GSC student, and directed by Dave Lough, is the story of Gary, who hears a dog barking, and Adelaide, who does not. The play stars Larry Hall and Kathleen Warden.

Opening Sunday, April 16, at 1:00 p.m., the show is expected to contain entries in a great variety of media.

The staff of the GSC art department will judge the show. Mr. Joe Moss, of "West Virginia Moon" fame, will be the awards judge. He has had numerous shows, won many awards for his work, and is the state's most controversial artist.

Dr. Ruel E. Foster

DR. RUEL FOSTER GIVES ADDRESS TUESDAY, APR. 18

Dr. Ruel E. Foster, professor of English at West Virginia University and newly-appointed chairman of the department, will be the featured speaker on Tuesday, April 18, at 8:00 p.m. during the Fine Arts Week. "The Enduring Achievements of William Faulkner" will be the subject of his address to be given in the college Auditorium.

A native of Springfield, Ky., Dr. Foster earned bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of Kentucky. He joined the faculty of WVU after earning a doctorate at Vanderbilt University in 1941. Following a period of military service, Dr. Foster returned to WVU in 1946, and by 1957 had attained the rank of full professor.

Star athlete while studying at Kentucky, Dr. Foster has served WVU as coach of the Mountaineer tennis team for 16 years. He has decided to drop this activity due to more administrative duties that he will assume as of July 1.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Association of University Professors, and the Modern Language Association, Dr. Foster received a Ford Foundation Fellowship for research in southern literature in 1952. He received a WVU Foundation Fellowship for study during the summer of 1960.

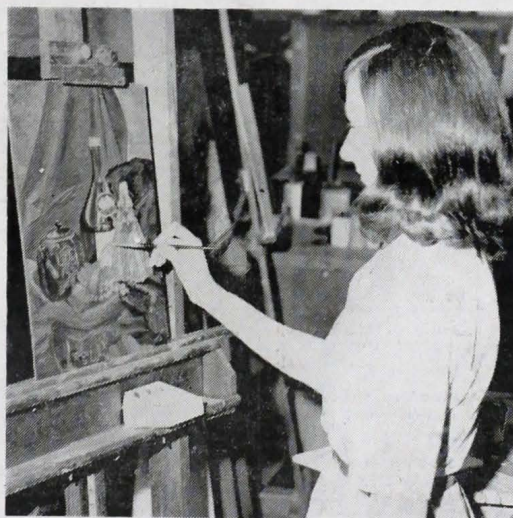

Dr. Foster also was the recipient of WVU's first writing grant in 1965. This grant was awarded to him so that he could devote the entire summer of 1965 strictly to writing, enabling him to write a number of short stories, prepare one of the most critical evaluations of Appalachian author Jesse Stuart for the American Writers' Series.

Dr. Foster was awarded the distinction of "Outstanding Professor" by the WVU faculty and was honored at the First Faculty Honors Convocation on March 7, part of the University's 100th Anniversary observance.

'BECKET' REAPPEARS ON CAMPUS DURING FINE ARTS ACTIVITIES

On Monday, April 17, a matinee and special evening performance of Becket or The Honour of God by Jean Anouilh will be presented by the Glenville State College Players, under the direction of Mr. J. Rodney Busch. The show, according to Mr. Busch, the first college production of the world-famous play to be given anywhere, completed a three-day run on campus in February.

The elaborate set, unique costumes, and the debuts of many new performers, as well as performances of seasoned veterans of the GSC stage, all were lauded by the critics. The glamour of the play and the excitement of seeing it again or for the first time should be reason enough to make Becket one of the many highlights of the 1967 GSC Fine Arts Festival.

Linda Chapman adds the finishing touches to an oil painting as the GSC art department prepares for the art exhibit to be held during the Fine Arts Festival.

Choir Sings In Concert On April 20

On Thursday, April 20, GSC Fine Arts Festival will present a concert by the GSC Concert Choir, under the direction of Mr. Robert Ellis, assistant professor of music.

On the program are Alleluia by Randall Thompson; O Magnum Mysterium by Thomas Luis de Victoria; Heavenly Light by Kopylow; David's Lamentation by William Billings; Steal Away arranged by Shaw and Parker; Who Is That Yonder arranged by Boatner; The Paper Reeds by the Brooks from the Peaceable Kingdom by Randall Thompson; and the featured number Chichester Psalms by Leonard Bernstein.

