Humanity Or Guilt

Following World War II, America faced a baby boom which sky rocketed college enrollments in the sixties and now has passed on to the labor force. America now faces a baby bomb which is dropped daily on the West Coast by administrative request. Thousands of Vietnamese War orphans are being adopted by Americans in the name of humanity and as long as it stays in that name and not the name of guilt or novelty, I guess its O.K.

One argument for the exuberant receptiveness of the children are from those of the opinion that it is our fault they are homeless and we should reconcile for it. In the same light a number of the children have Americans as fathers and therefore we are obligated.

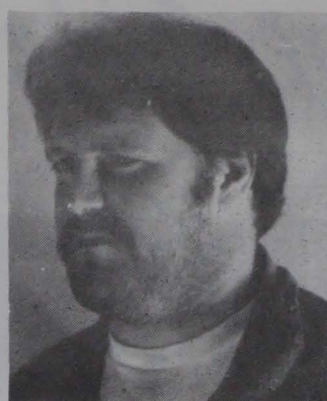

With the number available this process of saving an orphan from the cruel jaws of insurrection may be an ego trip for many.

Frankly, I'm glad America and other countries have joined in helping little kids in need. They need help and they need it now. I'm glad we are in a position where we can. But I can't help thinking the best thing to happen to America in light of its benevolent practices and sagging economic situation is to declare war on the Indians or start up the Hatfield-McCoy feud and let people adopt our own orphans. If it's a basic act of humanity what's the difference if there's a flaw in the adoption procedure (either theirs or ours) I ask what's wrong, would it be demeaning to us to load up a plane with homeless American children, fly to San Francisco and have parents greet them with tears?

Four GSC Juniors To Vie For 75-76 Pioneer Position

April 17th will be a day of change as far as a certain kind of leadership is concerned. On that day students will rally across campus to elect a new Pioneer, the school's bearded, buckskinned mascot.

This year four juniors are candidates for the "spirited" Pioneer. Each candidate is required to grow a beard and carry at least a 2.00 average.

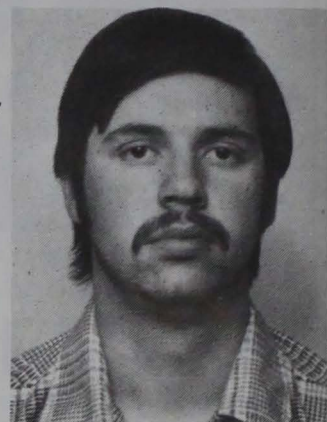

When asked why he was running for the mascot, Perry Stovall, a business major, said, "I want to get the people to support the team and get behind them." Perry hails from McArthur and is a member of the TKE fraternity.

"To have fun and party a lot. I believe I can get everyone else behind the team," responded Mike Snider, a physical education major. Mike also is a member of TKE and his hometown is Elizabeth.

Current High Epsilon of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, Rick Vass, explained his desire to activate the spirit of the students as well as the team. Rick is a junior physical education major from Sinks Grove, W.Va.

Jerry "Greek" Zaferatos said, "The school spirit is down and I'm determined to get it going here on campus." Jerry is also a physical education major and is presently House Manager for the Theta Xi fraternity. His hometown is Beckley.

Rick Vass

There will be a regular meeting of the Student Education Association (SEA), April 14 at 6 pm in the Multi-Purpose room located in the Pioneer Center. The guest speaker will be Dr. Stanley Anderson. He will be speaking on "School Laws of West Virginia." Refreshments will be served and everyone is welcome.

ATTENTION FACULTY - STAFF

A special appreciation banquet has been scheduled for Coach Bill Hanlin. The banquet will be held on Thursday, April 24, at 6:00 p.m. Reservations may be made through April 18 by calling ext. 264. Cost: $2.50 per person. Additional details later.

View On Discipline

What is discipline? Who is to say what one does is moral or not? Many people think that a person's actions make him immoral. Many people think business is your own as long as you don't intrude on anyone else's affairs if your actions are right. Maybe your actions are not right to other people. Maybe you're coming from the wrong direction. Take me for instance, I am a freedom lover, but I feel there has to be certain disciplines within this freedom in order for me not to intrude on others. That's the reason for laws; to prevent others from infringing on other's rights. All things change for the better, including laws. Sometimes change is resisted by the minority in charge; but majority rules. Who believes that? I'd like to express my feelings on certain laws and policies of this campus. I feel that no student should be restricted from the school's newspaper such as Tony Franklin was for expressing his own opinion. If someone doesn't like his opinion, they can dispute it in the next issue. The newspaper is for the students. Tony Franklin is a student or is he not? Why is it that in a school where the students outnumber the administration a student still can not have freedom of the press. The students are good enough to express their feelings. If not, then there should not be any students. But majority rules and who believes that?

