Activities Set For MD Week April 26-30

It is time once again this year to think of those who are not as physically healthy as we are. Susan Cates and Craig Parker are working hard putting Muscular Dystrophy Week together.

MD Week is tentatively set for April 26, starting with a football tournament, bingo, and a teacher's roast. Tuesday, there will be a flag-pole sitting contest, a volleyball tournament, and Las Vegas Day.

On Wednesday, there will be a carnival in the ballroom. The events being held are a yardsale, pie-throwing, car smash, Donut eating, bubble-gum blowing, tobacco-spitting, an art auction, dart throwing, kissing booth, and goldfish swallowing. Those people who will be donating art will be: George Harper, Jim Rogers, Charles Scott, and Bill Sza-

Thursday, a softball tour-nament will be held, and all day will be slave day. There will be a square dance and a karate exhibition.

Friday, there will be a pancake breakfast, and the Superdance will be held that night. The events held during the dance will be: a raffle, a pie-eating contest, a bake sale, goldfish swallowing, and putt-putt golf. Tickets will go on sale February 25 for the spring production of "The Music Man." The play will be presented March 5-7.

Get tickets in the Pioneer Center and outside the Auditorium.

Workshop Set For Graduates

The Office of Career Planning and Placement will sponsor a Graduate School Information Day on March 2, 1982. Representatives from West Virginia College of Graduate Studies, West Virginia University, and Marshall University will be attending and will meet with students in the Verona Mapel Room from 10:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. All interested students are invited to stop by and talk with these representatives.

Those people who wish to help with the Muscular Dystrophy Week contact Susan Cates, ext. 135, or Craig Parker at the Muscular Dystrophy office at 335 LBH. If no one is there, leave a note, and Susan or Craig will get back to you.

on March 3 at the Little Theatre, and those who wish to attend are welcome.

Dr. James A. Hales, chairman and director of the Division of Technology at Fairmont State College, has been serving as acting president of the College since July 1981.

Finance Seminar Is Scheduled

Reagan has signed the new tax cut into law, according to Annette James, sales representative for Investors Diversified Services (IDS), a financial Changes in services firm. the tax law will be discussed as part of a personal financial and estate planning seminar given by Ms. James at 3:00 and 7:00 p.m., Thursday, March 4 in Room 207 Science Hall on the Glenville State College Campus. Mr. Tim Butcher, local attorney, will be in attendance as a resource person. "The impact of the new law will affect each person differently," James

The need for financial said. "This makes it all the planning is greater than more important for a ever now that President person to get together with person to get together with financial planning specialists and take a fresh look at estates and personal finances to get the most savings out of the tax changes. The extra money a person saves on taxes can be the start of a program to reach financial goals," she added.

One important change in the law is the liberalized rules governing Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA's), sometimes referred to as the working man's and woman's tax shelter. Changes in the IRA rules make it easier for people to set up a personalized retirement plan that can augment company pension plans and Social Security at retirement time. Under the law, a person can contribute $2,000 annually to an IRA account. That $2,000 and any subsequent earnings from the principal are not taxed until the money is withdrawn after age 59½ when presumably the individual is in a lower tax bracket.

The financial and estate planning seminar, provided by IDS, is being offered through the GSC Office of Continuing Education. The seminar is free, but reservations are necessary as attendance is limited. To register, contact the Office of Continuing Education (462-7361 Ext. 118).

Hospitality Room Planned For Alumni

For the third consecutive year, the GSC Alumni Association will be hosting a hospitality room at the WVIAC Basketball Tournaments in Charleston. The GSC Hospitality Room will be housed in Parlor Rooms B and C and will be open from Tuesday, February 23 to Thursday, February 25. However, if the GSC team remains in the tournament Thursday, past the hospitality room remain open longer.

According to Ms. Nasia

Pavlidies, GSC's Director of Public Relations, the hospitality room will be available for use by GSC alumni only. No students will be permitted in the hospitality room.

In the past two years, the Alumni Association has been pleased by the overwhelming support for the Hospitality Room by GSC Alumni and the Association is looking forward to another successful tournament this year.

