

The Glenville Mercury

Volume XLIV, Number 21

Glenville State College, Glenville, West Virginia

Friday, February 23, 1973

A GSC student studies the pictures in a marquee of the play "Desire Under the Elms" which has its final showing tonight in the Auditorium.

Summer Session Offers New Term

The 1973 Summer Session will offer two, four-week, terms this year in addition to the usual nine week sessions. The nine week session will be from June 11 to Aug. 10 while the other sessions will be June 11 to July 11, and July 11 to Aug. 10.

The two four-week terms will allow the student to complete a course more rapidly and undertake another. This would serve to eliminate possible boredom of one long class.

Additional advantages are: 1. A student may graduate earlier; 2. He will have the opportunity to repeat courses he may have failed or bring up grades that might be on the passing-failing borderline; 3. To take required courses to avoid conflict during regular semester; 4. To lighten the load during winter session; 5. Excellent opportunity for new freshmen to become acquainted with faculty and campus and to take some of the required freshmen classes.

Registration period hasn't been determined.

Seniors are reminded that the deadline for ordering announcements is Feb. 23 from 9:15-3:00 on the first floor of Clark Hall.

New Projects Planned By GSC Baptist Group

Baptist Student Fellowship has begun making plans for three large projects and is hoping to come through with more.

This Sunday, Feb. 25, the BSF will conduct the morning worship service at 11:00 in the First Baptist Church of Glenville and then that evening they will be serving a soup supper for the church.

Friday, March 23, the BSF will be showing The Return, a movie based on the book, The Late Great Planet Earth.

In the GSC Auditorium Tuesday, March 27, Kenny Marks, a guitarist and singer, will be in concert.

An assembly will be held at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, February 27 in the GSC auditorium for all nominees and GSC students.

The purpose of this assembly will provide the nominees an opportunity to state their prospective platform. Pictures will be taken.

Student Ponders Tournament, Considers Glenville's Chances

By Dave Pethel

Once again it is time for another West Virginia Conference Basketball Tournament. This year the tournament has all the credentials to be one of the best in the past few years.

Any one of five teams can win the tournament this year. Fairmont, Bluefield, W.Va. State, Glenville and Morris Harvey will be the favorites in the four day war at the CCC. Whoever wins the tournament will have a difficult task, as it is difficult to win four games in a row.

Even though I am prejudiced, I am very optimistic about the chances of GSC. The Pioneers play well in the Civic Center where they have won two out of the past three tournaments. GSC has a veteran club and is leading the conference in defense. I think whoever plays the best overall defense will win the tournament.

Second, I would pick Fairmont to win the tournament. The Falcons also have a veteran line-up and if they win the conference, the men of Joe Retton will draw a first round bye..

This would be an advantage as the Falcons would only have to play three games in a row to win the tournament.

Third, I would pick W.Va. State because the Yellow Jackets are playing the most consistent ball in the conference at the present time. State has registered wins so far this year over: Fairmont, Bluefield, Morris Harvey, and Glenville.

Morris Harvey can also cause trouble at the CCC. The Civic Center is the Eagles' home floor and even though Rich Meckfessel and Co. have had their problems of late, they have the horses to win the four day war.

Fifth, I would pick Bluefield to win the tournament. The Big Blues have not been consistent this year. They registered a great win over Fairmont, then probably lost the conference title when they lost to W.Va. Tech. Also, Bluefield who likes to run the gun is giving up an average of 81 points a game on defense.

As a dark horse, I would have to pick Salem. The Tigers of Coach Don Christie have proven they can be tough on any given night. Salem took the Pioneers into overtime before being defeated earlier in the year and then pulled a stunning upset over Fairmont late in the game.

'Prime Cut' Movie Set By Campus Vet's Club

The first movie that the Veteran's Club is sponsoring will be on campus 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium. The movie is "Prime Cut" starring Lee Marvin and Gene Hackman and is rated "R." The story takes place in Chicago and is the story of a cattle dealer who decides it would be more profitable to raise women than cattle.

