Accreditation Review Team To Visit Campus March 5, 6

On March 5 and 6, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools review team for accreditation will visit Glenville State College. The review team consists of President Warren C. Lovinger, Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, Mo.; Dean Robert S. Badger, College of Arts and Sciences, University of Missouri-St. Louis, St. Louis, Mo.; and Dr. Harold T. Christensen, Professor of Sociology, Perdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

In April of 1966, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools review team for accreditation, visited Glenville for the first time since the school was accredited in 1948.

Since that time, G.S.C. has been on private probation. An annual report of progress is required by North Central, the first of which was due on June 1, 1967. The final evaluation will be made in March 1969 when the visitation team once again revisits our campus.

Since the visitation team was on campus on April 18 and 19, 1966, changes have been made in the following areas: (1) control; (2) administration; (3) faculty participation in policy decisions; (4) status of faculty; (5) curriculum and instruction; (6) library; (7) student personnel program; (8) athletics; (9) health services; and (10) physical facilities.

Administration-changes here have been many but perhaps the most significant are listed below:

(1) The business office has been completely reorganized and new equipment installed.

(2) An organizational chart containing the line of responsibility for each administrative office has been prepared and revised as personnel and changes expand.

(3) A faculty handbook, "The Bluebook," is available to all faculty and administrative offices for two years.

(4) The college library budget has been doubled in four years.

(5) Each instructional division now has a budget for current expenses and equipment.

(6) All duplicating services have been centralized with a competent person in charge.

(7) An assistant director of admissions was employed two years ago. This in addition to the office of the direction of admissions and registrar has provided additional needed services.

(8) A director of Alumni Affairs has improved the flow of administration to the Alumni and their response in turn to the college's needs.

(9) A director of counseling and guidance was employed in July, 1967. This has developed a much needed service in personal counseling to the students.

Faculty participation in decision making-In order that the faculty might better participate in decision making a Faculty Administrative Organization was formed. The constitution provides for the selection of officers and all standing committees of the faculty. Examination for the details of this constitution can be found in "The Bluebook."

The faculty is also represented by its President as a member of the College Council which is an administrative committee.

Ward Article Published

Max Ward, professor of botany at the college, is senior author of an article entitled "Propagation of Aberrant Gametophytes from Aggregates and from Single Cells of Moss Callus," in the current issue of "Phytomorphology," an international journal of plant research published at the University of Delhi in India.

The article, co-authored by Sue Ellen Frederick, A.B., 1966, now a graduate student specializing in electron microscopy at the University of Wisconsin, is one of about 70 invited papers from 18 different countries issued as a memorial to Dr. P. Maheshwari, former editor and head of the department of botany at the University of Delhi.

The article describes how single cells of callus or cancer-like cell aggregates may be made to reproduce complete new plants of an abnormal moss type.

The paper is the eleventh published by Ward on research in botany.

The articles are cited in several books and numerous international journals of plant science.

'Ranting Radical' Retorts

Dear Egg-Beater:

Upon reading your letter to the "Mercury," I detected a little bit of disagreement concerning your views and mine. The purpose of this letter, therefore, is to clarify my earlier statements so that I may be reclassified from being a radical to just a concerned teacher.

In all of man's many years on the earth he has never succeeded in creating a perfect way of life, however defined. The reason for this failure is basically that man is not perfect, and this belief, as paradoxical as it may sound, may be man's perfection. So long as man is imperfect, it is his duty to humanity to realize his imperfections and to take some action thereof. If this is not done then man would cease to be a unique, dynamic, superior creature of the universe and in all probability would revert to a smug, satisfied, uneventful existence born to die and dead spiritually before he is born.

If man is to avoid this humdrum, spiritually devoid existence, then it is imperative that he be unafraid to speak out on matters which affect his environment. This questioning pertains to all aspects of a man's life: his sexual mores, spiritual mores, political mores, educational mores and institutional mores. If an individual, in a community of individuals, feels something is wrong or missing in his surroundings, then it should be his duty as a human being to express his feelings and attempt to correct what is felt to be wrong.

