Pribble Attends Meet

Dr. Mary Jo Pribble, Associate Professor of Chemistry at Glenville State College, attended the Ninth Annual Central Regional Meeting of the American Chemical Society held at the Civic Center in Charleston, October 12 - 14. The meeting was attended by some 700 chemists from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Michigan and West Virginia.

A highlight of the program was the plenary lecture presented by Sir Geoffrey Wilkinson, F.R.S. entitled "The Three R's—Chemistry for Connoisseurs." Professor Wilkinson of Imperial College in London received the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 1973

Michael Johnson will be performing on stage next Friday at GSC.

Johnson Performs

Next Friday, October 28, 1977, Michael Johnson will be performing in the GSC auditorium at 8 p.m. The concert is free by ID.

Michael Johnson was born into the music business. As a young boy in Denver, his older brother taught him to play guitar with both of them teaching themselves highly irregular fingering techniques. He eventually followed his brother into Colorado State College to major in music education, but after winning a national talent contest sponsored by Columbia Records and WGN Radio in Chicago, he walked out on finals to accept first prize which included a recording contract with Epic Records (he now has two albums, one on Atlantic, and one on Sanskrit Records). Soon after he was playing in folk clubs throughout the nation.

When American trends changed,

Michael headed for Bracelona, Spain to learn more about the guitar. Upon his return to the U.S. he first joined the Back Porch Majority (an offshoot of the New Christy Minstrels) and then joined John Denver, who was then leader of the Mitchell Trio, as its third member. In the middle of the year that group changed its name to Denver, Boyce and Johnson and recorded under that name. At the end of a year the group dissolved.

In New York then, he joined the cast of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well...etc." for a year work-in NYC, LA, and Chicago with that show.

Michael now resides near Minneapolis, Minn. and works on his music and composing. His recordings and performances reflect all of his backgrounds: ballads, original material, jazz and classical guitar, plus some incredible rearrangements of other people's material.

Latos Exhibits Arts

Paul Latos, 1975 graduate of Glenville State College, and presently pursuing a Master of Fine Arts degree in Art at West Virginia University, is currently exhibiting a ceramic salt and ash glazed teapot in the Beaux Arts Designer/Craftsman '77 Exhibition. Beaux Arts Designer/Craftsman '77 is a juried exhibition of contemporary crafts open to artists residing in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. The exhibition is presented by Beaux Arts, an affiliate of the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts and runs from September 18th through November 4th, 1977.

The jurors for the exhibition were Robert Ebendorf, Professor of art at State University College in New Paltz, New York; Cynthia Schira, assistant professor of design at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas; and Robert Turner, professor of ceramic art, Division of Art and Design, College of Ceramics, State University of New York in Alfred, New York. These jurors were selected on the basis of their reputation as working craftsmen.

Slides were submitted for preliminary review by the jurors: From a field of 1,333 slide entries, 474 craft objects were selected for final review by the jurors. The 273 pieces in the exhibition reflect their final selection. Latos is the only West Virginia artist selected to exhibit.

Blues Experienced

Here it is, the middle of the semester and everyone has the mid-semester blues. We've been going to classes for about a month and a half and I think everyone shares my feelings when I say it seems like forever! It happens every semester. At first, everyone is enthusiastic and making promises to themselves that they are going to do things differently this time, but they never do. By the middle of the semester, students begin to feel that the world is closing in on them - the instructors are giving more work, mid-term tests are imminent, papers are due and everyone is going crazy. Of course, it's only a state of mind. We haven't been going to classes forever, the instructors aren't really giving extra work and there are mid-term tests, but there have been tests before mid-term and there will be tests after.

There is no cure for the mid-semester blues. It's like adolescence, a phase everyone has to struggle through. It probably won't make things easier to say at least we're half way through the semester, but we are. What would make things better, I think, would be to look ahead and see what's coming up that we can look forward to. One event that I think everyone anticipates is Sadie Hawkins and that is coming up soon. Everyone seems to enjoy rolling in the mud and climbing greased poles, not to mention the dance afterwards. Then there is Thanksgiving vacation (which is a week and is called fall vacation) and last but certainly not least, Christmas and New Year's vacation (imagine, the whole month of January off from school.)

