Spring Meeting Held at GSC

President Gilmer of the Board or Regents stated he considered it a "good meeting to meet on the GSC campus and to meet with students." Gilmer and the rest of the Board or Regents spent April 11 and 12 on the GSC campus meeting with students, faculty and administrative staff.

On Monday the BOR met with students. The major concern of students included new or renovated facilities for the Music Department, an understaffed and "unqualified" personnel, more daytime extension classes and budget cuts.

The BOR was very receptive to the comments and questions, and promised action on matters.

During a meeting with faculty, the BOR discussed raises and new buildings. Later in the day, the Regents met with administrative staff and the Board of Advisors. The Regents were also invited to a 'sneak preview' of the Presidents Portraits, which were unveiled to the campus this afternoon.

The BOR held their monthly meeting Tuesday, which was open to the public.

ABC's Chapman Presents Lecture

Irv Chapman, a noted ABC correspondent, appeared at Glenville State College at 7:30 p.m., April 12, in the auditorium.

Chapman has served ABC as a network news correspondent for 17 years, in Washington, Moscow, Tokyo, and Southeast Asia. In the ABC News Los Angeles bureau more recently, his assignments included the nation's worst air crash, the Peoples' Temple aftermath and murder of the mayor of San Francisco, and continuing energy development.

In the Soviet Union from 1969-72, Chapman traveled more than 20,000 miles to film stories on Soviet life from the Baltic to the Crimea, the Ukraine to Siberia. He covered the persecution of dissidents and writers such as Solzhenitsyn, a key story on the Moscow beat. Chapman left Moscow after covering the first visit to the USSR of an American President, Richard Nixon.

Arriving in Tokyo in late 1972, Chapman reported on the surging Japanese economy, threatening the U.S. dollar on the world market, a situation worsened by OPEC oil price hikes in 1973. During six years as Tokyo correspondent, he was assigned stories from Asia-Pacific datelines as far afield as India, Pakistan, Australia, the Philippines and Thailand. South Korea was one of Chapman's major beats; he covered tensions in the demilitarized zone, and the effort to extradite Tongsun Park. He produced the first ENG satellite story from Seoul to the U.S., and covered the first visit to Japan of an American President, Gerald Ford, and had a rare one-on-one interview with Emperor Hirohito before the Japanese leader's historic trip to the United States. Chapman reported from the New Tokyo International Airport on the riots staged to prevent it from opening, then left Japan on the first day flights were able to depart from that airport.

Portraits Unveiled In Ceremony

Today, April 13, 1983, at 2:30 p.m. in the Verona Mapel Room, Joyce Tucker's portraits of three GSC presidents will be unveiled. This unveiling ceremony is sponsored by the Glenville State College Alumni Foundation.

Joyce Tucker, formerly of Nebo, W. Va., after receiving a Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree (cum laude) from Florida Atlantic University in 1968 was employed as an art instructor in the public schools in Palm Beach County, Florida. In 1978, she and an associate formed Aquareis Studeo of Design, Inc. in Gallery One Plaza, Lake Park, where she worked as a free lance artist and gave private lessons. During this period, Joyce designed and illustrated a nationally distributed portfolio of wildlife prints which may be expanded into a series in the near future. In recent years she has found her interests returning more and more frequently to the portrayal of people. A paper mosaic of Abraham Lincoln was recently purchased by U.S. News and World Report for display in their executive offices.

Joyce Tucker's series of portraits for Glenville State College will include three GSC presidents. Harry B. Heflin of Morgantown, W. V. was GSC president from 1947-1964, D. Banks Wilburn of Barboursville, W. V. who was president from 1964 to 1977, and our current president, William K. Simmons, who began his office in 1977 are the three portraits Joyce Tucker has completed.

Whether traveling to paint on location, or in her studio, she finds the challenge of recording individual qualities forever on canvas both fascinating and fulfilling. With her husband, a contract engineer, she maintains residence-studios in both West Virginia and West Palm Beach, Florida. Her artistic abilities can be seen in her portraits of GSC presidents, along with her other work.

4th Annual GSC Week Is Currently Underway

This past Monday was the beginning of the annual GSC Week activities. Monday was highlighted by the Roommate Game finals, sponsored by Louis Bennett and Pickens Halls and the Green Grass Clogger's performance. Tuesday started off with a magic show and ended with a square dance last night.

