Homecoming '85 plans are underway for the weekend of October 3 - 5.

The Student Congress and Activities Committee host several activities beginning Thursday with a picnic at 4:30 and ending with the annual Homecoming dance Saturday at 9 p.m.

This year's theme is "Come Alive in '85" and the week's activities promise to be a successful reunion of alumni with the college and town.

The West Virginia Department of Education now requires that every education student take preprofessional skills tests before the State will issue a teaching certificate. The tests include the PPST (Preprofessional Skills Test) in reading, writing, and math; and the ACT (American College Testing) test in speaking. If you plan to seek admission to teacher education during the spring 1986 semester, you must register for and take the tests during the current semester. (For those who have already been admitted, the State does not require that you take the tests.) The procedure is as follows:

1. Please register for the tests by October 1, 1985.
2. To register, see Patty Dugger, in Clark Hall 102, Monday through Friday, 8-4, for registration forms.
3. Plan to take the PPST on Saturday, November 16, 1985.
4. Plan to make an appointment to take the ACT-Speaking during the week of Monday-Friday, November 11-15.
5. Plan for the payment of a total of forty dollars ($40) testing fee payable at

New Doctor Added

Dr. Catherine Hayes

Hayes Joins GSC Staff

Life style counseling—that's the specialty of Glenville State College's new team physician, Catherine Hayes, D. O. What does it mean? Dr. Hayes expresses it this way: "Life style...a phrase that implies something about power...and about choices. We have incredible power over the course of our lives, but often we don't recognize or accept that power and remain without it. We make choices each day which determine our levels of health and happiness and peace, but many choices are made without an awareness or sense of responsibility about their consequences; and we are surprised when we develop an illness, become depressed, or find our lives empty. Life style...styling one's life...creating it as we would like for it to be...out of power of our daily choices. None of us is frozen in time; we are moving along in one direction or another. We are living and dying a little at the same instant, but moving closer to either life or death with each moment...each choice we make. I like to help people discover their choices and to make a conscious decision about their living/dying and, thereby, to become strong and powerful."

Prior to entering medical training, Dr. Hayes was head women's basketball coach at St. Lawrence University in upstate New York. She enjoys sports medicine and looks forward to being actively involved with GSC student athletes.

The Kyle Clinic, located on Mineral Road, is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 am to 3:30 pm. Although the Clinic tries to work around students' schedules, Dr. Kyle requests that students call for an appointment: 462-5708. Class excuses are NOT given at the Clinic; therefore, students should make appointments in non-class time whenever possible. In case of an emergency, students should contact their dorm director.

Activity Fees Explained

Every student at Glenville State College who is taking seven or more hours of classes, pays an activity fee, which is up a slight amount from last year's to $61.00. This is included in the tuition paid by each student at registration.

This activity fee covers most activities on GSC campus, including all athletic events, cultural events, movies, GSC Week activities and special programs. This means that by just showing your college I.D., you are free to enter these activities.

Many do not realize that this amount also entitles you to free yearbooks (for the years that you are on campus) and free newspapers. Yearbooks for the 1984-85 school year will be distributed in the near future. So if you were a full-time student last year, be sure to pick up your copy in the yearbook office located on the third floor of the Administration Building.

Since this fee has already been paid, why not use it to your advantage and take Glenville State College up on all that it has to offer.

Chairpersons Are Vital Part Of Glenville State College

Glenville State College Division Chairpersons play an important role in both the administration and the faculty. They are in charge of conducting divisional meetings and looking after the progress of their divisions. They are responsible for developing curricula, initiating class schedules, improving instruction, utilizing test results and acting as the chief academic advisors. Along with these and many other duties, GSC Division Chairpersons are required to teach nine course hours.

To give recognition to these people, the Mercury will be doing a profile on each division chairperson. This week, Dr. Paul Lutz of the Social Sciences and Mr. Ernie Smith of the Business Division have been interviewed.

Dr. Paul Lutz is in his second year at Glenville State College as chairperson of the Social Sciences Division. Hailing from Huntington, WV, Dr. Lutz holds his Bachelors and Masters degrees from Marshall University, and his Doctorate from West Virginia University.

Dr. Lutz began his teaching career in 1967 at Huntington Vinson High School, instructing there for two years. His next teaching assignment was with the Marshall University branches in Logan and Williamson which later became Southern West Virginia Community College. Between 1978 and 1983 Dr. Lutz served as Assistant Director of Development at Marshall which involved public relations and fundraising for the school.