Accompanying the choir will be Carleen Morris at the organ, Lynn Stotter at the piano, and percussion by Chuck Nichols and Larry Ranson.

Second part of the film deals with a lively cross-section of marvelously performed folk dances of more than 15 nations; the folk dance section culminates in the social dances of the present, with vivid depiction of the waltz, fox-trot, mambo, etc. Ballet is considered by demonstrating the superb performances of classic and romantic ballets; there is also a survey of various efforts in the field of modern ballet.

The film concludes with an examination of the modern dance and its various manifestations.

Readers Speak Out On Various Issues

Dear Editor:

In reading your editorial, "Tread Softly..." in the March 22 issue of the Mercury, I was both amazed at and proud of the courage and accuracy of its content. In my three years at Glenville I have been a close observer of GSC's academic and social functions, and I would like here and now to add my support to every line of your editorial as there is certainly no doubt that it was representative of our student body. When you referred to the animals being shipped to another zoo if they happen to put their noses through the bars and the fact that the animals didn't have much spirit, it struck a special note with me as this is one of my main areas of concern.

When Dr. Wilburn spoke to the student assembly on the "State of the College," he mentioned Glenville's friendly atmosphere. He referred to a student from Pennsylvania who said that she chose to be and remained a Glenville student because of its smallness and the warmth of its student body. The same statement could be made by nearly every citizen of our campus community. Indeed, Glenville is a maze of interwoven friendships. However, when a chain of friends sees one of its links ruthlessly hammered in two for a petty, almost insignificant, reason it naturally becomes bitter towards the alien force which has unjustly mistreated this link. This bitterness prevails in our student body to a startling degree and is compounded nearly every month by a recurrence of the injustice. It is superheated by the face of the hammer which seems to echo with a silent mocking laughter.

One can't help but ask why when a disciplinary measure is needed, a punishment of the highest order is administered! I don't wish to be misunderstood. Discipline has a natural and necessary place in one's life, but a tight ship which continues to contract can squeeze its passengers to death.

The crime and punishment balance at Glenville can be paralleled to the days of old in which starving peasants were hung for stealing a loaf of bread.

To me this is most disturbing and unfortunate of all the numerous phases of Glenville's Student-Administration rift.

This right, which you so eloquently exposed, should by no means be polished or passed over as unimportant. It does exist and is widening every day... but it can be halted, and in time sealed. I feel that the discipline area would be an excellent place to start. Provided, of course, that 1400 students are right and our handful of super-human administrators are making some human mistakes!

Respectfully yours,
Daniel E. Gooding

Madam Editor:

As I was reading the March 8th copy of the MERCURY (quite belatedly, I might add) I came across a very discerning letter in the paper's letter column. This letter was from a student (236-70-8155) who wanted his name withheld for seemingly obvious reasons.

Mr. X (as I shall refer to the mystery student from now on instead of going through his number) stated that there isn't enough parking space for vehicles for 1400 students. Point number one is that of the 1400 students, only one-third of the students, at most, have a car on campus during the week. Most students that go home on weekends either join a carpool

(5-7 to a car), hitch hike or ride with their parents.

Mr. X also said in one paragraph to forbid freshmen and sophomores, except for commuters, to have cars. Then in another paragraph he stated that freshmen and sophomores should be forbidden to operate automobiles on campus. Just what in the name of Mt. Everest does Mr. X want the freshmen and sophomore commuters to do, park in Glenville (the town) and scale the mountain? No, wait; there isn't parking space in Glenville. How about Hays City or Burnsville?

Mr. X also is a great advocate of monetary fines. This is excellent for a person with the necessary coinage, but is rather rough on the average college student.

I have been rather sarcastic in trying to figure out a solution to this problem. For this I am deeply sorry. But what Mr. X wants us to do is very, very, nasty indeed; it seems that he wants the college to punish a student (concerning campus parking) because of the number of hours credit he has totaled while letting a person (himself for instance) who apparently can't drive or something, roam about the campus scot-free. It is my opinion that the college is doing a very good job with the parking problem, at least they eliminated one automobile, anyhow.