So perhaps by looking ahead we can ease the blues and depression that we feel now. If not, take comfort in the fact that you are not alone (a lot of the instructors go through this phase, too, you know!) and that soon it will pass, like a bad headache or indigestion.

HEBU Wants Liberal Union

Like the mass exodus from the college on the weekends, "downtown" has drained the multitudes from the college during the week. This magnetic force has attracted the crowds away from the campus, resulting in a division between the social and educational aspects of college life. While downtown provides only an escapist social environment, the college has the potential to provide educational as well as social and cultural expression. By employing the facilities of the union, students may find that they will no longer need to resort to downtown. A 24-hour open union will provide a social, recreational as well as studious atmosphere in which the student may find refuge no matter what time of day. It is important that the college provide such a facility in order to secure the top hand in the well rounded education of its students. To cover the added expense of operation, beer should be sold as it is in other state colleges and as provided for by state law. Hence, the total attraction will be in the college, the fusion of which will result in a new commitment of its students to the institution—and the institution, which may fulfill its commitment to the students by providing a total education. Voice your opinion about the college as a complete learning center by filling out a simple questionnaire in the union lobby at a date and time to be posted later.

Student Reminisces; Homecoming Relived

As Homecoming '77 sinks slowly into the west, we all retain certain private memories of that wonderful weekend. But who of you among us have forgotten those wonderful days of our high school homecomings? After a commercial word we will reminisce and relive those juvenile years. Note: Randy Miller kicked a football.

The pregame pageant of pretty parade peoples, excessive collections of chickenwire and puffs (grossly mislabeled as floats), arthritic baton twirlers and oversized, undertalented tuba players were the highlights of the first segment of my first epileptic high school homecoming.

Among the floats were a few that will no doubt live on the pages of obscurity long after you and I reach our Waterloo. Conforming to the theme "Somewhere over the Barstool," my freshman class fashioned a giant Falls City can out of an oil drum. We hid two of our fellow classmates in the can instructing them to make gurgling sounds like an open can of beer. Things did not work out however. It seems they took a bottle of ripple with them to pass the time; never heard one peep out of the drunks. The winner of the float competition was an entry by the senior citizens. They chose one of their more frivolous members to walk the parade route drinking tequila, balancing a ball on the end of his nose, smoking a cigar, and (this was the tricky part) singing "I did it my way". The poor man has never been the same since.

The Homecoming game was not exactly what you would normally expect. Our team was so bad (how bad were they?) that the other team played a collection of people they had picked up on the way to the field. My high school was beaten by four hippies going to Grateful Dead Concert, five winos from the depths of the gutter, one crippled 90-year-old man, and a local lady of ill repute. The evening was not an entire loss however. The manager of our team managed to pick up a date with the lady in red.

The Homecoming Dance. I cringe at the thought, the final insult of this memorable day. First of all my date was a little strange. I was only a little upset because she hadn't shaved her Tarzan legs. I did become slightly miffed when I saw she hadn't shaved her sideburns and mustache. The band was unusual at best. Headlined as Johnny Comode and the Four Flushers their renditions of old favorites was not a contemporary work of art. The lowlight of their performance was a medley of songs they themselves had written: "Which way to the bathroom, honey," "Does your mommy still do floors," "It ain't my fault you smell like a horse," and finally my personal favorite, "I'm glad you're leaving but I ain't gonna feed the dog." Of the twelve people who were there eight were drunk, two were asleep, and the other two were back in the shadows doing unmentionable things to each other.

Editors Go South

On the weekend of Oct. 25 - 30, Miss Donna Fleming and Miss Lavette Taylor will be attending a yearbook convention in New Orleans.

They will be driving through and then staying at Braniff Palace. They are being sponsored by the National Council of Collegiate Publications Advisors.

They will also be meeting leading yearbook manufacturers. From the convention, they hope to get ideas and a theme for this year's yearbook.

