Consort Performs In RF Kidd Library

The Renaissance Consort will be presenting a program Monday evening, May 15, in the Library featuring madrigal, recorder, and harpsichord music as well as poetry readings by Glenville's poet, Carl Kerr. Everyone is invited to gather in the Library reading room at 8:00 to hear this varied program and to have some refreshments.

Directed by Sidney H. Tedford, the Consort is a group of performers who specialize in Renaissance music. They have presented short programs this spring at banquets for supervising teachers, the Alumni Association, and the Woman's Club of Glenville.

Included in the program for Monday will be works by Morley, Byrd, DiLasso, William Cornysh, John Bennet, and Du Tertre. In addition to Renaissance literature, the group also performs works by composers of later periods, such as Brahms, Distler, Hindemith and Toch.

A special feature on the program will be Carl Kerr's readings from his own poetry. Now retired from teaching in the Language Division, Professor Kerr has published two volumes, "Myriad Abode" (1943) and "Homages" (1967).

The members of the Renaissance Consort are Mary Ashby, Jeff Davis, Steve Fox, Tammy Gum, Heather Hickman, Joe Hickman, Abigail McHenry, June Nonnenberg, Twyla Wallace and Bruce Wendelken.

This will be the second Library "concert" the Consort has given.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I read with painful dismay the letter of Professor Carl A. Kerr in the April 25 issue, wherein he is critical of an article in your April 14 issue relating to one Mr. Grubb.

Prof. Kerr was moved to take pen in hand when he read that Mr. Grubb "is now living in Charleston where he is officed in the Kanawha County Library." It is with trepidation and hesitation that I take reluctant notice that my former mentor, heretofore the very fount of authority on our beloved tongue, wholly missed the point of what was essentially a clear and simple story.

Prof. Kerr takes issue with the use of the verb "office" on the ground that it is not a verb. That is absurd. To "office" is an authentic verb as fully as to "tree" is a verb, as in "to tree a coon."

One "trees" an object by chasing or driving, by force or fear, the object up a tree. This procedure is ordinarily accomplished by the use of dogs. To be cost-effective, the dogs usually possess an aggressive personality. One might even call them unreasonable, or perhaps mean, particularly if one is a coon.

Similarly, one "offices" a creature by chasing or driving him, by force or fear, into an office. Once the cruel act of "officing" has taken place, the poor wretch is then "officed." This is all so simple I cannot understand how it escaped Prof. Kerr.

I did not read your April 14 article and my only information about Mr. Grubb's fate is the sentence contained in Prof. Kerr's April 25 letter; however, I neither need nor want to hear more.

The obvious point of the story is that poor Mr. Grubb was relentlessly tracked down and cornered (notice the verb to "corner") in a remote office somewhere in the stacks of the Kanawha County Library where he cowers, trembling, in the fetal position, beneath a grey metal army-surplus desk, waiting his doom at the bloody hands of his pursuers.

In short, Mr. Grubb was brutally officed. It is a simple yet touching story which any fool can understand.

I believe we must all be careful when we read news articles. If we consider each one fully we will perceive the subject-matter much better. The day will soon arrive when no noun will be safe from getting verb-ed.

Very truly yours,
Orton A. Jones, Alumnus

Too Much Friction Among the Greeks

GSC Greeks have an ever persisting problem: friction between the sororities and friction between the fraternities. Each sorority is continually trying to prove its superiority over the other. The same is true of fraternities. Greek life is supposed to promote friendship, not start feuds.

If a sorority or fraternity is worth its name, its members shouldn't have to prove themselves to each other. Each member has to prove himself to his sorority or fraternity before he is initiated. Isn't that enough?

What does it matter who dates a better looking man or woman? Who cares who is more athletic? Does it really matter who has the nicest house, or if they even have a house?

These things are trivial. What we need to focus on is things like: Who is the most energetic? Who makes the biggest contributions to Panhellenic or the Intra-Fraternity Council? Who can devote more time to service projects? We need to concentrate on the good we can do for each other. There is no need to waste time degrading each other, when, together, we could join efforts to make GSC known and admired for its harmonious Greek life.

GSC Greeks should be able to form a group of dedicated people whenever the need arises. There are many projects such as blood drives, Heart Fund, the Day-Care Center, and the Senior Citizens who can always use many volunteers. Isn't dedication to our fellow man what Greek life is all about?

We must realize that when we close out fraternities and sororities other than our own, we are passing up opportunities for friendship. These friendships are ones that could last a lifetime.

A Habit That Needs Broken

Every third millinium I find myself indulging in a self satisfying critical tirade. Anything from apple pie to page boy haircuts is fair game for my critical tongue and over-zealous sarcastic wit. Again the time has come for me to lambast some sacred institution that many of the students on campus are associated with.