Dr. Lutz then took the position of Director for Major Gifts at Stetson University in Florida. This job entailed funding and grant proposals for the University. Dr. Lutz was then offered the position he now holds at GSC.

As a member of the West Virginia Historical Association, Dr. Lutz had been acquainted with Dr. Bruce Flack and with GSC history professors Dr. John Hymes and Dr. James Hilgenberg before coming to GSC. Besides his duties as division chairperson, Dr. Lutz also teaches two classes of World Cultures 101 and one class of United States History to 1877.

Dr. Lutz's wife Mary is a music teacher with the Cabell County School System. They have two children, Meredith, who is 16 and attends Huntington High School, and Aaron, who is 12. Dr. Lutz is presently commuting each week from his home in Huntington.

Mr. Smith of Glenville, WV, is unusual among Gilmer County businessmen. His business is business.

Ernest Harry Smith is chairman of the Glenville State College Business Division, and his knowledge and experience in business education may well be responsible for the thriving GSC business environment.

Mr. Smith graduated from GSC with a B.A. in Business Education in 1964. He received an M.A. in education secondary classroom teaching from West Virginia University. He is currently enrolled in a

Mr. Ernie Smith

Doctorate program in graduate business education at the University of Tennessee.

He has taught business education at Bridgeport High School in Harrison County and at Parkersburg High School in Wood County. He was a teacher and chairman of the short-hand department of Mountain State College, also in Parkersburg.

Mr. Smith came to GSC in 1970 out of graduate school and was instrumental in the introduction of office simulation for the first time in West Virginia in 1975. He became chairman of the Business Division in 1977. In May of 1979, he helped establish the professional society, Phi Beta Lambda on our campus and was the first state advisor to the Department of Education, a position he still holds.

SPORTS

Pioneers Lose A Heartbreaker, 7-2

The Pioneers of Glenville State saw their record dip to 1-1 as they suffered a heartbreaking 7-2 loss at the hands of Waynesburg last Saturday. The game-winning touchdown came off a blocked punt with only 1:40 remaining in the game.

As the score indicates, it was a defensive struggle throughout. Neither offense was able to put any points on the board, and only 291 total yards were amassed by the two teams. Pioneer head coach Frank Vincent praised the play of his defense and summed the game up by saying "we got a break and came away with two; they got a break and came away with seven." Unfortunately, Vincent was quite accurate in this statement.

Both offenses did manage to pose a few threats on the afternoon, however. Waynesburg threatened early in the first quarter after recovering a Glenville fumble, but came away empty following a missed field goal. The Glenville offense marched into Waynesburg territory twice in the first half but they also came away scoreless.

The Pioneers opened the scoring at the 10:34 mark in the third quarter with a two-point safety. Bill Dunn made the initial contact on Waynesburg's Tim Null, and teammate Mike Chadwick finished him off to give Glenville a 2-0 lead.

This lead held up until the final two minutes of the game. With a mere 1:40 left on the clock, Glenville punter Bill Hamilton had a punt blocked; the ball was scooped up by Waynesburg's Jim Calavario who ran the remaining 12 yards for the winning score. Glenville did pull together one final drive as they marched to the Waynesburg 16, but the drive ended on a fourth down fumble.

Statistically, Waynesburg had 159 total yards compared to 132 for Glenville. Both teams were forced to punt 11 times on the afternoon. Tracy Haught led the Pioneers in rushing with 33 yards on 23 carries while quarterback Forrest Hall connected on 8 of 25 passes for 118 yards.

Defensively, Glenville was led by nose guard Mike Chadwick. He collected 11 tackles including a sack and a safety which accounted for the Pioneers' only two points. Defensive tackles Dave Darst and John Lipscomb chipped in with 10 and 9 tackles, respectively.

Glenville will travel to Sheperd this Saturday for what is an important early season game. Game time is set at 1:30 in Sheperdstown.

Harriers Win At Tech

Freshman Andy Jarrell led the Glenville cross country team to a season-opening victory at the West Virginia Tech Invitational last Saturday. There were four teams at the meet as the Pioneers finished a comfortable 16 points ahead of second place West Virginia State.

