Drifters Appear With Marcells, Napoleonic Wars

By ROBERT S. CRIBBS

"The glitter of life's up, and you're no where." This is a line from the famous million-selling record, "On Broadway," by the fabulous Drifters. "No Where" best describes where Glenville State College students will be if they do not attend the First Annual Concert at Glenville State College being sponsored by the Student Government Association tomorrow.

Live and on stage for the first time in Glenville's history, the concert will feature the million-selling sound of the Drifters, the Marcells, and one of the hottest groups on the eastern seaboard, The Napoleonic Wars.

The Drifters have had several hit records such as, "Up on the Roof," "Under the Boardwalk," "There Goes My Baby," and their most famous song, "On Broadway." Since the late 50's, when the Drifters cut their first record,

The Drifters who will appear in the First Annual Concert tomorrow night.

"There Goes My Baby," they have been one of the most sought after groups in major colleges, universities, and night clubs in the United States. "Blue Moon" was a golden record by the Marcells who also cut "Heartaches."

There will be two shows presented, one at 7:00 p.m. and one at 9:00. The shows will last 90 minutes each and all women have automatic 11:00 permission for the event.

Student Council members have been selling tickets for two weeks and will continue to sell them up to the performance for $2.00. Admission at the door is $2.50 but attendance for the shows will be limited to 1350 because of limited seating space. Tickets are on sale in the Student Union and by Student Council Members.

Page Shanklin, Student Council President, commented, "Student Council felt that since student enthusiasm is running so high on GSC's Campus, a concert would be a large success. If the students back this concert, bigger named singers and groups can be brought in next year."

SNEA Plans Regional Conference

March 14, will bring a deluge of area high school students to the GSC Campus for the Future Teachers of America Regional Conference. Sponsored by the local chapter of SNEA, the conference is designed to show high school students various phases of teaching.

Invitations to the conference, which will begin with registration at 9 a.m., have been sent to 20 high schools in this section of the state.

Most of the day's program will be set in the ballroom of the Pioneer Center. The students will register there, while Lynn Stotler plays the piano.

Following registration, a three-part program will be presented. Lon Mitchell, an elementary major from Charleston, will discuss kindergarten teaching with the group. He will have with him several children from the kindergarten who will aid in the presentation.

Miss Ann Kellerman, an instructor of sociology, will show slides and tell of her teaching experiences as a Peace Corps worker in the Philippines. Then members of the Science Club will present chemistry and physics demonstrations.

In a workshop session, the future teachers will share ideas on teaching and tell some of the activities of their respective FTA chapters. They will be given a tour through the new Robert F. Kidd Library. This library now replaces the customary campus tour.

Three SNEA members have been working especially hard to make this conference successful. Helen Gould, a senior from Weston, is chairman of the planning committee, and working closely with her are Joy Cosby from Webster Springs and George Garton from Jane Lew.

'Good Guys' Give Photo Pass to Pittsburgh

Miss Patricia Guzzie, a 20-year-old junior from Belle Vernon, Pa., has been selected to represent GSC in the Pittsburgh Press Roto Cover Girl Contest. The 14th annual cover girl contest is sponsored by the Roto Magazine of The Pittsburgh Press. Miss Guzzie was entered as a candidate by Delta Zeta Sorority.

Miss Guzzie is one of two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Guzzie. The brunette is a home economics major.

Miss Guzzie graduated from Rostrave High School in 1964. There she was selected as attendant for the semi-formal dance in her junior year and attendant for the May Court and football queen during her senior year.

While at Glenville, Miss Guzzie has been freshman attendant to the Homecoming Queen and Theta Xi Sweater Girl. She is also a member of the Newman Club, Phi Delta Phi, home economics sorority, and Delta Zeta sorority.

Miss Guzzie was selected along with Linda Lockard, Rebecca James, Patricia Urbas, and Barbara Whiting in a student election held on Feb. 8. The five finalists were then photographed and three pictures of each were sent to Radio Station WCAW in Charleston.

