Benefits Are Topic Of Meeting

Continued progress toward achieving additional benefits for employees and campus constituencies was the main point of concern of the April 5 meeting of the West Virginia Board of Regents, and higher education officials are already looking ahead to the 1985 Legislative session.

President William K. Simmons, acting Chancellor of the BOR, stated that there are still things that the Board wishes to accomplish for employees, and desires "to maintain the momentum and rapport we established with members of the Legislature during this past session."

Dr. Simmons also remarked on other future goals, one of which is to restructure the faculty and staff development fee. This would allow for both new training and continuing education funds for all public higher education employees. Other goals cited include obtaining full funding for the recently enacted faculty salary schedule which will allow colleges to attract and retain quality faculty; seeking increased funding for research to compliment college and university commitment to teaching; and seeking the creation of a medical student tuition surcharge and loan program to offset escalating medical education costs and to assure continued access to medical education by all West Virginians.

Dr. Simmons also indicated that higher education officials were generally quite pleased with legislation enacted during the past session which benefitted employees, specifically citing the 7.5 percent salary increase, the option to purchase additional group life and accidental death insurance, and a faculty salary schedule, all of which will become effective July 1.

Student Teacher Shares Feelings

**The following is to be read only after swallowing several grains of salt or after one's proverbial tongue has been solidly implanted in one's proverbial cheek!

Hi! I'm back! And aren't you thrilled beyond any words even Virginia West or Espy Miller could come up with using Roget's Thesaurus!

Well, I just gotta tell you, I've been hot and heavy into my professional semester. I spent my first 10 weeks making those handy-dandy "anyone-can-fill-one-out", instant, international lesson plans, complete with behavioral objectives containing all the essential elements: audience, conditions, activity, and evaluation. Yessirree, I filled out those babies every night in hopes that just one of my supervisors would show his omnipotent face and say, "Bill, letteth me see thy lesson plans." But did they-show? Hunh-unh! So, I asked myself, "What am I doin' this for? Who am I doin' this for? What's gonna happen if they find out I ain't been doin' it? And if they do find out I ain't been doin' it, will they give me an F in student teaching?" "Hey Bill, what are you tryin' to do--make yourself sick?!"

It was right then and there I decided, "Forget the handy-dandy "anyone-can-fill-one-out", instant, international lesson plans and just do what you've observed from college professors over the past four years--tell the kids to read the chapter, answer the questions at the end, have a research paper on my desk in two weeks, and show up for the final in May." I also told them that if they had any questions, they knew where to find the answers--in their books! After all, I wasn't there to spoon feed them.

What Will Happen Next?

This will be my last year at GSC, and I can't say I'm sorry about it. During my sophomore year the administration and myself had a few difficulties and I had to call the late Senator John Slack to straighten it out. I figured that little else could happen here to surprise me. Wrong!

Last month my mother was in the intensive care unit of St. Francis Hospital on life support machines. The doctors gave her but a few days to live and our family stayed at the hospital night and day. In the meantime my grandmother died and I attended her funeral. Needless to say, I missed some class time. I asked a friend to let the administration know my situation but as things go sometimes, he didn't do it. So while I was still home I was suspended from all of my classes, nice, huh?

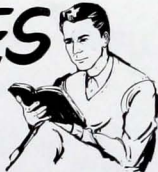

When I got back I talked to the Vice-President of Academic Affairs and explained what had happened. He informed me that the only official absences the college recognizes are field trips; death and family illness are not excuseable. Makes a lot of sense doesn't it? Well that's not all. My mother had to go back to the hospital because her heart was failing again and my sister called the college so they could inform me and what happened? You guessed it! Someone told her that they couldn't get ahold of me because I had already graduated. I'm afraid to ask but, what next?

Hesitantly,
Gary Ross

WITH THE BIBLE

"THE TIME ELEMENT IN SCRIPTURE"

How many problems would be solved, how many seeming contradictions in Scripture explained, if we were more careful to note the time element, emphasized so strongly in the Word of God.

In Romans 5:12 we learn that sin entered the human race by Adam. Then later "the law entered" (Ver. 20). But still later the Apostle Paul arose to say: "But now, the righteousness of God without the law is manifested" (Rom. 3:21).

Early in man's history blood sacrifices were required for acceptance with God (See Gen. 4:4; Heb. 11:4); later circumcision and the law (Gen. 17:14; Ex. 19:5), and still later, repentance and water baptism (Mk. 1:4; Acts 2:38). But not until Paul do we learn of salvation by grace through faith alone, on the basis of Christ's finished, all-sufficient work of redemption.

This is why the apostle refers in Galatians 3:23 to "the faith which should afterward be revealed." This is why he declares that our Lord "gave Himself a ransom for all, to be manifested in due time," and adds: "whereunto I am ordained a preacher and an apostle" (1 Tim. 2:6,7).

It is only as we recognize the time element in Scripture that we see the difference between "the kingdom of heaven" and "the Body of Christ," between "the gospel of the kingdom" and "the gospel of the grace of God," between the "dispensation of law" and the "dispensation of the grace of God."

A comparison of Romans 3:21 and 26 shows how this time element is emphasized in Scripture. After discussing the function of the law in Verses 19 and 20, the Apostle Paul declares: "BUT NOW the righteousness of God without the law is manifested...."

Then, in Verse 26 he states that it is God's purpose:

"To declare, I say, AT THIS TIME, His [Christ's] righteousness; that He [God] might be just and the Justifier of him that believeth in Jesus."

There you have God's terms of salvation for today. The sinner who places his trust in Jesus Christ, who paid the penalty for our sins, is justified before the bar of God. Glorious message!

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

Just when I thought the rats were gone, it struck again last night at 1:49. I heard the oh, so familiar pitter-patter noise come running across the floor and the kerplunk at the bottom of the heater. I have been informed that they (maintenance) are spraying under the building and using a special new and improved rat killer formula to dehydrate rats. I'm really glad to see that that rat will get what's coming to him after what he did to me.

But, another little problem has sprung up since the last story about the rat. LBH is now being overrun by cockroaches. And they are the biggest I've ever seen in my life. I came walking in my room and this Mutual of Omaha Wild Kingdom-looking thing came running right at me and scared the heck out of me, so I stomped it with my foot. I said to myself, "Can you believe that? First rats, now cockroaches." So I picked up an old Nike sneaker and got on the bed and looked for more and sure enough, there were three beauties under a paper bag. I managed to get the biggest one and I've got others this weekend.

The only thing that bothers me about the cockroach is if you step on one in your bare feet and it squirms and crackles. It's really something to find a new repulsive animal or insect in my room each week. They don't need any Wildlife Exhibit for GSC Week, just point arrows to my room. What's going to be next? E.T. in my closet? If so, at least he wouldn't have to run over me to get to the D-Con. Really though, I'd like to thank GSC students and maintenance for listening to my gripes and doing something about it.

Thank you,
Jeff Cicci
