Future events for the BSM will be a pizza party, Nov. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation. On December 6, 7, and 8, members will spend the weekend at West Virginia Tech for an exchange visit as Tech students will visit our campus in the spring.

Mary Norman, Bill Lewis, Dave Lough, Chuck Harris, Mike Ireland, and Lois Ingram rehearse for "The Cavern" to open here Nov. 13.

'The Cavern' by Jean Anouilh Will Begin Theatrical Year

"The Cavern" by Jean Anouilh is the first major production of the speech department this year. According to Mr. Stewart Beach, head of the Dramatics Department, this play has the largest set ever constructed on the GSC auditorium stage.

The upstairs portion of the set is seven feet from the floor of the stage and consists of a stairway which leads to a small sitting room. This room is light in color and depicts a very happy atmosphere. Contrary to the upstairs of the set, the lower portion, the kitchen, or "The Cavern" is very dark and dreary and connotes much unhappiness.

There are three sets of stairs constructed with the flat, but only one is seen by the audience. The other two sets are used by the actors and actresses as an escape element. This one set will be used throughout the entire production. Mr. Beach stressed that the set is entirely too large to be moved.

The two-act presentation takes place during the 1890's in Paris, France. The play depicts the servant world and the world of their masters, which ironically are entwined and the problems both face are not separated. Both worlds are entwined and the problems both worlds face are revealed.

The costumes are also patterned after the eighteenth century styles. At present, the cast members are now making their own costumes while practicing for the performance.

The cast, which was chosen on Oct. 10 consists of: William Lewis, the Author; Gary Hollandsworth, the Count; Lois Ingram, the Countess; Douglas Smith, the Baron; Susan Steen, the Baroness; Michael Ireland, the Semitrist; Albert Rauch, the Superintendent; Charles Jeffries, Romain, the Butler; Sharon Erwin, Marie Jeanne, the Cook; Preston Browning, Leon, the Coachman; David Lough, Marcel, the Valet; Trava Vogel, Hugue-line, the Chambermaid; Mary Norman, Adele, the Kitchen Maid; and Charles Harris, Alexis, the Scullery Boy.

The play will be presented in the GSC auditorium on Nov. 13, 14, and 15.

Nixon, Moore Win In GSC's Election

The mock election held on the Glenville State College campus four days before the National election was held, Nov. 5, proved very successful for the GOP candidates.

Richard Nixon received 54.9% of the votes cast for the presidency while Hubert Humphrey received 24.8% and George Wallace received 16.9%.

Arch Moore was out front in the candidacy for governor with 54.4% of the votes cast. James Sprouse received 37.2% of the votes and Peter Beter received 3.4% of the votes.

The Road Amendment for $350 million passed with 91% of the votes.

Arch A. Moore, Jr., was born in Moundsville, Marshall County, West Virginia. Moore's college career was interrupted by World War II in which he served as an army combat sergeant until he was severely wounded and discharged. He then finished his education at West Virginia University.

During his years at the University, Moore was president of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, president of the council of Fraternity Presidents, Emperor (president) of Sphinx, twice Summit (president) of his law school's graduating class.

Moore was elected to the West Virginia House of Delegates in 1952 and served six terms in the U. S. House of Representatives representing the first Congressional district.

Shelley Riley the wife of Arch Moore is now an active companion and participant in his race for governor in 1968. The Moores have three children: Arch A. Moore, III, 16, Shelly Wellons Moore, 14, and Clair Moore, 11.

In 1968 Nixon was nominated on the first ballot at the GOP convention in Miami Beach on Aug. 7.

'Cavern' Combines Comedy, Tragedy

By Beatrice Richards

"The Cavern" is not a comedy nor is it a tragedy, but it is a serious play. It is a study of different kinds of people, how they act when pitted against one another or drawn into one another's confidence.

Socially the play is made of the upper class, a baron and baroness and the lower class, the servants of the baron and baroness. A young man about to become a priest finds himself related by birth to the servant world but by vocation to the upper social world. Fearing that the young man would become a cook like herself, the servant mother persuaded her son to become a priest.

