President Planning Groundbreaking

President Simmons has begun planning for the groundbreaking for the Fine Arts Complex at GSC. A tentative date of April 6 has been set for the ceremony depending on the availability of Governor Moore.

The date was chosen to coincide with the meeting of the Board of Regents to be held here. President Simmons hopes that the president of the Board of Regents, who was instrumental in helping to get the building, will participate in the groundbreaking. A reception will be held after the groundbreaking ceremony.

Dr. Simmons added that the construction of the Fine Arts complex on campus will be one of the high points of the next few years. "I am proud of what it means to the college," Simmons said. He stated that it will add a great deal of pride to the college on every level. He added that the Fine Arts complex would be an aid to recruiting students to attend

GSC.

President Simmons also stated that he was elated with the enrollment figures for the school year. He commented that the figures speak well for GSC. According to Dr. Simmons, enrollment has increased in all areas at GSC. The Summersville Center has played a major role in the increased enrollment, as well as, increased enrollment on campus and at the Parkersburg Center.

Dr. Simmons emphasized that the faculty and students at GSC are excellent recruiters. He also stated that the increased enrollment shows what can be accomplished by a cooperative and concerted effort at recruiting. "Everyone worked together and did a better job" he said indicating that increased efforts in providing financial aid and better turnaround time in correspondence has helped people and it is appreciated.

Dr. Simmons also pointed out that there is the potential for continued growth in each

"It Seems to Me..."

Last week's Mercury featured an article about students who wanted to revive the defunct WGSC radio station. In the story, Jackie Roth mentions several former GSC students that used the experience gained working at WGSC to attain jobs after college. Those students included: Ron Roth, formerly at WBUC in Buckhannon, now working at WPDJ in Clarksburg; Jeff Gainer of WCAW in Charleston; and Buddy Griffin of "Mountain State Live" in Charleston.

Ms. Roth used these as examples to indicate that there were positive results from the operation of WGSC. If these examples were not enough to convince you that the campus radio station was a positive educational experience, I would ask you to consider this: As a student in high school, I had two friends who worked at the local radio station. In the years since graduating from high school, I have heard these friends on the radio as announcers and even as commercial spokesmen on radio and TV.

Their experience as radio announcers in high school helped them to choose their career path. Since that time, many others have followed the same path into radio broadcasting. Still others have used this experience as a basis for entering college to get a degree in broadcast journalism.

The point I am attempting to make is this: High school students have used their experience in a small town radio station to make career decisions and to launch their careers. Wouldn't a radio station on a small college campus allow students who had not decided on a major or a career path the opportunity to explore a field they may never have considered before?

The proof is there. Radio personalities usually start in small radio stations to gain experience. They use this experience to launch their careers and move up to better positions in the job market.

The revival of WGSC could help many students to find the career they have been searching for. That's what education is all about, isn't it?

Letters

Letters to the Editor should be signed and delivered to the Mercury office in a sealed envelope to insure confidentiality. All letters will be printed exactly as received. Spelling, punctuation, and grammatical errors will not be corrected. Please proofread your letter to avoid embarrassment.

Dear Editor,

The recent letters blasting the "Prestigious" athletes at our school have prompted me to write on this subject.

The athletes (male, female, black, white, and/or yellow) may not be academically competent but why must we overlook the extra help they get from the teachers or the cheating they do on exams. i.e. During a recent literature exam not one but three of our prestigious black athletes were conversing openly and at one point I thought two of them were going to sit on one student's lap while trying to read his answers.

These athletes are at GSC to comply with government regulations regarding affirmative action (choke, choke). If they want equality they should be willing to work for it but I guess you just can't dribble, shoot, or stuff a book!!

The only ones at GSC being discriminated against are the "WASPS" and the teachers still grade us on our work, not because the coach needs us for a mediocre ball team. If they want to give these athletes degrees in badminton, volleyball or archery they should mail them to their homes and save all serious students the disruptions in the classrooms. Inept athletes disrupting classes are hurting the quality of education we are receiving but who cares, apparently not the coaches as the present athletes are just reflections of their pasts.

The word "NERD" was coined in reference to our athletic department and means "No Educational Requirements Demanded."

I wish to exclude any athlete who is a serious student because I know they too exist at GSC.

Dear Editor,

Alot of rumors are being circulated at G.S.C. about the bringing in of three assistants from Sistersville to coach the G.S.C. football team. The rumor says that they will teach in the area high schools and coach at the college and will be paid. Great! My question is how can the college afford to pay two or three assistant football coaches yet it cannot afford to hire a full-time track and field coach. It seems idiotic that the school would sink one-fourth million dollars into a facility yet be too cheap to hire a full-time coach to recruit as well as coach. Sure money is scarce throughout the state, yet concessions are being made at other area colleges. It seems that WV State has committed itself to hiring a new ladies basketball coach and has given him permission to re-start the ladies softball team. While at Glenville we seem more inclined to cut programs or deplete them in order to make our highly controversial football team a contender. Has anyone ever asked what happened to all the baseball equipment, after Glenville cut the program and lost a number of student-athletes who transferred, was it returned to the state or is it somewhere collecting dust? It seems stupid to have such a good swimming pool yet the pool is only open 5 to 6 hours a week and no swim team. It just follows in line that we have 6 to 8 state champion wrestlers on campus, a very good collegiate wrestling mat and no wrestling team. Also I'd like to thank the Athletic

Pioneers Have Now Won Seven of Last Ten

Jesse Skiles

Glenville State's Pioneers continued their fine second half of the season last week by capturing two out of three league contests. Gary Nottingham's crew has now won seven out of the last ten contests.

