Annual Camp Scheduled

Glenville State College will sponsor its second annual Summer Music Camp for high school students from July 28 to Aug. 8, 1969.

Realizing the need for quality instruction in musicianship and performance, the music faculty has sought to plan a two-week camp centered around the needs of the average high school musician.

The camp is open to all high school students who are active in an ensemble program or study piano privately and who will be in the ninth grade or above in the fall of 1969. Graduating seniors are also eligible to enroll.

During his stay on campus, each musician will receive individual applied instruction at least once a week. He will be enrolled in theory and conducting classes that meet his demonstrated abilities. Concentrated music study and planned recreation will be the order of the day, each day for those who participate.

Students may enroll in theory, conducting, history and appreciation classes, and may also enroll for applied lessons in voice, piano, or their individual instruments. There is no extra charge for private lessons.

Students will be allowed to participate in band, choir, and brass ensemble.

The camp will be staffed by members of the GSC music faculty. Mr. Ronald Ross, Director of Bands, will serve as camp director and co-ordinator of the instructional and ensemble program, and will teach theory and applied piano.

David E. Harry, Chairman of Fine Arts, will direct the stage band and teach applied brass. Mark C. Aamot, Director of Choral Activities, will teach voice, appreciation, and will also direct the camp chorus. Edward M. Vineyard, Woodwind Specialist, will teach woodwind applied and direct the summer camp band. David Cadle, band director at Gilmer County High School, will teach lower brass, applied and direct the brass ensemble. In addition, several advanced GSC music students will serve as counselors and assistants.

Several full scholarships to Summer Music Camp are available to qualified students. Applicants for scholarships must audition at Glenville State College on May 24, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Students should secure scholarship audition blanks from Mr. Ross. Results of the audition will be announced after June 1.

Summer Music Camp will have access to all music facilities including air-conditioned rehearsal and classrooms, practice rooms, plus the air-conditioned auditorium and ballroom. Housing will be in the college dormitories and meals will be served in the college cafeteria.

A fee of $50 will cover all expenses of the two week camp including the private lessons, materials and facilities. A $5 registration fee will accompany the application and the remaining $45 is due upon arrival at camp. Applications will be accepted until the opening of camp but it is preferred that they be returned by June 15 to: Mr. Ronald D. Ross, Director of Summer Music Camp, Glenville State College, Glenville, W. Va., 26351.

Chemists Address Faculty, Students

Two chemists will visit Glenville State College in May to speak to chemistry students and faculty. Dr. James E. Worsham, professor of chemistry at the University of Richmond, will be here on May 1 and 2, and Dr. John P. Dickie, a research chemist for the Koppers Co., will be here on May 9.

Dr. Worsham is a native of Newport News, Va., and received his undergraduate degree at the University of Richmond. He earned his Master of Science degree at Vanderbilt University and his Ph. D. at Duke University. Prior to joining the Richmond faculty he served as a research chemist at Oak Ridge National Laboratory and taught at Hampden-Sydney College. He has been a lecturer in the Medical College of Virginia, where he has been doing work since 1963 as a consultant to the Cardio-Pulmonary Division of the Department of Medicine. Last year he was appointed an American Chemical Society Visiting Scientist to visit a number of colleges and give lectures on analog computers and their use in chemistry and in new teaching techniques.

Dr. Dickie is manager of the Organic Chemistry Group in the Exploratory Research Section of Koppers Research Department. He received his B.A. degree in chemistry at the University of Minnesota, and the M.S. degree in organic chemistry and Ph. D. degree in biochemistry from the University of Wisconsin. Following a one year postdoctoral at Wisconsin, he joined the Petroleum Fellowship at Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh where he served seven years as a research fellow prior to joining Koppers Co. in 1968.

Student Apathy Inexcusable

Being a student at GSC for several years, I have always wondered at the relatively small amount of enthusiasm displayed in campus elections. The amount of apathy displayed by GSC students is inexcusable.

According to political science doctrine, an intelligent voter should: (1) be informed on the issue; (2) think that the issue directly involves him; and (3) see that the politician perceives the issues. Only 25 per cent of all American voters fall into this category and it is my guess that the percentage is even lower at GSC.