Sincerely,
(232-78-9695)
Gaylen Duskey

Dear Editor:

I wish to take this occasion to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to these students: Miss Nancy Rose, Mr. John Klug, Miss Evelyn Naylor, and Mr. Bob Cribbs, who came to my aid and assistance during the recent flood. I know these students were only typical and representative of scores of others who came to the aid of the people of Glenville and Gilmer County.

I feel certain that I express gratitude and appreciation of many others who were helped by college students during the recent flood crisis.

Sincerely yours,
John R. Wagner
Former GSC Instructor (for 37 years)

Editor's Note: The following is an open letter to President D. Banks Wilburn.

Dear Dr. Wilburn:

The Chaddocks wish to express their appreciation to you for the use of the saw horses which the college made available to us during the flood. This saved us hundreds of dollars. We also feel that you would be interested in knowing that the residents of Main Street and College Avenue feel that the college boys worked tirelessly in helping move furniture during the flood. Many of them waded in water above their waist in going from house to house to offer their services.

The boys and girls moved in immediately after the water receded and helped in the clean-up of the homes and business places. The residents of this area will always be grateful for these services. This is a wonderful example of how the young people of today serve when there is a job to be done. The community should be proud to have students of this caliber in Glenville State College. Faculty members also assisted in the clean-up campaign. Such courtesies will not be forgotten.

Sincerely yours,
(Mrs.) Lillian R. Chaddock

GRAD TOPS SHOW

Former GSC student, Jack Hale Langford, who is presently teaching at Pennsboro, won first prize in a Parkersburg ceramics show recently. His creation of a lidded ceramics jar took first priority in the judge's opinion to give him the winning place in the show.

The show was judged by Dr. Frederick Leech, head of the art department of Ohio University.

Coach Murin's young and inexperienced golf team opened their season by playing Mountain State Business College. They lost 13-7. The scoring for Glenville was as follows: Robert Green, 4 points; Rodney Jamison, 1 1/2 points; James Collins, 1 point; Henry Fuller, 1/2 point; and Page Shanklin, 0 points.

Members of the pledge class are Richard Brammer, St. Marys; Ronald Blankenship, Grantsville; James Heaton, St. Marys; Daniel Kellison, Hillsboro; and Thomas Parker, Beckley.

This pledge period will be under the direction of Pledgemaster Milton W. Hartley, Belpre, Ohio and Assistant Pledgemaster Edwin Prince, Jane Lew. They will outline the various activities and training programs which are designed to acquaint the pledge with fraternity life and hopefully to make them better citizens of the college community.

If the latter course is taken it will be necessary for the people who wish to be photographed to meet at the yearbook office between 3:30 and 5:00 p.m. during this week so that we can go to the surroundings where the photograph is desired to be taken. These people should dress as they wish to appear in the yearbook.

Artist Illustrates Lasting Wisdom Of Biblical Story

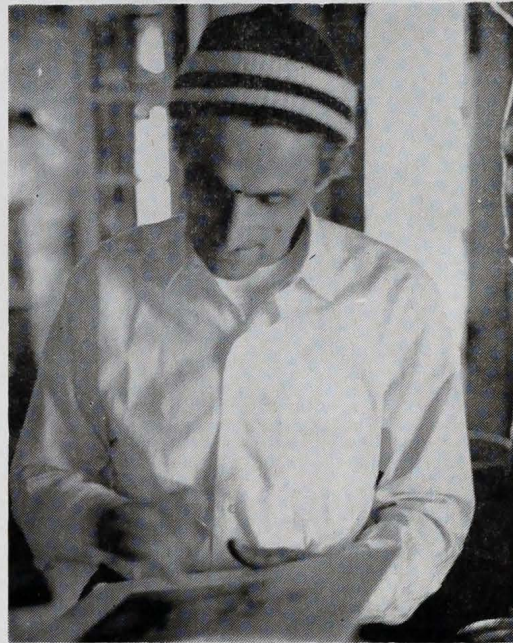

By HARRIETT SHORTLEY

In the parable of the prodigal son in The Bible, the beloved son returns home after a long absence to be warmly welcomed by his aging father. The father comforts and embraces his son, knowing that he could never have given his son the knowledge that he gained through his own personal experiences in the world.

