Group To Perform Shakespeare Play

"A Midsummer's Night Dream" by William Shakespeare will be presented by the National Players April 25, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

In less than two decades the National Players group has established itself as one of the country's leading touring repertory companies. It has performed not only throughout the various parts of the United States, but also in such countries as Italy, France, Germany, Korea, Japan and the Arctic Circle. It has appeared off-broadway, on network television and by special invitation at the White House.

As the longest running touring company in the United States, upon what does the National Player's success depend? It depends upon repertory, audience, personnel and tradition. It is not by chance that recognition arrived very early and has been assiduously maintained: years of preparation stand behind this immediate position and prestige.

Officers Announced For Kappa Delta Pi

At a meeting of Kappa Delta Pi held March 20, new officers were elected to take the place of those officers who were leaving to do their student teaching. They will serve in the coming school year.

Nancy Waybright was elected corresponding secretary. She is a junior from Greenbank, majoring in elementary education.

A junior majoring in elementary education, Phyllis Beverage was elected treasurer. She is from Craigsville.

EDITH WHARTON NOVEL TO BE LITERARY SUBJECT

"Ethan Frome" by Edith Wharton will be discussed at the next meeting of the Literary Society which will be held on Sunday, April 20 at 3 p.m. in the Old Louis Bennett Lounge.

Julia Murin will lead the discussion of the novel which deals with frustrated and blighted love and its disappointments. "Ethan Frome" has long been a favorite novel for high school readers as well as adult readers.

Michael Ireland, president of the Literary Society, opens these meetings to anyone interested in coming.

The repertory of the National Players includes works of Shakespeare, Sophocles, Shaw, Aeschylus, Aristophanes and Moliere—the greatest playwrights of the world. The audience of the Players comprises more than two million persons, who have seen a production in this country, as well as the thousands of U.S. troops who have seen the company's nine overseas tours.

The personnel have numbered over 300 actors, directors, designers and staff members, including such well-known names as the Player's founder, the Rev. Filbert V. Hartke, drama critic Walter Kerr, playwright-novelist Leo Brady, Broadway director Allan Schneider, and many actors now prominent in the professional theater.

"Now approaching its 20th Anniversary Season, National Players look back with gratitude for what has been, and looks ahead with hope for the promise of what is to come. . . a working, thriving, realization in the color, excitement and refreshment that is theater."

Bache & Company Head GSC Investment Course

Glenville State College will offer an investment course on the evenings of April 15 and 22. Bache and Co. has prepared these professional lectures.

The purpose of these lectures is to broaden one's understanding of bonds, stocks, and mutual funds. Bache's Research Department will provide up-to-date information on current market situations which will also be discussed.

Conducting the investment course, for which there will be no charge, will be Mr. Fred Dunham and Mr. John Forbes, Jr. of the Bache Office in Parkersburg. The lectures, which will be held in the Little Theater at Glenville State College, will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will last until 9 p.m.

It is necessary to register in advance because attendance will be limited. In order to register, write or call the Community Development and Research Center, Glenville State College, phone 462-7100.

David Lough and Mary Bland Whiting rehearse "The Lesson" for the Speech Department's production, "Words." The show opens tonight at 8 p.m.

Members of the cast of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," to be presented on the GSC stage by the National Players on April 21.

Unusual Set Seen Tonight

Set construction is now underway for the Speech Department production, "Words." The unusual nature of the play has stimulated an unusual setting which is to be done basically in black and white with splashes of color added.

Since both one-act plays are on stage at the same time, Stewart Beach, director and designer of the set, felt that there was no adequate way to create a set that would satisfy the needs of both. Therefore, he has left the set design to the imagination of the audience, which should prove more satisfying to the individual. But on the other hand, a bare stage would create a feeling of desolation which would be equally undesirable. The scenery he has chosen to use is an anti-set with no attempt to create realism. It is a sculpture or assembly of flats which fill most of the stage, and should remain interesting to look at for a period of time. The anti-set expresses the unusualness of the production to the audience while it carries out the theme of the production, "Words."