The Veteran's Club will hold a meeting Thursday morning, February 27, at 10:00 a.m. in Old Louis Bennett Lounge.

'Desire' On Stage, Set Is Constructed

By Patty Richards

Currently showing in the auditorium is the famous Eugene O'Neill play, "Desire Under the Elms." The drama department here at GSC has spent a great deal of time and money preparing for the play and much of this was used to construct the set, a suggestive two-story farm house, supposedly built in the 1850's. Everyone in the department, including the cast, helped to complete the structure which cost over $500 to build.

The whole set is divided into five different areas of a house. These include a kitchen, parlor, two bedrooms, and a front yard. All of these are lit.

During the following time periods, the government documents depository will be manned by the student assistant. Monday, 9-10 a.m.; Tuesday, 8-11 a.m.; Wednesday, 2-3 p.m.; Thursday, 8-11 a.m. and 2-3 p.m.; Friday, 2-4:30 p.m.; and Saturday, 9-12 a.m.

Sgt. Ronald Hicks, '69 Arrives At Altus AFB

A former graduate of Glenville State College and Theta Xi member Air Force Sergeant Ronald L. Hicks has arrived for duty at Altus AFB, Okla.

Sergeant Hicks, a 1964 graduate of Glenville High School, received his B.S. degree in biology in 1969 from GSC.

Five Invade HM House, Entertain Guests, Leave

Five girls from the Phi Delta Phi Home Economics sorority stayed in the Home Management House from Jan. 14 through Feb. 17. Those staying were: Linda Canterbury, senior, Elkview; Debbie Davis, junior, Clay; Jane Rentschler, senior, Oakland, Md.; and Judy Shreve, senior, Buckhannon.

While in the Home Management House, the girls had two special activities. A dessert to acquaint the Phi Delta Phi members with the house was given on Feb. 8, and on Feb. 11, the girls presented a Valentine Buffet for guests. The guests at the house were Dr. and Mrs. Laurence Nuzum, Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Fredin, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Wells, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith. The typical colors of red and white were used at the buffet.

Tours of the house were given and questions were answered. A door prize was given to Connie Silcott for discovering the hidden bird.

by a series of cross-fades and black-outs. The top story of the house, which consists of the two bedrooms, was built in front of the proscenium wall. It suggests only the second story. The back-drop for the set was rented from Shell-Scenic Company, Columbus, Ohio. It consists of a series of trees and leaves enclosing the area around the house.

The overall effect is simply suggested by all of this.

Grad Speaks At KD Dinner

Thomas Patrick, '71, graduate of Glenville State College, will be the featured speaker at the Kappa Delta Phi banquet on Friday, April 6.

Patrick, formerly a teacher/coach at Walton High School, is a participant in the International Farm Youth Exchange and has served as a delegate from West Virginia to St. Kitts in the West Indies. He is the 25th IFYE from this state and the first to live with the Kitticans and help with their 4-H program.

A native of Wayne county, he has been an active 4-H'er serving as life-guard, camp instructor and director. At Glenville, he served as Mercury photographer one year, a member of Theta Xi fraternity, he was a physical education and English major.

All members of Kappa Delta Phi, faculty, administration and staff may attend the banquet, according to Mr. Joseph Hickman, advisor

Merger Affect Us?

The Bluefield-Concord merger may not affect Glenville State College directly, but after a perusal of the Concord College Concordian, I think there are signs of "the handwriting on the wall" for Glenville State College. Many members of the faculty and administration refuse to believe that Glenville may become a community college, but evidences of this tendency can be seen in the well-documented Concordian. Only the future can tell.

