Park It Atop The Parking Meter!

Have you received any mail from the Student Affairs office recently? Perhaps this will sound familiar: "This letter is written to inform you we have recorded your violation of motor vehicle regulations on the Glenville State College campus." If you recognize these lines (as I'm sure many of you do) read on; the following will be of concern to you.

The parking situation on campus is, inadequate, to say the least. I can also add a few adjectives like frustrating, aggravating, and maddening after my last contribution to the Student Affairs office for a parking violation. There are, as always, many complaints, and few solutions. A talk with President Wilburn resulted in an understanding of the solutions available. These are the facts:

In a Campus Facilities Plan for Glenville State College, prepared for the West Virginia Board of Regents, the parking situation is dealt with in this way: "Parking, as has been indicated, is a severe problem, yet no fully acceptable solution has been found, nor has a recommendation been made. There are three potential solutions which are listed below with their drawbacks:

1. Use of the old athletic field adjacent to the Little Kanawha River—this site presents substantial access and security problems and is a considerable distance from the main campus.
2. Create parking areas at the College Park campus—such parking areas have the same problem as the old athletic field site, but access and security are not as difficult.
3. Acquire additional land adjacent to the Main Campus—the most suitable land to acquire would be along the western side of High Street, but such land will carry high purchase prices.

This plan was presented to the college by Wood and Tower, Princeton, N.J. The fallacy in proposals to locate parking facilities away from the campus are evident. To get to classes, the students would still be walking a considerable distance. The one workable solution, that would provide adequate parking on campus is almost impossible to utilize. The money required to purchase land would be much more than the land is worth. To lower this price, the college would have to go through legalities, which are both complicated and involved. Through a legally termed "right," the right of "eminent domain" the college would start condemnation proceedings to have the land condemned, thus the price would be lowered. This is the only way possible to purchase the land for a reasonable sum. But, it is debatable that the college is even entitled to this right in the case of parking. Good will itself figures into the situation. Would the chance at these proceedings be worthwhile considering what would happen to the land owners on High Street?

These are the three "fully acceptable" solutions, but they are not workable. There are some plans, being utilized now, and for the future which will not solve the problem completely, but will provide improvement.

As most students know, there has been a zoning of cars with the dormitory residents eligible for parking stickers. This zoning is the one means that can be used immediately to help alleviate the problem. There have been complaints that the lots are not completely filled and a study is being made concerning that argument. There is a parking lot being built beside the Forestry building that will make available 60 parking spaces. It is anticipated that these will be used for the so-called "dead parking." (students who park their car on Sunday and don't use it again until Friday.) In this event, there would be more parking space available on campus. There is a security guard there who checks—periodically. This would prevent any damage to cars or stealing of gas which has been a problem. For faculty, the old tennis courts are being considered for conversion to parking space.

The severe shortage of parking is a fact. There are no workable solutions to completely alleviate the problem, that, too, is a fact. I am sure that many will come up with what you think are sound arguments and complaints. I am also sure that this problem has been researched in-depth and that there aren't any solutions that are adequate and immediate. Sure the situation is aggravating, but, every possible aspect is being reviewed.

If parking violations continue as they have, surely students will provide the Student Affairs office with enough money to buy any land at any price.

Mr. Redneck's Poetry Analyzed, Reinforced

Dear Editor,

Rather than oppose Mr. Redneck's poem, I tend to agree with him, except that he failed to go far enough. He dealt mainly with the materialistic aspects of the out-of-state 'foreigner' versus local redneck situation. But what about the causes and morals of the overall longhair-redneck confrontation?

In the sixties, the American society felt unorthodox trends from the Greenwich Village beatnik to the San Francisco hippie. Numerous factors appeared, vanished, and reappeared on the changing scene of youthful revolution. Dope, freer sex morals, and deeper understanding and appreciation of nature have been a few of the concerns of what is associated with the "long-hair" movement.

