Students rehearsing for "Words," the next drama production to be presented on April 16, 17, and 18.

Beach Announces Intention of Play

Stewart Beach, director of the current speech department production "Words," has announced and explained the purpose of the play. He stated that "the purpose of the production is not to confuse, but rather to make the audience think about what is going on. We have designed a collage of words that makes a lot of sense."

Both plays are divided into sequences. They go back and forth from one situation to another with various interruptions in the proceedings. The audience is forced to concentrate, yet enjoyment is hopefully maintained.

Mr. Beach has added two pages of script to the play. He stated that these pieces of dialogue will help present two points of view. They also provide a method of discussing the play while in progress.

One of the most outstanding features of the production is the use of a new type of film technique.

Educators Meeting Set

The West Virginia Association of Higher Education will meet at Potomac State College April 8 and 9. Personnel from West Virginia's colleges and universities will attend. This year's president, Professor William Michael of Potomac State, announced that the theme for the meeting is "Change and Innovation."

Dr. Keith Spalding, president of Franklin and Marshall College, will be the principal speaker at the banquet on April 8. Dr. Perry Greshman, president of Bethany College, is to address the group at a luncheon the second day.

Among special interest groups convening the afternoon of April 8 are the W. Va. Association of Academic Deans, W. Va. Council of Alumni and Development Representatives and the W. Va. Council of Private Colleges.

Juanita B. Parker, W. Va. Wesleyan College, is president-elect of the AHE. Other officials include Irene Brown, Potomac State, secretary; and Zeona E. Haley, W. Va. State, treasurer.

Mr. Beach has pieced together campus situations that should prove interesting to all. The two films which are named "Skool Daze" and "In his own image" carry out the main themes of communication and education. "Skool Daze" was filmed on campus and consists of a fast sequence of incidents in color that are typical of college life. "In his own image" on the other hand is a black and white production concerned with the idea that teachers may be creating students in their own image.

This unusual play will be presented April 16, 17, and 18.

Area Is Canvassed For Red Cross Drive

Red Cross fund drive for 1969 took place the week of March 17-23. Volunteers, including the members of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority, canvassed the area to solicit funds. Alpha Sigs prepared the packets which were distributed.

Robert F. Lord, instructor of math at Glenville State College, is the county chairman of Red Cross. Mrs. Tom Gainer served as 1969 fund drive chairman.

The Red Cross uses the funds to aid in times of emergency such as the March 1967 flood in Glenville. They also help needy families and deliver urgent messages to servicemen.

Training program for Foster Grandparents being held on campus. This training program is in its second week and is a service of the GSC Education Department.

SGA-Sponsored 'Shirrells' Appear

On Tuesday, April 1, the Student Council will give its third annual concert. The concert will be in two performances, at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. in the auditorium.

The concerts will feature the Shirrells, whose big hit was "Soldier Boy," and the Tears from Pittsburgh, Pa. Both groups were obtained through the help of the General Talent Associates.

"This is an opportunity for all the students to attend something for their own benefit," Garry Ramsey, president of SGA, said. He also stated that the last two years the council has lost money on their concerts, but the SGA hopes the students will support the concert so the Council can break even. Last year's concert featured the Vogues.

Advertisement for the concerts can be heard on the radio stations in Sutton, Weston, Clarksburg, Spencer and Parkersburg.

Also, letters have been sent to surrounding area high schools to determine the interest, and to help in the selling of concert tickets. The signs seen around campus were made and donated by the Gilmer County High School art department.

Tickets can be obtained from any SGA officer for $2.50 or at the door for $3. Girls will be given 11 p.m. permissions for the second concert.

TRAINING STARTED FOR GRANDPARENTS

Training for foster grandparents is now in its second week on campus. Foster grandparents spend four hours a day in classes or working with children.

Foster grandparents are working with Mrs. James White's kindergarten as part of their experience. When the program ends, the grandparents will be working two hours a day per child in elementary schools in Gilmer, Ritchie and Wood counties.

The children with whom they will be working are former Head Start students who are slow learners.

Samuel Dilworth Leslie, concert pianist to appear in tomorrow's Lyceum program.

Dilworth-Leslie To Give Concert In GSC Auditorium

by Cecil Lee Butcher

Samuel Dilworth-Leslie, an internationally known concert pianist who has frequently performed throughout the United States and Europe, will present a concert at Glenville State College on Thursday, March 27, in the auditorium at 8 p.m.