Randy Allen Datcher

Editor's Note,

Tony Franklin was not banned for any opinion he expressed. There were some rules infringed upon which were established to keep people from intruding into other's freedoms.

Lambda Chi Alpha

The Brothers of Beta Beta Zeta held their monthly formal meeting last Monday night, and our new Brothers were welcomed in. Our new members are, Rick Darby, John Malcomb, Rocky Groves, Randy Hudson, Rex Mitchell, Dennis Miller, Joey Givens, Jim Pritt, Butch Fertig, Jeff Wiles, Jack Lykins, and Steve Poling.

The Brothers would like to extend our thanks to Brother Larry Wright, who held a party Saturday night in honor of our new members.

We would also like to welcome our new members of the Ladies of the White Rose, who were initiated last Tuesday night. The initiation was held in the Presbyterian church.

At the Monday night meeting we elected one Brother to attend the Leadership seminar at Penn State this summer. We elected Dave White to go to the seminar and in case he cannot make the trip Ric Carder is our alternate.

This Friday night on April 11, the Brothers will begin their week-end-long basketball marathon. The event will be held in the Gilmer County High School Gym. The Brothers are being sponsored by merchants in the area as well as stores in Weston and Parkersburg. The money made from this project will go to the March of Dimes. Anyone wishing to contribute to the marathon, any donations will be taken and appreciated.

Last week Darrel Johnson our Chapter Consultant paid a visit to the campus. He talked to the Brothers and the officers about what is happening in other chapters in the nation.

This weeks DDW award goes to Darrel Johnson.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

The fraters of Tau Kappa Epsilon of West Virginia will be participating in a fund raising event for Saint Jude's Children's Hospital. The Hospital was founded by Danny Thomas, comedian and member of Tau Kappa Epsilon. On a winter night in 1940 during the period of depression in his career, Thomas made a pledge to St. Jude Thaddeus, patron saint of the hopeless. His prayer was for rescue from despair, and the pledge was for a demonstration of determination. From his promise grew a dream, St. Jude Children's Hospital.

In February, 1972, this unique national institution in Memphis, Tennessee, marked its tenth anniversary of painstaking medical research and devoted care of children stricken with catastrophic diseases: acute lymphocytic leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, solid tumor, and other childhood cancers, even malnutrition.

St. Jude Children's Hospital is non-sectarian, interracial and completely free of charge to patients admitted by physician referral, and if their disease is under study.

Chapters of Tau Kappa Epsilon from all over West Virginia will be participating in the event. On the whole the event will be a marathon walk, but the chapters will be pulling something as they come to Charleston. The chapter from Glenville State College will be pulling an old porcelain bathtub approximately 100 miles from Glenville to Charleston. The chapter from Fairmont State College will be pulling a commode from Parkersburg to Charleston. Other chapters of Tau Kappa Epsilon that will be pulling for the children at St. Jude will be from West Virginia Tech, Morris Harvey, and Concord College of Athens.

On The Bench

by John Lilly

This might be the busiest time of the year for the Glenville State College athletic teams. You might say that a majority of the Pioneer teams are in action or are preparing to get into some action.

The NAIA regional champion Pioneer bowling team is now preparing for the NAIA National bowling tournament held in Kansas City, Missouri. The tourney starts April 18 with the G-Men and seven other schools competing for the national championship.

The Glenville State baseball season is now in full swing with first year coach Bob Summers guiding a very young Pioneer team. It looks as though Summers and his youthful Pioneers are having a little trouble at the plate but as the season gets older the G-Men's bats should start cracking.

The defending conference champion Glenville golf team looks like the team to beat this year. The G-Men have already started strong with an impressive 6-0 records but this week's Northern Regional at Wheeling will tell the story.

The not-too publicized Pioneer track team got their season under way this week. The eleven member team might not win any meets because of the smallness of the squad but there is enough individual talent there to win some events.

The eleven tracksters are Steve Buffington, Don Brady, Lee Hodges, Tim McCartney, Tim Butcher, Billy Hutchinson, Jerome Fruit, Willie Marshall, Keith Murdock, Randy White, and Danny Damron.

It might just be getting into spring and the major league baseball season just getting underway, but the GSC football team will be putting on their pads this coming Monday to start their spring drills.