In the Concordian is a letter written to legislators from Concord's Student Body President Melvin Mann concerning the proposed merger. He says that, prior to the meeting on Jan. 29 with Board of Regents Chancellor Prince Woodard, the students at Concord had taken no stand on the merger. Mann says of the meeting: "This meeting was open to the students, faculty, administration, and at the insistence of Chancellor Woodard, not the public press. Those at the meeting asked their questions and received replies from the Chancellor . . . replies that were incomplete and elusive at best. It is because of this fact, that we can get no concrete answers to questions which surely must have been (or should have been) anticipated in 'developing' this proposal that we are strongly against this proposed merger." It should be stressed at this point that the students at Concord are not opposed to a merger or a coordinate-college relationship, only to this particular merger. Examples of the elusive and incomplete answers given by the Chancellor to the Concord community are found in a report of that meeting in the Concordian. The Chancellor was asked how projected enrollment figures will be realized, since many students planned to transfer, should the merger go into effect. The Concordian says "Chancellor Woodard said that new sources, such as adult education, will have to be tapped and new, broader programs instituted." When asked about the library situation, the Chancellor replied that the libraries "will be used in the most productive manner."

The Chancellor kept saying what he had not come to discuss. Says the Concordian, "Chancellor Woodard stressed the point that he had not come to relay information and not to debate the Board's decision. He later stated that he had not come to discuss cost figures. He stated that he had come to discuss 'only what the Board envisions,' yet the Concordian reports that when Dr. Bernard P. Kiernan asked for details concerning the merger, Dr. Woodard said that if no one at Concord College knew anything about the merger, then they must not have read 'A Plan for Progress' (This booklet explains the Board of Regents' plan for all state institutions of higher education in the 1970's). An evaluative study of the merger printed in the Concord paper, using facts and logic, proves the Concord-Bluefield excerpt from 'A Plan for Progress' to be - in the gentlest terms - misleading.

The only thing Chancellor Woodard said at the meeting with Concord the community that left no doubt was this: "You're not going to be guaranteed anything about anything. The Board looks only to the administration of the school not to the students or faculty." The part about students and faculty members not being consulted is proved throughout the Concordian. However, how much this consultation of the school's administration was heeded seems a bit dubious. A headline in the Concordian reads "Concord Advisory Board Opposes Merger," and a statement from the advisory board is printed. The Consultants' report was also ignored. There is a notable absence of comment by President Marsh of Concord on his feelings about the merger.

Only one quotation from Dr. Joseph F. Marsh may give us a clue as to his feelings. He says, quoted verbatim, "I am concerned that there are persons here and elsewhere, and apparently even one or more members of the State Legislature, who either support or oppose the proposed merger of Concord and Bluefield State Colleges because they either oppose or support me personally."

Political overtones? It is a well known fact in the southern part of the state, reports the Concordian, that a member of the legislature, who has a personal vendetta against Dr. Marsh, has taken credit for the proposed, and much opposed merger. These political overtones, along with the facts that the Board of Regents is an appointed board, and none of the members are educators, indicate that college presidents throughout the state are treading very uneasy political waters.

A quote from Chancellor Woodard at the January 29 meeting at Concord reads, "There is no way to maintain high quality education at a small institution." What happens when some politician develops a grudge against Dr. Wilburn? What is to stop him from going to the Chancellor and suggesting a community college for Glenville? Will the Chancellor then-in-view of the preceding quotation-not turn Glenville State College into one of the community colleges so popular in the Chancellor's native Virginia? Will not our advisory board's report and our consultants report be ignored, as Concord's was?

The Concordian prints a news release on the possibilities of a W.Va. State-Tech merger. Dr. Woodard, as recorded on tape, says of such a merger, "That's a very challenging thought. It might generate, uh, it might generate some more thought!" The tape ends a few words later, and from three sets of notes it was indicated that the chancellor talked of library co-ordination now going on between State and Tech which would lead to "bigger and better things." The Chancellor elaborated at length in the presence of several hundred persons, upon a Tech-State merger. Yet, the Feb. 1 Tech Collegian states that Chancellor Woodard denied all this at Tech, and indicated that he had said only that he considered a Tech-State merger interesting. "There is no way to maintain high quality education at a small institution." Will the Chancellor say one thing to us, and another thing about us at some other institution?

