphonies in the country. Among many other achievements too numerous to (Continued on page 3)

Locked Library Leaves Students Stranded

Weekends are a student's best friend—for several reasons. Some long for these two days so they can go home; others want freedom from classes and some recreation; still others look forward to the weekend as a time when they may catch up on all their assignments.

When the time of freedom arrives, the first group hurriedly pack suitcases and rush to the bus station or to waiting cars. The second type of students goes to a mix or dance, to the recreation room to bowl, or to the Union for a game of cards. And the third type, the one who wants to study, gathers his books and heads for the library.

But, oops! Here is a problem. Although the buses still run and dances continue to be scheduled, the Robert F. Kidd Library closes its doors at 5:45 on Friday afternoon and does not open them until 2:00 p.m. on Sunday. Consequently, the student who hopes to catch up on his daily reading assignments in reserve library books or to do some work on a research paper is unfortunate, indeed. He is locked out of the library at the very time when he could have accomplished most.

To allow maximum opportunity for study and research, the library should remain open all day Saturday. Granted, not every student on campus would make use of the facilities, but to accommodate those who need to study on weekends, the building should be open. If this seems like catering to a minority group, remember that equality of opportunity is one of the basic principles of a democratic society.

Librarians and student employees may see this proposal as an infringement upon their own free time. Truly, they do deserve days off, but could some arrangement not be made whereby one of the five librarians would be on duty each Saturday and receive a day off during the following week to compensate for the time? Surely some student workers would be willing to accept a similar arrangement, also.

Perhaps there are better ways to solve the problem of a closed library on weekends. Some students have hit upon the idea of taking magazines out of the library because "we can't get in to look up articles, so we're taking the magazines out. We might bring 'em back when we're finished." Naturally, such a practice is against the rules, but it is being encouraged indirectly by unreasonable closing hours.

Therefore, for the good of the library as well as for the students' convenience, weekend closing hours should indeed be changed.

LETTERS . . . WE GET LETTERS

To the Editor of the Mercury:

A number of our students who envisage graduate studies may be interested to know that Miss Sue Frederick (B.S., 1966) received straight-A's in all four of her courses the first semester at the University of Wisconsin. Beginning graduate students usually receive a mark of "P" for progress in research courses (if allowed to enroll for them). Miss Frederick was given an "A" for her research work in studies employing the electron microscope.

She holds one of the top fellowships awarded by the University. She carries a full academic load under the fellowship, since no assisting or other work is required by the University.

Very sincerely yours,
Dr. Max Ward, Chairman
Division of Science and Mathematics

Editor's Note: During the past two weeks, the MERCURY office has been bombarded by letters and complaints concerning the cafeteria food. Space does not permit the printing of all the letters, but the two which follow are representative.

Dear Editor:

This letter is to express my opinion about the food in the cafeteria. It is not only my opinion but the opinion of many students on campus.

Each week the food gets worse. Take for instance one noon meal: cooked cabbage, cooked carrots, soup beans, corn bread and cookies. How can we go until supper on a meal like that?

We are paying $389.34 a year for board and we want something decent to eat. It's a shame that we aren't getting it. It is bad when students who live in the dormitories have to pay board. Why can't we just pay for room and

On February 17, seven pledges of Kappa Eta Chapter of Theta Xi successfully completed their pledge period. They are: Paul Atkins, Ravenswood; John Hays, Parkersburg; Rick Landwehr, Annadale, Va.; John Lough, Parkersburg; Michael McCoy, Buckhannon; Jim Sprague, Belpre, Ohio; and Charlie Wentz, Marietta, Ohio.

The purpose of the pledge period which lasts for nine weeks is to acquaint the candidates for membership with the history, purpose and various aspects of the fraternity.

On Feb. 14, the brothers met and had dinner with Glenville State College President, D. Banks Wilburn. After dinner an informal discussion was held and many college-related functions and problems were discussed and explained.

buy our meals elsewhere?

Students go to meals hungry but lose their appetite the minute they see the food. And once they are out of the cafeteria the hunger pains begin for something to eat. Why go to meals at all?

Hungry Student,
Sharon Dutton

Dear Editor:

"M-m-m-m, we're having boiled cabbage, cooked carrots, and soup beans for lunch!" Yes, that is irony and from some of the meals Glenville State College students must pay for and eat, I feel that the irony is turning into a magnificent joke.

Why can't we have warm food, a variety of vegetables and meats, and better planned meals? Occasionally, the cafeteria prepares an edible meal, yet when it is repeated four or five times the same week, it becomes nauseating. Have you ever eaten roast beef three times a week; mashed potatoes, five or six? It would be impossible to have an absolutely different meat and vegetable for every meal and G.S.C. students realize that. But better planning would eliminate such vast repetition.

We walk languidly to meals hoping that some day in the near future we will reach the cafeteria and find a delectable variety of foods awaiting us.

Copies of Germinal are available in the bookstore for 95c.