Dr. Clair Matz To Speak At October AAUW Meet

The AAUW (American Association of University Women) will hold its monthly meeting on Wednesday, October 26, at the Pioneer Center's Multipurpose Room. The business meeting will begin at 7:00 p.m.

At 8:00 p.m. Dr. Clair W. Matz, Jr., Associate Professor of Political Science at Marshall University, will speak. The public is invited to attend.

His presentation, titled, "Understanding Global Hunger and What I Can Do," is part of the Mountain Issues Forum, funded by the Committee for Humanities and Public Policy in W.Va. The purpose of the project is to enable scholars in the humanities to lead discussions of public policy issues of concern to West Virginians.

Matz, who is a graduate of Albright College, also holds the S.T.M. from United Theological Seminary (Dayton), the M.A. from Lehigh U., and the Ph.D. from the U. of Virginia. Since coming to Marshall in 1970, he has appeared on television programs and delivered papers before the W.Va. Political Science Association and most recently before the 18th annual convention of the International Studies Association in St.

He has studied and taught in the fields of international relations, international law, Latin American government and politics of developing nations and international economics.

In the summer of 1977, he traveled to South America and has also visited Puerto Rico, Mexico, and Canada, and the countries of Europe.

In his presentation he helps the layman understand the issues that are often buried in diplomatic language or are so complex that the press does not even attempt to cover the international conferences in which they are discussed. World hunger is such an issue, and Matz shows how it affects West Virginians and what they can do about it.

Matz is one of thirteen participants in the Mountain Issues Forum who are available to community groups to lead discussions on certain aspects of public policy, in keeping with CHAPP's theme, "People and Mountains: West Virginia Looking Ahead." Project Director is Barbara W. Tedford, Associate Professor of English at Glenville State College, which is supplying matching funds for the program.

The Committee for Humanities and Public Policy is a state-based program of the National Endowment for projects that engage scholars in the humanities in dialogues with the adult-out-of-school public. Those interested in applying for grants to launch projects dealing with public policy issues may write to CHAPP's Executive Director, Charles H. Daugherty, Box 204, Institute, 25112.

Traveller's Tales Told

There's a world-traveller among us on the GSC campus and he has enjoyed every minute of it. Mike Boggs, a sophomore elementary education major at GSC, has lived in seven states and two foreign countries within his lifetime.

Mike, the 22-year-old son of Mr. & Mrs. George Boggs, has lived in so many places because of his father's work as a master sergeant in the Air Force. Mike was born in West Virginia, the original home of his parents. From West Virginia the family moved to South Carolina, then to California. They later resided in Oklahoma and moved from this state to Athens, Greece, where they spent four years. Upon returning to the U.S. they lived in Colorado then came back to West Virginia. After West Virginia they travelled to Texas then set up residence in Virginia. Mike's father was then stationed with the American Embassy in the Philippine Islands where he is still stationed. Mike lived with his family there for a year before returning to West Virginia and Glenville State. Besides these places of residences, Mike has also been in North Africa and England.

When asked if he liked all this moving about, Mike answered that he's glad he got to travel because he got to meet a lot of different people and experience a lot of different cultures. While living in Greece and the Philippines, Mike said that he fit in with the native people and did not want to be an outsider. "It's a lot neater to hang out with the people in those countries than with other Americans," he said. The culture is different in that the people are much friendlier and more hospitable. "Friends are really close friends there," he said. "They're not afraid of touching like Americans are."

Although Mike enjoyed all of this travel he plans to settle after completing his education here. He feels that elementary is one of the most important stages of education and he plans to teach in a rural community and live on a farm.

The first regular monthly meeting of GSC's Student Education Association was held on Wednesday, October 11 in the Ballroom. Featured speakers for the evening were Bob McDermont who spoke on the benefits of SEA. Ed Vineyard, along with two of his students, presented a program on music education. We would like to thank all those who attended and extend an invitation to all students to attend our next meeting.

Evans To Speak

Dr. Leo Evans, of City University, London, England, will conduct a lecture workshop on campus Nov. 2, 3, 4 for interested faculty members.

The purpose of the workshop is to assist the staff in developing their personal abilities in lecture presentation.