The flats are primarily white flanked by black drapes which have been purchased recently for this play. Added to the black and white contrast are colored blinking lights which not only bathe the stage with color, but also the first few rows of seats in the auditorium. These blinking lights also add mood to the production.

Mr. Beach has constructed a thrust stage which will also add to the general effectiveness of the play. This type of stage has a two-fold effect, one being that it gives the audience a closer relationship with the players, and the other that it creates more working space in front of the curtain for the actors.

Two screens will be added to the sides of the auditorium. These screens will be decorated in the new low art form. They will also provide an area for the education and communication films prepared by the speech department.

The lighting for the production will be mostly conventional. But an attempt has been made to give the audience new experiences that they have never had before at a play.

Opening night for the play is April 16 and it will run through April 18.

Casto Named Tour Director

A graduate of Glenville State College with the class of 1965, William G. Casto has been selected teacher coordinator for the Student Study Tour Europe. The tour in Europe is from July 7 to July 28 and is made available for all interested high school students throughout the nation. The program will be directed toward the humanities and all students who successfully meet the requirements will be granted a one hour elective credit.

While at Glenville, Casto was a member of Theta Xi Fraternity, the yearbook staff, the wrestling team and football team for four years. At present he is football coach at James Wood High School in Winchester, Va. He has taught world history for two years and is co-sponsor of the freshman class, fellowship of Christian Athletes and the Varsity Club. He spends his summer as a Red Cross First Aid Instructor and Swimming instructor.

Casto is well known in his community of Winchester and is expected to offer a great deal of knowledge and interest in the area of world history/humanities. "His enthusiasm and vitality will lead to a tour conducive to learning."

SGA Officers To Be Elected

An all-campus election for the 1969-70 Student Government Association officers will be held May 1. Platforms of candidates were presented to the SGA on or before April 1 and are now posted on the bulletin board in the student union for student inspection. An all-campus assembly will be held April 29 in the auditorium in which the candidates will present their campaign addresses.

The officers to be elected are president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and sergeant-at-arms. The two candidates for president are: Nicolynn Kaye Boso, a junior elementary education major from Parkersburg; and Phyllis Lamm, a junior English major from Clarksburg.

Four candidates are running for vice president. They are: Wesley Frame, a sophomore business administration major from Gassaway; Roger Cutright, a junior physics and math major from Harrisville; Sharon Erwin, a junior speech major from Glenville; and Lonnie G. Nicely, a sophomore business education major from Crawley.

The three candidates for secretary are: George Allen, a freshman social studies major from Parkersburg; Roberta Jean Shank, a junior elementary education and special education major from Charleston; and Anne Arthur Knapp, a sophomore art and English major from Charleston.

There are five candidates for treasurer. They are: Ron Riggs, a junior art major from New Matamoras, Ohio; John Westfall, a freshman pre-dentistry major from Glenville; Don Puckett, a sophomore physical education major from Rainelle; Peggy Sue Adams, a junior social studies major from Glenville; and Lora Nelle Weaver, a sophomore elementary education major from Mt. Zion.

The four candidates for sergeant-at-arms are: Fred Boothe, freshman social studies major from Spencer; Tom Patrick, a sophomore English major from Wayne; Roger Simon, a junior social studies major from Gassaway; and Linda Kaye Felton, a sophomore physical education major from Belpre, Ohio.

Elections will be held under the jurisdiction of the present SGA constitution. At their meeting on March 25, the Association decided to reject the petition for adopting a new constitution that would have created an all new student senate. According to SGA president, Garry Ramsey, the association found too many flaws concerning implied powers that they felt should have been more fully specified.

Now the SGA is working on a new draft and plan to have it ready to submit to a vote of the student body before the end of this school year.

