Jump Rope for Heart

Help to benefit the West Virginia Heart Association during March 1-7 by jumping rope for heart. The West Virginia Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation is sponsoring the community project.

To enter, you must have a six member team. Each team member will jump until tiring and then pass the rope to another team member. This will be continued for a period of three hours. Each team member secures pledges in advance for each minute their team hopes to jump. Pledges are collected after the jump and turned in to the Jump Coordinator.

Every student who jumps receives a JUMP ROPE FOR HEART patch ($10 minimum) from the West Virginia Heart Association. The winning team at each school is the team which raises the most contributions ($200 minimum). The members of the winning team will receive T-shirts and the coordinator will receive a warm-up suit.

Anyone interested should contact Mrs. Sandra Piercy, Coordinator for GSC.

Bandana History Profiled

Ask anyone who attended the 1980 WVIAC basketball tournament if they remember the GSC cheering section. The chances are good that they will answer, "Yes, they were the ones with the bandanas."

How did the Bad Bandana tradition get started? Della Seaman, last year's head cheerleader, and Mike Murphy, Student Congress president at that time, were the originators. After a Student Congress meeting one evening, they were discussing ways to boost spirit at basketball games. Laughingly, Della replied, "The Steelers have their Terrible Towels, we should have Bad Bandanas." Mike liked the idea, so Student Congress ordered about 50 blue bandanas to hand out to fans. The bandanas worked. Fans continued to wave them at games.

An additional 75 bandanas were purchased to distribute to fans at the WVIAC Tournament. During the opening ceremonies, Pioneer Tom Keene (on Doc Sabo's shoulders) circled the gymnasium, waving a Bad Bandana. The GSC fans joined in by waving theirs and giving their best demonstration of school spirit. A radio announcer covering the game carried the news of GSC's Bad Bandanas to listeners in the tri-state area.

The 1979-80 cheerleading squad, winners of the 1st place cheerleading award at the tourney, have credited the GSC fans and their bandanas with helping them win that award.

The Bad Bandanas are the symbol of GSC spirit. To continue this tradition, the cheerleaders urge all fans to bring their BAD BANDANAS to all remaining games.

All seniors must have cap and gown orders in by Feb. 13, 1981. The fee is $15 and the cap and gown may be ordered in the office of Alumni Affairs, Pioneer Center, across from the bookstore.

There will be a collegiate 4-H meeting Sunday, Feb. 8 at 8:00 in the Media Center. Yearbook pictures will be taken during the meeting.

Anyone no longer wishing to belong to the 4-H Club should contact Debbie Moore, Room 101 Scott, or Vicky Gaston, Room 509 Scott, before Sunday.

The Student National Education Association (SNEA) will be holding a meeting Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 5:00 p.m. in 101 Clark Hall.

We will be planning this semester's activities and programs; therefore, we urge you to attend and participate in planning some programs that might be of interest to you.

Any Education major interested in joining SNEA is more than welcome to attend our meetings and programs.

Remember, SNEA will be meeting February 10 at 5:00 in Room 101 Clark Hall.

If Dreams Could Come True

Do you realize how mundane and strictly educational the classes offered at GSC are? Though we are an institution of higher learning, it would seem feasible to offer classes that somewhat stray from the rigors of higher learning. If a student had the extra time and interest, such classes could help relieve the monotony of required subjects.

Classes such as audio-visual techniques, careers in belly dancing, gourmet cooking, gourmet eating, gourmet dishwashing, aerobic dancing, needlework, needle threading, automobile mechanics for females, female mechanics for automobiles, scuba diving, checkbook balancing, etc. could be put on the agenda for any interested soul who would wish to participate.

The administration is always on the lookout for ways to improve the college and this would definitely be one way to do it. Of course, some students would like to have such classes as TVWatching 101, Sex Education 101 through 105, Losing Control 350, Dental Floss 310, and other such trivial nonsense. In fact, some students feel that since this is an institution of higher learning, they should be learning to get higher.

Although these classes probably will never be on the agenda, it never hurts to dream.

Letter To The Editor

In regard to the article printed in the January 23 issue of the Mercury entitled "Office Vacated," the title was right but the rest of the article was somewhat vague. The office of president was vacated, but not because of impeachment procedures. I resigned and sent a letter of resignation to the Congress. This is my professional semester and I will be student teaching away from Glenville. As a result, I felt I would not be able to volunteer the time necessary to carry out the office of president as it should be. I resigned and nothing more.

Evening Commuter Speaks Out

I am writing to you in hope that something can be done about the problem of the students enrolled in night classes, who always seem to be the ones to suffer when a basketball game is played the same night a class is held. The night class student's car is usually blocked in by the people at the ballgame and they cannot get out until the ballgame is over, even if their class has been over for some time. Although this problem resulted in a similar letter to the editor in the Mercury last year a solution has not been found. Would it be too much to ask that the Clark Hall parking lot be reserved for night class students, while the other parking places can be for the basketball gameviewers? This seems to be a simple enough solution to me and I fail to understand why nothing has been done about it. Do night class students not have rights too?