This eminent Brooklyn-born pianist of international stature started his studies at the age of three.

He was brought up in a very large family. His brothers and sisters did not understand his preference for music over baseball and were constantly teasing him.

Then, a friend of the family, Estelle Leslie, stepped in. She was aware of the tight financial situation of the family, and with the agreement of the mother, she assumed the role of foster parent of Samuel, and provided for his musical training until the age of 16, when a group of six women from various walks of life joined her in providing Samuel's musical training, and so formed the Dilworth-Leslie Sponsors.

This group united quickly and easily. They provided for Samuel's books and incidental expenses and also paid for his transfer to the Manhattan High School of Music and Art for private instruction under Theron B. Hart.

Samuel later entered the Manhattan School of Music where costs increased. The Dilworth-Leslie Sponsors expanded its membership to meet the financial needs at school and to purchase a Baldwin grand piano for the teen-aged boy. At the completion of each school year, Samuel gave a private, living-room recital concert for his sponsors as his way of thanking them for their support.

Upon his graduation, his enlarged sponsors group suggested graduate work in both music and education. They underwrote his continuation at Manhattan School of Music for a Master's Degree in Music and simultaneous enrollment at Columbia University for another Master's degree in music education.

He served two years in the Army where he abhorred basic training. His letters to his foster mother and to his sponsors were filled with the complaint that he was "too tired to play." Upon subsequent transfer to Special Services, he returned to his one consuming interest and managed to give several recitals to Army personnel.

NTE Given April 12

Seniors planning to graduate in June are again reminded of the National Teachers Examination to be given on April 12. Published by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J., the test serves as an evaluation of the performance of a student in his particular field or profession. It also will determine a student's general knowledge of all subjects.

For more information concerning the test procedures and requirements contact Mr. Kermit Kinder, Director of Guidance and Counseling.

SGA Proposes Student Senate

This Thursday evening at 6:30 a bill to abolish the Student Government Association constitution will be presented at their meeting in the Student Council room. The bill, proposed by a committee made up of the presidents of the organizations on campus, will, if passed, create a new student senate to consist of 50 members.

Twelve of the members will come from the Greek organizations, two from each group. Eleven will be chosen from Women's Hall residents, seven from Louis Bennett Hall residents, two from Verona Maple Hall residents, the four class presidents and 14 delegates-at-large.

Delegates-at-large will be elected by the student body as will the president and the vice president. The vice president will serve as speaker of the senate. The president will be the executive branch and will appoint his own cabinet to be approved by the senate.

If this measure passes, an inaugural ball in honor of the Student Senate will be held, free of charge, sometime in May by the SGA, to which all students will be invited.

Find A Friend At GSC

Never a week goes by that someone on campus doesn't approach me by saying, "Gee, I got a letter from the Dean and I must see him. What am I going to do?" It has always amazed me that students actually cringe with fear when the President or one of the deans walk past him. It also makes me wonder how students can go through an entire college career without even getting to know one of the deans or the President. The college just doesn't hire these people for administrative bookwork, but to help students in many different ways.

Dr. Wilburn, as president of GSC, is a man with many responsibilities and jobs. Even though he is busy almost every minute, his office is always open to the students and he is quite willing to help in any way he can.

As Dean of Academic Affairs, Dr. Delmer K. Somerville seems to have an endless job. He is constantly working on new programs, courses, and student academic problems. His office is also open for students with problems.

Perhaps the women's hours seem ridiculous to many students, but when you realize how many women are on campus, you can see with what a job Dean Jean Wright is confronted. Along with serving as a guide for those women, Dean Wright works on the activities, loans, and scholarship committees.

Dean Alfred Billips never seems to have a moment to himself but is always ready to meet and help students. As Dean of Student Affairs, he is responsible for discipline, financial aid, housing, health service, and other such activities. Besides all this, he is an adviser for Omega Kappa Phi fraternity and the Greek Council.

Since becoming employed on campus last summer, Dean Stanley Hayward has been called upon in the evenings, awakened at night, been asked to be a speaker for organizational events, a counselor, a member of the activities, loans and scholarship committees, and a chaperone for social events. Even though he has done all of the above he still discusses new ideas and improvements with students and organizations.

