'Spirit Campaign' Termed 'Success' By SGA Officers

The Student Government Association announces the results to the present time of its "Spirit Campaign '67" as quite a success. Poster campaigns to boost school spirit among GSC students have been evident all over campus.

Student organizations participating in the campaign are credited for their posters on a point system. Posters are rated by size and artistic appeal.

Leading the six groups who are active in the campaign is Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity with 541 points for their "spirit" posters. Second in the competition is Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority with 231 points.

Delta Zeta and Theta Xi rank third and fourth in campaign competition with 153 and 118 points respectively for their contributions. Also active in the campaign for school spirit are Alpha Delta Epsilon and the Science Club.

The campaign will continue through baseball season.

While the rains came down the water went up and before the water finally crested at 34.4 feet on Tuesday afternoon, Glenville residents were frantically moving furniture, rugs, appliances, and store fixtures to safety.

The rain continued to fall from Sunday afternoon, March 5, until early Tuesday morning. Although the rain was falling steadily and heavily, townspeople, joined by large groups of college students worked long into the evening and the "wee small hours of the morning" to save as much of the furnishings as they could from the disastrous water.

Floodwaters covered Brooklyn Drive, Park Street, River Street, North Lewis Street, Main Street, and College Street. Water got as high as five feet in many sections of Main Street and six feet on Brooklyn Drive.

Students coming to Glenville State College hear many stories about the floods. At first glance at the Little Kanawha River, these stories seem hard to believe but there is little doubt about the powers of the mighty stream now.

The flood of 1967 saw many strange events taking place such as: a man who had just returned from the hospital only to be carried out of his home on an ironing board to safety by college students; State Police manning boats throughout Monday night and Tuesday; Volunteer firemen setting up boat docks to carry out orders; College students storming off the hill to aid those in distress; Airplanes dropping food packages all over the Little Kanawha Valley.

The Red Cross helping to feed homeless residents; many people complaining about their arm hurting because of typhoid shots; The traffic light working to direct boat traffic but running out of power when cars, believe it or not, were allowed to travel on Main Street; Cars being flooded; The Mercury being delayed a day; And store windows breaking to allow flood waters to rise as high as five feet in some stores.

On Wednesday when the water moved to other communities, residents and college students were scrubbing floors, moving furniture back in place, disposing of damaged goods, cleaning cars, hosing streets, and boiling water to drink.

Although the waters flooded every business place in town except the corner pool room, many items were saved because of the hard work of Glenville State College students. These students are to be praised for their fine efforts and deeds in a time of disaster.

Tread Softly...

"Here we are in the zoo, everybody! My, isn't it nice?"

"Look at all the animals. Notice how they're all locked in nice strong cages. No, they can never escape; don't worry about that. Why, if one of them puts his nose through the bars, he is shipped to another zoo right away."

"Oh, look! They're feeding the elephants. Well, sure, elephants like peanuts, but if they are hungry, they'll eat the bird seed. That's part of the system—never let them have what they want. This way, the zoo keepers exhibit their superiority and keep the animals completely under their control."

"Say, there's a peacock with his tail spread. Here's another... and another. Guess this is Show-day. That's the day when all animals must look their very best. The peacocks keep their tails spread the whole time, even when their muscles ache and they'd rather be resting. They're really well-trained, aren't they?"

"Sure the zoo keepers know the animals aren't happy. One of the keepers is a trained zoologist, and he sometimes tells the others that the animals should have more freedom. But he's outnumbered, and the others vote his suggestions down."

"Some of the trainers have even recommended changes, but there haven't been any. Oh, well, these are only dumb animals, so who cares?"

"Well, it's time to go. The gates close rather early, you know."

"Yes, I noticed that the animals didn't have much spirit. Apparently that's a result of being kept under such strict surveillance. Wouldn't it be a catastrophe if they had to fend for themselves in the open air after this?"

"The zoo is a wonderful place to visit, but wouldn't you hate to live there?"

Letters Concern Flood, Food, Library Problems

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this means of expressing our sincere "thanks" to the students of Glenville State College that assisted us during the recent flood emergency.

I want you to know that the work and conduct generally of these boys during the emergency was outstanding.

I was unable to express my appreciation to each boy that assisted us, so I am taking this way of doing it.