Let's Listen to Them

During the past several years Glenville State College, under the leadership of President Wilburn, has pursued a policy of increased student involvement in the decision making procedures of our institution. At the present time all F.A.O. committees include student members. The students are selected for the committees by the Student Government. I should like to point out that this movement toward increased student participation has been accomplished not out of a sense of fear or under the threat of student demonstrations. The administration, faculty and students of Glenville State College have discussed these changes in a rational and reasonable manner.

What possible value is there in student participation in college policy making procedures? Students attend college to learn. The faculty and administration certainly know the best way the learning process can be carried out, but does it follow that what students have to say about the learning process is unimportant and irrelevant? I, for one, do not think so.

My limited experience in observing student participation on committees has led me to the following conclusions. Student committee members are bright, anxious to participate, and well-informed. They do not always vote as a group. They dislike petty bickering, and always like to strike to the heart of matters. Their attendance is regular. For the most part they have no political, departmental or personal axe to grind, but seem vitally concerned about the improvement of Glenville State College as a whole. They are able to keep confidences and appear to be as trustworthy as any other group of human beings. All in all, my observations of students acting on committees have led me to believe that under-graduates can make a valuable and worthwhile contribution. A contribution toward making Glenville State a more dynamic and creative force in education.

I do not mean to say that every student on our campus is ready to be cast in the role of a policy maker. Many are immature and seek self-satisfaction over academic excellence. Many are subject to the influence of fads and "pop" ideas. However, during my tenure at Glenville State I have gained a great deal of confidence in the judgment of our student body. Our students have shown a remarkable ability to choose individuals who are mature and responsible to represent them.

In my view students at Glenville State do not seek the dominate role in the creation of college policy. However, they do wish to have a legitimate voice in creating policies which affect the entire college community. Student energy and intelligence must be turned into constructive paths. Columbia and other instances of campus uprising throughout the country have demonstrated what student intelligence and organization can do when pointed toward destruction. It is my strong belief that welcoming of student participation in constructive efforts to improve their chosen institution will best serve the educational goals of Glenville State College.

Hechler Resolution Introduced

Congressman Ken Hechler has introduced a resolution for the United States to start cutting back its military involvement in Vietnam.

"Although peace talks have been going on in Paris for 10 months, the fact remains American boys are getting killed and wounded every day in Vietnam," Hechler explained. "It is time for Congress to support the desire of the American people to start de-escalating our military involvement over there."

Hechler noted that over one year ago, (March 11, 1968), when there was talk of sending an additional 206,000 American troops to Vietnam, he and a number of other House members co-sponsored a resolution providing: "Resolved, That it is the sense of Congress the United States should not increase its military involvement in Vietnam."

Less than three weeks later, the decision to restrict the bombing was announced and initial steps were taken which led to the opening of the Paris peace talks.

"I believe our resolution then made a contribution to the decision against further escalation of the war in Vietnam," Hechler stated. "The time has come now to start the process of de-escalation."

The current resolution introduced by Congressmen Hechler, William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., and 31 others provides: "Resolved, that it is the sense of Congress that the United States should begin to reduce its military involvement in Vietnam."

New Program Starts Apr. 19

"Career Opportunity," a new division of the West Virginia Department of Commerce, has been announced by Lysander L. Dudley, Commissioner of the Department. The first meeting with prospective employees will be held April 19 in Charleston.

The sole purpose of the new division will be to seek employment for graduates of West Virginia colleges and universities with either State Government or industry located in The Mountain State.

Governor Arch A. Moore will initiate "Career Opportunity" April 19 at 10:30 a.m. when he will meet with interested graduate students and seniors in his office. After his remarks, the various department heads and their staffs will spend the day interviewing prospective employees.

Although "Career Opportunity" will eventually include the search for jobs in industry, the April 19 meeting will be only for those interested in employment with State Government. Mr. Dudley indicates that all departments need qualified personnel and that "employment in State Government will give our young people an excellent opportunity to begin their careers."

Dr. Paul Nagy asks all seniors who are interested in employment with the State Government and who would like to attend the meeting to contact him today. Mr. Nagy, director of placement services at Glenville State College, has his office in the Pioneer Center. It is essential that interested students contact him today as Mr. Dudley has requested that a list of the people who will attend be submitted before the April 19 meeting.