Nottingham noted that the Fairmont game (the only SC loss on the week) could have been won had the Pioneers produced a better shooting percentage. "We really played pretty well up at Fairmont. We caused 22 turnovers and we beat them on the boards, we just didn't shoot well. And we were getting pretty good shots at that," Nottingham said.

Glenville's two wins came against league foes Salem and Davis and Elkins. Salem avenged an earlier loss to that squad. Nottingham stated that it was a matter of coming ready to play, something they did not do against Salem last month.

This week the Pioneers will close out the regular season with two home games. Monday night they hosted California State (PA), and tonight they will host the Shepherd Rams.

by Scott Johnson

Matt Bullett connected for 37 points Monday night to lead the Glenville State Pioneers to a 92-83 conquest of WVC foe Davis and Elkins in Elkins.

Glenville took a nine point lead in the first half and Davis and Elkins got no closer than four. The Pioneers led by four at the half with a 50-46 cushion. The hosts tied the score at 52-52 with 18:20 left. After eight lead changes, the Pioneers took the lead for good on a Paul Grier jumper to leave the score at 81-79 with 2:04 left.

Rudy Watts connected for 22 markers and snared a game high 10 rebounds. John Harris hit 6 for 7 from the field and two free throws to end with 14 markers. Paul Grier finished the game with 13 tallies and four assists.

Fairmont 67
Glenville 62

The Pioneers went into the Feaster Center on the campus of Fairmont State College with revenge on their minds. It seemed they might gain their revenge as Glenville held a 32-30 halftime lead, although they were shooting poorly. The Pioneers were unable to get on track in the second half, however, and the Fairmont Falcons were able to capture a 67-62 victory.

The poor shooting from the field kept Glenville from taking advantage of 22 Falcon turnovers. Another factor was the Falcon defense which held Matt Bullett to a 16 point performance.

John Harris played well connecting for a game-high 20 points. Rudy Watts contributed 13 points, snagged 17 rebounds, and dished off six assists. Paul Grier netted eight markers and handed out six assists.

Glenville 94
Salem 77

Glenville turned an early deficit into a 55-28 halftime lead as the Pioneers dominated the Tigers in Salem Saturday night. The big lead allowed Coach Nottingham to substitute players freely in the second half. The Pioneers went on to win 94-77 raising their record to 13-12 overall and 11-9 in conference play.

Matt Bullett paced the Pioneers with 38 points followed by Rudy Watts with 23 markers and six assists. Paul Grier and Todd Smith each connected for 10 tallies. John Harris hit the nets for six points and John Jividen had eight rebounds to go along with his four points. Mike Hughes and Tim Collins rounded out the scoring with two points and one point respectively.

Jividen Adjusting to College Game

by Jesse Skiles

John Jividen has enjoyed an exciting first season as a Glenville State Pioneer. The former Hurricane Redskin has been a contributor throughout the season as the Pioneers have marched to a 13-12 record.

Jividen was confident he could play as a freshman if he worked hard. He said that Coach Nottingham said he could contribute this year if he improved and put forth an effort. John feels that he has improved, especially on defense. "I couldn't play defense at all out of high school," Jividen said.

John perceives his role merely as someone who is supposed to come in and work hard. He feels that his primary jobs are defense and rebuilding, while looking for teammates Matt Bullett, Rudy Watts, and Paul Grier to supply the scoring load.

John Jividen

All in all, Glenville has been good to Jividen as he sees it. He says that he was in need of discipline and that Coach Nottingham has been perfect for refining his game. "Coach stays on my back and makes sure I keep working," Jividen said.

A story on John Jividen can hardly be written without mentioning his zany personality. It is almost as well known as his basketball talent. During his senior year in high school he raised some eyebrows in the Kanawha Valley by appearing in court in a headband saying "Landon" exhibiting his dislike for Charleston sportswriter Chuck Landon. "Some people may think I'm a wierdo, but that's just the way I act. All I am doing is having a good time in life," Jividen said.

Glenville fans will have three more years to watch Jividen, who is one of the purest shooters in this year's WVIAC freshman class.

WVIAC Tournament Next Week

by Jesse Skiles

Next week both of the Glenville State basketball teams will be traveling down I-79 to Charleston to compete in the WVIAC Tournaments. There are fourteen schools in the WVIAC and the tournament is annually one of the biggest events to hit Charleston.

Glenville fans by the same token, are annually some of the rowdiest groups to hit the tournament. Hopefully many folks will be making the trip down as in past years, to cheer on our Glenville squads.