At first, one of the strongest and proudest ideals of these people was the feeling of peace and brotherhood with their fellow men. What has happened? Peace seemed to have taken its place on the shelf of irrelevance, even before the ending of the Vietnam War. Brotherhood has been replaced with counteracting prejudice against those who have finally accepted (at least partially) the original movement. In other words, those longhairs that continually refer to and downgrade so-called "rednecks" are really the true rednecks. They have put themselves on a pedestal and have indeed become narrow-minded, especially in their views toward people with shorter hair, nine-to-five jobs, and who drink bourbon instead of wine. This is what they were originally trying not to do.

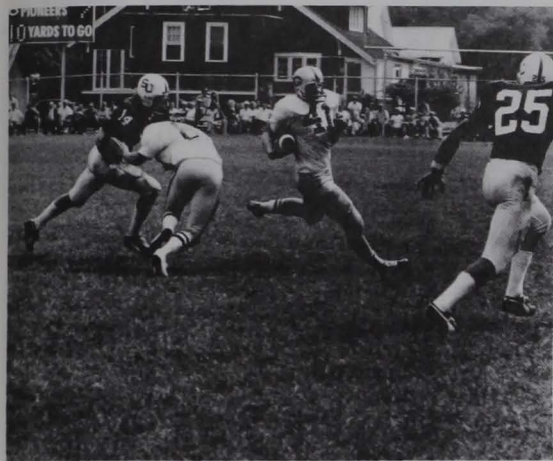

The longhairs with a cause have seemed to disappear. They have either been infiltrated into establishment society or scattered along the fringes of present-day, unorganized movements. Those were the good old days.

G-Men Defeat Salem Tigers

Glenville State's defense had a field day last Saturday as the Pioneers trounced the Salem Tigers at Rohrbaugh Stadium in front of a capacity crowd. The G-men dominated every statistic as they man-handled the Salem eleven.

The pattern of the game formulated early as Salem received the Glenville kickoff and could only manage -2 yds. and punted to the Pioneer 35 yd. line. After another exchange of punts, Glenville had good field position on their own 48 yd. line. From there the Pioneers drove down the field in 9 plays with the drive capped off by Jim Carter's 6 yd. sweep around left end. Highlights of the drive were two passes from Chris Anderson, one to Carter for 11 yds. and another to Les Face-meyer for 18 yds., setting up Carter's touchdown jaunt. Coach Hanlin's Pioneers then had a chance to score late in the initial period by a clipping penalty, but Glenville was forced to attempt a field goal that was short.

With 12:53 to go in the second period Carter again gave the G-men good field position, this time with a 54 yd. punt return to the Salem 18. After Carter gave the Pioneers a first down on the Tiger 3 yd. line, Glenville tried to punch the ball over. However, Salem's defense stiffened and Glenville gave the ball up on downs on the Salem 1 yd. line. For the rest of the first half neither team could get a scoring drive started and the half ended with the Pioneers leading 7-0.

The second half began with defense as the key word. On Glenville's second play Salem intercepted a Pioneer pass and returned it to the Blue 31 yd. line. However, on the next play Brian Taylor broke through the Salem line and forced the Salem quarterback to fumble and Willie Marshall alertly fell on the ball on the Glenville 43 yd. line. After a Pioneer punt, Salem tried to go to an arial offense but Burnie Buttrey picked off a Tiger pass on the Salem 35. Later in the period, Carter's 17 yd. punt return set the ball on the Salem 25. Two plays later Anderson hit Steve Buffington with a 21 TD strike and after the extra point attempt failed the Pioneers had a 13-0 lead.

Early in the final quarter Glenville punted to the Salem 42 yd. line. A pass interference penalty gave the Tigers a first down on the Pioneer 43. On the next play a Salem receiver fumbled on the Glenville 37 and the Pioneers once again took over. The Salem defense held the Pioneers on downs and after a 43 yd. Chamber's punt, the Tigers took over. The Glenville defense then forced Salem to punt and with a good runback the Pioneers had the ball on the Tiger's 41 yd. line.

From there Anderson hit Face-meyer with a 10 yd. pass; Carter gained 19 yds. and then on second and eight on the Salem 12 yd. line Anderson hit Face-meyer with a 12 yd. TD toss.

Salem finally got on the scoreboard with 1:41 to go on a 38 yd. TD pass. The final score was Glenville 20, Salem 7.