The ironic part of the political scientist view, however, is that the high percentage of voters are college educated.

Tomorrow the Student Government Association will hold elections for the 1969-70 SGA officers. This election directly involves each student at GSC. Why then do a relatively small percentage of voters participate in the election?

The answer to this question could be indefinite. Perhaps one answer is the fact that the SGA at Glenville is relatively unimportant. However, the SGA is a student organization to benefit the students at Glenville and the officers are not entirely the ones to blame.

Last year's SGA took a great stride forward from the SGA's in the past by placing students on committees of the FAO. However, the quest should not stop here. These student representatives are still not allowed to vote at the FAO meetings where the committee bills must pass one final count. The new SGA officers should work on this.

Another somewhat ironic fact is that the SGA candidates go to great trouble writing platforms but forget about them when they are elected. Again though, the blame should not be placed entirely on the SGA officers but on the numerous percentage of apathetic students at Glenville.

It is these students who complain about women's hours, parking, faculty policies and numerous other problems but do nothing to solve them. It is also these students who "cry" for more activities at GSC and do not attend the concerts in which big-name groups appear, thus causing the SGA to lose money each year.

I hope that this election will see more students studying the issues and then voting for the candidate whom he thinks will do the best job in representing him and not losing interest when in office. If you read the platforms of this year's candidates you will easily notice that there are many issues involving your college career.

Take action now on these issues and vote tomorrow. Do not stop with simply voting, but keep after the officers next year to pursue your issues.

Perhaps if students at GSC can unite, then we can experience some much needed changes.

R. Scott Cribbs.

Words, Words!

WORDS

You're cheating dear old Dad and Mom,

Pretending you're studying hard.

Mr. Beach just hates West Virginia.

We can go to the graveyard;

I'm not sure I ought. My mother won't like it.

Over fifteen faculty members are leaving this year.

It is said that Appalachian people are backward-looking.

If God had wanted me to pass this test,

He'd made me pass; I've done the best I can.

We should elect Jack Albert to other offices,

So he'll be head of everything.

And while the mountain man takes his religion seriously,

It must preach only what he wants to hear.

And faculty members should refrain from using the Mercury To expound their foolish opinions.

Never any disagreement, yeh Kesterson.

Dean Somerville is a good dean.

People say that about every dean.

And every pope.

Mr. Rucker says Glenville is the most isolated spot he's seen, But that isn't so bad, if considered alone.

The county voters rejected the bond issue.

Words, words, words, words, words, words.

Too lazy to put them together into intelligent phrases.

Too trifling to use good words, only trite words.

Too apathetic to strive for more than mediocrity.

Too satisfied with the old ways to learn what is new, dynamic, or modern.

Too pleased with oneself to want a real education.

Words, yea, Glenville, Words, Words.

Someday we'll get our diplomas.

They'll have words.

Charles F. Almeida, Band Master, U.S. Army Field Band

Studio Band Will Perform In Auditorium on May 7

The Studio Band of the United States Army Field Band of Washington, D.C. will perform in concert on Wednesday, May 7, at 8 p.m. in the Glenville State College Auditorium.

"This band couples young ideas, original arrangement and compositions with a sound which is perhaps best described as a blend of hard rock and jazz. Composed of highly talented and versatile musicians the studio band has performed throughout the country in concert, and at music clinics and conferences. In addition, its list of credits includes recordings and video-tapes for Armed Force, and radio and television network with world-wide distribution."

The majority of its members are graduates of the nation's conservatories and schools of music including Eastman, Juilliard and North Texas State University. They have formerly performed with Les and Larry Elgact, Si Zentner, Buddy Morrow and other bands.

The director of the Studio Band and an associate bandmaster of the United States Army Field Band is Chief Warrant Officer (CW3) Charles F. Almeida Jr. of Riverside, R.I.