The relationship of the social classes is the first force operating in the play. The second force is the drama of the play. Who killed the cook? Why was she killed? The third force operating in the play is the author himself who puts himself in the play as the author. The author comes out on stage at the beginning of the play and tells the audience that the play could not be written, that he just could not write it. He appears several times after the scenes exclaiming with disgust that these scenes are not good and, some of them are even acted over.

There is mystery on these three levels. Will they ever get the relationship between the social classes worked out? Will they find out who killed the cook? Will the play ever get written? There is a lot of minor drama in the worlds of the servant the upper class going on throughout the play to add interest.

This play violates the criteria for a good play except the unity of place. Unity of time is completely violated. The play actually starts after it is finished and the play backs up while the story goes forward.

Mr. Stewart Beach, director, said, "Since people make up a good play, there are enough interesting people in this play to make it good." He also said that, "There has never been anything like it seen here before."

Mr. Kerr Wins Poetry Contest

Mr. Carl Kerr, Assoc. Prof. of English and French, has been notified that he won first prize in the lyric poetry division of the annual contest of the West Virginia Poetry Society, of which he is a member. The lyric division, sponsored by the Wheeling Poetry Society, was open to non-members as well as members of the Society. The prize was awarded at the annual luncheon meeting of the Society at Parkersburg on October 12th. This is the third time that Mr. Kerr has won prizes in this annual contest.

Mr. Kerr's second book of Poetry, Homages, published last spring, has been placed in the Harris Collection of American poetry and plays at Brown University. His first book of poetry, Myriad Abode, is also in this collection.

Mr. Kerr was notified last month that two of his poems have been accepted for inclusion in Extension, an anthology of avant garde poetry to be published in California this coming December. Another of his poems will be published in the near future in the Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors.

Haught Serves SGA As Sergeant-At-Arms

Serving the Student Government Association as Sergeant-at-Arms for the 1968-69 school year is Thomas Haught, a junior from New Martinsville. He was elected to the office by popular ballot last spring.

Haught is majoring in physical education and art and is an active sports participant. Filling the position of halfback he has received numerous honors including being selected the WVIAC offensive player of the week for the Glenville-Salem game this fall. While at GSC he has lettered in both football and baseball.

Along with his present SGA position and participation in sports, Haught also serves on the social committee of Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

Sherry Erwin and Mary Norman rehearse a crucial scene from "The Cavern."

Do Faculty Members Care?

The semester system, new on Glenville State's campus, is bringing many new problems and headaches for the students. The instructors are treating the semester system much the same as the old term system.

This is where the problem begins, for with the term system, a student had only three or four classes to worry about where as he now has six or seven. Instructors do not consider this and all seem to schedule examinations in the same week.

Last week was like this. I have talked to students who had five, six, and even seven or eight examinations last week and they all made similar statements, "The instructor walked into class and said the dean sent out notices for mid-semester grade reports so we better have a test."

How can a student really be expected to excel when he has so many exams in one week, even one day?

New faculty members are to be commended on their efforts to help students by scaling grades. However, the problem lies with other faculty members who are using the same outline they have in the past and adhering to the college grading scale. Many of the instructors teach upper division classes which have many of the same students in them and still require the students to take three exams in the same week.

These instructors seemingly have no consideration for the students and are thinking only of themselves so they can make grade reports and thereby earn their living.

In a teachers' education college, such as Glenville, students are being taught many different aspects of education but teaching a student one thing and acting a completely different way is very contradictory. This does not even mention the disappointment one must feel after he has completed four years of education and then fails to pass education courses required for student teaching. Or instructors who comment on how long a student wears his hair, side-burns, how short dresses are, how tight pants are, or even that a student does not shave. Does one's appearance, different though not repulsive, make him a poor teacher?

With the semester system, there is a promise that the probation list will grow, and why not? Can a student really make grades to the best of his ability with so many worries? Perhaps the dean should schedule mid-semester examinations such as he does with finals. Something must be done before so many students fail out of GSC that we do not need as many instructors.