The WCAW "Good Guys," Bob Casey, Jim Little, Mike Hammer, and Gil Blasingame (see picture on page 2) selected Miss Guzzie as the 1967 Glenville State College Cover Girl. They also selected what they considered the best of the three pictures of her, and it was sent to the Pittsburgh contest.

Last year's, GSC cover girl was Judy Newlon, sponsored by the Order of Diana. Sandra Salyers, sponsored by Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority, was the 1965 contestant, and Johanna Coleman, representing Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority, was the 1964 Cover Girl at GSC.

KANAWHACHEN EDITOR GIVES 'IDES' DEADLINE

Yearbook Editor Robert Cooper has announced that March 15, is the deadline for purchasing a copy of the 1966-67 Kanawhachen, which will be distributed in September, 1967. Those students who have paid the activity fee for both semesters of this year have already purchased their copies of the yearbook. The cost of one copy of the yearbook is divided into two payments—one installment of $2.00 at the beginning of each semester, making a total of $4.00.

Those students who are carrying less than eight hours this semester, or those who paid the activity fee for one semester may still receive the yearbook if they have paid a total of $4.00 by March 15. Anyone who does not plan to receive the book on the college campus next September may receive his copy by mail by remitting his address and $75 postage and handling fee to the Kanawhachen.

All payment and correspondence should be addressed to Kanawhachen, Glenville State College, Glenville, W. Va.

Washington Trip Planned for Mar. 10

Leaving Friday afternoon, 19 members of the GSC Science Club and Dr. and Mrs. Byron J. Turner will spend this weekend, Mar. 10-12, in Washington, D. C.

With the club paying hotel and transportation costs, the group will go in cars on Friday and will not return until Sunday evening. Most of the weekend will be spent at the Smithsonian Institute, but there will be some time for the usual sight-seeing at the nation's capital.

Last Friday night, Mar. 3, a group of Science Club members, along with several faculty members, went to Weston to judge the Lewis County High School Science Fair. They judged exhibits in chemistry, physics, botany, and zoology.

Judges were Dr. Turner, Mr. James Peterson, Mr. Frank Toth,

Drama Festival Set

Mr. J. Rodney Busch, director of Becket and speech department head, announces that the Little Kanawha Regional High School Drama Festival will be held Mar. 15 here. Each school will present a one-act play for competition in the festival. Several regional high schools have registered for the annual event.

Becket will be presented at the Annual Fine Arts Festival to be held in April, Mr. Busch announced. An evening of one-act plays will be presented along with a concert and art exhibits.

The Chairs by Ionesco will be presented at the West Virginia State College Speech Festival at Jackson's Mill.

Dr. John Chisler, Mr. Willis Gordon, Richard Frame, James Meades, Blair Ellison, and Pat McCartney.

Dr. Verhaalen Holds Interviews

Thought about doing graduate study? Perhaps you would like to discuss the possibilities with someone who has the facts. If so, see Dr. Roman J. Verhaalen.

On Thursday, Mar. 16, Dr. Verhaalen, Dean of the W. Va. Center for Appalachian Studies at West Virginia University, will be here on the GSC campus from 10 a.m. till 4:30 p.m. for interviews. Those seniors and teachers in the local area who are interested in doing graduate study at WVU should see Mrs. Spurgeon in the Dean's office for an appointment.

All interviews will be conducted in the Dean's Conference room.

Organizations Lauded For Activity Plans

In the past years students have constantly complained about the problem of a small town. One of the major complaints is the lack of recreation facilities. Usually, a student who has finished his studies looks up from his desk and says, "There's nothing to do!" This statement lacks validity as of March 1, 1967. Look around you. If you still can't find something to do, just read on and maybe—just maybe—there will be something in this article for you.

Let's go back in time, say to September 1966, and have a look at the campus calendar. Aside from the usual football, basketball, and baseball games, mixes, and regular dances, one finds the newly-formed Jaycees presenting a dance. Someone was even clever enough to come up with a mix after a ballgame. So you don't like ballgames or dances. Well, maybe we can find something for you.

