New GSC Center Opens in Summersville

Wednesday, October 16 was a picture-perfect fall day for the very upbeat groundbreaking of the Glenville State College Nicholas County Center in Summersville. The center is to be built at the intersection of Routes 19 and 41 on a prime site which used to be a community park.

The facility is being built by the Nicholas County Building Commission with financial backing from the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Summersville. The facility will be maintained from revenues from GSC no. 1 - a gas well belonging to Glenville State College on its property in Gilmer County. All of these arrangements must be firsts in West Virginia Higher Education. The facility will be open for classes by September, 1986.

Those present at the groundbreaking were members of the Nicholas County Commission; Board of Education; Mayor of Summersville Steve Le Rose; builders; architects; and the master mind behind much of the project - Senator Larry Tucker.

From Glenville were President William K. Simmons, academic vice president, Dr. Bruce Flack; vice president of finance and administration, Mr. Robert K. Gainer; dean of the school of education, Dr. Pam Brown; extension director, Mr. Joseph Hickman; public relations director, Mrs. Linda McKown; and Nicholas County Center secretary, Cindy Walton.

Dr. Edward Grose, a 1962 Alumnus of GSC, represented the Board of Regents. He is the Vice Chancellor of Administration.

The College of Graduate Studies (COGS) will share some teaching areas of the new facility. Representing COGS were Dr. James Rowley, president and members of his staff and advisers.

The Glenville State College brass ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Harry Rich and Mr. John McKinney, entertained under the fall leaves.

Dr. Simmons told the audience, "It is wonderful to see the enthusiasm of the forward looking people of Nicholas County."

Dr. Rowley reinforced Simmons' comments and added, "I am pleased to work with the cooperation of Nicholas County and Glenville State College - especially the vision and cooperation of Dr. Simmons."

Cast Chosen

The cast of The Shadow Box has been announced. The cast consists of five men and four women. The play takes place in separate cottages on a hospital grounds where terminally ill cancer patients dwell. The three cancer patients are attended to and visited by family and close friends.

Tim Mace will portray Joe, a strong, thick-set man, full of energy, but dying of cancer. Joe's wife, Maggie, clinging to the hope of a cure for her husband, will be played by Debbie Bunner. Joe's fourteen-year-old son, Steve, a smart-mouthed street kid, will be played by Kevin Carpenter.

Lisa McHenry will be seen as Felicity, the fiery old woman dying of cancer, with Diana Weese as her middle-aged daughter Agnes.

The part of Bryan a graceful, straightforward man, also dying of cancer, was not filled at press-time. Paige Dietz will appear as Bryan's attractive, outgoing, ex-wife Beverly. Randy Harper will be portraying Mark, who is taking care of his dying friend Bryan.

The Shadow Box, written by Micheal Christofer, received the Pulitzer Prize for a play in 1977 and a Tony Award for best play in 1976-77. The play is scheduled to be presented November 14-16. Mr. Sindlecker will direct the production.

Greeks are reminded to participate in the rest of Greek Week which is as follows: Thursday - Badge day (wear a badge for your sorority or fraternity), Friday - Color day - (wear the colors of your greek organization). There will be a luncheon for the sororities and fraternities from 11:00 - 1:00 p.m. in the Vandalia Room and there will be a section roped off for the Greeks. Also a reminder: Wear something to the ballgame associating you with your sorority or fraternity (badge, shirt, or jacket). Make sure to bring your banner and hang it up at the game. All Greeks are urged to attend the game and support the Greek organizations on campus and also support the Pioneers.

President Named

Due to the resignation of former Student Congress President Mitchell Moore earlier in the semester, voters went to the polls last week to vote for a new leader of Glenville State College's government. When the polls closed, it was announced that B. Scott Kitchen would succeed as the new president. Scott, a senior Music Education major, is from Marietta, Ohio. This is Scott's first year in Student Congress, and he is leaving the job as Parliamentarian, to accept the position. Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kitchen.

Athletic Programs Supported

In last Thursday's Student Congress meeting, some people had me gripping the edges of my chair to retain my anger. Fortunately for me, I suppose, Jimmy Dean spoke out in a manner much less radical than I had in mind.