Rich Cain scores GSC's touchdown against State

State Defeats GSC 14-7, Remains First In WVIAC

William Gaiter outran defensive halfback John Noland to snare an 18 yard scoring pass from Harland Price, giving W. Va. State a 14-7 victory over Glenville State in a WVIAC conference tilt at Rohrbough Field last Saturday.

The first quarter was scoreless with neither team mounting much of a drive. The third play into the second quarter, a 38 yard Carl Williams punt, gave State a first and ten on their own forty. Aheart galloped 17 yards to his 43 and Fox moved it to the 33. Ed Lee and Aheart combined 21 yards in three plays, giving State a first and ten on their twelve. Three plays yielded nothing before Ellis hit Ollis Hunting in a double reverse pass play, giving State the initial score in the game. Aheart's PAT gave State a 7-0 lead.

Glenville scored early in the fourth period on a 48 yard drive using 10 plays. Rich Cain was the workhorse in this drive, carrying 5 times for 20 yards, the last three being the Touchdown run. Frost's kick left the score tied at 7-7.

This set the stage for the 18 yard Ellis to Gaiter scoring pass, breaking the 7-7 deadlock. State outgained Glenville 239 to 128 in total yardage and 17-10 in first downs.

Theta Xi Animals	4	0
KUC	0	3
Court Jesters	1	2
Hardway Hollow	2	1
TKE #3	0	3
Theta Xi Unicorns	2	2
Falcons	3	1
G. T. Tigers	3	0
Graduates	1	3

Dr. Dollgener further stated that the rosters from men's intramural basketball must be in by Nov. 22.

Playoffs Set Nov. 12

Final rounds of the double elimination tournaments of women's volleyball were played on Oct. 29. The first game consisted of the Outsiders, with one defeat, playing Alpha Sigma Alpha, also with one defeat, and was conducted at 6:30 p.m. ASA won this match. At 7:30 p.m. ASA faced Delta Zeta who had not been defeated, and ASA won this game also. This constituted DZ's only defeat during the season. Thus DZ must face ASA again on Nov. 12. The winner of this play-off match will win the double elimination tournament.

As I See 'Em.

The football version of the Glenville State College Pioneers dropped its third straight game to W. Va. State Saturday, dropping its record to 4-3. Riddled by injuries, the Pioneers couldn't mount an offensive machine to cope with that of State. Glenville, playing without experienced QB Mark McPhail, gained only 128 total yards Saturday, with 74 yards of that coming on one play. In that play, halfback Jim Heaton, who has been dubbed Super Heaton, and rightfully so, took a Frank Pfaff pass and, with the aid of a beautiful block by Bill Frost, streaked 74 yards down the sideline to the State 18 before he was hauled down from behind. Glenville could get no further than the nine yard line and gave the ball up on downs.

Something is lacking in the offensive team of the Pioneers. Saturday, after a very questionable pass interference call, the defense rose to the occasion and I doubt that the Packers could have run against them. But the offense would get up and the holes weren't there. The pass rush on Pfaff, barring a few occasions, was terrific but the team just couldn't get going. The defense time and time again has come up with the bit play, but the offensive unit just can't seem to make it consistently.

From the fan's viewpoint on the stands, the bright spots on the offense are the stellar plays of Jim Heaton, Bill Bogges, Bill Frost and Mike Deem. Bogges opened up a hole for Haight and Cain all day and made several good downfield blocks. Heaton, playing the game with everything he has to give, is probably the sturdiest of the offensive team. He's a good, if not flashy runner, and his blocking is excellent. I detected an excellent Heaton block on a State player on Mike Roscoe's kick-off return to the 40.

The tight end, Mike Deem, is certainly not thrown to enough. His hands are good and he's big and strong enough to run over some people when the situation demands it.

It would be unfair to talk about offense without mentioning the kicking of Bill Frost. Frost has kicked 18-20 PAT (the other two being blocked) and has a 43 yard field goal to his credit.

The defensive unit led by All-Conference Dale Sheets speaks for itself. Sheets, an excellent field leader, has the unique ability to get the defense "fired up." He has been outstanding for the Pioneers this year and will be sorely missed in next year's campaign.