Through all of these efforts, a student can apparently see that the President and the deans really are human. It is time that students get over their fear and seek the many benefits that these people have to offer. Perhaps students would even be surprised how much faster they can have a problem solved by talking to one of the deans or the President than to their fellow students.

Constructive Criticism Good

To the Editor of

THE GLENVILLE MERCURY:

I am glad to read the comments and criticisms of the MERCURY by GSC students in the MERCURY of the past few weeks. I believe this criticism is good for the paper, as long as it is good constructive criticism, and not silly nonsense, although that may also be good at times. I don't consider the pointing out of minor typographical errors to be constructive criticism. All people make mistakes, especially when there is a deadline to meet, as in newspaper work. I know of all the pressures of working under a deadline, as I work on the Gilmer County High School News and the high school yearbook staff. Constructive criticism should be welcomed. If you have something to say, don't be ashamed to put your name to it.

Sincerely,
Mark Turner

Janice Reed and Erven Rowan, GSC's first students to graduate with a degree in French.

Reed, Rowan Are First French Grads

Two Glenville State College seniors will become the first students to graduate from this college with AB degrees in secondary education specializing in French.

Janice Reed of Glenville, and Erven Rowan of Gassaway, both have had six years of French and are now doing their student teaching. Miss Reed, who graduated from Glenville High School in 1965, is doing her student teaching at Gilmer County High School.

Rowan graduated from Sutton High School in Sutton and is doing his student teaching half a day at Gassaway High School and half a day at Sutton High School.

Rowan, who has served as president of Kappa Delta Pi and his freshman class, enjoys creative writing, photography, dancing, and swimming.

When Rowan was asked why he chose French as his field, he said, "Through my first incentives to study French dealt merely with the excitement found in being able to speak a few French phrases, I soon began to discover the enormous influence that French and its 'Greats' have had upon the literary, political, and philosophical movements in the history of America." "To 'know' both French and English or any other foreign language is to 'know' two worlds—and with the knowing, to better understand the inhabitants of each," he remarked.

Miss Reed has been a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha Sorority for three years and has held the offices of scholarship chairman and chaplain. She enjoys swimming, golf and reading.

When asked why she chose French for her major, Miss Reed replied, "My first desire to become a French teacher was mainly due to the influence of my high school French teacher, Mrs. Rosaline Miller of Gilmer County High School." She said also that she had been working with Mrs. Miller and Mademoiselle Navolet, a Fullbright fellow in 1967-68, now a consultant of the US Department of State. "We have been working on a project of writing a history of West Virginia in French for a newspaper publication in France," she added.

The French program, developed last year, is under the direction of Mr. Carl Kerr and Mr. John Muir with 15 students participating.

Elevator Now Operating

One of the most-asked questions in Women's Hall since the beginning of the year has been "When will the new elevator be finished?" Construction of the new elevator began at the end of the spring semester of 1968 and continued through the summer months. It was finally completed and put into operation March 13, 1969.

Thomas Hopkiss and Peter Carney, employees of the Otis Elevator Co., are now checking the older elevator which has been in operation for approximately nine years.

Publication Defended

Where will it all end? Who will next use the MERCURY as a whipping boy?

It has now come to the point where no one is actually concerned about constructive criticism of the paper. It is the means by which one faculty member can attack another, and to what avail is it? Personal slanderous remarks are not meant to be published in the college newspaper. First of all, it is a student publication, and not a faculty one. If faculty members wish to have a newspaper, then I suggest that they put one out. Incidentally, I would be interested in looking at someone else's efforts. Perhaps they would find that, much to their surprise, they might have a few errors too.

We are now being attacked for defending ourselves after having been attacked! It is perpetual and isn't it stupid!

We do make mistakes, admittedly. We do not profess to be Christ-like. Besides it would be too much competition for others around here. Certainly, I agree, we should not have to defend ourselves, but, vaguely I recall a man who some years ago defended himself. The man's name was Alexander Pope. He wrote "In Defense of Criticism."

I see the whole matter as going deeper than merely attacking the grammatical errors and errors in make-up. I believe it is symbolic of the immaturity on this campus. Yes, immaturity as shown in the students who have no other worries than to attack the paper, and also of the faculty, who have no more probing, thought-provoking problems with which to be concerned. I have no doubt that this editorial is now being checked for grammatical and typographical mistakes. More power to you. We are not perfect.