The issue involved was the fact that the Student Congress is wanting to get more money from student fees. If this proposal is drawn up, then I will be all for it; because there is nothing wrong with wanting more money, especially for the sake of the students. But what really angered me was the fact that several of the Congress members mentioned taking money from athletics. It is really tough to sit and watch guys who have probably never worn a helmet in their lives talk about taking money from athletic department that is doing all it can to get by.

Athletics actively support nine programs. They are budgeted as follows: football—$20,500; men's basketball—$8,500; women's basketball—$6,200; men's track—$3,000; women's track—$3,000; volleyball—$3,000; golf—$2,000; and cross country—$1,200. Add to this $3,000 for cheerleaders, $5,000 for athletic training, and $4,000 for conference and NAIA dues. This budget totals $61,400, and the department spent a total of $65,451.77 on the year. So you can see that they are barely getting by. The department made $8,368 on gate receipts and $5,031 through concessions during the 1984-85 school year.

Athletics are now getting $30 per student fee. With a total 1,084 full-time students this semester, this is only $32,520 being appropriated through student fees, barely half of the budget.

The people who spoke out are good friends of mine (I hope they still are) and super politicians. They do all they can with the administration and the Board of Regents to help the student body. They have an enormous influence politically on this campus, but they have no real concept of what it takes to financially support an athletic program. I hope they can see that it takes bucks to field athletic teams, and even bigger bucks to produce winners. Those who saw the Fairmont-Glenville game saw the Pioneers with only 36 players compared with 118 for Fairmont, so you can see we are not where we should be.

Trying to get more money for Student Congress is a good idea, but to rob others to get it is not.

On Monday, October 14, the Theta Xi Chapter of the Delta Zeta Sorority held a formal meeting at the Delta Zeta house.

Future fundraisers were discussed. There will be a dollar drop this Saturday at the football game. The Delta Zetas will also be having a "sub" sale in the near future. For more information, contact Ways and Means Chairperson Kathy King.

Academic Chairperson Cheryl Curry reminds everyone to study hard for mid-terms, and not to forget the study break "munch out" tonight.

Weekly awards were presented by the house manager, Denise Elza, and were as follows: Clean Room—Kim McCutcheon; Pig Pen—Denise Elza and Leisa Samples. Denise reminds everyone living in the house that their jobs/chores must be done tomorrow. There will be a job-check.

Tammy Miller was voted in as the new Sorority Educator. She will be in charge of the Founders Day ceremony, which will be held tomorrow.

Today at 5 pm, sorority chaplain Robin Foreman reminds all girls to be at the house. The Rev. Julian Sulgit will speak.

DZ girls, don't forget to vote for your favorite Mr. and Ms. Greek tomorrow in the Pioneer Center Lobby during lunch hours. The winners will be announced Saturday at the Greek luncheon.

Anyone who is helping with the Trick or Treat for UNICEF is to get in touch with Theresa McClure, Philanthropy Chairman, before the weekend for further details.

This is Greek Week. We Delta Zetas are having a fun time and we hope the Lambda Chis, Sigmas and TKEs are too! We're looking forward to this weekend!

Our P.C.D. (Province Collegiate Director), Lisa Blankenship, will be visiting with us this weekend. She will arrive Friday from Athens, WV. We welcome you to Glenville, Lisa, and hope you'll feel at home!

Congratulations to our new pledge, Phyllis Parsons. We're proud to have you aboard!

Congratulations are also in order for our chapter president, Sandy Moyers, who became engaged this weekend.

Happy birthday to "Min-Min" Mindy Gutberlet and Angie "legal now" Boles.

Good luck to the Pioneer football team this weekend against Concord. Go team!

The next Delta Zeta meeting will be held October 28 at the Delta Zeta house.

To our "Super Six" pledges (Phyllis Parsons, Marilyn Sutton, Jenny Wilson, Sherry Burke, Jan Spencer and Dottie Stalnaker): Keep up the good work! We love you!

Tomorrow is the Delta Zeta Founders Day. We were founded in 1902 at Miami University in Oxford, OH. Happy birthday, Delta Zeta Sorority!