Movie Is Staged By Science Club

April 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium the Science Club will present a movie, "No Time for Sergeants," starring Andy Griffith and Murray Hamilton. The admission will be 50 cents.

Williams Films, Inc. has this to say about the movie: "This is the hilarious story of the peace-time Air Force and their unsuccessful attempts to indoctrinate a naive Georgia farm boy, played by Andy Griffith. On his way to camp Andy comes under the guidance of a tough leader who has had some ROTC training. Andy excuses his guides surly behavior in the belief that ROTC is some sort of disease which is still lingering. At camp, the barracks commander is Sergeant King, whose philosophy is that in peace-time his duty can be very quiet, if nobody 'rocks the canoe.' Of course Andy rocks it and is proud when given the assignment as P.L.O. (Permanent Latrine Orderly). In one of the maddest flights in aviation, Andy and his sidekick Nick Adams fly up into the wild blue yonder aboard a bomber and end up in the middle of an atomic test at the Yucca flats. The picture is just one long string of comic situations, one after another, that will keep any audience in stitches of laughter."

Mothers Day Theme Told

Alpha Sigma Alpha has announced the theme for their Mother's Day Sing as "The Ideal Mother." Each organization is to select one song reflecting this theme plus one other selection. A trophy will be awarded to the first, second, and third place winners. This year the Alpha Sigs are charging a $5 entry fee to cover the cost of the trophies.

Entrants will be judged on the following: (1) Originality and appropriateness of selections; (2) general appearance of the group; (3) presentation or actual performance; and (4) percentage of the group participating. A group may receive from 0 to 5 points on each of the categories.

The ASA pledges have been assigned big sisters. The following girls have received little sisters: Teresa Snider, Ruth Orendorf, Judy Sanford, Katherine Oliver, Susan Sloan, Carolyn Eisman, Cheryl Blankenship, Judy Greenlee, Margaret Hirst, Sharon Slusher and Jean Moran.

Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority will be the sponsor of the annual State Day activities to be held April 25. The sorority will serve as host to the Alpha Sig chapters from Concord College and Marshall University. The theme of this year's program will be "The Mod Mod World of ASA."

The activities will take place on Sunday, May 11 in the amphitheater if the weather permits. The alternative location will be the college auditorium. Any organization that has not turned in their entry blank is requested to do so immediately.

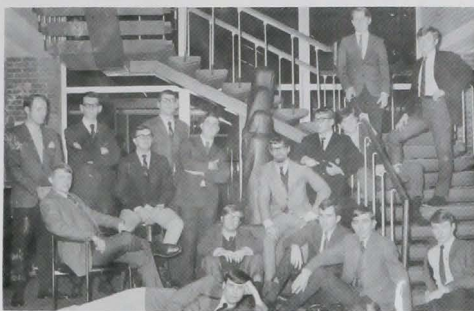

For those girls who live in the dorm, the Alpha Sigs are holding a bake sale tonight.

The pledge class treated the actives to a party in the form of an Hawaiian luau on Monday, April 14, in Old Louis Bennett Lounge. Also invited to attend were the mother patronesses. The pledges served teriyaki burgers with Hawaiian punch, tropical shishkabob, and for desert, Hawaiian sun. The outstanding feature of this party, however, was the fact that guests were served by topless attendants—waiters of course.

Nu Lambda Psi Sisters Plan College Visitations

Nu Lambda Psi Sorority held its first annual weekend April 11 and 12 when it sponsored "The Stone Age Stomp." The festivities featured the Philly-Loo-Birds playing for the mix Friday night and the Esquires from Charleston playing for the "stomp" Saturday night.

Projects being organized by the sorority include the visitation of other college campuses by members of NLP. The purpose of these visits is to view the different national sororities and to become acquainted with different Greek systems. The sorority is also working on fund-raising campaigns with projects such as bake sales and selling stationery.

Former members of Omega Kappa Phi, now to be known as the Lambda Chi Alphas.