The Pioneer spring drills will end with an alumni football game on Saturday, April 26.

Quotes . . . Quotes . . . Quotes and more Quotes . . . Jerry Pimm, Utah basketball coach, on all the TV timeouts during a game with Brigham Young: "I'm not smart enough to talk to my players that many times. After the fourth time-out in the first half, I told 'em to stay out there. I didn't have anything to say."

Bill Veeks, sports entrepreneur, describing horse racing fans: "Basically I've found the true horse player would bet on a race full of cockroaches if he could distinguish some sort of form there."

Pro golfer ace Johnny Miller: "Serenity is knowing that your worst shot is still going to be pretty good."

Chi Chi Rodriguez, pro golfer: "The first time I played the Masters Tournament I was so nervous I drank a bottle of rum before I teed off. I shot the happiest 83 of my life."

A few years ago Wilt Chamberlain was playing in New York, and the big center rose up to stuff a shot through the hoop when Johnny Green leaped up and blocked the attempt.

Madison Square Garden went nuts, of course, and while Wilt and Green ran up the court together Chamberlain leaned over and said to Green: "If you ever do that again you're going in the basket with the ball."

According to cheerleader, Dorothy Wright, any female student wishing to tryout for cheerleader for the next school year should contact any of the present cheerleaders. The requirements are a grade average of 2.00 or above and a schedule of at least twelve hours.

The girls are asked to contact either Dorothy Wright, Becky Cummings, Kathy Friend, Phyllis Taylor, or Linda Caudill.

Tracksters Place 3rd

The Glenville State College track team opened up their season placing third in a triangular meet held in Fairmont last Tuesday afternoon. The WV Wesleyan Bobcats took the meet followed by the Fairmont Falcons and then Glenville.

Although being the first meet for the G-Men there were some outstanding times for the Pioneers and a possible school record.

Senior speedster Steve Buffington set the track on fire with a 9.8 100-yard dash. Since there are not any official school track records he could be the record holder. Buffington also placed second in the 220-yard sprint.

Freshman Leandis Hodges placed second in the Triple Jump, with a hop, skip and a jump of 41'8". Don Brady also placed in this event finishing third.

Sophomore Tim Butcher placed third in the 880-yard run with a time of 2:03.7.

The Pioneer 440-yard relay team placed third in this event with a time of 45.0 seconds flat. The winning

Glenville Nine Lose To Tech

The Glenville Pioneer baseball team lost their fifth and sixth game of the season as they fell to the WV Tech Golden Bears by the scores of 4-1 and 1-0. The last game went 10 innings before the Bears could pull it out.

In the first game the youthful Pioneers managed only five hits as the Bears stopped the G-Men's hitting attack. Tim Shepherd led the Glenville offensive attack with two hits.

The Pioneers losing pitcher Bob Casto allowed four runs, three of those were earned. He gave up eight hits and struck out five and walked only two.

In the second game the Pioneers lost their second 1-0 ballgame of the year. Losing pitcher Ralph Smith pitched an excellent two hit game, but the Pioneer hitters could not muster enough hits to score any runs.

Tech's only run and only the second hit of the game came in the 10th inning when Smith walked a Tech player and then another Golden Bear laced a triple into left field to score the winning run.

Smith, whose record now stands at 1-1, struck out seven Bears and walked only three.

The Pioneer's next outing is Saturday; a double header against the A-B Battlers over at Rohrbough Field starting at 1:00 p.m.

time was 44.6.

Glenville didn't place in the mile run, the mile relay, or the pole vaulting event.

The Pioneer's next meet is tomorrow where they will participate in the WV Wesleyan Invitation.

Minnesingers Make Music

by Steve Boilon

"Music makes the world go round." Or is it "Music makes GSC go round?" Maybe it's "Music makes the Minnesingers go round!" Yes, that's it. "Music makes the Minnesingers go round."

Under the direction of Ms. Kay Strosnider, music instructor, the group is composed of thirteen talented students, who seem to enjoy performing their repertoire of popular folk, light rock, ballad, and show tunes. The group, organized as part of the GSC Cultural Affairs Committee, was established for the purpose of providing public service performances for schools, churches, and civic organizations. An effective public relations tool for the music department and GSC, the group has performed at several banquets and recently have been travelling to high schools in hopes of impressing students with GSC. This year the Minnesingers will be singing for the annual Commencement.

Each semester audition times are posted around campus. Any student wishing to try out may do so. The selection of new members is done by the whole group after the auditioning student has sung with group during rehearsal. Credit may be received as Music 389, Special Problems and Topics.