The Players held formal initiation on Sunday, October 20 on stage in the auditorium. We would like to congratulate our two new initiates, J.R. Aliff and John Curran, Jr. You did a great job, guys! Welcome!

Members of the Ohningohow Players will be selling made-to-order buttons beginning Thursday, October 24. We can make buttons to say anything you want. Photographs may also be used. See any member of the Ohningohow Players to purchase your buttons. Price is $.50.

Members are reminded of our next regularly scheduled meeting this evening (Wednesday) at 5 pm in the Underground.

Alpha Psi Omega

The members of Alpha Psi Omega National Dramatic Honorary would like to welcome our new pledges: Genice Bell, Paige Deitz, Terri McEachron, Lisa McHenry, and Sean Milliner. Congratulations and welcome, pledges!

Collegiate 4-H

The Collegiate 4-H Club held its first meeting on October 17 in the Wesley Foundation. Plans were discussed about getting more members. Anyone interested in joining should contact Stephanie in Pickens Hall, Apartment 200. The next meeting will be October 30, 1985 at 5:30 pm in the Wesley Foundation. Everyone is welcome.

GOD DOESN'T WASTE WORDS. In the past few months, we have had little rain to speak of. . . matter of fact, it has been the lowest amount in years. Without rain there can be no growth. A farmer can plow, plant, and fertilize; but if there is no rain, . . . the ground produces nothing. But, with water, the dry seed bud and flourish. We can have this experience in our lives with the Bible. Upon reading a portion of it, things seem to put on a new perspective. Changes appear in our lives, as we apply the principles to our needs.

As the days, this weekend, have received rainfall, we should be ever thankful. For He is preparing for essential needs of His people and moisture for this spring's buds. Many times we become discouraged or impatient by the lack of growth, or opportunities in our lives. But then God is waiting on your right time, much like He changes the weather so seed can bud and flourish. Words take on new meaning and we have a new outlook on our life. Isaiah 55:10-11.

BCM meets every Wednesday evening at 9 pm at the First Baptist Church (next to the Post Office). Bible Study led by students. Halloween Party Friday night at 8 pm. See ya!

Letters

Dear Editor:

With the current wave of public attention to AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome), it is natural for people to be cautious and fearful about this new and deadly disease. However, it is important not to let unreasonable fear of AIDS affect our community blood supply.

As the nation's largest supplier of blood and blood products, the American Red Cross is committed to the safety of both blood donors and blood recipients. The following is an update on the measures that have been taken to halt the spread of AIDS through the nation's blood supply.

First, it must be emphasized that it is perfectly safe to donate blood! Because only sterile, disposable needles and materials are used with each donation, a person absolutely cannot get AIDS or any other disease by giving blood.

In 1983, after it was discovered that AIDS could be spread through blood transfusion, the Red Cross strengthened its screening procedures for blood donors, urging those from high risk groups for AIDS (male homosexuals and intravenous drug users chief among them) not to donate blood and allowing for voluntary and confidential self-deferral of donors who may not feel their blood is safe. This measure has successfully reduced the number of blood donations from high risk individuals.

A second safety measure which should effectively eliminate any risk for blood recipients is a blood screening to detect HTLV-III antibody, or exposure to the AIDS virus. In March, the American Red Cross began using the test on all donated blood and discarding any blood which tested positive. To protect blood donors from being notified of a possible "false positive" test, blood samples found positive upon repeat testing in our laboratory were subjected to a more specific test. While the HTLV-III antibody test does not indicate that a person has or will develop AIDS, it makes the blood supply safer by screening out donations from anyone who may have been exposed to the virus.

Results of HTLV-III testing at the Tri-State Regional Blood Center indicate that our donor population is very safe. From March to September, only two blood samples had confirmed positive tests for exposure to the virus, out of more than 30,000 donations. By comparison, the New York Blood Center had ten times as many HTLV-III positive donors among roughly the same number of blood donations. Nationally, Red Cross has found about one in 3,000 testing positive for exposure to the virus, or .03 percent. Our area statistics are one in 15,000 or .006 percent.