Glancing at the calendar, I find a wide variety of activities—cultural, intellectual, religious, and recreational. Cultural programs include: Fantasticks; Becket; Handel's Messiah; student music recitals; and lyceum programs. As one looks over the list, it becomes apparent that careful planning has provided a wide variety of culture—from musical drama, to drama, to folk music, to classical music.

For the intellect, the college campus offers study groups covering controversial theories such as "Is God Dead?" The Danforth Lecturers speak on topics designed "to strengthen the cultural aspects of liberal education in the United States." To continue a search for knowledge, students are invited to discuss literary works in the literary society or to venture into the library.

Several religious organizations on campus strive for educational growth as well as to carry religion to the campus. Every Sunday evening the Wesley Foundation and the BSM offer programs on topics ranging from VISTA to Courtship and Marriage. One group even pondered the question, "Is sex dead?" The Campus Religious Council formed to unite several students in an effort to offer more religious activity to GSC. The Thanksgiving Assembly was part of this program.

But, of course, we can't forget additional recreation. The Student Government Association is planning a concert of famous bands. Outings, barnyard frolics, hayrides, and intramurals offer students a chance to participate. If you find yourself bored any weekday evening, walk over to the bowling alley and throw that old pocket ball or pick up a cue stick and run the table. Of course if money is the problem, just slip into the Union and play cards or stroll around the campus.

If you "don't have anything to do," stop, think a minute, and proceed on your merry way. "Wait! Who makes it all possible?" Let's give student organizations and the administration a big hand.

Mercury Gives Maintenance Department Much Praise for Efficient Work in Snow

Snow is indeed beautiful, but when it covers roads and walks, it can cause accidents. Therefore, we are very relieved to have walks between classroom buildings, the library, the cafeteria, and dormitories cleared.

Although it snowed almost constantly for nearly two weeks last month, no serious accidents resulted on the GSC campus. Almost the minute the snow hit the walks, the maintenance department workers were there to sweep or shovel it off and to sprinkle salt to melt the ice.

These men started sweeping long before most of us were up, and when we stepped out of our dormitories, the walks were clear. The job was not finished with that early morning work, however. More snow fell, and the wind blew removed snow back into place; so the men worked constantly, clearing and re-clearing.

Such work too often goes unnoticed. We take for granted that the walks will be clear, never thinking of the people responsible.

Although the weather will probably continue to improve from this week on, the MERCURY still remembers the hard work of the maintenance department.

LETTERS CONCERN PROBLEMS

Dear Editor:

Recently I received a letter from the office of the Dean of Men informing me that because I had incurred more than four traffic violations I would no longer be permitted to operate a car on campus. Excellent! We're finally getting some action on "The Parking Problem." However, what action? What are we accomplishing? Let us as objectively as possible examine this latest stab at the "Parking Problem," which I think we'll find is really lack of adequate space and lack of enforceable penalties.

In order to accomplish our critical analysis, we must examine the first efforts to solve the problem. This was: "If a student receives an excessive number of violations he shall be suspended." This was not a workable solution for two apparent reasons. First, the definition of "excessive number" was arbitrary and somewhat less than democratic, and secondly, the penalty was ridiculous. This resulted in a period of absolutely no enforcement.

Now we have a new and perhaps equally unfeasible attempt to resolve the dilemma, mainly that if a student receives more than four violations he will lose his parking privileges on campus for the remainder of the academic year. This is, at first glance, much more reasonable than the first effort. At least we are now dealing with an enforceable penalty! However, the letter which I received was dated February 22. Since I have not received any parking violation since Dec. 1, 1966, this leads one to believe that the new penalty is retroactive at least 60 days, which is certainly dubious justice.

In other words, during the interim of no enforcement, many persons had an opportunity to accrue parking tickets and now are to be held accountable for these sins. At any rate, this is where we stand to date.