KANAWHA UNION BANK
Jno. E. Arbuckle
President

Dear Editor,

Glenville students are provided for under the title of "Appalachianers." Therefore, we are not responsible for realizing the state legislature's hindering to provide adequate funds for the college's facilities and teacher's salaries. Yet, we may at least notice the Glenville College administration conceding with the "typical" students' opinion by not even opening the library on Saturdays.

With such apathy in administration it is no wonder that the "typical" Glenville College students do not graduate from Glenville College. In conclusion, I think we "Appalachianers" should notice the need for an all day, seven day per week library in order to begin shoving Glenville College onto a collegiate plane.

Paul Atkins

Dear Editor:

In answer to the letters in the "Letters... We Get Letters" Column, Wednesday, February 22, 1967, let me say that journalism by a connoisseur is one thing, and bad food, still another; but full nausea can only result from hearing described, in vivid terms (as is most often the case), by a dilettante who plays at civilization, the food that I am eating—while I am eating it.

Anyone who makes such comments, even in jest, unmistakably marks himself as just such a person.

In an expensive restaurant I pay for the atmosphere I get. At Glenville College, all the atmosphere I get is free.

Yours in gourmandism,

Robert N. Cooper

GSC Choral Union Rehearses For May

A STUDENT'S LAMENT

Oh me! Oh my! What shall I do?
On Monday my term paper's due.
I've used my time—my lunch hour, too;
One extra day and I'd be through.
How in the world am I supposed
To do my work? A problem's posed.
I could cut class and be de-nosed;
I could come Saturday, but the doors are closed.
If I had a choice, I'd like to go
Somewhere Saturday where there's no snow,
No paper due, and no instructor I know.
I'd reap good seed before I sow.
But, no, we humans are a hapless race.
Although we've conquered land and space
And made of knowledge quite a race,
The Library doors slam in our face.

4-H 'FUNSPIRATION WEEKEND' WILL BE GSC EVENT OF APRIL 14-15

"Funspiration Weekend" is what the Collegiate 4-H Club is calling April 14-15. With students from several other colleges in the state participating, the group has planned a mix, an afternoon of recreation, and a variety show for that weekend.

Friday night's mix will be in the ballroom from 7:30-10:30, and admission has been set at 50 cents. On Saturday at 2:00 p.m., a Funspiration Afternoon will begin on Verona Maple Lawn. This affair will be free of charge and will consist of games and stunts led by Danny Fisher from Charleston.

Casual attire will be worn to the variety show in the ballroom at 8:00 Saturday night. The audience will sit on the floor, hootenanny style, while Mike Jones from Morris Harvey College emcees the performance. Besides Jones, who is very active in dramatics on the Morris Harvey campus, there will be several other out-of-town performers. One of these will be Pat Wass, who attends West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Local talent, such as William Harrington, Ella Maxwell, David Bennett, Mr. James White, and Robert Wilson, will also be featured.

Admission to the variety show will be 50 cents per person.

Following this, Mr. Carl Kerr, associate professor of English, addressed the group concerning his experiences with and philosophies of music illustrated with some of his own compositions.

The GSC Choir, under the direction of Mr. Robert Ellis, will appear as a clinic choir during the state MENC Conference which will be held in Parkersburg in April. The clinic will be directed by Dr. Scott Stringham, assistant professor of music at WVU.

The chapter announces that plans are being made for the Second Annual Regional Choral Festival to be held here in May. The festival will be under the direction of Mr. Ellis and John Collins.

Later in the day, Mr. J. Rodney Busch, speech department head, and members of the Ohnimgohov Players, Alpha Psi Omega, and the GSC speech department welcomed the visiting players at a coke hour held for them in the old Louis Bennett Lounge.

Mercury Will Move To Union

Many students are unaware of the need for adequate facilities for the composing, planning, and distributing of a newspaper.

Since 1929, when the Mercury presented its first issue, the office has been located in the basement of the Robert F. Kidd Library. Successive staffs have found adequate the large staff office, well-equipped darkroom and the many filing and storage cabinets. The fact that many students and college officials do not know of the operations has not affected the staff.

In a basement, which often serves as an echo chamber for workmen's hammers, and which is sometimes unfit because a workman has turned off the main light switch, work has continued.

Now, the Mercury Office is being moved to the Colonial Room of the Student Center, while the present building is remodeled. The advisor's office will be in the old faculty lounge, Room 103 of the Student Union.

FTA Meet Held Here

Eight area high schools were represented at the Future Teachers of America Regional Conference here March 14. There were 123 high school students and eight advisors present for the day's activities.