Literary Society Reads 'Germinal'

Germinal by Emile Zola will be discussed on March 5 at 3:00 p.m. in the old Louis Bennett Lounge by the GSC Literary Society. The novel, which deals with the rebellion of French coal miners against poverty and industrial oppression, has been called Zola's most powerful novel.

Future novels to be discussed are Tom Jones in April and Main Street in May.

Board Fees Elevated

Board for Glenville State College students has been raised from $10.50 per week to $11 and will become effective Sept. 1, 1967, announces Dr. Wilburn, President of the College.

This increase was due to the increased salary of personnel in the food service. This raise in salary was necessary to comply with the federal wage and hour law which became effective Feb. 1. Even with the increase of board, GSC still has the lowest board of all the state colleges in West Virginia.

Tourney Is Today

Morris Harvey, Fairmont, and West Virginia State are pre-tournament favorites in this week's West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference basketball tournament which is being held in the Charleston Civic Center, Feb. 22-23.

Robert Minnieweather, Glenville State flash and third highest scorer in Glenville State College history, is one of three players who will be participating in their last games for GSC. Also graduating are Ed Johnston and Carlton Spicer.

Minnieweather, a native of White Sulphur Springs, has a 22-point average through games of Feb. 11, and has scored 1766 points in his four years with the Pioneers. Glenville's all-time high mark was set by Rudy Poole with 2494 points and Bob (Hooks) Hardman is second with 1983.

Spicer, a native of Gauley Bridge, and Johnston, from Sistersville, have played for the last four seasons.

Other starters for the Blue Wave are Jackie Robinson, second leading scorer and rebounder; Steve Spicer, Paul Layne, and Jerry Wolfe.

Commissioner George Springer has announced the sale of 2000 general admission tickets each night. Tickets will sell for $2. for adults and $1.50 for students.

Football Squad's Players Average 2.4 First Semester

Coach Hanlin's footballers are now in their winter training, developing the muscular anatomy of the body. While developing their necks, biceps, chests, thighs, and calves, they are also developing their brains. But not with muscular tissue, it seems the day of the dumb football player is gone at last here at Glenville. Coach Hanlin's men had a composite average of 2.40 for the first semester.

Five of the players had a three-point average or better. These players were tackles Frank Hughes, Bill Boggess, Sterling Beane, Guard Mickey Latstetter, and back, Fritz Ziegler.

The Most Reverend Joseph H. Hodges, Bishop of the Diocese of Wheeling, will give the address at Baccalaureate exercises, June 1.

49 GSC Students Are Doing Teaching

FORTY-NINE GSC students are doing student teaching in area schools this term. This number includes 15 in elementary and 34 at the secondary level.

Elementary Level

Wood County claims seven of the elementary student teachers, having placed them in three different schools. At Emerson, Cynthia Bennon is teaching third and fourth grades, Lois Burgess has second and sixth, and Karen Moore has first and fourth.

At Greenmont, Wandalene Jones teaches first and sixth grades, while Barbara Morris has been assigned third and fourth. The third Wood County school is Vienna Elementary, where Jayne Stehle is teaching second and fifth grades and Joan Richmond has first and fifth.

Here in Glenville, Carolyn Hudkins is teaching second grade and remedial reading, and Rachel Miller Wolfe has third and sixth grades. Both Patricia Morris and Frances Weinch are gaining experience in the kindergarten, as well as in first and fifth grades.

Carol Richards Carder and Carol Lovett Owens are instructing second and fourth grade students in Weston, while Gary Bailey has fourth and seventh at Spencer Elementary and Richard Barbone teaches sixth grade at Burnsville.

Secondary Teachers

Five persons are doing directed teaching at South Harrison High School. Janet Custer has business education classes there, and Carolyn Davita Linger instructs both English and business education. Lula Reynolds teaches vocational home economics, while Linda Blackwell Koch has classes in English and social studies. Janet Lipscomb teaches English and acts as school librarian.

Parkersburg High School also has five student teachers in Judith Ellison, David Butcher, William Richmond, Jerry Stover, and George Summers. Miss Ellison is a business education instructor, and Butcher teaches business principles and social studies. Both Richmond and Summers have mathematics and physical science classes, while Stover teaches speech and art for grades seven through 12.

Four secondary teachers are gaining experience in Glenville. Francis Bargeloh has been placed over mathematics and physical science classes, and Anna Mae Bennett is teaching business education. Gary Rogers and Timothy Fields instruct social studies, and in addition, Rogers has physical education while Fields has business education.

At Buckhannon-Upshur High School, Ralph David Boso teaches art for grades one through 12, and Sandra Salyers instructs vocational education classes, and Miss Strader also acts as school librarian while Miss Hamblin teaches social studies classes.

Physical education and social studies classes at Burnsville High School are presently under Elaine Cangeloso. Larry Lamb has assumed the responsibilities of mathematics and business education classes, and Londa Rigney has social studies and English. Nancy Roop is teaching vocational home economics there, too.