In retrospect we discover that the heart of the whole problem is that GSC simply hasn't enough space to accommodate the vehicles necessary to transport 1400 students to and from our campus. These autos must therefore be put somewhere else. Glenville (the town) hasn't the space, so where? Hays City? Burnsville? Now we're getting ridiculous.

The solution: reduce the number of cars, forbid freshmen and sophomores, who do not commute, to have cars. An excellent plan, and an effective measure—why not enforce it? Perhaps it's easier to suspend the parking privilege of registered cars than to check on unregistered ones.

We have then a system of rules which are unenforceable, partly because of the problem of determining a just penalty and partly because of the complexity of tracing unregistered vehicles. The latter incidentally can and must be done if the penalties on registered autos are to be just.

No criticism of the status quo is valid without a suggestion for improvement. Our suggestion is this, to enforce the rule forbidding freshmen and sophomores to operate cars on campus, which would reduce the number of cars. And secondly, we suggest that switch to a system of monetary fines for registered offenders, would provide an effective, enforceable deterrent to potential offenders.

Editor's Note: Mercury policy does not permit the printing of unsigned letters; however, names may be withheld upon request. Therefore, in order that we may be assured that a GSC student has truly written the letter, please sign any letters that are sent to the editor. If you want your name withheld, please note the fact.

Dear Miss Davis:

Three cheers for your editorial concerning the weekend library hours. Because Saturday is the only day most students have to "sleep-in," may I suggest that the former hours of 8-12 be abandoned in favor of afternoon hours, perhaps 12-5.

In your last issue of the Mercury, you stated that you did not have room for all the letters from the students. I feel that in a student publication, student letters should have preference over an article about an alumnae.

The excellence of the Danforth lectures is obvious. Why not more lectures for all the letters from the students. ## CAGE SEASON ENDS WITH AB

Glenville's Pioneers commanded a 36-27 lead at intermission over the Golden Bears of Tech, Feb. 15. This lead was gained through a good team effort with Robert Minnieweather and Jack Robinson controlling the boards.

The second-half started with Tech in a pressing type of defense and playing catch-up basketball.

They did catch up and the final score was in favor of Tech 63-61.

GSC vs. AB

Glenville State College's regular basketball season play ended Feb. 18 with an 88-85 victory over a strong Alderson-Broaddus team.

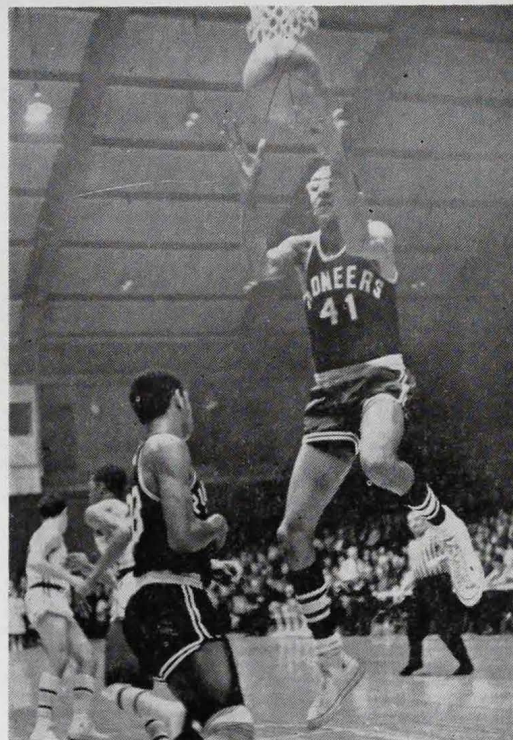

The fast pace of AB was not fast enough for the Pioneers of Glenville State. Jack Robinson, a freshman, finished his regular season play with 28 points.

Robert Minnieweather, the top scorer for the Pioneers, was held to nine points. The Spicer brothers had a total of 29 points with Carlton getting 16 points and Steve 13 points.