Is it clearer now? For further evidence, let us look at the chart printed in the Concordian, which came originally from A Study of State Institutions of Higher Education in West Virginia, published by the legislative auditor's office in 1971. The Board of Regents claims that the merging of Concord and Bluefield State College "will be a financial savings to the State," says the Concordian. They then proceed to disprove this theory on the basis of the facts provided by the chart. (Elsewhere in the paper they question the financial benefits found in shutting faculty, maintenance personnel, and library books between the two campuses). But, looking at the chart, and the graphs taken from it, we find GSC in an interesting position when looking at figures concerning state funds per full-time equivalent students. According to the chart, GSC receives only $91.04 of the state's money more than does Concord, and is right behind Bluefield, Tech and State. This indicates that we are, financially speaking, in the middle of a group of schools for which mergers are planned or thought of. What is in store for us?

Projections Concerning Am. Life Revealed By "Think Tank" Center

Contributed by Mr. K. Smith
Miss A. Page

Today much attention is focused upon matters that should be important to Americans. A good example of this is the concern with multinational corporations.

Unlike the general American public, many "intellectuals," "academicians," specialists, experts, or what have you, have been applying themselves to such matters for some time. As they gather periodically and regularly to discuss and exchange ideas, frequently the group becomes labeled as a "think tank."

One such "think tank" is known as the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. Located in Santa Barbara, California, and operating on money obtained from philanthropic contributions and membership fees. The Center has a Board of Directors, a Director, regular members called Fellows, a staff, and research assistants. In addition to these, various recognized experts, called Visiting Fellows and Consultants, serve at The Center for as long as a year. A Center Magazine and a Center Report, putting the ideas in print, are published in alternating months. (Incidentally, these publications are in our library.)

Referring to the issue of multinational corporations, it should be pointed out that at The Center the matter has been under consideration for several years. In short, the matter is not new at The Center; in fact, a leading economist, Neil Jacoby, prepared an article entitled "The Multinational Corporation" for the Center Magazine back in May, 1970, almost three years ago.

If this example shows that The Center is somewhat aware of what is happening in American life, then perhaps some credence can be given to the following brief projections about the future in America which are taken from a Center Report:

PEOPLE:

In the coming decades few couples will have more than two children and many will have none.

Eventually the emphasis on zero population growth will be succeeded by a demand for a negative birth rate.

Such a negative birth rate will change the entire structure of the market demand system and add to pressures for a steady state economic system.

The declining birth rate will result in a shrinking of the youth base of the population.

Shortly after the turn of the next century fifty per cent of the people in the U.S. may be over the age of fifty and nearly one third of the population could be sixty-five or older.

Chronological age will be reduced in significance as functional age becomes more significant.

The quality of public services will deteriorate if the talents of the elderly are not utilized.

The lifestyles of all Americans will have to be tempered due to demands made by the peoples of the less developed nations.

Pair relationships will be central in future society, but less permanent.

The infirm-elderly and the disadvantaged elderly could be likely recruits for a new kind of revolutionary movement.

A large proportion of the population may, at any given moment, be under the influence of mind-altering drugs.

Family planning will place more emphasis on planning for the elderly than for children.

Despite all this, functionally elderly people will constitute a new group of second class citizens.

THINGS:

By 2000 manufacturing or products will occupy the energies of not much more than ten per cent of the available labor force.

Legislative disincentives for style obsolescence practices will appear within fifteen years.

Long-lasting, plug-in, component-assembled manufactured goods will appear within fifteen years.

With the demise of consumerism a large number of serious social and political conflicts and eruptions may be expected.

MEDICINE:

At the turn of the century national health insurance will cost $90 billion, with $200 per day for a hospital bed.

Grapplers Record Win, Loss At M.U.