First of all, since I happen to live in a rather large glass house I do not wish this to sound like a personal attack on any individual who is connected with the "evil" on which I will launch my criticism. Rather, I look on it as a communal critique designed to enlighten, not to offend. But, if someone is offended by what I say, I don't really care.

Every Thursday night, a segment of the Glenville student body engages in what is affectionately called party night. Fantastic! After a hard week of study students should have some kind of outlet for their emotions. Good music, good company, and suitable refreshments are just the thing for a hard-working college student who has just about finished up another week of arduous mental and physical work. But there is something wrong with party night . . . it is the after effects. No, I don't mean a hangover. It's what I call the "fifth day dilemma."

If, during the week an instructor hints of giving some kind of mental exercises on a Friday, some people think it is a sin akin to mass genocide. They contend that Friday should be a day set aside for recuperation from Thursday night. If they don't have Friday to rest, then how are they going to be able to make it through the weekend. Well, poor babies.

Wherever the idea of this protracted weekend began is anyone's guess. No doubt the mass of red-eyed people slouched down in their plastic seats at 8 o'clock in the morning had something to do with it. The inaudible answers they most probably uttered perhaps gave rise to the hue and cry of "to hell with Friday."

The situation is very simple. Fridays are not going to disappear. Instructors are going to continue to expect attendance in their Friday classes, as well they should. Students are going to continue to party on Thursday nights, as well they should. Want to bet on who is going to be the loser? The grim reaper shall harvest his crop. I hope he asks me to help him.

Job Openings

A search for vacationing teachers and college students to fill 30,000 job openings this summer has been launched by Manpower, Inc., the world's largest temporary held firm.

"There is an acute shortage of skilled secretarial and office workers in most parts of the country," Mitchell S. Fromstein, president of Manpower, Inc., said. "Teachers and college students possess many of the skills which are in extremely short supply. We can give these people as much work as they want through any of our 559 offices around the country." Fromstein said.

Opportunities at Manpower for summer employment include office, health care, some industrial, marketing and engineering work. In Oklahoma City, for example, draftsmen are in demand while in Chicago, engineering students with mechanical, civil or electrical backgrounds are sought.

Fromstein suggested that college students looking for summer work evaluate their work backgrounds and education to discover skills they may have overlooked.

All Manpower offices are capable of testing applicants and informing them quickly whether their skills qualify them for summer work with Manpower.

Manpower provides work to more than 600,000 people annually in its 700 offices in 33 countries. Its largest division, office services, provides over half the jobs in which its work force is engaged.

The Food Service Director, Mr. Wayne Harkins has announced free sandwiches and drinks on Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 8:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m., May 23 and 24 in the old cafeteria. It is hoped that the "food break" will give some diversion and refreshment that will result in a better balance of study for final examinations. Eat all you wish at the cafeteria because food will be confined to this area. Please note that this service is only for those students with I.D.'s validated for meals.

To Be A Kid Again

by Tim Brady

How do you review a play, as a supposedly educated college student, when it was primarily designed for a much younger audience? This is the situation in the case of the recent children's play "Livin de Life," presented by the Drama Department. Therefore, it is with much experience that I digress into an eight year old and tell you what I thought of Brer Rabbit and his friends.

First of all the staging for the play, while simple was effective in setting the mood for the play. Scenery, props, and lighting - though it was somewhat shaded in the foreground - corresponded nicely with the simple and straightforward storyline. It was a play focused mainly on characters instead of the story itself, consequently, the set did not have to play a major role.

Make-up and costumes, so very important in the play, were handled with capable deftness. It would be difficult, without available facilities to convincingly portray a wide diversity of wild animals. The costumes and makeup were employed very well. The facial coloring of the characters, and the animals' distinctive tails and ears were very useful. Very few people, even the young ones, would mistake a green-faced Mike Swann for anything else but a turtle. The ring-tailed raccoon, the grey tailed fox, the long-eared rabbit, they all were easily recognizable.

The performances of the actors and actresses were an enjoyable part of the play; everyone did an excellent job. Jim Dotson portrayed a convincingly sneaky Brer Rabbit. His facial expression, so important when dealing with young people, was very distinctive and entertaining. The dynamic duo of Randy Gilles and Ken Anderson, Brer Fox and Brer Bear, did a passable imitation of a Vaudeville slapstick team. The other members of the cast, Mike Swann, Lynn Gough, Gina Yancey, Kathy Sullivan, Deb Wildman, Marsha Scarbro, and Doug Bailey seemed to be enjoying a youthful enthusiasm in their work and it obviously carried over to their stage performances.

People are continually telling me to grow up and quit acting like a kid. For a while, with the help of the cast of "Livin de Life" I was able to be a little kid again. Perhaps it is something we should all try.

Ron's Ramblings

by Ron Gregory

Well, our spring athletic squads have given us reason to be proud of them with the golf team now headed for the national tourney after capturing the state crown, and the bowling team having already made a trip to Kansas City.