Dr. Leo Evans is currently a visiting professor at West Virginia University. His role, while at WVU, will be to conduct instructional workshops for the improvement of university teaching. The workshops are designed specifically to improve the art of lecturing and the use of instructional technology.

The workshops, which Dr. Evans conducts, are similar to those that he first developed for City University in 1966 and that now are being used annually by over 25 universities throughout the United Kingdom.

'Sailor' Scheduled For Wed. Showing

The Sailor Who Fell From Grace with the Sea is a loose adaptation of Yekio Mishima's novel of the same title. Much of Mishima's sensitive understanding of the relationship between a boy and his mother's lover was lost when Director John Calino moved the setting from Yokohama to Dartmouth. It is much too difficult a task to transform Japanese values and customs into those practiced by the English; and so, the story suffers.

Judith Crist summed up the movie when she wrote that it was a "beautifully photographed film that relates the obvious about the murderous brute within the rosy-cheeked perkily uniformed proper British schoolboy." The story revolves around young Jonathan's (Jonathan Kahn) initial idolization and eventual contempt of the Sailor (Kris Kristofferson). Jon and his mother (Sarah Miles) live at Dartmouth on the sea where trade ships dock. The mother begins a relationship with the Sailor which will prove to be fatal. For as Jay Cocks pointed out, as long as Jon associated the Sailor with the sea, "...he was part of 'the pure and perfect order of things,' but away from his rightful place he becomes an imperfect creature, a subject of jealousy and contempt who must be done away with." Jon, with the aid of his friend "The Chief" methodically plan to kill the Sailor.

The Student Congress will present two showings (6pm & 8pm) of The Sailor Who Fell from Grace with the Sea on Wednesday, October 26, 1977 in the Auditorium.

Group Sings

On the campus of GSC there is a singing group known as the "Camerata Singers", under the direction of Dr. Raymond D. Jones. The "Cameratas" is made up of 11 GSC students who also are members of the choir. The group will be performing at high schools throughout the state.

The "Camerata Singers" get their name from a move during the 16th century to establish small academies which would function as a place for students with similar interests to pursue their art together. From this movement sprang our present

Halftime Talk

By DOUG MARTIN

It was a long time coming but it finally got here. The first victory of the season must have made alot of people happy. After being on the wrong end of the score all year, it must have been a short and sweet trip home from Bluefield after beating the "Big Blues" (I question that nickname) 16-12 on their own field. I'm very happy for the players and coaches. They've worked too hard and stuck it out too long to not reap the harvest of a win. There have been alot of injuries and other miscellaneous problems to weather this year, and one has to feel a little sorry for Leandis Hodges who has suffered through painful injury after injury and wasn't even dressed for the Bluefield game.

What is really great is that now they have momentum going into the home game tomorrow night against West Liberty and next week on the road against W.Va. State. Both of these schools have the same record as us, 1-5, and since we just grabbed a victory, things really look optimistic for the last weeks of the season.

Something that is even more amazing is that by winning the W.Va. State game and the Concord game the following week we could actually tie for first place in the Southern Division. But this will be no easy task since Concord is undefeated and nationally ranked.

* * * * *

Another good thing about last week's game was the performance of some outstanding freshmen. David Boggess from Sissonville was the leading ground gainer going over 100 yards, and Van Vaughn stepped into the fullback position after playing line backer all year and scored on a 47 yard jaunt. Also, Chuck Ludwig turned in another bone crunching game.

GRID FORECASTS

I had another good venture last week, hitting on 5 of 7. I'm ashamed to admit that I missed the Glenville win. But believe me, I'm not the only one "crying the blues." I also missed on the WVU-Boston College fiasco. My season percentage is now .558.

Glenville - 21, West Liberty - 7.
Pioneers get two in a row.
Concord - 28, Fairmont - 0.
Yawn....

Salem - 17, W.V. Tech - 12.
Hillsdale - 30, W.V. State - 6.

Penn State - 78, WVU - 3. I think I'm being too easy on the Mountaineers.

Western Michigan - 28, Marshal - 24. The Herd can score but has no defense.