Today's activities are highlighted by a Jazz Band concert tonight. Tomorrow starts with a wildlife exhibit, features a donut eating contest and ends with a DJ dance. Friday features an exhibition by the Cultural Exchange Club and the Miss GSC Pageant. The final day, Saturday, opens up with the field day activities, proceeds with the awards ceremony and ends the week's activities with a concert by the music group 'Janice,' sponsored by the Cultural Affairs Committee.

Alumni Awards Presented

This morning at 10:30 a.m., April 13, the Glenville State College Alumni Foundation student awards were presented in the Verona Mapel Room by Jack Luzader, secretary/treasurer of the Foundation and Nasia Butcher, the Public Relations Director. These awards are made possible through the GSC's Alumni Foundation. Various individuals made contributions for awards in memory of certain persons. Some of the awards are very old and some are very recent. Award recipients are selected by faculty recommendation. The following awards were given: Peterson Library Award -- Marlene Lewis; Brand English Award -- Johnnie Books & Kathleen Krohn; Turner Science & Math -- Dan Samples; Toth Science & Math -- Annetta Haddox; Wagner Science & Math -- Frances Blake; Ratliff Health & Physical Education -- Pam Minigh; Eberle Land Survey -- Bruce Gowdy; Eberle Forestry -- Pamela Bailey; Whiting Art Award -- William Szabo; Somerville Education -- Randall K. Anderson.

Campus Activities Need Participants

As GSC Week grips the campus, how many students will participate? How many students are working on the committee? How many students really care? I think that's the whole problem. Most of the students really don't care anymore.

Organizations and committees usually try very hard to get students involved in an activity. A lot of time and money is poured into activities such as GSC Week, intramurals, the many publications, the Pioneer Center and dances. Some of these monies are taken from the student activity fee. Yet, many times students forego these events, and in essence, waste their own money.

Why are students so apathetic? A rounded education should blend together both study and fun. When students apply for jobs, employers will look at a list of ex-curricular activities as well as their GPA. Employers of today want people who can lead, who will get involved, as well as perform their job.

But back to the issue, if students do not become more involved in activities, they will lose them. The faculty and administration will cease to see the purpose of . . . say . . . a yearbook, or a club or a committee. And, also, students are always complaining that there is nothing to do, could it be they don't want to apply themselves? We are the citizens of tomorrow, and to make our country productive, we, ourselves, must be productive. College is a perfect opportunity for people to become active. It is here that we can make contacts and begin associations that can give us an "extra" in our later lives.

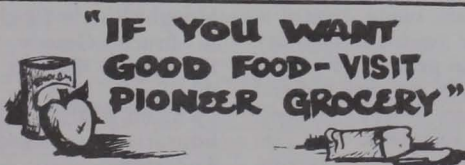

Please, if not for anything else, become involved with the campus. Put a little bit of yourself into these activities, and someday maybe others will enjoy these activities.

Restraint Equals Education

With a ten day break from early classes, tests and research papers and all the things that endear college to us all, it's back to the books. I don't know about the rest of you but motivation which is difficult in Spring is now virtually an extinct concept in my soul.

Since the most important part of your grade is involved in the last five weeks, the most important thing you learn in college comes into play. This is self-restraint. If you can keep yours while all others around you are losing theirs and indulging in vice you will be the better person for it when grades come out.

This is extremely important for the marginal student like myself—restraint. . . restraint. . . say it three times before going to bed and again upon arising.

With the term closing rapidly the thought or not seeing friends and sweethearts has most of us a little wilder than our usual totally-under-control selves. But let's try these last couple of weeks to remember the real reason we are up here and that is. . . oh yeah, to get an education.

Jim Quinn

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

Though John Holt may have seemingly insinuated that babies are born with an instinctive urge to crawl passionately to the nearest library and devour its contents to the point of exhaustion, we do ourselves a grave disservice to miss his thesis -- that learning is as much a human need as sex and food and a lapse in that desire is as symptomatic of some underlying problem as would be the case with impotence or anorexia.

In light of Mr. Holt's visit and the recent rash of competency tests I could not help but be amused while reading the following excerpt from my comparative government text -- "The most important way a community preserves and transmits its cultural and political values is through education. Napoleon Bonaparte recognized the significance of education, and well into the second half of the twentieth century the French educational system has remained an imposing historical monument, in the unmistakable style of the First Empire. The centralized imperial university has therefore never been dismantled . . . Making advancement at every stop dependent on passing an examination is not peculiar to France. What is distinctly French(?) is a widespread cult of competitive examinations that draws its strength from an obsessive and quite unrealistic belief that everybody is equal before an examination. Success or failure in the examination shapes not only the candidate and his family, but the milieu to which he will belong. French society is strewn with individuals who failed an examination or received a lower than expected grade, and who have suffered irreparable psychological damage . . . The bourgeois child who succeeds easily in an educational system uniquely suited to the bourgeois milieu is convinced that his position in society is due to inborn talent. . . Because the universities failed to meet the demands of mass education, students dissatisfaction with the content and methods of their education were intensified by anxieties about their professional careers. For a minority, the systems haphazard effort to provide training for skills were distasteful because, in their eyes, such a design subjected higher education to the demands of technocratic capitalism." (I had to remind myself I was reading my textbook and not the Mercury.) To make a long story a little less long, a rebellion ensued in 1968 and since most proposed reforms have flourished.

Here in U.S., we rush to the exam experts to get the presses rolling, bring the paddles back out of the closets, and put our guns back in our holsters to calm our fears and feed our insecurities with systems and structures that make us feel comfortable.

As the wheels of conservatism pick up speed I feel a momentary panic not knowing whether to jump off the train, apply for the brakeman's job, or just sit back and enjoy the scenery of yesteryear till we gain back our confidence in each other and begin to chug forward once more.

Most people would seem to agree with my husband who wistfully said to me over supper, "Sometimes I wish you would just go back to being old-fashioned again." Unfortunately, we bleeding-heart liberal modern western militant feminist peace-nik communistic socialists never give up! (God, give me a break! All this time I thought I was just a Christian!)

Yours truly,
Angela

P.S. Here's to ya, Mr. Holt!

This Saturday is the day for all of you would-be athletes to come out of the closet. Now is your time to shine.

The occasion is the annual GSC Field Day, a part of the fourth annual GSC Week celebration. It's Glenville's version of the Olympics.

That's where the Glenville State student comes in. No, you don't have to go through years of intensive training or participate in trials and team selection; just show up and run. And you don't have to be a world-class athlete or be of a certain physical build; just be anxious to beat your roommate or best friend. By the way, this event involves no terrorists or boycotts.

The field day competition offers many exciting events, including the 40-yard dash, pyramid-building, bubble-blowing and sack race. And, after all the competition is over, more than 500 ribbons, mugs and frisbees will be awarded.

So, come on out Saturday and take part in the various activities (and be prepared for rain).

Davis Leads Women

Led by Mary Davis, the Lady Pioneers have participated in two track meets in the last three weeks, both at Charleston's Laidley Field.

On March 26, Davis led the Lady Pioneers in total points winning first place honors in both the 800-meter run and the 1,500-meter run. Other tracksters placing in their individual events were Glenda Taylor, Sharon Hayes and Poncho Richards.

Last Saturday, the thin-clads were at Laidley Field again. Davis this time took fourth place honors in both 800-meter run and the 1,500-meter run. The only other event that the Lady Pioneers placed was the mile relay team consisting of Sharon Hayes, Mary Davis, Glenda Taylor and June Casto.

The Lady Pioneers' next meet is scheduled for this Saturday, April 16, at Rio Grande, Ohio.

New Student Congress members should attend the meeting on Wednesday, April 13, at 4:15 p.m. in the Student Congress office.

All women interested in entering a team in an intramural swim meet to be held on April 20 should contact Lou Ellen Wentz, Apt. 500C, Pickens Hall before Monday, April 18.

Class To Be Taught

A football officiating class, which is required for high school football officials, will be held at Glenville State College during the next few weeks.

The class, to be instructed by Bob Hardman, will be held from 6-9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, April 12, 14, 19, 21, 26 and 28 in Room 308 of the Science Building. In addition to the course work, each student will be required to do approximately 20 hours of practicum.

Completion of the course requirements will enable participants to be registered football officials. The class is sanctioned by the West Virginia Secondary School Activities Commission.

Fees for the class, conducted by GSC Office of Continuing Education, include the cost of instruction as well as course materials. For additional information or registration, call 462-7361, ext. 120.

Male Tracksters Compete

The GSC men's track team has participated in two meets at Charleston over the past several weeks.

On March 26, the Pioneers performed at the Yellow Jacket Relays. The Glenville men scored 108 points to finish third behind West Virginia State and Marietta.

Top performers for GSC included Larry Taylor and Robert Brown. Taylor won the 5,000-meter run, while Brown won the shot put. Other high finishers were Dave Darst, Mark Price, Dave Husk, Gary Brisse, Trent King and Lloyd Willis.

At the West Virginia State Invitational on April 9, GSC scored 39½ points.

Robert Brown was Jerry

Milliken's top scorer. He placed second in both the shot put and the discus.

Also, Lloyd Willis placed second in the triple jump and fifth in the 200-meter dash; Larry Taylor was fourth in the 1,500-meter run and sixth in the 5,000-meter run; Dave Darst was fourth in the shot put; Trent King tied for fifth in the pole vault and placed sixth in the high jump; Mark Price was sixth in the 800-meter run; and Gary Brisse was sixth in the 110-meter high hurdles.

The Pioneers will return to Rio Grande, Ohio this Saturday, April 16 for the Rio Grande Invitational. Earlier in the season, the GSC squad won a dual meet with Rio Grande.

Scott Ludwig

Clay Young

Cagers Are Picked For Honors

Two GSC male cagers were recently honored as members or the 1982-83 All-WVC second team. The players, Scott Ludwig, a senior; and Clay Young, a junior; were the only two Pioneers to receive mention.

Ludwig, one of GSC's most prolific scorers ever, finished this season with an 18.3 scoring average. In three years at Glenville, the Ripley guard totaled over 1,200 points and is GSC's 11th leading all-time scorer.

In statistics released by NAIA officials last week, Ludwig was listed as being tied for first place in free throw percentage among all NAIA schools. Also, on Saturday, he competed in an all-star game involving some of the best seniors in state colleges and universities. In this outing, Ludwig tallied 14 points, second only to Marshall's Charles Jones in his team's scoring.

GSC's other second-team selection, Clay Young, has one year left at Glenville but has already piled up some impressive statistics. Young needs only 70 points to reach the 1,000-point plateau, and he has grabbed more than his share of rebounds.

In 1982-83, Young scored at an 18.6 points per game clip. He was termed by one writer as "one of the two best pure pivots in the state."

The National Marionette Theatre will be in concert in the Little Theatre, April 19, 7:30 p.m. It is sponsored by the GSC Cultural Affairs Committee.

The Ms. Kana-whachen contest will be postponed until Thursday, April 14. Also, there will be a $10 entry fee for each girl entered.

All campus organizations are urged to turn in their history to the Mercury Office as soon as possible.

Diamond Squad Is 2-5

After splitting their first two games of the season with West Virginia Wesleyan, the GSC baseballers made their trip to North Carolina and found rain and stiff competition in the way of success as they saw their record drop to 2-5.

In their season opener, Kenny Golden pitched very well, holding Wesleyan to one run, and Randy Edge hit a homerun which proved to be the game winner. In the second game Craig Williams pitched a good game but the Pioneers lost 2-1.

On their trip to North Carolina they lost 10-2 to North Carolina Wesleyan, who was rated fourth in the nation. They followed that with a victory over St. Vincent, 9-6, led by the hitting of Jeff Wilcox and outstanding relief work of Doug Patterson. North Carolina Methodist, ranked sixth in the nation, beat the Pioneers, 5-2. Craig Williams pitched another good game in a losing cause. Their following two games were rained out.

The University of Charleston defeated the Pioneers twice, 7-4 and 9-1, as the pitching went weary and little offense was generated.

West Virginia Tech is scheduled to be their opponent today if weather allows. Today's game is the Pioneers' home opener. They also have a game coming up Saturday at Fairmont.