Robert Kidd Library Plans Exhibitions Of 600 Specially Selected Volumes

More than 600 new library books for boys and girls, which have great interest for adults as well, will be on display at The Robert F. Kidd Library during the month of November. These books may be examined anytime during library hours but cannot be taken from the library.

Brought together in an organized exhibit, here are the books that delight with their magic and charm, divert and entertain, instruct and inform, or reflect and interpret for our better understanding, the changing world we live in today. School systems across the country recognize this annual exhibit as the one complete and dependable reviewing-evaluating resource available to them. Fifty-three leading publishers are involved in a collection which spreads over some 105 subject classifications.

The exhibit is covered by curriculum-related, annotated and fully indexed (by subject, title and author) catalogues which are free to teachers, librarians and administrators. Another of their features is a special listing of books which are eligible for purchase under the National Defense Education Act. Both books and catalogues are related to each other by a numerical system; in a matter of seconds therefore, you can be looking at the books of your interest.

Ranging from picture books and easy books at the primary level, and reading and literature, social studies and activities in the intermediate grades to guidance, science, arts and sports in junior high, there are books in non-fiction and fiction to meet every need, every interest. For teachers and librarians who want to keep abreast of the best in new instructional materials, the exhibit is indispensable.

Books on exhibit, the company which organizes and supplies the exhibit, is a national exhibiting operation that neither solicits nor fills orders. Its free service, representing the selected books of the important publishers industry-wide, both large and small, has been praised by school personnel over the years in superlatives for meeting efficiently a universal and basic need.

Parents, students, and school personnel are invited to attend the 17th Annual Books on Exhibit.

Bernard Eismann Lecture Scheduled Here Nov. 18

Veteran news correspondent Bernard Eismann will lecture on "The Second American Revolution," a look at the new idealism and at the political, economic, and moral problems of our day, including the urban and racial crises, on the evening of Nov. 18 in the auditorium of the Administration Building.

Eismann, author of "The Far Right" and "Two Chinas In American Foreign Policy," obtained his B. A. degree from the University of New York in 1953, and has been a news correspondent for both the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting System since August, 1967. At present, he is moderator of the NET series "Inquiry," a discussion program on the contemporary scene.

Eismann has been associated with National Educational Television, where his "in-depth" approach to the issues and problems of our times is seen to great advantage. As a speaker, with his fingers always on the pulse of the news, Eismann's talks are up-to-the-minute, well-informed and based on a sound background of "on-the-spot" reportage.

As a foreign correspondent for ABC-TV and CBS News, Eismann has covered Vietnam, the Dominican Republic, Africa, Central and South America - to name just a few. He is particularly well-acquainted with Israeli life, where he lived from 1955 to 1957, and he has returned regularly for "in-depth" on the spot coverage.

Art students who visited Washington, D. C.

Art Majors Tour Capital

A group of art majors and minors left on a planned week-end trip from Glenville to Washington, D. C. at 6 a.m. Friday, Oct. 25. The touring group, traveling in two college cars, included Robert Bailes, Donna Duncan, Connie McCallister, Daniel Shumate, Frances Perko, Herman Winland, Roger Norman, Darrell Wilmoth, Mr. James White, and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Gillespie, also Ronald Riggs, who took the picture. They all stayed in Hotel Ebbitt, downtown Washington, near the gallery.

The trip was intended for the purpose of touring the National History, Ford Theatre, and on the return trip, visited Thomas Jefferson's historical home at Monticello.

They began their interesting week-end Friday afternoon at 3:30 by taking the first of two tours of the art gallery. Donna Duncan's reaction was, "The art gallery was fascinating. We saw quite a few works of art we had studied in class."

Before their last tour of the National Gallery of Art on Saturday, they visited the Ford Theatre where Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. The students also had free time to sightsee on their own and visit places of personal interest.

The group returned to Glenville at 11:00 p.m. Sunday 27, and in the words of Connie McCallister, summing up the trip, "There couldn't have been a better group to travel with. It was worth every penny." And Daniel Shumate stated, "It was so worthwhile that it should become an annual trip for art students."

Gamma Beta Phi Organized At GSC

By Jerry Cohen

Recently a chapter of the national Gamma Beta Phi Society, a service-leadership organization for students in American Colleges and Universities, was organized at Glenville State with the cooperation of Jno. W. Harris, national Secretary-Treasurer.