Ask Me No Questions Will Tell You No Lies

While sitting in a class the other day, a question popped into my mind. Then another question came to mind, then another and still another, until I had a list of questions a half a page long. These are all valid questions. If there are answers, then they are avoiding me.

Here's my list of questions, maybe you will have others to add to it: 1) Would someone please fix the clock in room 305 of the Ad Building?

- It's 10 minutes slow and I'm tired of staying in class 10 extra minutes. 2) When will we have a seafood platter in the cafeteria that has shrimp,
- clams and crab augratin, instead of fishsticks and crab augratin? 3) Will Wagner Wing of Pickens Hall ever have heat in the winter? The men over there don't need to buy refrigerators; it's cold enough to chill anything.
- 4) Will teachers ever realize that students have more than just their class? My teachers have been giving me assignments like there will be no tommorrow.
- 5) Will the lifeguards at the pool ever make the swimmers adhere to the rules of the pool?
- 6) When will Wagner Wing be cleaned up? I feel dirty just walking down the halls. I don't know how those men can stand to shower....
- 7) How do some of these classes get into the curriculum? I've had some classes that don't seem to have any purpose.
- 8) How come the Campus Pub can have Home Box Office, yet the dorm residents are told HBO cannot be installed in a public place. What can be more public than the Campus Pub on a Thursday night?
- 9) Why do students who eat in the cafeteria have to pay extra if they want two grilled ham and cheese sandwiches, yet don't have to pay extra if they want just two grilled cheese? What about paying extra for a hot dog and a hamburger. We are allowed two sandwiches, so what does it matter how we like to eat them.
- 10) Where was the parliamentarian during the recent Student Congress

Now I realize some of these questions will get me into trouble, but I don't like being so bogged down with homework that I can't think, or taking a class that is outrageous, what is its purpose? I do suppose that ham does cost more, but before the advent of food coupons, two grilled ham sandwiches were no extra.

Maybe some answers will be forthcoming, maybe there are some better questions to ask, I am not sure. Let's hope we can get results.

The Cat's Meo

Cats, cats; you see them everywhere (namely in places you do not want to, but that is beside the point). Some people like them, and some people don't. Personally, I prefer to remain neutral, because of the imminent threat of being buried in a kittvlitter box.

Cats have become prime subjects of bestsellers, cartoon strips, Broadway plays, portraits, and so on. Garfield, Kilban, T.S. Eliot, Mimi Vang Olsen have immortalized cats to the point of where they rival the gods. California (one wild and crazee place) has gone overboard with the whole cat phase. They have cat resorts, a rent-a-cat agency, a cat department store, a cat dating service (toms for the moms), cat acting coaches (who do you think taught Morris to look so savoir faire?), cát psychics (the old cat couch gets a lot of action), and a contest to judge cat meows (now if your cat has a stuttering problem, you are in a lot of trouble).

Cats number 34 million in American homes, and there are another million "running wild and looking pretty" out there in the streets. Owners will spend $1.4 billion on victuals for their gluttonous friends. Over 400 cat shows were held last year, and these shows were packed by enthusiastic, fun-loving feline enthusiasts.

There is also a new potty-trainer (yes, you all remember these from earlier days) that is supposed to use the bathroom (if not, that poor cat will have to wear a dirty diaper for the rest of the night). Carrying cases for cats can cost $420, when a regular animal cage would do just as well. For the drug-crazed, hyperactive kitty, there is a rocking horse to calm the most savage and deranged, but catnip will do just as well.

Cats have been around for years, and they probably will be around for many more, so we may as well adjust. "Cats, cats everywhere, and not a dog in sight!" may well become the chant of millions of felines as they prowl dengerous streets in a raving gang. So beware of those heathen savages, because, who knows, cats have been known to multiply like rabbits.

Lady Pioneers Place Third In WVC Hoop Tournament

Basketball Team completed another fine season last week by finishing third in the West Virginia Conference Women's Basketball Tournament at Buckhan-Several good individual performances and a strong overall team effort enabled GSC to gain its third-place finish in the 14-team field.

The Lady Pioneers went into the Tournament seeded behind fourth University of Charleston, Davis and Elkins, and West Virginia Tech.

GSC played Bluefield in its first Tourney game. The Lady Pioneers didn't have much trouble in the contest taking a 40-24 halftime lead and coasting in for a 75-54 decision.