St. Marys High School has a student librarian in Mary Hypes, who also teaches English. Sharon King Kraus has English and business education classes there, and Robert Allen Marshall teaches social studies and business education.

Kenneth Foglesong is teaching business principles and social studies at Sutton High School, and Patricia Hall has vocational home economics classes there.

Instructing at Spencer High School are Doyle Beall, Jr. and Charles Steven Westfall. Both have social studies classes, and Beall also has mathematics while Westfall has physical education.

Student librarian at Williamstown High School, Doris Jean Locke also teaches business education. At the same school, Glenn Proctor is instructing social studies and physical education.

Another student librarian has been placed at Franklin Junior High School. He is John Thomas Brown, who also teaches physical education.

Two art majors are teaching in Parkersburg junior high schools, too. Jack Langford has art classes at both Edison and McKinley, while Jim Scherr stays at Edison in art and physical education.

Ensemble Goes On Area Tour

The newly-formed GSC Wind Ensemble, consisting of approximately forty-five members, will visit five high schools on tour, March 6 and 7. Those high schools to be visited are East Bank, Nitro, Pt. Pleasant, Ripley, and St. Marys. The band will stay overnight at Pt. Pleasant on March 6.

Shirley McIntyre and Richard Spiker are the two soloists who will be featured on the tour. They will play "Clarinet on the Town" by Ralph Hermann and "Concertine" by Von Weber, respectively. Both soloists will be accompanied by the band.

Other numbers to be played during the tour are: "Finale from the Fifth Symphony" by Shostakovich, "Lincoln Portrait" by Aaron Copland, "American Folk Rhapsody," "London Symphony" by Haydn, and Leroy Anderson's "Serenata."

Religious Group Studies 'Ethics'

The Campus Religious Council, consisting of representatives from each religious organization is sponsoring a study group for six weeks.

Situation Ethics by Joseph Fletcher is the thought-provoking book under discussion. The author outlines a method for decision-making which assumes individual responsibility and declares that every man must decide for himself what is right. This book has been said to "provide a meeting place for Christians and existential agnostics—and a map for the perplexing terrain of moral issues that all must travel."

The discussions are held on Tuesday from 6:00-6:50 p.m. in the old Louis Bennett Lounge and each session has a different leader.

FIRST ANNUAL

Admission to the show will be $2.00 in advance or $2.50 at the door. Tickets are being sold by Student Council members. Attendance for each show will be limited to 1350 because of limited seating space.

Although the concert is scheduled for a Thursday night, attendance at the late show will cause no conflicts with dormitory closing hours. All women will have automatic 11:00 permissions for the event.

Miss Arbuckle's Hats Receive Much Praise

By HARRIETT SHORTLEY

Several former members of the faculty, though no longer active in the College, have remained active in the community. One of these is Miss Alma Arbuckle, retired former librarian.

Miss Arbuckle's many years of devotion were recognized when she was selected to lead the Book Walk last December. Although she is not active anymore, she was once known as an excellent equestrienne. For many years she was grand marshal of the Homecoming parade and rode at the head of it.

Old china and glassware are among Miss Arbuckle's other interests. Her most treasured china is a complete set of dishes which are more than 100 years old. These dishes are of a luminous white with a simple gold ring near the edge. Not one dish has been broken since they were originally purchased by one of Miss Arbuckle's ancestors.

People of Glenville and the College, however, know Miss Arbuckle for a more unique interest. Several years ago, Miss Arbuckle served as chairwoman of the social committee under former President Rohrbaugh. Much to the amusement of other faculty women, Miss Arbuckle and Mrs. Rohrbaugh, the President's wife, decided to wear festive hats to a candlelight Christmas party. Later, Mrs. Rohrbaugh left her hat to Miss Arbuckle, when she and her husband left the College.

This was the beginning of the well-known collection of "mad hats" owned and created by Miss Arbuckle. Many seemingly useless and discarded objects have provided inspiration and the beginning for many of her hats.

For example, the first Christmas hat was made from a discarded cardboard box, covered with silver foil and decorated with a blue velvet ribbon, small bells, and blue and silver tinsel. This year's Christmas hat is an old rain hat covered with red and green tinsel to form an inverted cone-shape. The newest addition to her collection is a New Year's hat with a wide brim covered with cotton and glitter and encircled with tiny snowmen. A cluster of evergreen sprigs with little red birds nestled in them is mounted on top of the hat.

Miss Arbuckle has several older hats covered and decorated with Easter grass, candy eggs, little chickens, and small bunnies for spring. One particularly striking spring hat is made from a discarded piece of foil which is decorated with paper lilies and leaves.

Miss Arbuckle finds much enjoyment in the creation and wearing of her hats. She readily admits that many friends such as Minnich's Florists, have aided her in the completion of her designs.

Once when someone in town commented to Miss Arbuckle about her unusual hats, she teasingly placed a large sea shell on her head and wore it downtown.

DZ Elects Officers

Theta Xi chapter of Delta Zeta Sorority elected the following officers for the coming year at their regular meeting Feb. 13:
