PARKING AT GSC...
a tight squeeze

First The Adjustment . . .

The first two weeks at GSC have come to an end and not too soon for some. The registration hassles, half-paved parking lots, fee increase, the overstuffed dorm situations, classes, and the new telephone system have caused even the best at GSC to mutter a few choice words.

Registration was a torture something akin to what Fu Man Chu would save for only his choicest prisoners. No consideration was given to those who pre-registered and needed only to pay their fees; they too had to stand in the slow-moving lines for hours. All in all, the problem needs a workable solution before once again we are forced to go through this agony. Thanks should be given to the patient registration workers for not losing their sanity or their temper.

Parking is once again a problem. Paying the five dollars for a parking sticker does not guarantee that a space will be available. Usually, a parking meter space is the only place to park and you must put in change or you will get a ticket. Either way, you pay through your billfold.

The dorm room shortage is another problem. Students who had previously requested a private room found themselves with a roommate.

Of course, there were some promising aspects; the 1980-81 Student Congress movie schedule is one of the best in GSC history. The textbook sale was a help for many students; and the planned activities (plus the nifty calendar from the Student Affairs Office) helped many freshmen become better adjusted. One of the more promising things was that the "wood chips" were still around. Hopefully, for most students, the good outweighed the bad.

The readjustment period is now over and the buckling down period begins. The time for serious studying and hard work starts and somewhere someone ought to be saying a prayer for you.

Sigma Sigma Sigma Launch Balloons

Play therapy for hospitalized children has long been the theme for Sigma Sigma Sigma's national philanthropy. The Sorority supports this broad and significant social service program, the Robbie Page Memorial Fund.

On over 80 college campuses and in over 100 towns this fall members of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority will give others a chance to MAKE A CHILD SMILE when they sponsor local balloon ascension contests. Delta Alpha chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma is planning their Balloon Ascension Contest to be held Sept. 20 at half-time of the Fairmont football game. Balloon tags may be purchased from now until Sept. 19 at 6:00 for one dollar a piece. Tags must be received by Sigma Sigma Sigma, Box 3 Pickens Hall, Glenville, WV 26351 no later than Oct. 6.

A prize of $75 will be awarded to the purchaser of the tag, and the finder of the tag which traveled the longest distance will receive $25. Winners will be announced on Oct. 18 at half-time of the Salem football game. Watch the map located in the glass case in the Administration Building daily to see the location from which the tags have been returned.

Since 1956, Tri Sigma collegians and alumnae have contributed to a sustaining program at the North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill. The Sorority has financed a pioneering rehabilitation program for seriously ill children, provided the pediatrics department with a completely equipped new playroom, a library and conference center, a new isolation area, a second playroom for ambulatory unit, and an adolescent lounge area for special activities for teenagers.

Special grants support various interrelated programs centered in these playrooms for the pediatrics department where newest techniques in play therapy are demonstrated. In addition, the Fund financed a pilot study program in play therapy and offers graduate assistantships in this field.

In 1974, work on playrooms at the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for children in St. Louis, Missouri was begun. In June 1977, Tri-Sigma adopted another project, to furnish the playroom at the Children's Medical Center in Dallas, as well as maintaining the facilities at the North Carolina Hospital at Chapel Hill.

The Robbie Page Memorial through which Sigma Sigma Sigma serves children, was established in 1951 following the death of Robbie Page, son of Mary Hastings Holloway Page, National President of the Sorority at that time.

There are extra copies of the literary magazine "Trillium" available at the English Department. If you did not get a copy, ask at the English Department, 3rd floor, administration building.

McMillion Publishes Poem

Raeleen McMillion, an English and Oral Communications major at Glenville State College, has had a poem published in the College Poetry Review, Spring 1980 issue. Ms. McMillion had written her poem while a senior at Fort Frye High School, Beverly, Ohio in 1979. She took her poem to Dr. Tedford, her advisor on campus, and was advised to submit it to the College Poetry Review. Here is her poem:

As One Who Has Known Love

Through the times, from olden days,
Scarce was thought of a lover's craze—
Though one cannot see through the haze—
One knows the familiarity of the daze.
I know the feelings; know the ways—
It enters your soul, lodges, and stays.
Your heart just like an open book lays
Open for reading by any who strays.
To be woven into the pleasant maze
And devour a lover's mischievous plays:
I could spend the rest of my days.

The College Poetry Review receives 300,000 manuscripts every year, from these 1,000 are published.

Raeleen has also been asked to permit her poem to be included in a bound volume called Pegasus. Pegasus is an anthology of the better selections of the College Poetry Review for that year.

Fall Interview Day for Dec. graduates in teacher education will be held on Oct. 27, 1980. Prospective graduates should register for interviews in the Placement Office by Oct. 1.

Kickoff for 1980 Football Season Next Saturday

"We're in the basics of football. Our main concern is not predicting who we will beat or lose to, but to make certain we are in the best physical shape possible."

These remarks were made by Frank Vincent, head football coach at GSC this fall. If you don't believe what you read, just ask any of the athletes playing under him this year and they will certainly say the same.

Vincent is best known for his reputation as a stout disciplinarian on the field. But his beliefs in discipline made him one of the most respected high school coaches of the 1960's and 70's at Charleston.

"Our team will be disciplined on and off the field," Vincent noted. "That's what builds teamwork."

Vincent, in his first year of coaching in the college ranks, will attempt to improve the Pioneers' 4-6 record of a year ago. Gone from that team is All-conference guard Lynn Stal-naker via graduation. Also gone is the dynamic passing game that made GSC's offensive attack a much respected team in the conference. Terry Spangler chose to concentrate on his education rather than return as quarterback this fall. Receivers Mike McGill and Paul Duffy are also gone from the 1979 squad.

The Pioneers still have a firm foundation for Coach Vincent to build on. Eighteen lettermen return from last year's team. Probably the brightest spot in the lineup is the return of Joey Douglas, a defensive tackle who earned All-conference fame last season as a sophomore. Combined with experienced upperclassmen and an impressive freshman class, the Pioneers could make Vincent's debut something to look forward to.

There are four assistant coaches working under Vincent. Ollie Pott-meyer will handle the offensive line duties. Jerry Milliken will control the defensive backs. The defensive line will be operated by Mark Reiger, and Gary Nottingham has control over the offensive backs.

The Pioneers will begin their season on Saturday, September 13, when they journey to Georgetown, Kentucky for a 1:30 game.

On the following Saturday, the powerful Falcons of Fairmont will come to town to take on the Pioneers. The Falcons were co-owners of the conference championship trophy last season, and were ranked eighth in the preseason poll of the nation's best small colleges.

On September 27, GSC will host West Virginia State in the homecoming game. Let's get out and support the Pioneers of Glenville State College!

All men interested in playing baseball should meet with Coach Pottmeyer Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the P.E. Building.

Montrose Guidelines Listed

With Homecoming only three weeks away at Glenville State College, it is time to start thinking about who will be awarded the prestigious Montrose Award for the 1980-81 year.

All nominees for the award must meet a number of requirements to be considered eligible. The requirements are as follows:

1. The student must have participated in athletics at GSC.
2. The athlete must have graduated the year prior to the nomination.
3. He or She must have a 3.00 overall cumulative gradepoint average.
4. The athlete must be of good moral character as determined by the GSC athletic committee.
5. The Athlete must have been an all-conference selection in a sport.

The GSC Athletic Committee will be responsible for the voting on the award. If a member of the Committee was also a coach for any nominee, that coach will not vote.

The award is presented annually at halftime of the homecoming game. This year it will be presented at the intermission of the homecoming game with West Virginia State on September 24.

Last year, Jim Brady won the award for his achievements in the classroom and on the golf course.