Almeida was graduated from East Providence (R.I.) High School in 1944 and attended the Rhode Island Conservatory of Music. He performed with bands in New York, Chicago, and Las Vegas, as well as leading his own band, "The Internationals," in the Miami-Key West area. In 1951 Almeida joined the United States Air Force Band and for three years played the saxophone with the Airmen of Note. Following this assignment, he was first sergeant of the Air Force Bands at both Elgin and Patrick Air Force Bases in Florida. During the winter of 1956, between Air Force enlistments, he played flute with the Miami Symphony Orchestra.

In 1962, Almeida enlisted in the United States Army and was assigned as a woodwind instructor at the Army Element of the U.S. Naval School of Music at Washington, D.C. He then applied and was accepted for the Bandmaster Preparatory School, also in Washington. In December of 1962, he was graduated from this school and appointed a Warrant Officer Bandmaster.

He was assigned to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., as a commanding officer and conductor of the 36th Army Band, and while stationed there studied music for two years at the University of Arizona. From October, 1965, until August, 1966, he served as bandmaster of the Eighth U.S. Army Band in Seoul, Korea. In September, 1966, he was reassigned to the United States as Commanding Officer of the Army Element, NORAD Band, Colorado Springs. It was from there that he came to the Field Band in May, 1968.

A recipient of several Air Force Medals, Almeida has also been awarded the Army Commendation Medal, the Army Good Conduct Medal, and the National Defense Service Medal.

Literary Society Plans Open Poetry Conclave

An open poetry conclave is presently being planned by the GSC Literary Society for Sunday, May 18. The meeting will be held in the old Louis Bennett Lounge from 3 to 5 p.m. Anyone who has written poetry that he would like to read or have read at the meeting should notify Michael Ireland, president of the Literary Society, by May 4. Poets will not be required to explicate their works, and anyone is welcome to attend.

Education 201, 202 Sequence Altered

Advisers and students entering Glenville State College as candidates for an A.B. degree in Teacher Education after June 1, 1969, should be alert to changes which have been made in the sequence of Education 201- Human Growth and Development I, and Education 301-Human Growth and Development II (previously 202).

Education 201 will be taken during the sophomore year. Education 301 has been moved to the junior year and a student must have been admitted to Teacher Education before he may enroll in it. A Junior Year Practicum will be a part of this course.

Students who are currently enrolled in a program in Teacher Education may continue on the present sequence of Education 201 and 301 (202). Such students are urged to take these courses at the earliest opportunity. Education 201 and 301 (202) are being offered in the 1969 summer session.

Freshmen entering Glenville State College in June or September 1969 and thereafter may not enroll in Education 201 until the sophomore year. There will be a seminar in introduction to education conducted during the second semester of the freshman year for students enrolled in a pre-education program.

Allocations Granted To State Institutions

For the first time since enactment of Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, State institutions for neglected and delinquent children are receiving advance notification of Federal funding, the U.S. Office of Education reported today.

More than 47,850 children in 249 State institutions across the country will receive at least $12,565,980 in Federal education aid during the 1969-70 school year. This represents 90 per cent of the funds available in 1968-69, as assured by the 1969 Department of Health, Education and Welfare-Labor Appropriations Act.

"Formerly, educators in institutions for neglected and delinquent children could only estimate the amount of Federal money available to them for the coming fiscal year," said Leon M. Lessinger, Associate Commissioner for Elementary and Secondary Education. "The actual figures seldom were known until late fall when programs already were underway. This made planning difficult. Advance funding, provided for the first time under the 1969 Appropriations Act, now gives the institutions much-needed lead time."

The State institutions use the funds for new educational approaches to enable the children to re-enter successfully society's mainstream.

Title I allocations to local school districts to meet the needs of educationally deprived children also will be made in advance of fiscal year 1970, after current eligibility date is received.

Hechler Supports Vietnam Pull-Out

"The over-inflated defense budget can be cut $30 billion by immediate withdrawal from Vietnam," Rep. Ken Hechler stated April 22.

Hechler cited the annual cost of America's presence in Vietnam as $30 billion. "The money experts claim that every penny of the $30 billion would not be saved by American withdrawal, because of such items as investments in new defense systems used in Vietnam. But belt-tightening in other defense areas, and a reversal of the decision to proceed with the expensive anti-ballistic missile system would easily make up the balance of the $30 billion a year which can be saved," Rep. Hechler stated.