Perhaps those who are proposing a new newspaper will use it as an example of what not to do. It seems as though a small group of students are proposing another newspaper. As I understand from the notice which I read, this newspaper would be published at irregular intervals and would contain no news, but rather, editorials, essays and the like. It would seem to me that those who are genuinely concerned to the extent of trying their own endeavor would be of greater service to Glenville State College by concentrating their enlightening and intellectual ideas with those of the MERCURY staff.

The point is that the paper is for everyone, for all the students at Glenville State College. Those who have something enlightening and constructive to say are invited to write to the MERCURY. As we have already displayed, we print all letters which are submitted to the editor, even ones which attack us.

Everyone by this time realizes that nothing is being gained by these assaults and rebuttals but we of the MERCURY staff certainly cannot be blamed for defending our personal integrity. It is only human nature.

To quote an old cliché, "I might not agree with what you have to say, but I would defend to my death your right to say it." There can be a point where the right is abused. I believe we have reached that point. What else is there to say? We have heard every possible remark, assault and rebuttal.

There I've opened the way for an assault on me. Who will be immature enough to take it?

Journalistically,
Janet L. Kesterson
Assistant editor.

Fellow students:

In regard to the situation or should I say chaos in which this eternally tranquil campus has been hurled, I have responded in like manner, vindicating myself and persecuting my peers for their petty attitudes. Yet, upon reflection I note there to be a similitude in all of us and that being our reaching for something of truth, if there be such a thing. It is a sad and lonely quest of which I too am involved, but the utter disregard for others is hindering us rather than catalyzing our journey. I deeply feel that there be a need of revitalization of humanitarian love and obligation and furthermore believe that any improvements we have to make should certainly start with ourselves and OUR society.

Sincerely,
Sharon Neely

Former Adviser Notes Differences In Type of Printing, Make-up

by Keith Boyles

According to Mrs. Opal Vincent Starcher, a former adviser to the "Mercury," relatively few changes have occurred in the general make-up of the school's paper since 1947-49.

Upon comparing the two eras of the "Mercury," Mrs. Starcher noted that the letterpress publication had previously depended more upon advertisements; she distinctly recalls an old Camel cigarette ad which comprised about a quarter of the back page. She cited that proof-reading was virtually impossible because of having to send the paper to press once a week in Buckhannon. Now a firm in Grantsville handles the offset publication.

Mrs. Starcher remembers that the third page was called the sports section only because of tradition; due to the war there were few boys on campus; therefore, Glenville State College was without a football team. But the most interesting fact may be that students at that time seldom used the paper as a means for voicing opinions; news was its only service.

Interestingly enough, Mrs. Starcher's daughter Ann, who is a freshman, is studying journalism this semester and is now enrolled in Journalism 321. Miss Starcher is particularly interested in photography and wishes to pursue her career as a journalist.

Mrs. Starcher was the adviser to several school papers in Ohio, where she and Ann lived for 18 years. They now reside in Glenville. Mrs. Starcher received both her A.B. and M.A. degrees from West Virginia University.

Institute Provides Pre-Law Training

The Council on Legal Education Opportunity has established ten summer institutes to provide pre-law school training for minority group students. Forty college graduates interested in law careers will be awarded all-expense paid scholarships. Included in the program will be classroom study, court experience, seminars, a research and writing program, and activities designed to give the student an insight into the concrete operation of the legal system.

These selected students from minority groups will attend a special program at the University of Virginia and other law schools this summer, sponsored by the Council on Legal Education Opportunity (CLEO). The CLEO Summer Institute at the University of Virginia Law School will run from June 13 through July 24, and will admit approximately 40 minority group students. Emphasis will be on the sharpening of verbal and analytical skills and students will have significant amounts of individual counseling by the instructors and teaching assistants. CLEO will sponsor 10 regional institutes this summer in which 30 law schools will cooperate to prepare some 450 minority group students for law school next fall.

Applications should be submitted if possible, by April 15, the deadline.

Mr. Robert Lord, chairman for the Red Cross in Gilmer County, and instructor of mathematics at GSC indicated that the Red Cross will be happy to accept any donations from GSC students, faculty, administration and Gilmer County residents. Donations may be sent to the Red Cross office located in the county courthouse.