OKP Goes National Lambda Chi Alpha

The brothers of Omega Kappa Phi local social fraternity are now to become the Brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha National Fraternity.

On March 27, National Headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind. contacted Jack Albert, president, of the decision by Lambda Chi's High Zeta. Omega Kappa Phi was founded on March 19, 1968, and had existed as a local fraternity for one year and nine days. From their beginning the charter membership expressed their desire to obtain national affiliation. Over the past year the brothers have talked to representatives of several outstanding national organizations.

Lambda Chi first contacted Omega Kappa Phi in May of 1968, when traveling secretary Jerry J. Nix came to the campus. Final action came on March 21, 1969, for the affiliation.

Lambda Chi Alpha, the third largest national fraternity in the world, having two chapters in Canada and one in Japan, will induct the Glenville chapter into a period of colonization. During this time extensive reports and statements will be made to the National Headquarters, where programmed instructions will be sent back to the Chapter. The period of colonization is a time period during which the members have full fraternal knowledge of Lambda Chi Alpha and are brothers of the bond. This lasts from six months to a year, and after certain requirements are fulfilled, the organization will reach full chapter membership.

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at Boston College in 1909. There are two existing chapters in West Virginia, one at West Virginia University and the other at Marshall University.

Glenville State College has two distinguished members of this national fraternity on the administrative staff, President D. Banks Wilburn, and Dean of Student Affairs, Dr. A. T. Billips. From their contact with Omega Kappa Phi, the executive committee of Lambda Chi made note that they accepted only three colonies per academic year and that induction would take place possibly the weekend of May 24, 1969.

The colors of green, gold and white of Lambda Chi Alpha will be soon displayed by the former members of Omega Kappa Phi.

In other fraternity news, the brothers of Omega Kappa Phi are again planning to attend the raft races at W. Va. Tech in Montgomery.

Dr. W. Fred Totten, Director of Graduate Study in Community Education, Moss Program of the Flint (Mich.) Board of Education and Professor of Education in the Graduate School, Eastern Michigan University, will address the Ninth Educational Development Conference which will be held Wednesday, April 30, 1969, on the Glenville State College campus.

Coach Miliken is very pleased with the defense and says the team has committed no mental errors. The hitting seems to lack confidence but should come around.

Bowlers Are Third

GSC finished third in a conference bowling tournament held last weekend at Oak Hill. Beckley won the tournament with a pinfall of 10,481; Condord, 10,429; and Glenville, 10,414. Beckley is not permitted to represent the conference because it is a two-year institution, therefore, Concord will represent the conference at the national tournament in Kansas City.

Glenville placed three men on the five man all-conference bowling team. They are: Lynn Dawson, Dave Bodkin and Al Malone.

Lynn Dawson is a sophomore from Buckhannon majoring in social studies. Dawson, besides being all-conference, was selected "Bowler of the Year." Dawson averaged 190 for the tournament.

Dave Bodkin is a junior from South Charleston majoring in physical education. Bodkin averaged 176 and had a high game of 223.

A freshman from Waverly, Al Malone is majoring in business administration. Malone averaged 189 for the tournament and had a high game of 264.

New Project Is Designed To Bring W. Va. Tourism

Of the three ways of bringing new money and business into an area (agriculture, industry, and tourist development) tourist development is probably the quickest and least difficult method. In order for tourism to increase in this area, however, "there must be a general area cleanup program and an upgrading of existing services with the resulting boost in morale and local pride." An attempt is now being made to do this through a program called Heartland West Virginia, Inc.

Heartland West Virginia Inc. is a "non-profit organization of volunteers devoted to promoting the assets, advantages, and attractions in the seven central West Virginia counties. The seven counties participating are: Braxton, Clay, Gilmer, Lewis, Nicholas, Upshur and Webster.