Jarrell finished in fifth place, completing the hilly course in an excellent time of 30:18. He was followed by Jay Dawkins, who came in eighth with a time of 30:42, and Chris Shockey who placed 10th in 31:15. Jesse Skiles and Phillip Anderson were the other two scoring runners for the Pioneers. Skiles was 12th at 31:36 while Anderson finished 15th and checked in with a time of 33:24.

Bill Ramsey and Berry

Crutchfield were Glenville's other two finishers.

Ramsey finished 19th with a time of 36:02, and Crutchfield came in 21st in 36:22. Crutchfield is the squad's lone senior.

West Virginia Tech and the University of Charleston did not figure in the final scoring because neither squad met the requirement of five finishers. Each team had only four.

In the women's division, Glenville's Angie Varney turned in a super performance in her first cross-country race. She was the fifth woman finisher, completing the 3.1 mile course in a time of 26:27.

The Pioneer harriers will be in action again this week, hosting the Pioneer Invitational.

Netters Open Friday

Coach Kay Chico and her Pioneer volleyball team will be opening up this weekend at West Liberty. It will be a round-robin match with seven teams competing, all of which are West Virginia Conference schools.

Four players return to this year's squad. Juniors Kelly Cain, Myrtia Conley, and Kim West are all back for their third seasons, while senior Pam Carson is back after a year's absence. Cain received Honorable Mention on the all-conference team her freshman year. Newcomers to the squad are senior Lisa Tinder, junior Susie Smith, and sophomore Elena Lowe.

Coach Chico has also announced several changes to the previous schedule. The squad has added the Concord Invitational on October 4-5, Fairmont on October 11, and Salem on October 17. The trip to West Virginia Tech on September 26 has been cancelled because Tech dropped the sport.

Jesse's Place

There is really nothing I can say about Glenville's 7-2 loss that can give any consolation for the heavy disappointment of the loss. But this is as good a time as any to sing the praises of the Pioneer defense.

When the West Virginia Conference stats come out this week, it will say that the Glenville defense has given up a total of 23 points, and an average of 11.5 points per game. This stat is very deceptive.

To begin with, Waynesburg scored absolutely zilch on the Pioneer defense. The game's lone touchdown came on a special teams' play. And if one looks back to the Wesleyan game, he would see that the Bobcats didn't actually "earn" all of their points. They kicked one of their field goals after Glenville had fumbled on their own 20, and scored their only touchdown after recovering a fumble on the Glenville six. So actually, the Pioneer defense has only "given up" six points. And the lone touchdown scored on the defense was a drive of only six yards.

This weekend the football and volleyball teams will be on the road. The cross country team, however, will be at home hosting the Pioneer Invitational. So come on out and support the Pioneers.

Chancellor's Column

Each time a newspaper or legislator proclaims higher education is the hope of West Virginia's economy, I squirm. Not that I disagree. I think education is one of the best economic development expenditures the state makes. But I sometimes think my reasons differ from others'. In this and a subsequent column, I will explain the immediate and longer term ways in which higher education benefits the West Virginia economy.

Foremost, higher education makes the obvious contribution of teaching skills. West Virginia students may learn almost any occupation at one of the state's colleges or universities.

Less often understood is the attraction quality education has for business and industry. Employers consistently say they prefer locations where they are able to find educated workers and where their own children and employees can become well-educated. Good schools and colleges are as important to many businesses as low taxes and low-cost energy.

Higher education plays a second part in preparing people for employment. It certifies completion of one's studies. Obtaining licenses, meeting job requirements, and being promoted often require college degrees. A college or university's verification that one of its graduates has completed some required studies helps an employer screen applicants for jobs. That certification often saves employers the costs of testing and evaluating job applicants.

Colleges and universities also provide graduates with skills they can use in developing their own businesses. Each year, hundreds of West Virginia graduates start businesses which ultimately employ many other people.

But we often overlook higher education's role as an industry, itself. In West Virginia, our fifteen public colleges and universities employ some 10,000 people. Tens of millions of dollars in federal and private grants pay for student aid, research, and publications. Students from within and outside the state spend hundreds of millions on food, books, clothing, and housing. In most college communities, the school is the largest local business. And intercollegiate athletics—especially those at West Virginia University—are a major factor in the state's economy.

In West Virginia, higher education not only prepares people to begin their own businesses or work in others, it is also a major economic factor, itself.