A concerned night class student

wright writes

If I had one wish, I'd wish to be a professional athlete. Oh sure, I could wish for a million dollars but I would eventually spend it and wish I'd have gone for two million. If I were a professional athlete I would be a millionaire.

How many millionaires are out there playing professional sports? Don't answer that question because as you sit there reading this article another pro has just signed his new "multi-million-dollar agreement" with the boss.

Not too long ago the free agent draft was initiated into major league baseball. This means that a player plays for a certain team until his contract expires and then he has the option of renewing it or offering himself to some other team for "a little bit more."

A good example is Rod Carew. Carew is one of the best hitters in baseball today. Carew spent his career playing for the Twins of Minnesota, but his team never made the big time. They never won a pennant with him playing for them, but almost every year he did have the highest batting average in the major leagues. At the same time a young team called the California Angels were enjoying great success. They won the pennant and were one game from going to the World Series. Mr. Carew's contract ran out that same year and he decided that he was going to play for a team that was just as good as he was. So he went to the California Angels and made them a deal. If he got his millions of dollars he would hit them into the World Series. Well to make a long story short the Angels ended up in the cellar of their division the next year and the Twins had their best season in over fifteen years!

I have a lot of respect for the team that stays out of the free agent business. The Cincinnati Reds signed their first free agent ever this winter. I have always prided myself in being a Reds fan because they always had super success without spending the big bucks, but this winter they signed Larry Bittner, a pinch hitter to a free agent contract! Now the Reds have to shell out all that money for someone who will probably step to the plate about 50 or 60 times in 162 games. This action prompted me to finally realize that they are all the same.

The argument goes however that the owners are losing money in signing players to multi-million-dollar contracts. Just let me ask one question: How many fans file into Yankee Stadium just to watch Reggie Jackson, the man who hit three World Series home runs on three straight pitches, stand in right field, catch fly balls and hit an occasional home run? The number would astonish you. These millionaires bring in money for the owners. The end result is that the rich get richer...

There is a catcher in major league baseball that, in my opinion, is the greatest catcher in baseball history. For years he has led the Cincinnati Reds to World Series championships, pennants, and division championships. He has been the League's Most Valuable Player more than once. He holds more records than any other catcher that ever played the game. And when Johnny Bench asks to play somewhere but behind the plate he really catches it from everyone. He never asked for a million dollars. He's getting old and he can't play 150 games from a crouching position any more. But since he wants to play elsewhere he isn't worth keeping. I'd really hate to see the baseball great end his career on a bitter note. He never, ever asked for a million dollars. Believe me, there are a lot of teams that would give it to him, but Mr. Bench would rather leave baseball the way it always was.

It isn't like this in baseball only. Every sport has its millionaires. I just found out that Walter Payton is leaving the Chicago Bears for "higher stakes." They don't win all of their games so he is going to find a team that does. He only wants one million dollars a year. If I were the owner of the Bears I'd have said the same thing. "Good Luck Walter..."

Bowlers In Championship

In the final week of round robin play in Division II of MSBC, Marshall University defeated Glenville State to even their conference marks at 7-1 with each school's only loss coming at each other's hands. Others schools competing were Eastern Kentucky, Morehead State and James Madison University.

The Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 competition was bowled at Marshall University Student Lanes on a tough lane condition with all competitors shooting below their previous averages. High for Glenville Pioneers was Greg Martin of Parkersburg with a 181 avg., followed by Keith Hite 177 avg., Dave Frazier 175 avg., Dave Lamm 173 avg., all for 12 games, and Jerry Kurjian 174 avg. and Jeff Stanley 172 avg., both for 6 games.

On Feb. 7, the two schools will meet in a 3 game, one match roll-off to decide the Division II Championship. Probable site is in Charleston, WV.

On Tuesday, February 10, the Red Cross will sponsor another blood drive. The drive will be held in the Verona Maple Room from 1-5 p.m. Your support will be greatly appreciated.

Pioneers Lose

Four seconds isn't very much time, but it is if you are the Glenville State College basketball team. West Virginia Tech scored with four seconds left in the game to hand the Pioneers a disappointing 82-81 defeat.

Glenville led by twelve points at halftime and even led with five seconds left in the game. But Tech's Al Porter stole an in-bounds pass and drove it downcourt for two points to crush a Glenville upset.

Don Bullett continued his red-hot shooting as he scored 35 points to lead all scorers. Paul Wills added 15 while super-sub Scott Ludwig contributed 12.