The supporters of Heartland believe that no matter what business one is in, whether a farmer, business man or professional man, increased tourist travel will benefit him. It has been estimated that an average of 100 tourists in an area per day would have the following benefits: 50 more households, 175 more people, $350,000 more personal income, $150,000 more retail sales, 100,000 more bank deposits. It is also believed that more tourist trade would ease the local tax burden and that it may bring more industry into this area.

Heartland West Virginia, Inc., which was officially organized in February of 1966, has had steady progress during the last three years in developing tourist attractions and facilities in this area. It carries on a progressive advertising campaign through various advertising media. Some of the accomplishments in promoting the Heartland area have been: distribution of 100,000 brochures printed by the W. Va. Department of Agriculture; distribution of 100,000 place mats; printing of 110,000 litter bags, 40,000 of which have already been distributed; promotion for the printing of several thousand shopping bags for use by supermarkets; sponsorship of a travel conference at Webster Springs, Cowen, Richwood, and Summersville; sponsorship of an internship for 12 weeks during the summers of 1967-68 (Mr. Terry Butcher and Kenny Smith, the two interns, have published reports of their work and accomplishments); and the sponsorship of regular Hospitality Clinics.

One such Hospitality Clinic was held March 18, 1969 at the Braxton County Armory. Five of Glenville State College's faculty and administrative members attended this meeting. They were: Stanley R. Hall and Loren S. McCartney from the social studies department; Don Phillips, the visual aid department; Mr. Don Fogus, the forestry department; and Walden F. Roush, Director of the Community Development and Research Center.

The clinic was divided into 90-minute sessions. The speakers at the Hospitality Clinic were: J. Robert Flink, President of Heartland West Virginia, Inc.; Lyndal L. Dudley, Sr., W. Va. Commissioner of Commerce; Governor Arch A. Moore, Jr.; T. R. (Pete) Samzell, Commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources; Dr. Stanley E. Martin, President of West Virginia Wesleyan College; and George Breiding, Recreation specialist from West Virginia University.

The objectives which these men discussed were: (1) to create a more favorable impression of W. Va., (2) to establish better informed contact personnel (such as service station attendants, waitresses, store clerks, and motel and hotel operators); (3) to improve service and (4) to establish increased profits for the area, both immediate and long term.

Besides the efforts of well meaning individuals, Heartland also has the support of the Extension Service of W. Va., the Community Development Center at Glenville State College, West Virginia Department of Commerce, Travel Division, West Virginia Department of Agriculture, and the Vocational Division of the Department of Education.

Heartland West Virginia Inc. is not only an area approach to encourage tourism, travel and recreation, but it is also an opportunity to boost business, to create new enterprises, to establish new facilities, and to support new ideas in West Virginia.

Due to the break-down of the "Mercury's" IBM Composer and the death of Dwight D. Eisenhower, there was no "Glenville Mercury" on April 2.

Any inconveniences incurred because of the delay are much regretted.

Colleges Slate New Program

Several new programs sponsored by various colleges and universities throughout the nation are in effect now or will go into effect soon. These programs deal with new phases of education and new attempts to give the disadvantaged student a better chance. Some of the various institutions that are participating in or initiating these programs are Tennessee Wesleyan College, Athens, Tenn.; Davis and Elkins College; and the University of Florida.

Tennessee Wesleyan College and Davis and Elkins College have adopted new calendars featuring a winter interim period. Davis and Elkins' new program will begin next fall. It has a 12-week fall and spring semester and a 6-week winter session. Tennessee Wesleyan's begins in 1970 with a four-one-four class arrangement. Students will take four courses in the 14-week winter term, one course in the four-week interim period, and four courses again in a 14-week spring term. Interim courses, selected from student and faculty proposals, will include conventional courses on campus, independent study on and off campus, group projects off campus, and study at another four-one-four college.

The Florida Experimental College, a product of a group of Florida University graduate students, experienced the pressures of burgeoning enrollments the night it was founded. About 350 students, faculty, and staff members and wives showed up to compete for seats in the ten classes. Four more classes were organized to meet the demand. The college charges no tuition fees and offers no grades, tests, or credits. Study groups meet weekly for eight weeks to discuss such topics as the city and urban change, contemporary American fiction, and sex and sensuality.