Social Studies Internships Inaugurated in Philadelphia

A new "model" for Antioch-Putney M.A.T. internship program in secondary social studies is being inaugurated in 1969-70 in Antioch-Putney's Philadelphia Center. There are three entry times: June, 1969, August 1969, and February 1970. A full-time teaching for one-half a school year is built into the five-quarter, 16-month program; stipends will be $4000. Intern teaching assignments will be in social studies and reading (at the junior high level); in social studies at the senior high level; in introductory social science at the community college level.

The group entering in June will teach from September to February, and complete the program in August, 1970. The group entering in August will teach from February to June, and complete the program in December 1970. The group entering in February 1970 will teach from September 1970 to February 1971, and will complete the program in June 1971.

The 16-month MAT program of the August and February groups consists of a six-month pre-internship training, a five-month full-time teaching assignment, a five-month academic period. The June group will have a three-month pre-internship training period, a five-month full-time teaching assignment, and a seven-month academic period.

Assignments are in Germantown area schools of northwest Philadelphia—except for some community college assignments elsewhere in the city. The office of the Antioch-Putney Philadelphia Center is in central Germantown.

Interns are urged to seek housing in the Germantown area. Apartments are reasonably plentiful and reasonably priced. Germantown is a community of economic, social and racial heterogeneity. The public schools have a predominately black enrollment. Those interested in this program should write to: Robert L. Tripp, Director of Admissions, Antioch-Putney Graduate School, Yellow low Springs, Ohio, 45387. Applications for the February and August groups, as well as for the June group, are now being taken.

The Antioch-Putney Center in Washington, D.C. has announced an all-elementary program. With the growing needs for competent teachers in the elementary schools of the cities the Washington Center proposes to focus on this level next year. The program will include a mix of experienced teachers, community interns and first-year teaching interns all working/studying in degree programs.

The work will be primarily in the schools that are involved in the process of becoming more responsive to community needs. The fact that 94 per cent of the children and the majority of teachers in the D.C. public school system are black will strongly influence the program plans for next year. The program is designed to help the intern define a subject matter interest and develop this against the backdrop of a desire to work with young children.

The Washington Center's elementary program will enable interns to obtain their MAT's in the usual five-quarter period common to all Antioch-Putney internship programs. Students enrolling in June will teach half-time in an elementary school from September to June, completing their work in August 1970. Internship stipends pay up to $6100.

Those interested should write to Edward Harris, Antioch-Putney Washington Center, 1744 Riggs Place N.W., Washington, D.C., 20009, or write to the Yellow Springs address above.

Applications are being accepted for anticipated internships at the elementary and secondary levels in the Dayton, Ohio, Miami Valley area (Yellow Springs Center) and in South-eastern Vermont (Putney Center). Also, applications are being accepted for the four-quarter, non-internship MAT program. Write to the above Yellow Springs address for information and applications.

Ninth Season Begins For Outdoor Drama

"Honey in the Rock," West Virginia's outdoor historical musical drama will begin its ninth season of showing June 21 and will last until August 31.

The production takes place high in the cool mountains far from the roar of city traffic in the Cliffs Amphitheatre at the Grandview State Park near Beckley, W. Va.

The drama is the story of a pioneer people living in the New River Valley-separated by the Appalachian mountains from the more sophisticated and wealthy portion of their state, Virginia. The drama and heart-break of the Civil War and its effect on these people is revealed. In particular its effect is seen in the lives of the play's central family, the John Morgan family. Morgan's struggles to lead the people into making a decision for freedom from the domination of "the politicians in Richmond" almost destroys his own family. His son, Dave, is torn between his love of family, his desire for peace, and his fondness for a southern belle from Richmond. The story in HONEY ranges from the log home of Francis Pierpont the headquarters of a U. S. Cavalry unit, the office of Sen. Andrew Johnson in Washington, D. C., and a sentry post near Fredericksburg, Va. This serious musical drama is interspersed with the rough and hearty mountaineer humor typical of the period and includes an appealing love story.