The "mighty" matmen of GSC won one and lost one in a triangular match at Marshall University last Friday.

Coach "Whitey" Adolfson's grapplers scored a 24-16 victory over Wittenburg College, Ohio and lost a 25-15 bout with host Marshall University.

Remaining undefeated in the 118 pound class, Jimmy Neal sparked the Pioneers with two pins, both in the second period. Luther Hanson upped his Wittenburg opponent 5-0 and his Marshall opponent 4-2. Jerry Harris was one and one in the match winning 7-3 over Wittenburg and losing 12-5 to Marshall.

Mike Snider was the first of two Pioneer grapplers to drop from the ranks of the undefeated when he dropped a 12-2 decision to Marshall. Mike recovered quickly though and defeated his Wittenburg opponent 2-1. In the 150 pound class, Steve Lewis found the going very tough and dropped both of his matches, 15-7 to Marshall and 7-2 to Wittenburg.

W. VA. STATE SCORES FIVE POINT VICTORY

Dwight Street powered in 26 points to lead W.Va. State to a hard fought 78-73 victory over Glenville State Monday night at Institute.

W.Va. State jumped off to a 4-0 lead on baskets by Street and Ron Calloway as the Yellow Jackets never trailed in the contest.

The contest was very close however, as State's largest lead was only six points in the first half. State held this lead on four different occasions with the last being at 16-10 with 11:45 left in the half.

The Pioneers went to work at 20-20 with 8:57 to go on a jump shot by Jim Garnett, who scored 18 points and played a tremendous floor game for the Pioneers.

The Yellow Jackets then moved out to a 29-24 lead with 5:37 to go before GSC tied it on an Earl Hawkins lay-up with 2:42 to go at 31-31. State then scored the last four points of the half to lead 35-31 at intermission.

In the second half the Pioneers suffered a great jolt when Earl Hawkins picked up his fourth foul with 17:43 left in the game.

State held a 40-35 lead with 17:38 to go in the contest. Both teams then traded baskets for the next five minutes until State moved out to a 50-43 lead with 12:37 left. At this point in the game GSC and State matched baskets as the Pioneers could not cut the lead to any less than five points.

With State leading 69-61 with 4:04 left GSC made a last ditched effort to get within three at 72-69 with 1:22 left. Dwight Street then hit two baskets for the Yellow Jackets in the final minutes to ice the victory.

Dwight Street led State in scoring with 26 points while Rance Berry and Al Vance each had 17. Ron Calloway also added 12 points.

Pioneers Defeat Beckley

The Glenville State Pioneers jumped off to an early 12-4 lead and were never headed in posting an impressive 78-54 victory over the Blue Hawks of Beckley Junior College.

The Pioneers proved to be too strong for the Blue Hawks, moving out to a 21-8 lead with 5:10 left in the half. Playing great defense Coach Lilly's G-Men held a comfortable 30-18 margin at intermission.

With the Blue Wave leading 38-30, the Pioneers went on a scoring spree and led 61-44 with six minutes remaining in the contest. At this point Coach Lilly began using his bench freely as the Pioneers coasted to their eighteenth win of the season.

Ralph Cook led the Pioneers' scoring attack with 21 points. He was followed by Steve Datcher and Earl Hawkins with 17 and 13 markers respectively.

Mike Book and Dan Brown scored 16 points each for Beckley.

The Glenville State Pioneer basketball squad will play their last regular season game against Morris Harvey tomorrow. The Pioneers currently stand 18 - 5. This game will decide whether or not the G-Men will finish fourth or sixth in the conference.

Coach Adolfson's matmen will also close out their regular season tomorrow against the tough Fairmont Falcons and Frostburg College. Glenville and Fairmont are favored to battle for the conference crown in Charleston.

Have You Heard?

By Mike Rust
Tourney Time . . .