GSC's scoring balanced, as Bunny Taylor had 14 points, Sonja Bailey, Pam Linger, Judy Niday, and Kim Maynard ten points apiece, Pam Minigh eight, Maria Lothes six, Shelley Tharp, Paula Bush and Robin Phipps one. Taylor had eight assists and eight steals, and Minigh pulled down ten rebounds.

The GSC women were pitted against Fairmont in their quarterfinal contest on Thursday. Only three days before, Fairmont had dealt the Lady Pioneers a 59-54 loss in overtime. This time around, though, it was different. Breaking away in the second half, GSC recorded a surprisingly easy 79-59 win.

Pam Minigh scored 21 and Bunny Taylor 20 to pace the Glenville win. Also, Pam Linger and Maria Lothes had 13 points each, Sonja Bailey six, and Judy Niday, Kim Maynard and Janice Hensley two apiece. Taylor and Lothes led in rebounding with 11 and ten respectively.

The eventual Champion UC Lady Eagles was GSC's semi-final opponent. After GSC grabbed an early lead, UC pulled away for a 46-37 lead at half. The Lady Pioneers, according to Coach Tim Carney, "Just wouldn't quit," and fought their way back into the contest. A shot with two seconds to go wouldn't fall for GSC, though, and UC emerged with a thrilling, 74-73 win, dashing GSC's hopes for a conference championship.

Maria Lothes, with 17 points, was GSC's top scorer, Pam Minigh added 15, Pam Linger 13, Bunny Taylor 12, Kim Maynard ten, and Sonja Bailey six. Taylor had 12 rebounds, six assists and four steals. Lothes had ten rebounds and four steals, and Bailey had five assists.

The consolation game pitted GSC and Davis and Elkins. The Lady Senators forged a 38-24 lead at half, but GSC used a spirited second-half rally to tie the game at the end of regulation and claim a 67-63 overtime victory. Pam Minigh popped in points, including her 1,000th career point at GSC while only a junior, to pace the Lady Pioneers. Pam Linger, playing in her final game for GSC, added 17 points, Bunny Taylor 11, Sonja Bailey ten, and Maria Lothes six. Minigh had 14 rebounds, and Taylor had 12 boards and five assists.

GSC finished with a 15-8 record. Carney, whose three-year coaching record at Glenville is a fine 49-17, stated,"Our girls had a real good tourney. They came together as a team in a week, and I am extremely proud of them!"

Receiving honors at the tourney were Pam Minigh, Bunny Taylor and Sonja Minigh, Bailey. scored 67 points and had 39 rebounds, and Taylor who had 57 points, 41 rebounds, 21 assists, and 13 steals, both received All-Tournament honors. Bailey, who contributed 32 points and 11 assists while running the GSC offense recieved the Heart and Hustle Award.

GSC To Play Bluefield

"We are entering the tournament in the right frame of mind," said Coach Jesse Lilly of the GSC Pioneers' participation in the WVC Basketball Tournament at the Charleston Civic Center this week. GSC will open tourney action tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. Glenville's firstround opponent is Blue-field, a team that beat the Pioneers in their only meeting of the season.

If GSC wins, they will play the West Virginia Tech-Wheeling winner on Thursday at 9 p.m. Then, if they win that game, the Pioneer men advance into the lower bracket semifinal game on Friday at 9 p.m.

Lilly remarked of the Pioneers, who will go into the Tourney with an 11-16 record, "We are playing as well as we have all year long. Our defense is more and more becoming a factor in our overall play. We have improved steadily as a team."

team."
GSC's tentative starting line-up consists of Senior Don Bullett, Juniors Scott Ludwig, Randy Anderson, and Jerome Hampton, and Sophomore Clay Young. Bullett is scoring 18.5 points a game to lead GSC. Also, Ludwig has a 15.6 average and Young has a 14.2 average, to go with his team-leading average of 8.6 rebounds per game.

The Pioneers need student support if they are to equal their fourth place finish from last year, so try to make the "Journey to the Tourney" with them.

Men's intramural bowling will be held at the bowling alley in the Pioneer Center on Wednesday evening, March 3. Times and team pairings will be posted in the Health Building.