We hope that this information will help calm some of the unnecessary fears about AIDS in our area. The new voluntary donor guidelines, along with HTLV-III antibody testing and a healthy volunteer donor population are helping to ensure the safest blood supply available. With the help of our many caring blood donors, the Red Cross will continue to meet its commitment to provide a safe, reliable blood supply to the 62 hospitals served by the Tri-State Region.

Sincerely,

Mabel M. Stevenson, M.D.

Kyle Clinic

College students have all kinds of management problems—how to manage their time, how to manage their money—but one of the most important management problems they face concerns their health care. The Kyle Clinic offers total student health services to help students make the right decisions about health care. Students need to learn how to be responsible for managing chronic health problems like diabetes, allergies, etc. Scheduling appointments, budgeting for prescriptions, and keeping health records up-to-date are all a part of health-care management. Working with the Clinic, the student has the opportunity to learn how to make choices in a protective environment.

What costs are covered under Student Health Services? Regular office visits. It does not cover x-ray, lab work, or prescriptions. It is up to the student to make appointments during their free time. The Clinic does not give class excuses. Again, the phone number is 462-5708, and the hours are Monday through Friday 8:30 am-3:30 pm. If you have any particular health topic you would like to see covered in this column, call Diane Kyle at the Clinic, or call Harriet Whipkey at the MERCURY (ext. 290) and leave word. We'll do our best to answer you.

Students at GSC have certainly had the opportunity to see Shakespeare this month. First, the Drama Department's version of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and then the acting company's production of "As You Like It" which was presented last Monday. Both shows played to surprisingly full and responsive houses. I must confess that I went to the theatre with high hopes of being entertained by what was billed as the nation's only theatre company.

The play opened with great promise. Entirely set in blacks, whites and greys, I was reminded of those old movies that crackled and popped on the late show. The actors were dressed in 1920's style costumes which heightened this effect. I was now prepared for this Shakespeare to be shown in a style totally new to me, and one that was experimental in its presentation. But something went awry.

After a wonderful chase and interrogation scene that was lit only in flashlights, the play suddenly got color. —technicolor in fact. Bright umbrellas served as huge trees, and now the actors were costumed in multi-colored, Elizabethan outfits. It was truly a beautiful effect. But I wondered —why the change? I thought that I was missing some deeper meaning or symbolism, so I asked instructors whom I felt should know why, and I was surprised to learn that they did not understand it either. Why the change from black and white to color? The only thing that was black on the stage now, was Rosalind's father, which was a curious touch, considering the actress who played Rosalind was white.

Unfortunately this inconsistency seemed to set a precedent. Characterizations seemed to fluctuate, and, I found out later, large sections of the play were omitted entirely. Still the question lingers—why? Plays can, and quite often are cut for presentation, in order that they can be timed and such, but in my mind, never should be cut in such a way, that the audience is left with gaping holes in the plots and characterizations.

In all fairness, however, the play was indeed quite beautiful. The Wedding Spectacle was my favorite in the show. Some of the action was very believable, and Amien's singing voice was the highlight of the show. Also, many of the ideas were quite ingenious. But what good is ingenuity without purpose?

"Pen-Pal" Deceives "Lonely Heart" Friend

How many of you have secretly wanted to write the Lonely Hearts Club? Find an exciting pen pal?

Sitting in the library one day, Sandra Sander, 19, of Walkersville, was flipping through a Rolling Stone magazine. Suddenly she spotted an ad called "Latin's International." Reading on, she discovered it was a service where men paid to have their addresses published. One address in particular caught her eye, a 25-year-old honorably discharged from the service, address Starke, FL.

Thus began a correspondence which lasted a year, revealing to Sandra he had his law degree, but he decided to work as a crime counselor. This explained the fact that he suddenly began asking her to put a series of numbers and "in care of Florida State Prison," after his name.

Their friendship continued. One day Sandra thought she'd call him and surprise him at work. She dialed Florida State Prison and asked to speak to a pen pal. Unfortunately the only person by the name she gave them was on death row waiting to be executed for the brutal murder of an 86-year-old Florida woman.