The educational system in any modern society is pledged to present to the student a new and challenging way to look at an increasingly impersonalized way of life. The teacher therefore must challenge the student in every way conceivable, present you with new ways of viewing life and, in the end, erase any fears of speaking out in a complex and sophisticated society. If you graduate from a teacher's college, you will probably become a teacher. Here it is even more important that you are aware of what life is all about and what life potentially has to offer. What you are taught in your college, you must be able to adapt, develop and pass on to your students. Thus you should be taught the art of questioning. This is much more important than the basic facts and figures which you will also learn and which will in all probability (in our society) become irrelevant and useless as the faceless age of the computer encompasses us.

Thus as a student at Glenville State College you should ponder the following questions: In your four years at GSC are you getting enough out of it to help you better cope with life? Is your imagination being stirred; are you taught to question? Are you learning how to be thoughtful, sensitive and compassionate? Are you going to better able to cope with life than your parents are? This is what you're paying for, these qualities are also a part of an education. If these needs aren't being met, then it is your duty to speak out and attempt to set us straight. No one has a higher stake in your education than you.

You know, E. B., (I hope you don't mind if I call you by your initials) an applet is a very curious thing. If it proceeds to market along a road strewn with big rocks, it may hit a big rock and dump its contents all over the ground. In this case its contents, the apples, will probably be bruised beyond use. If the applet proceeds to market along a smooth, rockless road, the apples will arrive to the market all fresh and polished, fetch a good price and be eaten with fiendish delight. However, if the applet proceeds to market along a road clustered with pebbles, it will likely tip back and forth on its journey, thus bruising its contents somewhat, but nonetheless arriving safely in the marketplace to fetch a very high price because of the difficulties involved in the journey. Those who buy the apples will, in all probability, refrain from eating them with a fiendish delight but will, in all probability, refrain from eating them with a fiendish delight but instead cherish and be thankful that they have such good apples. Whereas one big rock would have made them useless, little pebbles will strengthen their value immeasurably in the great market place. But, here you must perceive that the way of the journey is the key. If the apples had their way, they would probably want the smooth road. If the wagonmaster had his way, he would want the pebbly road. What road do you want, E. B.? Your future also depends on your journey.

Thus, E. B., I hope you can see that I'm not a ranting radical (or big rock) out to scuttle your little journey. What I am saying is, make your journey worthwhile. Make your education here at GSC as relevant to what you conceive to be your life as possible. Question at will, feel as much as possible. Curiosity and responsibility are what makes life worth living; complacency and apathy are what makes life immaterial and unbearable.

Sincerely yours,
Scott D. Barnes

In explanation of Mr. Sheets and Mr. Seals inquiry and to many of the departments at GSC I would like to say that it is quite impossible for me to run a story on page one which is five days late. In the case of the Frasier story it would have been quite impossible for me to run it on page one since the physical education department did not even turn the story in. Consequently, I had to write the article myself, which through elimination of several other articles reached the issue. Thus, you may turn to Dr. Dollgener and ask where the Sports Editor was. Also, according to good journalism, sports articles do not belong on page one, but the sports page, even if GSC should ever win the NAIA Championship.

Two Elected to Fill 4-H Club Positions

The Collegiate 4-H Club held its annual monthly meeting on Feb. 12 for the purpose of filling two newly-vacated offices, that of president and secretary. The president, Huguette Thomas, is doing her student teaching and the secretary, Dorothea Allman, is resigning because of other commitments. The presidents post was filled by Marilyn Dague and the secretary's post was filled by Larry Jackson.

Other activities of the meeting included a report given by Miss Dague on YAC, "Young Adult Conference," a meeting at Jackson's Mill which she attended over semester break, and plans for two raffles were also discussed. One of the raffles is to be held in March and the prize is a free dinner for a campus couple. The club also plans a raffle at Easter time, the prize being a stuffed Easter rabbit. The proceeds of the raffles will go toward fulfilling the club's pledge of $100 to the new Gilmer County Clinic to be constructed.

The club sponsor, Mr. James White, announced his plans to resign.