Next Wednesday will start a new season for the Glenville State Pioneers with the opening round of the WVIAC to be played. The records can be thrown out the window for anything can happen and usually does in this tournament. The first round opponent is not known yet but one can be sure it will be a tough game. If the standings stay the same the match-up will be against the Bobcats of West Virginia Wesleyan, the team which gave the Pioneers a really tough game last week.

With the start of the West Virginia Conference race, it was agreed by almost everyone that Glenville, Morris Harvey, Bluefield, and Fairmont were the favorites. But things did not turn out quite that way. Fairmont has won the conference title with the other three close behind, but it could be a completely different situation next week with none of the top four in semi-finals. All of the four teams are capable of winning but teams like Salem, West Virginia State, West Virginia Tech and possibly Shepherd should not be taken lightly.

My pick to win the tournament is of course, Glenville, but I look for either or both Salem or West Virginia State in the semi-finals and possibly in the finals.

Whoever does win the tournament will really have their work cut out in defeating Fairmont in the best two out of three series to determine the Kansas City representative. The Big Falcons have a great team this season and have nine first rate players who could start for any team in the conference.

The Glenville State wrestling team will also be competing for the conference crown in Charleston next week. Glenville and Fairmont should be considered the favorites. Coach Adolfson has done a great job of progressing along the wrestling program since its beginning four years ago.

Captain Brian Taylor went through the season undefeated and was not scored upon in any of his matches. Others undefeated are Jimmy Neal, Luther Hanson, and Mike Snider. The NAIA wrestling championship will also be in Kansas City.

While talking about the Kansas City representative, the team that defeated Glenville last year, Augustana is ranked number two in the NAIA poll. Steven F. Austin is number one.

Look for West Liberty to win the WVIAC swimming title tomorrow at Buckhannon. The Hilltoppers are defending champions, winning the last two years in a row. Competing will be swimmers from Alderson-Broadus, Fairmont, Glenville, Morris Harvey, Shepherd, West Liberty, W.Va. Tech, and W.Va. Wesleyan.

Clarksburg will be the scene tomorrow as the Glenville State Pioneer bowling team makes its third appearance of the season. The Pioneers will be competing in the Central Regional, there will be one more held in Parkersburg.

The tournament will be held at Compton Lanes, beginning at 12:30. The men will be the only ones competing.

Tom Newberry and David Grapes continue to pace the Pioneer bowlers, each averaging around 190 a game.

Morris Harvey is currently in first place with Glenville a close second. Other teams competing include West Virginia Wesleyan, West Liberty, Beckley, and Fairmont.

Ticket Policy

Dr. Robert Dollgener has announced that if the Pioneer basketball squad reaches the semi-finals that two hundred tickets will be sold at the campus. There will be a limit of two tickets per person.

Glenville's first game will be Wednesday and tickets will be sold at the Civic Center door. If Coach Lilly's G-Men win they will play again Thursday and tickets will once again be sold at the door. There should be no problem in getting tickets for the first two contests.

Tickets will be ordered up here from Dr. Dollgener's secretary, and can be picked up from Dr. Dollgener at the Holiday Inn on the Elk River.

The wrestling tournament will also be held during the same week. A $12 and $14 ticket book will get a person in the matmen tournament. The wrestling schedule is set-up to follow Friday at 2:00 p.m., preliminaries; Saturday at 10:00 a.m., semi-finals and Saturday at 1:30 p.m., finals.

S. Teachers Like Friends

When the immortal Will Rogers said, "I never met a man I didn't like," I don't think he ever thought it would be used like this "I never met a student teacher I didn't like."

In my opinion student teachers are not teachers. They are more like friends. Usually they are a few years older than the students and they know more about our life styles.

When I was a freshman, I wondered why the students from Grantsville never did their student teaching at Calhoun High School. I never found the correct answer, but I am glad they never did because it gives you a chance to meet people from other places.

I doubt if all the other students admire student teachers as much as I do, but I hope you will give them a chance to like and to help you.