If you remember last week I predicted the Yanks to win the World Series in 6 games. When I made this guess I was actually picking from the heart and not the head. But the pinstripes didn't let me down. They humiliated the Dodgers, a team that humiliated the National League (Including the Cincinnati Reds).

How about that Reggie Jackson. There's never been anybody put on on a one man show in the World Series like he did unless it was the legendary Babe Ruth (I wonder who he played for?).

Jackson must feel that poetic justice has been served. Or maybe he laughed last.

Cross Country Team Is Formed

A "first" was recorded at Buckhannon on the morning of Friday, October 7, 1977, as—for the first time in GSC's history—a varsity cross country team competed in behalf of the college. The team, coached by James F. Hilgenberg, Jr., Assistant Professor of History at GSC, competed in the "Rockefeller Five-O," a meet hosted by WVWC.

Most significantly, the team was only in its second week of formal existence, having been born through the initiatives of some GSC students interested in running. The efforts of Bill Hutchinson, Robey Godfrey, Randy White, John Walker, Patsy Groves and Joey Herron were basic to the organization of the new team. Invaluable aid was extended by Dr. Joseph Now, Athletic Director at GSC.

In the meet at Wesleyan, Glenville's Bill Hutchinson finished 37th and he was followed by Robey Godfrey (48th), John Walker (50th) and Randy White (55th). On Friday, October 14, the GSC team competed in the Joel Varian Memorial meet near West Liberty State College. The meet was won by WVU, and GSC runners were again led by Hutchinson (37th), Godfrey (41st), White (47th), Patsy Groves (49th) and John Walker, who finished despite an injury.

Pioneers Make Bluefield 'Cry The Blues'

Oh, it feels good to win. Putting their first dent in the win column, the Pioneers defeated the Bluefield Big Blues last Saturday night, 16-12. What made the win more gratifying was the fact that the win came on the road, something not easily done.

The G-Men never trailed in winning their first game since they defeated W.Va. Wesleyan more than a year ago. Not only did the Pioneers win, but they dominated the game, both on the field and in statistics. Glenville broke out to a 10-0 half-time lead and led 16-0 in the third quarter before Bluefield was able to score.

Glenville's first score came on the now famous muddle huddle. Again it was Tom Phillips doing the honors as he did against Fairmont 3 weeks ago. Instead of a fake field goal, this time it was a fake punt and Phillips ran 36 yards past the bewildered Bluefield defense. Benny Long converted the extra point and later in the first half kicked a field goal from 23 yards out after Bluefield held the Pioneers on the 6 yard line. Glenville went into intermission holding a 10 point bulge.

On the first series of downs in the second half, Van Vaughn, who was converted from linebacker to fullback because of injuries in the backfield, broke 47 yards for a TD that gave the G-Men a 16-0 lead. Vaughn had an impressive game in his debut as a running back, picking up 76 yards in nine carries. Two other Pioneer backs had noteworthy games. Dave Boggess led all rushers with 128 yards in 25 carries and Tom Phillips had 83 yards in 16 carries plus a touchdown.

With the score 16-0, the Big Blues were able to score two touchdowns, one on a 4 yard pass in the third quarter and on a two yard run in the fourth. But both times the stingy Glenville defense held on 2 point conversion tries and the Pioneers came away with a 16-12 victory.

Rick Reidl, Jim Henderson and Steve Brown led the balanced defensive attack with 5 tackles. Henderson, Chuck Barker and Tom Cowan each had an interception.

Glenville now comes home to face West Liberty. The Hilltoppers have defeated us the last 3 years, and sports the same record as we do this year, 1-5. Bluefield is also 1-5 now. The Pioneers have a good chance of putting together back-to-back wins, something they haven't done for a long while so everybody come out and cheer like you never have before. The new stadium is also going to be dedicated during halftime, so come on out for the festivities. Game time is 7:30.