Plans for the Extravaganza are already under way with Sue Hale as chairman and Betsy Wingfield and Connie Montgomery as her assistants. The theme for this year's Extravaganza will be "What's Going On, Glenville State College?"

Award Unheralded

An apology is in order for Jim Frasier and other students who are exerting their energies toward achieving the most in their chosen fields. This apology is prompted by a distortion of values that seems to exist in the last issue of the "Mercury." What is happening, when an article on lost and found is of front page significance and an article recognizing where a student has been awarded the highest award in his given area is relegated to an inside page? To be named to an NAIA First Team All-American means 22 people are selected from approximately 13,000 participants.

Besides the question of placement, there exists the question of space. The majority of the space was devoted to student complaints, which certainly have their relevance. But think, which is of greater value, student complaint or student accomplishment? Surely this does not reflect the general attitude of GSC students. Congratulations Jim, and to all students who are making accomplishments in their chosen areas. May you receive the recognition you so richly deserve.

WAC Recruiter Visits Campus

Women's Army Corps College Junior Program will be held for four weeks this summer.

The only requirements are that the applicant be between 18 and 28, single, have no dependents under 18, have completed her junior year at an accredited college or university and can meet both physical and mental requirements of the recruiting program.

The program is designed to help the young college woman decide whether she would like the life of a WAC officer after graduating. Those enlisting will spend three weeks at Fort McClellan, Ala. and several days at Fort Benning, Ga. Transportation, uniforms, meals and medical expenses will all be paid by the Army. At the conclusion of the course, the enlistors will receive $163.50 extra (less social security and income tax.)

This summer month will provide training for group and personal achievement, learning of activities of WAC officers serving overseas, making field trips in uniform, a training flight in helicopter and attending social functions introducing people of all walks of life.

The student enlisting has no obligation to the Army if she decides not to continue her training after the summer program. If a student continues this program she will be commissioned a Second Lieutenant after graduation from college, return to one of the training camps and serve two years active duty.

For those women desiring more information on this summer program, contact Mr. Nagy whose office is next to the old cafeteria.

Whiting Dead At Age 79

A well-known West Virginia educator and Glenville State College dean, Hunter Whiting, died at the age of 79 at a convalescent home on Jan. 16, where he had resided for several years.

He was born in Glenville on March 1, 1890 and was the son of the late William D. Whiting and Sarah Louise Whiting. Mr. Whiting was never married.

In 1909, he received his state normal certificate from Glenville State College, from West Virginia University his B.A. degree and he later received his master's degree from Harvard University. In the summers of 1924, 1925, and 1930, he studied abroad.

Interviews Set

Mr. V. T. Handley, manager of the Social Security Administration District Office, Clarksburg, will visit our campus Feb. 19. The purpose of Mr. Handley's visit is to interview seniors who may be interested in careers with Social Security. Additional details may be secured from personnel at the Student Union Building.

Mr. Ralph Brabban of Kanawha County will be on campus Feb. 26. The purpose of his visit is to interview prospective teachers.

CRC Honors Jack Albert

The Campus Religious Council held a pancake breakfast on Feb. 18 in honor of Jack Albert, who is to be the Glenville State College representative in Africa this summer during Operation Crossroads-Africa. OCA is a national project supported by several different national organizations, and each summer sends college students to Africa who work in cooperation with the African government. The students are not paid, and in order to go, have to pay $1,125.

The Campus Religious Council hoped this would be a campus project with all campus organizations helping. The campaign was officially launched at GSC with the pancake breakfast. This is especially significant because in England and several other countries, that Tuesday was the beginning of Lent.

Missing Periodicals, Books Are Evident At RFK Library

Several times a day, a student approaches the circulation desk in the Robert F. Kidd Library and asks, "Do we get 'Time' (or such and such a magazine)? I can't find it on the shelf."

Periodicals are not the only materials "missing" or "disappearing" from the Library. Books, filmstrips, and pamphlets are constantly being misplaced.

However, the greatest problem seems to deal with articles being torn from a book or periodical. The areas in which most materials are missing are general reference books, books dealing with social studies, literature, handbooks, general music encyclopedias and business reference books. Fortunately, most of the reference books are returned.