Tedford Elected To Post

Dr. Barbara W. Tedford, Associate Professor of English at Glenville State College, has been elected Secretary of the Board of Directors of The Humanities Foundation of West Virginia. This foundation is a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The Humanities Foundation supports public humanities programs with federal funds and donations from West Virginia businesses, organizations and individuals. Public nominations for Board membership are invited. The 23-member board is composed equally of public and academic members and reflects the diversity of the state's population. Elections are held each March.

ATTENTION WOMEN: All women interested in entering a team in an intramural swimming meet to be held April 20, contact Louellen Wentz in 500c Pickens Hall before Monday April 18.

For those seniors who did not order Commencement announcements, there are extras in the Bookstore. First come, first served--37 cents each!

New Elective Set

The English Department is offering a new elective in the fall semester, English 330, Neoclassicism. Professor Barbara W. Tedford will teach the course, which covers English literature from approximately 1660 to 1750.

"Our English literature survey course, English 314, introduces students to some of the major writers of this period," states Dr. Tedford, "but the new course will deal with these in greater depth."

"America was still an English colony during this exciting time. The public began to read newspapers and to look forward to reading the writings of their favorite essayists. To please this new reading public from the middle classes authors began publishing the novels that we still enjoy today. In the class we will probably study Fielding's 'Tom Jones' for example."

Other works likely to be covered are "Gulliver's Travels" Boswell's excellent biography of Samuel Johnson, some of Pope's witty poems, and the sparkling plays of Congreve, Sheridan, and Goldsmith.

The course should interest not only English majors but also history, music, and art students, Dr. Tedford pointed out, since it will deal with cultural history. "This was the age of Purcell, Handel, Bach, and Mozart and saw the emphasis on classical forms in painting and architecture," she stated. "We will be studying Gay's 'Beggar's Opera' which has been successfully adapted as 'The Threepenny Opera' in this century. One possible project I hope we can complete is a banquet featuring the food, costumes, and manners of the eighteenth century."

It has been called "The Age of Reason," "The Age of Enlightenment," "The Augustan Age," and "The Age of Neoclassicism" - labels that might imply stiff drawing-room formality. Not so, Dr. Tedford promises; students will learn what a robust, exciting century it really was when they take English 330.

History Assoc. Planned For GSC

The West Virginia Historical Association will hold its annual spring meeting April 22-23 at Glenville State College which will feature a wide variety of research papers presented for discussion.

The West Virginia Historical Association is a professional organization of college and university history teachers which was established in 1956. The organization gives opportunities for historians to present scholarly papers on research which are then published in the JOURNAL OF THE WEST VIRGINIA HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION.

Highlighting the two day meeting will be Christopher Van Hollen, former American ambassador and deputy assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs. Dr. Van Hollen's lecture, "Americans in the Persian Gulf: the Carter Doctrine and the Reagan Corollary," will be presented at 8 p.m., Friday, April 22, in the auditorium. It is free and open to the public.

Three discussion topics on which further research has been conducted is the thrust of the meeting. The American history session will feature "Patterns of Racial Imprisonment in Antebellum America" and "Bipartisan Foreign Policy Model Under Truman: Kentucky Republic John Sherman Cooper."

"The Intellectual Legacy: Chinese Education, a Personal Reflection," "Forty Years of Infamy," "Reflections on New Accounts of Pearl Harbor," and "Cold War Ally or Economic Rival?: American 'Business in Post-War Japan and the Early Cold War' will be focused upon in the Far East history session.

The "Use of Community History in the College Classroom" will be discussed by five historians from different educational institutions in West Virginia.

The Phi Alpha Theta sessions, the National Historical Honor Society, are open to all students who wish to hear other students present papers on historical research conducted. The student session will be held from 9 a.m. - noon in the Little Theatre.

Coordinating the meeting for the West Virginia Historical Association has been the organization's secretary-treasurer, Dr. John Hymes, associate professor at Glenville State College.

Seamstresses Needed For Children's Play

Mrs. Linda McKown, director of this year's children's play, THE ANT AND THE GRASSHOPPER, is in need of seamstresses. Costumes for this play will be simple, only eight costumes are needed and these are without collars or sleeves. The play will be performed from April 25- April 28. Anyone interested should see Mrs. McKown as soon as possible.