	GSC	Bluefield
First Downs	15	16
Yards Rushing	282	123
Yards Passing	10	162
Total Yards	292	285

Our Bowlers Tune Up At Morgantown

Our bowlers start competition this weekend with a trip to Morgantown. Actual conference competition doesn't start until next semester (February) but the team uses the first semester to participate in a couple matches to sharpen their talents for the rough conference battle next term. This Saturday and Sunday they will be in the "University City" to compete in the Mountaineer Classic. There will be as many as 16 teams vying for singles and doubles championships. Among these will be Penn State, U.S. Naval Academy, Shippenburg (who?) and of course, host WVU.

Second year coach Gary Kight will send his 6 man team which has been highly rated in the NAIA the last two years. Two years ago they won the national championship and last year they finished seventh. Actually only 5 men can compete for the team championship, but the sixth man can be used for doubles and singles competition.

Coach Kight has 9 men out for team right now, and although he has picked 6 to make this trip, he is quick to point out that they may not be the same six that make every trip. It all depends upon who does the best in head to head competition.

The six keggers making this trip will be Dave Twyman, a two year letterman who averaged 178 last season. He is a junior from Parkersburg. Mike Hickman is a junior from Dunbar. He has also lettered twice and averaged 175 last year. Mark Smith has also lettered twice and is a junior. The Parkersburg native averaged 158 last season. Dale Sparks is a sophomore letterman from Becklev. He rolled a 178 average last campaign. The other two bowlers are freshman Greg Martin from Parkersburg and Mike Scarbrough, a sophomore from Dunbar.

There has been one interesting rule change in the WVIAC since last year. The substitution rule states that a bowler can be pulled between games if his coach feels he is not performing well. Before, if a bowler started a tournament he had to finish it.

Other competition scheduled for the keggers this semester is the WV Intercollegiate Tournament to be held November 18 and 19 at Marshall University. It will be open to all colleges in West Virginia. Coach Kight added that a women's team is still a possibility. So far only 2 women have shown interest, and at least 3 more are needed to form a team. If interested see Gary Kight or one of the bowlers.

Field Dedication Set for Tomorrow

Dedication of the new Glenville State College football and track field will be held Saturday, October 22, at halftime of the Glenville - West Liberty game. Dr. Joseph P. Now, GSC Athletic Director, will be Master of Ceremonies. Forrest L. Blair, Parkersburg member of the West Virginia University Board of Regents, Delegate Billy B. Burke, and former President D. Banks Wilburn will be guests at the dedication.

will compete in a dual meet with Fairmont (October 29th) and the conference meet at WLSC on November 4th.

Any GSC student—male or female—with an interest in running for fun or in varsity competition is strongly encouraged to contact any member of the team or Mr. Hilgenberg. The team needs members!!

Horticulture Class Travels

Recently the students enrolled in Turf Management, a required class in Ornamental Horticulture, went on an all day field trip to Indiana, PA. Here they visited a nursery called Mussers Forests, Inc.

Mussers is the largest nursery in the east and included approximately 900 acres in seedlings and 12,000 acres in Christmas trees. It is known as the Christmas Tree capitol and started out as only sixty acres of land.

The students were given a tour by Charles Flinn, a four year graduate of Forestry. Students observed machinery used in the operation and maintenance of a nursery and a nursery's general layout such as the location of a water supply, propagation houses, green houses, and the sales area along with other features.

Mr. Flinn told students about the general use of pesticides, herbicides, fertilizers used, covercropping, and other information.

The group headed by Miss Ross and Mr. Bondi left campus around 7 a.m. o'clock in the college van to return, after an interesting trip, around 8:30 p.m.

for his pioneering research in organic-metallic chemistry.

The award for the Outstanding High School Teacher in the Central Region was presented during the meeting. The recipient was Richard F. Welch of Dearborn High School, Dearborn, Michigan. He is one of the eight high school teachers in the United States to be honored in 1977. During his teaching career he has taught 17,000 high school students.

The program for the meeting included fifteen symposia with invited speakers in transition cluster chemistry, photochemistry at solid interfaces, also multinuclear and solid phase nuclear and magnetic resonance, phase transfer chemistry, and biotransformations of aromatic compounds. Papers were presented in general sessions on analytical, inorganic, organic and physical chemistry and biochemistry.

An exhibition of scientific equipment and textbooks in the various fields of chemistry was a feature of the meeting.