The three letters designating the name of the organization represent its ideals. The first letter (Gamma) is the initial letter of the Greek word meaning "knowledge" or "education", the second letter (Beta) is the initial letter of the Greek word meaning "life"; the third letter (Phi) is the initial letter of the Greek word meaning "love" or "friendship."

Gamma Beta Phi is a non-secret, non-profit, educational service club. It is co-educational and membership therein does not exclude a student from membership in any other organization.

The purpose of the Gamma Beta Phi Society, as stated in its constitution, is the "advancement of educational ideals, the encouragement of scholastic effort, and the rewarding of academic merit among those students." The two service objectives are, first, to see to it that no member of the local chapter is deficient in his college studies; and second, to encourage and assist qualified students in high schools to continue their education into college. The primary purpose of the Gamma Beta Phi Society is to establish and promote an organization which has as its chief objective the enrichment of the lives and college experiences of American youth.

There shall be a national membership of ten dollars per member payable to the National Headquarters office at the time of issuance of the certification of membership to the prospective member, which is all that he will pay into the National Organization during his entire college career. This fee is to defray the cost of official pin, the certificate of membership and membership card and the subscription to the official literary magazine.

Ronald Riggs is the president of the Gamma Beta Phi Society. He is a junior majoring in art from Marietta, Ohio.

Secretary is Christine Creighton. She is a sophomore from New Matamoras, Ohio majoring in elementary education.

William Niday a sophomore from Clendenin, majoring in math is treasurer.

Daniel McPherson, sophomore business major from Parkersburg served as chairman of the constitution committee.

Although Gamma Beta Phi has no record of past activities, plans are being made to sponsor various campus and community projects.

The words "scholarship," "service," and "character" inscribed in the coat-of-arms represent the ideals and objectives of the Gamma Beta Phi Society. Anyone wishing to join may contact one of the officers.

Campus Served By Bookstore

by Diane Brown

From 1951 to 1957 the bookstore was located in a part of the business office, the office Mr. Osborne has today. Then it was managed by Mr. Clarence Bumgardner and was only open a few minutes each day.

In the fall of 1957 the bookstore was moved to what now is the faculty lounge in the student center. The bookstore was very small with one counter and everything was handed over the counter. Mrs. Nellie Engleke came to work in the bookstore Sept. of 1958.

In 1964, the bookstore moved to its present, spacious location. July, 1967 saw Mrs. Engleke manager of the bookstore. The bookstore has textbooks and greeting cards, but because of the extra space it has much more. There are G.S.C. sweat shirts and tee shirts, all kinds of school supplies and there are many plans for the future. The bookstore will feature more West Virginia glass—Kanawha glass trinkets which will be available for Christmas gifts. Right now the bookstore has several pieces of lapidary work, made by Mr. Walden Roush of Glenville State College. There are a couple pieces of pottery made by G.S.C. students in the bookstore and Mrs. Engleke hopes to have more in the future.

It is Mrs. Engleke's desire to fill the bookstore with as many products as possible. She feels it is important for students to know the major products and talents of their state and this is one way to bring it to their attention.

The bookstore is open from 8:30 in the morning to 4:30 in the afternoon. Those working there this year are Mrs. Engleke and Mrs. Elizabeth Beeghly, full time. Those students working are Miss Patsy Deal, Mrs. Garry Knight, Mr. Larry West, Mr. Bernard Shackleford, and Mr. Frank Lydon.

Chemistry Exams May Be Revealing

Reading examinations written by students can be a dull bore or an exciting experience. A recent examination in chemistry found a class of students in chemistry that was really lamed on (or off, depending upon one's point of view). The following list includes some of the more eye-opening answers; (It helps in their interpretation if one knows a little about the chemistry concerned.)

Subatomic - immersed in water. Gigram - instrument used to find radium.

Wonder drug - a drug that doesn't exist; LSD.

Oxidation - oxygen unites with. Diatomic - colorful.

Bohr - created the spectrum. Magnet - attracts and repels.