Where do these materials go? What happens to them? Granted, materials are occasionally shelved incorrectly or lost in the library. More frequently, materials are slipped into a book or a pocket and thus one person deprives 1500 people from using such materials.

Do we want to be treated as "innates" by having to sign for every piece of material we use in the library? A few inconsiderate people may bring this upon us.

The problem of missing library materials concerns every person involved with Glenville State College since, at one time or another, we have all searched unsuccessfully for materials which should be in the library. A survey was taken among GSC students in order to determine their attitudes toward missing materials and fines. The area with which the students are most concerned is the periodical collection. When asked to suggest a solution to this situation, most of the students surveyed seemed to feel that "closed stacks" (the system where no one goes to the shelves except a student library assistant) is the solution.

Students were also asked if they wanted their integrity questioned by having a person placed at the door to "check" to see if all materials were properly signed out. The answers—almost unanimously—NO!! Why? Most students feel that this is not the solution. On the same questionnaire students were asked if they feel that GSC students are "mature" enough to return materials if a fine were not levied for overdues. The answer to this is almost a 100 per cent No.

Another question for student reaction was the following: Would you honor a four day grace period on fines? For example, no fine if the materials are returned within four days after the date due, but on the fifth day a 50 cent fine and 10 cents each day thereafter would be levied. The answer to this was almost a 95 per cent Yes.

What does all this mean? Stop! Think the next time you slip a periodical under your books or you tear an article from a book. Stop to think how many people you are depriving.

"Gambit" Shown Feb. 18

On Feb. 18, the Science Club sponsored a movie called "Gambit" in the college auditorium. The movie was shown only once.

The movie, which was a gold-plated suspense thriller, starred Shirley Maclaine and Michael Caine and is set against the exotic backgrounds and intrigue of Hong Kong and the Middle East. The stars pose as a daring pair of self-made master criminals. This pair makes plans to steal an ancient Chinese statuette and these plans end up in hilarity when Caine details the crime to an accomplice and then finds himself in trouble trying to carry out his ideas. Four or five surprise endings and plot twists gave the audience a mystery-comedy filled with many moments for laughter.

OKP Initiates Five Jan. 12

The brothers of OKP initiated five men into their bonds on Sunday evening, Jan. 12.

Mike Bennett, a sophomore business major, was the first in his pledge class to be initiated. He was also chosen model pledge. Bennett "showed a remarkable ability to assimilate the ideals of Omega Kappa Phi and worked beyond the expectations of a pledge."

Dan McPherson, a business major from Parkersburg, was second to be initiated, then Don Melton, a senior music major from Elkview, Bill Niday, a sophomore social studies major from New Matamoras, Ohio.

Following the initiation the pledges presented their big brothers with the paddles that they were required to make; following this an informal party was held.

The brothers are now formulating plans for a closed ball to be held in March. Plans are being made to hold the closed ball at the Cloud Room at the Charleston airport. A banquet will be observed and several well-known bands are under consideration for the ball. Plans are being made to house the men and their dates at a Charleston area college.

Plans for the second semester rush are also being put into action.

The president of the fraternity, Jack Albert, is to be congratulated for his appointment and expected trip to Africa to help with establishing cultural and social relationships in these underdeveloped areas.

On Jan. 20 the members of Omega Kappa Phi elected new officers. Those elected are: president, Jack Albert; vice president, Gary Farnsworth; recording secretary, Ron Riggs; corresponding secretary, Mike Bennett; treasurer, Dave Bodkin; Sgt.-at-arms, Jim Settle; pledgemaster, Gary Farnsworth; rush chairman, Shell Hinkley; historian Bill Niday.

Ron Riggs was elected Greek Council delegate and Dan McPherson will serve as alternate.

Composite pictures will be taken during February and plans are being made for yearbook pictures.

Green jackets with gold lettering have been ordered and should arrive soon.

Two brothers, Robert Groves of Bridgeport and Ralph Paugh of Georgetown, Del. will do their student teaching this semester.