Sandra wrote him and told him she knew of his crime. He replied in turn protesting his innocence and wanting her to believe him.

The moral of this story is: Next time you want a pen-pal, make sure he's not a "pen" — pal.

Many of you may not know it, but GSC has its own nursery school, located on the first floor of Scott Wing in Pickens Hall. It's full of brightly colored animals on the walls, and it's even complete with its own indoor sandbox!

The school is run by Miss Elma Jean Woofter, who has her M.S. in Home Economics from the University of Tennessee. This makes her 32nd year with the nursery school program at GSC.

The program only accepts eight students on a first apply, first served basis. The only criterion for acceptance is that the child be four years old by September 1. You need not be a student of GSC to enroll your child. The school is open from 9-11:30 am daily.

A typical day, according to Miss Woofter, begins with free play followed by group activity. The children then wash their hands and have a snack consisting of crackers, cookies, and milk. On special holidays, the children receive special treats. They are looking forward to their upcoming Halloween Walk. The children round out their day with story telling and the last fifteen minutes are spent with free play. One day a week they go to the gym to work out their frustrations. Hm. . . Maybe they're on to something. . .

"My door is open to students. My favorite part of the job is interaction with students, calmly helping a student through a complex problem," explains Dr. Palmoneada Brown, Dean of Teacher Education at Glenville State College. She emphasizes, "Now is one of the most exciting times for students to enter teacher education. There is more attention focused on education and the quality of education; students will be entering higher quality jobs."

Dr. Brown came to Glenville in 1974, planning to stay for nine months. She is now in her twelfth year at GSC. She serves on campus as a member of the College Council, the Faculty-Administration (FAO) Curriculum Committee, and as chairperson of the FAO Teacher Education Committee.

Dr. Brown's bachelor's and master's degrees were earned with high honors from Marshall University. Her doctorate in teacher education was completed at the University of Houston. She was, formerly, a West Virginia classroom teacher and a college professor at Marshall University, Ohio University, the University of Houston, the West Virginia College of Graduate Studies, and Glenville State College. She also served as Director of the Glenville State College Parkersburg Center.

Dr. Brown has participated in educational research projects in West Virginia and Texas, as well as cooperative efforts with European agencies such as the British Broadcasting Company (BBC) in London, England and the International Children's Center in Paris, France.

Dr. Brown currently serves on the West Virginia Board of Regents' Evaluation Committee, the Board of Regents' Teacher Education Advisory Committee, and as Chairperson of the

Recital Slated

J. D. Benson and J. R. Aliff, senior music students at Glenville State College, will present a recital Sunday, October 27, at 3 pm in the college auditorium in partial fulfillment of the requirements of a BA Music degree. Mr. Benson and Mr. Aliff are both piano students of Mr. Gerald Snyder of the GSC music faculty.

J.D. Benson is the son of Patricia Ann Benson of Vincent, Ohio, and the late Jerry D. Benson. As soloist, Mr. Benson will perform "Rhapsody in G Minor, Op. 79, No. 2" (Brahms); Impromptu in Ab Major, Op. 90, No. 4" (Schubert); and "Sonata in G Major, Op. 49, No. 2" (Beethoven).

J.R. Aliff is the son of Mrs. Lois Chandler of Fayetteville and Mr. James Aliff of Beckley. He will perform "Sonatina in C Major, Op. 13" (Kabalevsky); "Prelude, Op. 28, No. 15" and "Prelude, Op. 28, No. 22" (Chopin).

As duo piano, Benson and Aliff will perform "Stage Parodies" (Dello Joio); "Sonatina in C Major" and "Mazurka in C Major" (Von Weber).

Campus and public are invited. There is no admission charge. A reception for the pianists will follow the recital in the Little Theatre.

Nursing Program Outlined

Higher Education Week - October 19-26 finds the spotlight on the Nursing Program at Glenville State College. This unique program at Glenville is possibly the first cooperative effort of its kind in the United States-certainly in West Virginia.