On top of this, of course, the WVIAC Track and Field State events will be held this weekend at our new track at Pioneer Stadium.

As I have been trying to tell everyone all semester, there is more to athletics than the basketball and football teams. A lot more goes on, and spring is the time to support the program with an even more dedicated effort.

The golf team, bowling team, track squad, baseball team and all spring events at GSC deserve our support and attention. Hopefully, we will begin to see more people turning out for spring events. After all, what else is there to do in spring? And the weather is sure alot better now than in basketball and football season.

It kind of bothers me that people complain and fail to turn out for baseball games when it's a little too cool or cloudy. In football season, we can sit on the sidelines and shiver and still get to the game and talk about a "nice, crisp evening." Strange how things are different in different times.

Anyway, here's wishing the golf team great success. Coach Tim Carney has a good nucleus for a winning team for several years to come. The golf team deserves and needs the support of the student body and entire GSC community. Let's give it to them!

Track Was New 65 Years Ago

Sports Editor
Glenville Mercury

Dear sir,

To let you know that TRACK is not new to Glenville College. In 1913 and 1914 Glenville Normal participated in various track events. Hurdles, Broad Jump, Running Broad Jump, Hammer Throw, Shot Put, Discus Throw, High Jump, Hundred Yard Dash and the one mile run. Glenville had two mile runners who were never beaten. With training they could have been the first to run the 4 minute mile, long before Mr. Bannister. The meets were conducted at the Gilmer County Fair Grounds. There was a one half mile track and room for all events.

Each year in the month of May, a state track meet was held in which all State Colleges took part. The last one I remember was held in Clarksburg. Lots of interest was shown in these state meets.

Yours truly,

J.W. (WIB) Beall

Tennis Team Triumphs

The Glenville State College Tennis team finished its beginning season last weekend in the WVIAC tournament by winning two matches. The two victories enabled the team to finish ahead of Bluefield State College and to tie with Davis and Elkins and Salem College.

One of the wins came in the number six singles with Bob Baker defeating George Ford of West Virginia State College, 6-3, 6-1. The first doubles team, Chris Gillespie and Don Whalen defeated West Virginia Tech's doubles team in split sets.

Other participants for Glenville were Scott Clites, Steve Nemeth and Steve Ferrell.

Golf Team Victorious

Glenville State Pioneer Golf Team has won the West Virginia Conference championship for the fifth time in seven years with a final round surge Tuesday at the Canaan Valley State Park course.

"We had a 300 team score today (for the low four golfers) and that may be a first for the conference," said Coach Tim Carney. His Pioneers overtook first round leader West Liberty. Glenville earned a trip to the NAIA Golf Tournament at Huntsville, Tex., in June.

Glenville won by five strokes with a 611 total. Davis & Elkins was second with 616, followed by West Liberty 624, West Virginia Wesleyan 628, Bluefield 657, Morris Harvey 658, West Virginia Tech 659, Shepherd 664, West Virginia State 698, Alderson - Broaddus 701, and Salem 727.

Tim Olsen of West Virginia Wesleyan won individual honors with 73-73-146. He made the all-conference golf along with Joe Crislip of Glenville, Greg Brown and Kenny Phillips of Davis & Elkins and Bob Powers of Concord.

The scores of the winning Glenville team were Greg DelPrince 80-72-152, Crislip 77-76-153, Bill Hess 74-80-154, Jim Brady 80-75-155, and Perry Coe 79-77-156.

Glenville State College has won the WVIAC Championships in 1972, 1974, 1975, and 1977. The 1977 Golf Team finished 15th in the final National Association of Intercollegiate Athletes Association Tournament in 1977, and that ranking was the highest ever achieved by a West Virginia College in the National Tournament.

Leading the Pioneer Golfers in 1978, is Joe Crislip. A graduate of Parkersburg South High School, Joe is the brother of Terry Crislip who was a former Glenville State College Golfer and WVIAC Golfer of the Year. Greg DelPrince, a graduate of Harbor High School in Ashtabula, Ohio, is the defending Golfer of the Year. Greg is a sophomore.

Jim Brady, a graduate of Olean High School in Olean, New York, is a Junior. Bill Hess, a graduate of Parkersburg South High School in Parkersburg, Perry Coe, a graduate of Nicholas High School in Summersville, and Jerry Newburg, a graduate of Portville High School in Portville, New York, are other members of the Golf Team.

Glenville State College won the Northern and Central Regionals and West Virginia Wesleyan won the Southern Regional.

For the first time in four years, the Pioneers failed to capture the "Golfer of the Year" title. In 1975, Terry Crislip was top golfer; in 1976, Jimmy Scott won the title and in 1977, Greg DelPrince was the "Golfer of the Year."

The Tri-Sigma powderpuff team emerged victorious from the Panhellenic sponsored game between the Delta Zetas and the Sigma Sigma Sigmas on Monday.