Center Envisions 'Future Shock'

More sophisticated applied technology will deprive substantial numbers of citizens of medical care which only the rich and powerful will be able to enjoy.

Resolution of antigen rejection problems would make possible 20-30k heart transplants per year, 7.5k kidney transplants per year. Transplant may also include "xenograph" organs within thirty years.

Society is on the threshold of major breakthroughs in biological science. The biological revolution will provide knowledge of the functioning of man's brain and his somatic nature.

Within a decade, we will establish immune tolerances for specific antigens; viral diseases may be controllable; many forms of cancer curable;

Within thirty years large and complex molecular proteins, nucleic acids and viruses will be developed "to order."

Amnicentis might facilitate effective treatment of the genetically defective.

New and powerful mood-altering drugs will be discovered.

Cloning will be feasible within a generation.

The computer will emphasize the technical aspects of medical practice to the further demise of the anthropologic. With console computer units patients can be informed and give information relating to their conditions almost instantaneously.

Intensive use of computer will facilitate the evolution of larger and more complex units for the administration of health care but smaller units for its delivery.

The consumers of health care will make more decisions about their own health. This will be aided by the computer revolution. The government may adopt an official support policy for self-help psycho-therapies.

Discussion of Drug Abuse Subject of Health Column

(from Jan. 22 Clarksburg Exponent)

TO UNDERSTAND THE APEAL OF DRUGS

The Abbott Laboratories sent me a public service circular they recently produced, called "Understanding Drugs."

It's such a clear explanation of why people get involved with addicting drugs that I want to reproduce part of it here, for the benefit of those who may want to clip it out, or those who will read it and remember it Here's the excerpt:

WHY ARE DRUGS ABUSED

Of the many thousands of medications available today, with prescription and without, only a handful are widely abused.

Aspirin, for example, is widely used to relieve headaches, arthritis and other painful conditions. Yet we seldom hear of "aspirin addicts."

What makes commonly abused drugs different from aspirin and thousands of other drugs that are seldom abused?

Although they vary greatly in chemical makeup and in the way they work in the human body and brain, almost all widely abused drugs have one thing in common. They produce unusual and abnormal feelings which drug abusers call a "high" or a "low."

Actually "high" and "low" can mean many things, depending on the person and the drug. Drugs that dull the senses—such as heroin which is not used in medicine—can create a false feeling of well-being in certain individuals. Stimulant drugs such as amphetamines can produce an unwarranted feeling of power and excitement.

But in all cases, a "high" or a "low" results in one thing: an escape from reality. And it is reality itself that the drug abuser seeks to avoid. WHAT'S WRONG WITH FEELING GOOD?

This is a question drug abusers often use in defending their habit. Let's turn the question around and ask, "What's RIGHT with feeling bad?" Consider physical pain. Bad, right? Well, not exactly. If you couldn't feel pain, you could place your hand on a hot stove and feel nothing until you smelled flesh burning. Normally you would immediately feel pain, and instinctively snatch your hand away with nothing but a minor blister.

Like physical pain, emotional pain is a signal that something is wrong, and a warning to do something about it right away.

Even non-prescription drugs such as aspirin carry warnings about continued use and overuse. Unless used with caution, such helpful drugs may hide the difference between a minor illness and a more serious one.

Similarly a drug "high" or "low" offers relief from emotional pain. The drug user no longer hurts. Consequently he does nothing about the situation which is causing the problem.

When he comes down again, he hurts as much as ever—or more. For some drug abusers, one such "crash landing" is enough. Others go back to their drugs and try again to escape the problems of real life.

Like a person who cannot feel pain, the habitual drug abuser becomes immune to the warning signals of growing danger. At last, his emotional problem no longer can be ignored. A wild spree of drug abuse can end in emotional explosion, irreparable physical damage, or even death.

The entire circular, of which the above is part, can be obtained at no charge by writing to Public Affairs Dept. 383, Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago, Illinois 60064.