Such is the surface meaning of the wood sculpture which Mr. Wolfgang Flor has been commissioned by the faculty and staff to create for the staircase area of the new Robert F. Kidd Library. However, the fluid lines of the figures suggest a deeper meaning. The sculpture has a form of a counterclockwise spiral as it shows the merging of the old man's beard with that of the young boy's robe.

In depicting age and youth, Mr. Flor has created a visual impression of the eternal quest of every youth for knowledge. Symbolically, the old man represents the knowledge and wisdom of all life which has accumulated for centuries. That knowledge is alive and present today for all who would seek it. However, like the youth in the sculpture, each person can struggle and strive to attain knowledge, but it will be useless if he does not determine what is real and beautiful for himself. True knowledge can be gained through experience only. And so, the old man embraces the youth and holds his hand out to him. But, the youth must prove himself before he can securely clasp the hand of wisdom.

This philosophy embodies the five-foot wood sculpture of walnut or oak to be placed in the stairwell of the library. Inspired by his visit to the library in November, Mr. Flor meditated on the spiral of the staircase to arrive at his design for a sculpture to be viewed from all angles. No matter where he is standing, a person on the staircase will be able to reflect and be inspired by the sculpture, which is compositionally correct from every angle. Its versatility is one of the truly

'FUNSPIRATION' WEEKEND PLANNED BY COLLEGIATE 4-H

Saturday night at 8:00 the ballroom will again be used for a funspirational activity — the variety show. This one, however, will be very casual, with women wearing slacks and everyone sitting on the floor, hootenanny-style.

fraternity; Blackfriars, a dramatics group; Alpha Psi Omega, dramatics honorary; Kappa Delta Pi, education honorary; and Student National Education Association. He is also president of the choir, vice-president of Kappa Kappa Psi, band honorary, and chairman of the Student Activities Committee.

Having been an active member of 4-H for eleven years, Jones has worked in 4-H camps during the past two summers. He has also been named an All-Star, the highest honor that can be awarded a 4-Her in West Virginia.

Mike Jones, Morris Harvey junior, will be master of ceremonies at the Funspiration Weekend talent show Saturday night.

great qualities of the wood sculpture. Each person can find a unique and personal meaning from the sculpture.

Mr. Flor, who also created the sculpture of the boy which is now in the library, is a native of Sillesia and now resides in rural Upshur County. The truly miraculous part of his talent involves the transformation of old logs, many of which come from barns, into objects of art and beauty. Mr. Flor may study a log for two or three hours just to learn how the grain of the wood is formed and how to use it most effectively. The first planning is the creation and perfection of a clay model.

"I do all my sketching in clay. I have to feel the three-dimensions to really get the study of what I want to do," Mr. Flor stated. There will only be slight changes made from the model to the completed sculpture. Usually working a 12-hour day, he states that his art consists of ten percent inspiration and 90 percent hard work. Mr. Flor gets his supply of wood, principally chestnut, in various places, but purchase of old barns and razing them to get this once plentiful wood is perhaps his best source.

Presently, he is working on the completion of 12 individual sculptures of Christ's apostles for the new chapel at West Virginia Wesleyan College. Each of the figures is so expressive and unique in appearance that when they are standing together in a group, one almost expects to hear a murmur of voices. Mr. Flor's amazing knowledge of the grain of wood has enabled him to use it most effectively and dramatically on the cheeks, arms and hands of the figures. His sculpture is so smooth and life-like that one can hardly resist the urge to touch and stroke its hands and lines. His portrayal of hands is especially effective in that each pair is expressive, sensitive, and distinct to itself.

Mr. Flor works mainly with lines and forms in his creation of beauty. All of his sculpture is complete in itself; there is no portion which extends separately from the wood. "Everything must be bound within the log," the artist stated. He compares the forms and lines of his art with life. The hard lines with harshness represent times of struggle and difficulty in life; the gentle graceful lines depict those times of peace and tranquility. There must be a balance of both to achieve true beauty in sculpture and in life.

"What the music is to the ear, the piece of sculpture is to the hand and the eye. It must be so that you want to put your hand on it." This sums up Wolfgang Flor's purpose for his art.

Above his work bench hangs a sign which simply and sufficiently states his motto: "If it is made, somebody wants it."