1969 Summer Session Begins June 18, Continues To Aug. 19

The 1969 Summer School will start June 18, and end Aug. 19, a nine weeks term. The normal load for a student will be nine semester hours. Summer school is considered to be a good time for the graduating high school senior to take courses and begin his adjustment to college life.

Summer school this year will offer the largest number of courses ever offered in past summer schools, and 30 staff members will share the teaching load. By next week a complete bulletin will be out explaining the programs and courses offered.

Special programs include a School Attendance Workshop and a Summer Music Camp. The School Attendance Workshop will operate from Aug. 4 to Aug. 8. It is organized and operated by the College, the State Department of Education, and the West Virginia Association of Attendance Workers. College credit is granted to attendance workers, providing they enroll and satisfactorily complete course requirements. Tuition and fees are $24. Board and room for the Workshop will be $17.51 for two to a room. Private room rate is $18.54.

GSC will sponsor its second Annual Music Camp from July 28 through Aug. 8. The total cost for the two-week camp will be $50, which includes tuition, room and board and private instruction.

Participating students will have an opportunity to enroll in the following classes: theory, conducting, history and appreciation, and fine arts seminars. In addition, concert and stage band ensembles will rehearse and present a combined concert at the close of camp.

Any high school student (grades 9-12 as of fall 1969) who has sufficient musical background in band, choir or piano is eligible to attend. A $5 registration fee should accompany the application. This will be applied to the total cost. Recreation in various forms is being planned and will be included in the total cost also. Interested persons should make inquiry with Mr. Ronald Ross, Director of Summer Music Camp.

Folk Singing Group Appears April 8

The New Lost City Ramblers, a folk singing group, will appear on Glenville's campus April 8. This group, which will be presented as part of the Lyceum program, consists of three members. They are John Cohen, Tracy Schwarz and Mike Seeger.

Each member of The New Lost City Ramblers plays banjo and guitar, and each has traveled extensively and studied various forms of folk music. Their program is designed "to show the range and depth of American country music, in a setting which is close to the spirit of the original sources for that music. The focus is the old time string bands of the 1920's and 30's, but includes music from earlier periods as well as the contemporary manifestations of this traditional Bluegrass style."

According to the "Washington Post," "the songs range from ancient ballads brought to the secluded hills and reshaped by American tradition, to the 'pop art' of country music, Bluegrass. They are all performed with a good humor that belies the seriousness with which these fellows approach their music."

The New Lost City Ramblers have over the past six years "not only established themselves and their music in the current folk music picture, but they have single-handedly sparked a revival of interests in traditional southern mountain music."

The New Lost City Ramblers will perform in the auditorium Tuesday, April 8, at 8 p.m.

Building Program To Get Underway

According to President D. Banks Wilburn, a new building program will be started at GSC beginning April 1. Bonds issued by the GSC Housing Corporation provides for $1,200,000 for a dormitory to house 200 men students and for ten faculty houses. The site of the construction will be High Street adjoining the college property on North Court Street where Old Louis Bennett Lounge is now located.

At the present time, several members of the college personnel are being housed in one duplex, five houses and an eight-unit two story apartment. Part of the new building complex for faculty members may be constructed this year in the new College Park area found off Mineral Road in Northview.

To alleviate housing problems for women, an extension is to be added to Women's Hall. This additional six-floor wing will house over 300 women students. The State Board of Education has approved request for application to be made with the U.S. Housing and Urban Development Authority for a $1,600,000 loan for this construction. The loan will include the sum of $202,000 to furnish the wing.

If funds are allocated for the project, the construction will start in late 1969 or early 1970.

Interviews Scheduled

During the afore mentioned months, several nationwide educational departments who are looking for prospective teachers will be interviewing seniors. There will also be a few business companies holding interviews.

Since the employer comes to the prospective employee for interviews this specialized service of assisting, advising, and aiding the students makes it much easier for the student to find a job. Therefore, all graduating seniors interested should make an appointment for an interview if they have not done so.

The schedule for interviews during April and May is as follows: Aetna Life Insurance, April 15; Washington Court House, Ohio, April 17; L'anse Creuse School System, April 18; Boy Scouts (professional opportunities), April 21; Newark, Del. (prospective teachers), April 23; Department of Interior (teacher recruitment), May 6; Naval Aviation (Washington, D. C.), May 9 and 10.

To sign up for interviews, students must see Mr. Paul E. Nagy whose office is in the Pioneer Center.