The sparkling production of "Honey in the Rock" is frequently termed as an extravagant musical by playgoers. There are various reasons for this. A 12-member troupe of dancers perform five exciting dances—the thrilling pagan Indian "Dance to the Fire God;" the stately and beautiful waltz of southern plantation days; a rousing country dance; the quick-stepping, hell-stompin' hoo-down; and a rollicking, fun-filled polka. A HONEY chorus of trained voices is an on-stage feature of the production as are the versatile musicians. In addition to the original music written for the drama, folk ballads popular a century ago are heard. Beautiful costumes add to the color of the production—homespun and calico worn by mountaineers; silks, satins and velvet by the Indians also add color to the drama. The spectacular production takes place under a canopy of stars, in the cool, fresh air of the West Virginia mountains.

During the past eight seasons over 230,000 people have seen "Honey in the Rock." It has influenced the state and federal governments to increase tourist attractions in parks and forests; influenced private construction of motels, restaurants, golf courses, riding schools, and stables; renewed pride of citizens in their state and themselves, and made them aware of their heritage which resulted in an upsurge in home craft industry.

Prices are $3.50 for a special reserved seat, $2.50 for a reserved seat, $1 for children under 12 (not good for special reservation.) Send money for tickets now along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and also the date you wish to see the performance to "Honey in the Rock," Box 1205, Beckley, W. Va., 25801.

Prep To Aid Local Schools

A new information service to State education agencies called PREP will help local schools take advantage of important research findings in improving classroom practices, the U.S. Office of Education has announced.

PREP stands for Putting Research into Educational Practice. A cooperative effort of the Education Office's Bureau of Research, it will provide up-to-date interpretive reports of research and development aimed at meeting current educational problems.

"Through this effort we hope to strengthen State and local educational information services and speed the adoption of tested education innovations," Norman J. Boyan, Associate Commissioner for Research, said.

PREP's first report, "Instructional Television Facilities," is a package of easy-to-read materials designed as a practical guide to help local school officials make use of television for educational purposes.

The materials are prepared in a special format so they can be easily and inexpensively reproduced for wide distribution within State Education agencies and to local school systems. There are no copyright restrictions.

Checker Employed

The Robert F. Kidd Library has employed a checker at the main entrance to the library. Everyone's cooperation is requested in showing all library materials to the checker. The purpose of the checker is to assure the library that the materials have been properly signed out. The regular checker will start his duties during the first week of May.

This is the first time that the library has seen the need to employ a checker. The situation has come about by pressure from students and faculty members in demand of materials that the library should have but cannot keep without some protective action being taken. Over the past two years, the library has been relieved of over 2000 books. Also, losses in the periodical section number into the hundreds. This does not include the old, worn-out duplicate volumes that must be discarded and replaced with new ones every year.

Previously, several steps were taken as preventative measures. Student assistants have been hired who are responsible for binding and sorting the periodicals. In this process, old useless periodicals are discarded to make vacant space for more valuable material.

Another step which has been taken to prevent the loss of valuable materials is that many books and periodicals, needed by classes and for special occasions have been placed on reserve behind the circulation desk. These materials may be checked out for two hour's use in the library.

As another measure, many donations have been appreciatively accepted by the library and placed in the collection for everyone's convenience. These donations consist mainly of periodicals, although many books have been accepted also.

It is the hope of the library staff that the hiring of a checker will be the final measure taken to prevent any further losses, however, other measures can and will be taken if deemed necessary by the library staff.

CRC Establishes Scholarship Fund

In order to assist future participants in the Operation Crossroads Africa program, the Campus Religious Council is building a scholarship fund. Since the student must pay the $1,125 himself, he needs assistance from many sources. The CRC has already contributed money to assist this year's participant, Jack Albert.

At this time the scholarship fund has a total of $245. Any person who would like to contribute money to the fund may do so by mailing contributions to Miss Shirley Shepard, Room 619, Women's Hall, Glenville, W. Va., 26351.

Glenville State College is one of three West Virginia colleges which are participating in this program. It is a friendship and aid summer program which takes Americans to Africa for short-term service. While the student is in Africa, he works with African students and villagers carrying out projects requested by the community or the government.