MAJORS PLAY FSC

Pioneers Meet Tech In Tourney Opener

Coach Lilly's Pioneers traveled to Charleston's Civic Center Feb. 22, to meet W. Va. Tech in the opening round of the 30th Annual WVIAC Tournament. They took the hopes and confidence of breaking the seven-game losing streak that Glenville has had at the tournaments.

W. Va. Tech did win the game, but only the first one, because within the time listed as one game, two games were actually played. The first one was won by W. Va. Tech, 31-17 and ended with the first half of the complete game.

Glenville fought back and took command during the second half to outscore Tech 49-44. The margin Tech had built up during the first half could not be overcome.

however, and the Golden Bears of Tech won 75-66. Both teams had a low-shooting percentage from the floor, but Tech outscored Glenville at the foul line, making 31 of 42 attempts with GSC making only 10 of 16.

Robert Minnieweather was high man for the Pioneers with 21 points to finish his basketball career at Glenville. Carlton Spicer and Ed Johnston, also seniors playing their last game for GSC, scored 15 and 10 points, respectively. Jack Robinson scored 15 points.

For W. Va. Tech, Tim Floyd, a freshman, scored 22 points to claim game scoring honors. Bill Auxier added 20 points and Al Toothman had 14 points.

Dr. McCoy Discusses 'God-Is-Dead' Theory

By BARBARA DAVIS

"This is just a fascinating phenomenon—a fad," Dr. Charles S. McCoy, Danforth Visiting Lecturer, declared of the Death of God Movement, Feb. 24. Dr. McCoy was speaking at an all-campus assembly in the auditorium on the topic, "God is Dead: The Future of This Illusion."

Although he sees the God-is-Dead theory as merely a passing fad, Dr. McCoy defends those who embrace it. Freedom of speech gives people the right to discuss these issues, he asserts, and advocates should not be fired from their jobs nor ostracized because of their opinions.

Dr. McCoy discussed the "fascinating fad" from three different viewpoints: (1) what people say it means, (2) what it means from a philosophical or theological perspective, and (3) what it says as a poetic image of protest.

Many opinions as to the meaning of the Death of God Movement exist among modern people. Some say it refers to "the silence of God in our time" as opposed to messages brought by prophets in Biblical days. Thus, Dr. McCoy said, the problem becomes "not only the experience of the absence of God, but the absence of any experience of God." Many people proclaim the death of God as the death of religion, while still others see it as the only passing of outdated religious language.

From a theological or philosophical point of view, the literature of the movement is "nonsense," Dr. McCoy stated. "Their writing is muddy," he said of the authors of the literature. The first fault lies in the word "death," itself.

Death is a human experience, the speaker pointed out. "Is God something like an animal or a man that he can die this way? What kind of God is it that can be alive and then die?" Thus, "death" in reference to a deity has no meaning, Dr. McCoy declared.

Most imprecise part of the literature, in Dr. McCoy's opinion, though, is the word "God." The term has many and varied meanings and is therefore most ambiguous. "God" is the longest oblong blur in the history of human experience," the lecturer remarked, illustrating the ambiguity of the term.

"I suspect that we worship more gods in contemporary America than we like to think about," he continued. This nation has become a polytheistic culture, he asserted. Therefore the question to be asked is not "Do you believe in God?" but "What God do you believe in?"

From a theological point of view, then, the movement has little meaning, Dr. McCoy contended. However, since it is not a new movement at all, but has caused so much excitement in only the past 18 months, some explanation for its popularity must be found. Such an explanation lies in the understanding of the theory "not as a careful statement of fact, but as a poetic image of protest," the theologian explained.

As poetic protest, the Death of God Movement is against sham and hypocrisy in the modern church. It is also witnessing that God is not only a God of life, but of rigorous judgment and punishment through which He conveys a deeper love. Such a realization was necessary, Dr. McCoy felt, because modern man had become too comfortable with God.

Another meaning of the theory as poetic protest is that faith cannot be passed on. It must die with those who have it and come to life again with each new generation. In Dr. McCoy's words, "We cannot come to an authentic faith of our own until we are independent of the faith of our parents."