Statistic-wise, GSC shot 29 of 58 from the floor for 50 percent. Tech shot 35 of 74 for a 47.3 average. Porter, the hero of the game, was also Tech's leading scorer with 19 points.

The Golden Bears of West Virginia Tech outdid the Pioneers in the rebounding department by a 44-33 margin.

The loss gave Glenville a 6-8 conference mark and a 10-11 overall record.

Lady-Pioneers Lose First Game of Season, Still Remain Undefeated in Conference Play

Although losing for the first time this season, the Lady Pioneers of Glenville State College remained undefeated in conference play in women's basketball action last week. The GSC gals played three games in four days last week, all three on the road. The first game was on Friday, Jan. 30 against Frostburg State (Md.). The GSC women played Shepherd the following afternoon and, then, two nights later, travelled to Montgomery for a return engagement with West Virginia Tech.

The Lady Pioneers tasted defeat for the first time this season in the Frostburg contest. The Maryland team triumphed by a 78-70 margin over Glenville in a hard-fought game. Although the loss dropped Glenville to 9-1, it didn't affect their conference ranking, as Frostburg was a non-conference foe.

GSC rebounded nicely from the defeat and shook off weariness caused by travel to triumph over the Shepherd College women the next afternoon by an 86-72 count. Freshman Bunny Taylor netted 26 points to pace the Lady Pioneers in the contest, in which they took a comfortable lead at halftime and played even with their opponent in the second half of action. The win raised GSC's record to 10-1 on the year.

Vincent Gets Five Transfers

Frank Vincent, head football coach at Glenville State College, got a big Christmas present over the semester break as five grid players have transferred to Pioneer Country for the 1981 football campaign.

The first transfer is Mike Cottrell, a 6'3", 245 pound tackle, from West Virginia University. Cottrell was a standout at Parkersburg South High School prior to attending WVU. Although seeing limited playing time for the Mountaineers, his size will prove most beneficial to GSC. "I wanted to play on a smaller scale so I chose Glenville," Cottrell stated, "I already like it better here than at Morgantown."

The next player is 5'9", 220 pound Tim Ray Gardner. Nicknamed "Hemi-Dog," Gardner will be vying for the Middle Guard position on the defensive unit. Gardner hails from DuPont High School. He went to West Virginia Tech after high school and after a year decided to come to Glenville. Possibly the strongest member of the team, he can bench press 385 pounds. Gardner commented on GSC by stating that "the atmosphere is a lot better than Tech and the people are real nice."

Another transfer is Mark Haynic a 6'5", 235 pound tight end. Haynic is probably the most experienced of the five since he lettered his first year at Richmond. The graduate of Fayetteville High School has speed with a 4.7 40 yard dash. He can also run the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.6 seconds. Also Haynic can bench press 350 pounds. He stated that he transferred to Glenville because of academic reasons at Richmond.

The fourth player is Ron Martin, a 5'11", 185 pound quarterback from West Virginia Tech. Martin is a product of Mount Hope High School and he has some speed in the 100 yard dash with a 10.5 timing. He stated that the location of Glenville State was the important factor in his decision to come to play for the Pioneers.

Finally, the fifth transfer is Jay Linaburg, a 5'10", 180 pound wide receiver and halfback from Liberty Baptist College in Virginia. With a 4.6 speed in the 40 yard sprint, Linaburg could be a big plus to the GSC program. "Liberty Baptist was too expensive," stated Linaburg. "The cost is twice that of Glenville." He went on to say that "I like what GSC has to offer as a football team and a school."

These transfers, along with the recruiting that the coaching staff is presently undertaking, should blend in well with the Pioneer football team. So you see, even football coaches get presents from Santa Claus at Christmastime!

will be the opponent at home. Another home game, with Muskingum (Ohio), will be contested Tuesday night, and the week will finish out with an away outing with Fairmont State on Thursday night, Feb. 12.

Some nine-game statistics are as follows: Bunny Taylor is averaging 21.3 points, 7.9 rebounds, 4.8 steals and 3.0 assists per game. Pam Minigh is averaging 16.0 points, 9.7 rebounds and 2.5 assists. Pam Linger is getting 10.1 points and 7.4 rebounds per game. Sonja Bailey, who is shooting 49 percent from the foul line, is scoring 8.9 points per game. Mary Zangari is averaging 8.0 points and 2.5 steals. Judy Niday, a 52 percent field goal shooter, is averaging 8.0 points. Kim Bickel, a 90 percent free throw shooter, is averaging 7.7 points and 6.0 rebounds. Also scoring for GSC are Jill Burkhammer (2.0) and Donita Cox and Shelley Tharp (.8 each). As a team, GSC is shooting 42 percent from the floor and 66 percent from the charity stripe. The Lady Pioneers are outscoring their opponents by an average of 19.5 points per game while being out-rebounded by 12.5 boards per game.