The Minnesingers sing with a breezy air utilizing several instruments during performances. The accompaniment, besides piano, usually includes two guitars, flutes, and occasionally solos on clarinet and saxophone. Also, at times the group uses several small percussion instruments to enhance the syncopated quality of the eight rock tunes.

For approximately two hours a week the small group of musicians practice over and over their repertoire, which usually has several selections arranged by the students, themselves.

One member, Janet Griffin, has arranged several of the pieces to fit the group's very versatile style. She, along with the other singers, takes a song and adds this or deletes that, and eventually arrives at a happy medium; often a lively, happy tune. Especially with the help of Ms. Strosnider the Minnesingers act and perform like a professional, experienced group.

Due to the hard work and enormous amount of time spent during rehearsals, it seems only fitting to honor these dedicated students—the Minnesingers. The Minnesingers are composed of the following students: Sherry Horne, Gordon Allen, Janet Griffin, Cathy McWhorter, Mary Prather, Carol Dennison, Becky Steidl, Dan Vankirk, Richard Hardway, Hugh Givens, Jane Lowe Harry, Marsha McIntyre, and Beth Steidl.

Music does, indeed make the Minnesingers go round. Their hard work and dedication can be seen in their performances. Their music is their gift to us, the audience. It is no wonder that many of the state's citizens have been awed by their performance.

THE SEVEN O'CLOCK CURFEW

An 1876 collection of students' examinations of Glenville Normal School was recently sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D.C. This volume was one of seven from West Virginia schools that was exhibited in the centennial program at Philadelphia. The remaining six books were from public schools, and were shown along with W. Va. symbols and specimens of coal, oil, mineral waters, paintings, trees, and agricultural ventures.

The examination books are now to be displayed in the upcoming Bicentennial celebration. The book from Glenville Normal School was possibly collected and edited by Principal T. Marcellus Marshall. After serving as acting principal for Glenville's very first semester (Jan. 1873 - Jun. 1873), Marshall was principal of the school from 1875-1881, when he resigned to enter the ministry. Marshall kept the Normal School on its feet through the financially unsound, first years. A colorful legend exists about this somewhat eccentric man. His occupations included "teacher, farmer, minister, lawyer, doctor, linguist, author, engineer, and business man." He visited the Middle East later in his life, playing tennis on the pyramids in Egypt.

One may wonder as to what classes were offered during his administration, to determine the content of the tests in the collection. The curriculum offered during Marshall's time may suggest the type of papers in the book. There were only four faculty members: Marshall, Gay Depew, Elmer H. Dodson, and Adelia Reitz.

According to the catalogue for the 1875-76 year, the school was established "to educate and train persons for the purpose of teaching, in order to better the working of the free schools of the state. A Normal Course was divided into a Junior and Senior Normal Course, and a Classical and Scientific Course was offered to students enrolling at Glenville."¹ That means a total of two types of degrees were available at that time. A certificate, good for life, was awarded graduates, enabling them to teach in any county in West Virginia.

Courses taught included the basics for instruction in W. Va. public schools, and six hours of daily class work were required to complete them. Math classes were perhaps the most detailed, with specific subjects dealing with arithmetic, algebra, bookkeeping, geometry, drawing, and plane trigonometry. Geography, English, and reading also received special emphasis, to round out the "Readin', 'riting, and 'rithmetic" basics. The remaining classes open to students were music (with two lessons per week and two daily practice sessions), biology, history, and German.

Not offered was art, journalism, home economics, library science, physical education, chemistry, physics, economics, or sociology.

A lot of time must have been spent on the exams for free time was scarce during the day and non-existent at night. The students "were not permitted to visit or receive company during the nights of school days. . . except by special permission".² This curfew time was usually 7 o'clock except for Literary Society or church meetings. Social and extracurricular life was further hampered with the lack of athletics, forensics, band, choir, homecomings, Lyceum, the Mercury, the Kanawhachen, fraternities, sororities, and student government.

For infractions, a demerit system was used, involving admonitions by the principal, faculty, and even the whole school, as well as possible suspension or dismissal from school.

Monthly reports were sent to the parent or guardian of days present, days absent, amount of times tardy, demerits for the month, average grades, neatness of manuscripts, work on the blackboard, and examinations in each branch. Anyway, examinations of this very kind are in the century old volume of collections at the Smithsonian. They will represent GSC in one portion of our nationwide celebration.

By the way, enrollment during the year of the 1876 centennial celebration was a large 71.