With increased understanding and communication, the theory protests something about the social world in which we live, too. At a time when every faith is being confronted by other beliefs, Dr. McCoy asserts that "we cannot stay rooted in the faith of our fathers." With a new, relevant faith, such confrontations can help each group to understand its heritage and enrich the heritage of both.

Dr. McCoy concluded that although the Death of God Movement is a passing fad and is "muddy thinking" from the viewpoint of theology, it should be considered seriously. "As poetic protest, it may be saying something to us that will help us to recover an authentic faith."

'Honey in the Rock' Requires 65 Players

Approximately 65 actors, singers, and dancers will be needed for the 1967 run of West Virginia's outdoor musical drama Honey in the Rock this summer. ## DIE FLEDERMAUS OPERETTA SCHEDULED HERE FOR MAR. 16

The National Opera Company, formerly Grass Roots Opera, will present Die Fledermaus in the auditorium on March 16 at 8:00 P.M. The colorful operetta by Johann Strauss will be performed by a troupe of young singing artists.

The familiar airs, 'The Laughing Song,' 'The Czardas,' 'The Waltz,' and others are strung together on a framework plot with a play on mistaken identities. A maid, in a gown 'borrowed' from her mistress, is spotted at a party by her employer. Can this be a chambermaid? A hungry singer, caught in a smoking jacket in the company of a lady, is thought by the police to be the lady's husband, a gentleman who is to serve a short jail term. Should he prove his real identity or go to jail to save the lady's honor?

The New York Herald Tribune said this of an earlier production of Die Fledermaus: 'A vibrant, entertaining reality... doing a job that has needed doing for ever so long.'

Some students may remember the National Opera Company for their presentation of The Barber of Seville on campus in March, 1965. Their performance in English succeeded in converting many previously alien students to an appreciation of opera.

REV. MOELLER TALKS OF ALASKA

Last week a guest speaker from Alaska visited Larry Smith's 10:10 a.m. geography class. Rev. Kim Lee Moeller, from Anchorage, Alaska, gave an informal talk on Alaskan life in general last Thursday, Feb. 23.

During the hour-long class period, Rev. Moeller discussed Alaskan politics, geography, weather conditions, and economic activities of the past four years. Rev. Moeller, who is presently a student at W. Va. Wesleyan College and minister to the Burnsville Methodist Parish, spent four years in southern Alaska with the U. S. Air Force.

Members of the class were most interested in conditions before and after the earthquake. Rev. Moeller illustrated his talk with maps and diagrams drawn on the chalkboard.

Smoker Held By Theta Xi's

Theta Xi started its second semester rush activities with an informal smoker on Tuesday night, Mar. 7, in the old Louis Bennett Lounge. The purpose of a smoker is to introduce interested non-Greek men to the fraternity. The advantages of fraternity membership, pledging, life in the fraternity house, social activities and costs were discussed.

Kappa Eta Chapter president Roger McLaughlin acted as master of ceremonies and talks concerning fraternity life were given by Mr. Frank Toth, chapter advisor and Jim Javins, rush chairman. Other speakers included John Sivak, Dan Gooding and Mickey Hartley, who spoke on the fraternity house, Theta Xi's history, and the pledge period.

Following entertainment, refreshments were served and an informal discussion was held among the brothers and prospective pledges. Second semester pledging will be conducted by Mickey Hartley, pledgemaster, and Ed Prince, assistant pledgemaster. A second smoker will be held on Tuesday, Mar. 14, in the old Louis Bennett Lounge from 7:30 till 9:30. Mr. William Douglas of the Athletic Department will be the guest speaker.

Charles A. Wentz was selected by Theta Xi as the model pledge from last semester's pledge class. The choice is made on the basis of willingness to work, interest in the fraternity, academic premise, and the spirit of brotherhood exhibited during the pledge period. Wentz is a junior math and physical education major from Marietta, Ohio. He is a transfer student from the Ohio Valley College.