Until now the only four year nursing program in West Virginia Public institutions of higher education was housed at West Virginia University. The private (more expensive) colleges offer a four year baccalaureate degree, but the four year public colleges offer only a two year program. The growing need for nurses, the new requirement (by 1992, a four year baccalaureate degree for nurses), and the number of nursing students which leave West Virginia after their schooling place Glenville State College in the forefront with its new program.

Glenville's unique program shares the faculty at both Glenville State College and West Virginia University. The four year degree is from both institutions. The first two years in the program are spent at Glenville offering a rural experience in theory and clinical courses as well as home health care and social work. The third and fourth years are spent in Charleston at the West Virginia University Medical Career in an urban experience.

Students in Central West Virginia now have access to a top notch program - the same program that is offered at West Virginia University. The cost is far less, commuter access is far greater and home is probably closer.

The initial class in the cooperative program has ten students who are now sophomores having come through the requirements of the freshman or pre-nursing year. The present freshman class has 25 students.

More information can be obtained by writing to Ms. Onalee Johnson, Nursing Coordinator, at Glenville State College, or calling 462-7361, Ext. 227.

SPORTS

Pioneers Toppled By Falcons, Fall to 2-5

The Fairmont Falcons remained in the West Virginia Conference race Saturday with a 49-0 victory over the Pioneers of Glenville State. The loss dropped Glenville to 2-5 overall, and 1-4 in the conference.

It was tough from the beginning for the young Pioneers as the Falcons vaulted to an early 21-0 lead and never looked back. They used a very balanced offense throughout the afternoon to thwart the Pioneers, gaining 241 yards on the ground and 178 through the air.

Glenville did pose two scoring threats on the rainy afternoon; early in the second quarter they marched to the Fairmont one, but could not punch it in for a touchdown as the Falcons stopped Alan Fiddler's quarterback sneak on fourth down. The Pioneers received another scoring opportunity in the third quarter when Eric Mitchell intercepted a pass and returned it to the Fairmont 11. Unfortunately, the Pioneer threat ended on the very next play when Fiddler was hit while throwing and the ball was picked off by a nearby Fairmont lineman.

Andy Pfefferkorn was Glenville's leading rusher, picking up 33 yards on nine carries, while Doug Dillon gained 14 yards on nine carries. Alan Fiddler completed eight of 19 passes for 71 yards, three of which were to tight end Ron Lane for 35 yards. Mike Chadwick led the Pioneer defense, accumulating 11 tackles.

This week, the Concord Mountain Lions will be invading Glenville for the final home game for the Pioneers. The Mountain Lions are one of the top teams in the conference, boasting a strong defense as always seems to be the case with the team from Athens. Kickoff will be at 1:30 this Saturday at Pioneer Stadium.

Jesse's Place

There is not a great deal more that can be said about Glenville's loss to Fairmont. Hopefully, the young squad can put this game out of their heads as they prepare for Concord.

Still, there have been some bright spots for the Pioneers. Punter Billy Hamilton has been performing quite consistently all year, booting the ball for a 35.6 average. Freshman linebacker Todd Layhew upped his tackle total to 82 in the Fairmont game. Layhew has been among the conference leaders in tackles all year (he was third before the Fairmont game). But the guy who may be having the best season of all is senior tight end Ron Lane. Lane has caught 20 passes for 308 yards and four touchdowns. The Pioneer offense has gone to him continually in the clutch.

As for the cross country team, they did not run in the West Liberty Invitational as planned. The primary reason was that Phillip Anderson and Chris Shockey had not fully recovered from their fine performances at the Parkersburg Half-Marathon.

In closing, I would like to give a special thanks to whoever rolled my car windows up while I was at the Fairmont game. Thank you.

The Glenville State College Office of Continuing Education will be offering a workshop entitled "Printmaking."

The class will meet on three Saturdays, November 9, 16, and 23, from 9 am-12 pm, in the Science Hall, room 308. The instructor will be Ms. Maryellen Chapman. This workshop is for children 7-11. By learning various printmaking procedures, the students will illustrate their own story and have a mini-publication to take home.

For more information or registration, please contact the Office of Continuing Education at 462-7361, ext. 121. It is important that participants pre-enroll for the class. The college reserves the right to cancel a class if pre-enrollment is insufficient.