All applications for scholarships to attend the pre-law school training at the University of Virginia are to be submitted on or before April 15. From the applicants, 40 minority-group graduates will be selected and awarded all-expense paid scholarships by the Council on Legal Education Opportunity. This program is to give minority students a head start in preparing for entrance exams which must be taken upon entering the various law schools.

Unique Foster Grandparents Program Initiated As Novel Federal Approach

A federally-financed project, which benefits both senior citizens and deprived children is being initiated at Glenville State College under the guidance of the Division of Education and Psychology.

This novel approach, the only one of its kind in the state, the nation, and possibly the world, is designed to bring the young and the old together in an attempt to improve their self-image, and to assist the learner to develop more readiness for the regular instructional program.

The two-week training program for Foster Grandparents is an outgrowth of a proposal of the West Central West Virginia Community Action Association. The proposal was funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Foster Grandparent program has been designed to achieve the following major objectives: (1) To provide meaningful employment for the senior citizens of the region, and (2) To enhance the educational experiences of disadvantaged children in this area.

Involving Gilmer, Wood and Ritchie counties, senior citizens from the ages of 60-80 were recruited. The senior citizens are from basically the same socio-economic background as children with whom they will be working.

The training program is being staffed by the following members of the Division of Education and Psychology at GSC: Dr. Billy E. Ross; Mrs. Jean Adams, and Miss Jewel Matthews, Language Arts and Communication Skills; Mrs. Rosemary Elswick, Audio and Visual Perceptions; Mr. Joseph Hickman, psychomotor skills; Miss Jane Powell, research and testing, and Mr. Nicholas Radeka, developing psychomotor abilities through physical activities.

These college instructors gave voluntarily of their time and planning to test, recruit and train the grandparents. Recruits were screened on the basis of psychological interviews, maturity; philosophy of life, language social ability and intuitive levels. Miss Powell, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Elswick, Mr. Radeka, and Mr. Hickman, of the Glenville Staff, joined with Mrs. McBride and Mrs. Triplett of Ritchie County to administer pre-tests to the children included in the program. Post-testing of these children will be done to determine the success of the program. The program was set up by the College personnel in co-operation with Community Action Association directors, county superintendents, Marjorie Mooreheart and Sylvia Hutton of the WCWVCAA.

Curriculum planning was done by the teaching team of Glenville State College. Both the senior citizen and the child were consulted and interviewed to determine attitudes, similarity of background, and in social, intellectual, psychomotor and communication skills.

The College Kindergarten, under the supervision of Miss Matthews and the City Kindergarten, under the guidance of Mrs. James White, were used in order to demonstrate working with children.

Foster grandparent's duties include the supplementing of classroom learning of the culturally-deprived children. Psychomotor skills are designed to increase awareness through the senses, tactile and kinesthetic. Learning is essentially motor-based, according to Mr. Radeka; therefore, physical development of the body through fun and recreation was strongly emphasized. A workshop for creative ideas was held, at which time members were asked to devise homemade balance beams, ropes, etc. in order to improve balance, posture and co-ordination.

Development of body awareness, spatial relationships, locomotor skills, problem-solving for generalizations, (obstacle), reinforcing learning of visual geometric forms and shapes and colors by using them as visual targets; and the substitution of homemade materials for recreation were also subjects of workshops.

'Drug Abuse' Discussion To Be All-Campus Assembly

"Drug Abuse" will be the topic of an all campus assembly which will be held April 22 in the auditorium. Dean Wright has contacted a team of professors and student pharmacists to speak on the subject.

"Drug abuse is one of today's most important medical problems," according to Dr. W. Spradlin, chairman of the psychiatry department at the West Virginia University Medical Center.

Dr. Spradlin states, "I'm not talking just about hardened criminals hooked on heroin, but about housewives who take pep pills in the morning and sleeping pills at night, college students who take a little something to stay awake the night before exams, and the kids who smoke pot (marijuana) or sniff glue for kicks."