Show Enthusiasm!

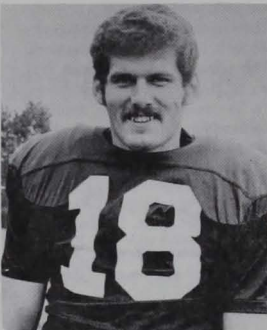

With the 1973 football season three weeks old and the Pioneers of Glenville undefeated, one cannot help but think of the possibility of reaching the Conference play-offs. Already, the Pioneers have shown signs of being a contender with a rock-ribbed defense and an explosive offense. However, one must remember that even with the best personnel, a team can easily reach a stumbling block. Often a team's downfall has to do with injuries, a bad bounce of the football, or a faulty decision by an official. So far the Pioneers, with outstanding hustle and good playing, have shown no signs of a letdown mentally or physically. The running game, sparked by Jim Carter and John Pratt, has been consistent. The passing game, with Chris Anderson showing his "1972" form, has provided the Pioneers with a potent attack. The defense this season has only given up 21 points over three games, so as you can see, the potential for a championship season is there.

However, one must remember that Glenville still has six games to play this season. This Saturday, the Pioneers journey to Fairmont to take on the ever-dangerous Falcons. Then we host W.Va. Wesleyan for our homecoming. After that on consecutive weekends, we play Bluefield at Bluefield; number 1 ranked Northern division leader West Liberty at Glenville; W.Va. State, who is tied with us for the Southern division lead at Institute; and finally, Concord at Glenville. The Pioneers still face a dangerous schedule. As fans, you can help the Pioneers by showing enthusiasm for our team.

Remember, any team with great personnel and no student enthusiasm is a good team, but a team with good personnel and an outstanding student body cheering section can be a great team.

FRATERNITY NAMES PLAYERS OF THE WEEK

Chris Anderson and Bob Hardman were named the outstanding offensive and defensive players of last Saturday's Salem game by the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Anderson, who was an All-Conference selection at quarterback last year, is a Business Administration major from Hannibal, Ohio. He fired scoring strikes of 21 yards to Steve Buffington and 12 yards to Les Face-meyer.

Bob Hardman is a math major from Glenville. Hardman was moved from defensive end to strong side linebacker this year so that the Pioneers could utilize his speed and quickness. So far, this move has paid off for the Pioneer defense.

Coach Carney has announced that roster forms are available for intramural volleyball. You may pick them up in Mr. Carney's office.

In recently announced WVIAC statistics Glenville's Jim Carter and John Pratt are ranked 2nd and 5th in rushing. Carter also leads in kickoff and punt returns.

GSC PIONEERS TRAVEL TO FAIRMONT ON SAT.

On Sept. 29, 1973 the Glenville State College Pioneers travel to Fairmont, W. Va. to take on the Fairmont Falcons. Game time will be 1:30 with this game being Fairmont's Homecoming. The Pioneers, coached by Bill Hanlin, are sporting a 2-0 conference record and are 3-0 overall. They are lead by all-conference quarterback Chris Anderson with additional help from two fine running backs, Jimmy Carter and John Pratt.

One of the Pioneers strong points in past years as well as this year is that feared Pioneer defense. This year it is lead by two all-conference linebackers, Brian Taylor and Scotty Hamilton.

CHAPMAN, BUTTREY FEATURED THIS WEEK

Two noticeable features of the Glenville State Football team are number 70, Larry Chapman, and number 83, Bernie Buttrey. Both of these men have played an important part in the Pioneers (3-0) record.

Larry Chapman is a senior physical education major from Weston. Like several other starters on the Pioneer club, he played his high school ball at Lewis County High School. Chapman has started at Glenville since he was a freshman and each year he has improved. If you will notice

Bernie Buttrey

many of the long running plays Glenville gets are started through the holes Chapman creates.

Bernie Buttrey is a junior physical education major from St. Marys. Buttrey played football at Marshall before he transferred to Glenville last year. Buttrey's addition to the Pioneer defense has helped strengthen the overall play of the defensive unit. Last Saturday he intercepted a pass against Salem. Buttrey played his high school ball at St. Mary's High School.