Rosters for Men's intramural basketball must be turned in to Gary Nottingham by Monday, March 1. Teams are limited to ten players. Team play will possibly be-Team gin on March 4.

Pioneer Men Finish Regular Season

The GSC Pioneers, hoping to gain momentum for the West Virginia Conference tournament this week, tournament this week, played three opponents last week. GSC continued its good play of late by defeating Wheeling and Alderson-Broaddus while falling to top-ranked Salem.

GSC 84, Wheeling 65

Coach Jesse Lilly's team, after leading only by 38-35 at half, pulled away in the second half for a final margin of 84-65. Clay Young had an outstanding 31-point, 18-rebound performance to lead GSC to victory. Scott Ludwig chipped in 20 points, ten rebounds, and four steals.

Also, Don Bullett had 12 points, Randy Anderson ten points and seven assists, Mike Forbes and Jerome Hampton four points each, Chris Richardson two points and Rich Moore one.

Salem 78, GSC 68

Salem brought its topranked act to the Pioneer gym on Wednesday and barely escaped with another WVC win. The Tigers held only a 35-34 lead at half and had to fight to hold on in the second half. They finally earned a 78-68 victory over GSC.

The one-two punch of Clay Young and Don Bullett led GSC. Young netted 25 points and had 13 rebounds, and Bullett put in 23 markers and had five steals. Also, Rich Moore had eight points, Randy Anderson four points and seven assists, and Scott Ludwig and Jerome Hampton four points and five rebounds each.

Dr. Nancy Datan Lectures On The Aging Woman

"The Lost Cause: The Aging Woman in American Feminism" was discussed at a lecture given by Dr. Nancy Datan, Professor of Psychology at West Virginia University, on the Glenville State College campus.

Dr. Datan pointed out that "today's aging woman is caught at the crossroad in social consciousness." Although the women's movement has a young following, it is mainly concerned with the needs of young women, while the politically active aging groups are concerned with the basic issues of survival of the old. Today's aging woman looks forward to "greater freedom, better health, a longer life" -- and does not yet know how to make the best use of this potential because she is caught at a historical and political crossroad, suffering double disadvantage. These two disorders, sexism and agism, have only recently been recognized.

"Sexism" had come to describe the tendency to devalue women. Until this century, half the human race was denied equality of rights -- on the grounds of their capacity to become pregnant and to give birth. But the growing control over the woman's reproductive cycle has meant that pregnancy and motherhood have become a woman's choice -- not their fate.

These developments have led to the women's movement which has aided women in recognizing that they have choices beyond the traditional roles of wife and mother.

"Agism" is the categorical disqualification of a group of people on biological grounds. And, like sexism, agism has gained attention as a consequence of medical, economic, social and historical changes. People are now living longer, and as a result, age-based discrimination is affecting increasing numbers of people. With present trends in population, the proportion of age-based discrimination can be expected to increase

The aging woman, then, is caught at a painful crossroad of consciousness. Marriage, children and career are currently being debated in the women's movement. Ahead of her lie the consequences of her own past decisions which are likely to have been marriage to a man older than herself and children at the expense of a career. The consequences of these decisions are likely to be a combination of social and economic poverty.

Therefore, the aging woman is particularly vulnerable to the economic privation which is the target of the political activities of the aged. She is also vulnerable to a social isolation which may come about as a consequence of earlier life expectancy and is in need of the economic advantages which the "aging movement" seeks to ensure.

Dr. Datan suggests, however, that this double injustice is likely to have a short future. As past trends indicate, social injustice to women and the aging seem to have found expression in movements which are not only "mirrors of social change," but also instruments of social change. Dr. Datan's optimism is two-First, the aging woman of tomorrow is the feminist of today. combination of maturity, age, political selfawareness, a self-confidence, and professional resources and career experience lacking for so many of today's women.

The final source of optimism is the simplest. The unused potential of women today -- their number, their health their longevity -- is a remarkable latent force. All political movements have taught their members to make their own destiny. And, in the not-too-distant future, aging women will be claiming their rights and creating for themselves a new and better future.

Dr. Datan's appearance was co-sponsored by the West Virginia Zeta Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu and its International Headquarters.