Dr. Paul Zanowiak, WVU associate professor of pharmacy who is the team's advisor, said that there is little doubt that sooner or later most college and high school students are going to be faced with the decision of taking pep pills or smoking marijuana. "How they react is going to be determined to a great extent on how much information they have. And anyone who tries to give misinformation, or makes sweeping generalizations on the basis of a few isolated incidents isn't going to help things."

"Today there is a pill for everything, and there is no question that a lot of human suffering has been avoided by the proper administration of drugs but, like everything else drugs are also misused," Dr. Spradlin observed. "And, if the problem is ever solved, it will probably be more through medical research and education than legal action."

The first step in the proper use of drugs is to learn what they are and how they affect people. Unfortunately, the number of scientific studies on drug abuse that have been conducted in the United States is relatively low. For example, the effects of smoking marijuana, as it is usually practiced in this country, are virtually unknown.

"The primary reason for the lack of scientific information on drug abuse is that you cannot experiment with humans," according to Dr. Zanowiak. "Most researchers won't even give an alcoholic a glass of beer, and they are certainly not going to investigate the long-range effects of a drug on a person. Thus we have to stand on the sidelines and wait and see what happens when a particular drug is misused."

"For example, there is some evidence that LSD causes chromosomal changes that can cause birth defects. This may be true and it may not be true. All the medical profession can do is wait and try to correlate chromosomal changes with the use of LSD. The problem is all the more difficult because anyone taking a sugar cube, which is supposed to contain LSD, hasn't the slightest idea what's in the cube—it could be a dozen different things," Dr. Zanowiak explained.

Phi Delta Phi will hold their regular meeting on Thursday, April 17 at 6 p.m. The meeting will be held in the home economics department.

Plans are being made for a tea to be held on May 15 for all GSC alumni with a field in home economics. This is the date of Alumni Day on campus. The tea will be held in the home economics department from 1-3 p.m. Letters are being sent to each home economics graduate.

SEA To Sponsor Regional Meeting

Tomorrow, April 17, the Student Education Association is sponsoring a regional conference for the FTA organizations in the surrounding area. Approximately 170 high school students from 12 schools will participate in the day's activities.

Theme of the conference is "Education on the Move." Dr. D. Banks Wilburn, president of the college, will open the morning program with a welcoming address followed by a short talk by Dr. Billy E. Ross, head of the Division of Education and Psychology on special education for mentally retarded and the N-K-6 Education Specialization. A group of coeds who are currently assisting with the kindergarten children will present a demonstration on "What is Kindergarten?"

After the lunch break, Mr. Albert Rauch will speak to the students on the highlights of his recent visit to England. For the remainder of the afternoon, the students will divide into groups to tour the campus and seek answers to any questions that might arise pertaining to campus life and activities.

President of SEA, Larry Jackson, reported that the objective of the meeting was to give high school seniors a closer perspective of college life and to arouse their interest in higher education. The hope is to recruit many of these students for membership in the GSC student body.

Program Initiated

This novel approach, is according to Dr. Ross, "a pilot study using elderly citizens to work on a one-to-one basis with elementary children throughout the area. This program will continue for the remainder of this school term, this next summer and next school term. Each grandparent will work with two children outside the classroom, one during the morning, another in the afternoon."

Foster Grandparents have already been selected: 15 from Gilmer County, 11 from Ritchie County and five from Wood County, of whom only one is male. All except those from Wood County will work with school systems and these will work with the Boy's Club. All are being paid $1.60 per hour and those in Gilmer County will work in Troy, Sand Fork, and the Tanner Elementary Schools.

In dealing with first graders, the 'grandparents' were divided into groups and one instructor was designated as consultant for four to six adults. The purposes of these every day sessions were to help the elder citizen and improve his self-concept and self-confidence. After leaving campus, all participating adults will return to confer with their consultant once per week and it is anticipated that team members may visit the schools where foster grandparents are employed.