Last year was a very memorable one for Pioneer fans as both Glenville teams advanced into the WVIAC

Final Four. Not only did the teams do well, but Glenville student section was probably the most vocal of the tourney. Come on and make the trip down to Charleston next week. Let's support GSC and have a good time. The tournament will be from February 24-28.

Lady Pioneers Struggle, Fall to 10-11

by Jesse Skiles

Last week may very well have been the most disastrous week in Tim Carney's eight years as head coach of the Lady Pioneers. Not only did the Ladies go 0-3 for the week (all were conference losses), but all three came during a very pivotal period in the schedule.

With last Monday's home loss, the Lady Pioneer slide began to enter the serious stage. A win in that contest could have put the Ladies into second place in the league. It is now week's end and they could be as low as ninth.

Coach Carney was extremely disappointed in the week as a whole, giving some sharp criticism to the performance of his team. "We are simply not concentrating...I think they have too many things on their minds besides basketball. Then there are two or three who simply have an attitude problem," Carney lamented.

This week the Lady Pioneers will close their season with three home games. Tuesday night they will host WV Tech, Thursday night they will host WV Wesleyan and Saturday they travel to face Shepherd.

Fairmont 93
Glenville 75

Foul trouble plagued the Lady Pioneers Wednesday night at Fairmont, allowing the hosts to post a decisive 93-75 victory. The Lady Pioneers lost four players because of trouble and forced Coach Carney to look deep into his bench.

After trailing by only three, 41-38, at the half, the Lady Pioneers were unable to stay in stride as the field goals shooting improved for Fairmont and disintegrated for Glenville.

Monique Johnson paved the attack for Glenville with 30 points. Tammy Pence added 20 points and ripped off eight rebounds before fouls put her on the pine. Kim Creel added a dozen markers before she was forced to sit out.

Creel Rebounding from Injuries

by Jesse Skiles

Kim Creel is Glenville's woman in the middle, the physical inside player used to apply muscle to opponents. When she has been healthy, she has provided the Lady Pioneers with some rebounding punch.

Creel came to Glenville after a very celebrated high school career at Ravenswood. During her career, she played in three state tournaments (being on a state title team her sophomore year) and making the all-state team twice. Her senior year she was captain of the all-state squad.

Glenville though has been tough on Kim. She has experienced one injury after another; last year she suffered from stress fractures in both legs while this season she has damaged a big toe (in volleyball) and dislocated a finger.

Kim's size is the most talked about part of her game. She says that she enjoys utilizing her superior size though she admits that some women in the conference make her feel "tiny." Creel's sidekick Kim Fox added a comical comment concerning Kim's size by saying, "She moves pretty well for a fat girl."

Concerning the team's recent skid, Creel had several words to say. "We have the talent but we just can't seem to play together. If we could Saturday night.

Salem took a 33-24 lead into the lockerroom at the half thanks to the Lady Pioneers' 28 percent shooting. The Lady Pioneers improved in the second half but were unable to catch Salem and fell by a 63-59 count.

Karen Wooters hit the nets for 16 markers to lead the Lady Pioneers followed by Kim Creel with a dozen points. Tammy Pence hit for 11 tallies and snared a dozen rebounds. Monique Johnson held to nine points but picked off five steals.

only concentrate and start doing more of what coach says. Some of our players need to realize that coach is just trying to help us, and not take his criticism as a personal attack, we have some attitude problems," Creel said.

Indoor Track

by Jesse Skiles

Glenville State's Track team faced some stiff competition last Saturday in Morgantown at the Hardee's Invitational. Three individuals placed for the Pioneers and one relay team.

The 4x800-meter unit consisting of Jay Dawkins, Andy Jarrell, Jim Kelly, and Bubby Dent finished second for the Pioneers with a time of 8:10. Even though the team finished about 5 seconds off their goal, 8:10 is still an excellent clocking indoors.

Individual placers for the Pioneers included Lori Barker, Jim Kelly, and Lloyd Willis. Barker finished sixth in the 5000-meter run with a time of 20:29, Jim Kelly placed third in the 1000-meter run with a time of 2:39.7, while Lloyd Willis took fifth in the triple jump by jumping 44'11."

Hopefully, things will turn around for Creel and the rest of the team. She moves well and is now somewhat healthy, making her a force to be reckoned with in the WVIAC.

Intramural basketball will resume following the WVIAC tournament. The playoffs are to be conducted at this time, thus cutting the season short due to repairs to the gym. New bleachers are to be installed.

Jesse's Place

Several people have written letters over the past few weeks concerning our athletes here on campus. As a sportswriter, I guess some commentary is in order since these letters have apparently caused a great deal of controversy here at our cute little "home away from home."

First off, I want to take a look at the Zorro-Holcomb coalition. Their comments of anger towards the coach who was wanting "his boy" taken care of are quite understandable. I am in wholehearted agreement that athletes should not get preferential treatment in terms of grades. We are in fact an academic institution, and if an athlete cannot attain the same academic standards as others, then they really should not be representing GSC.

The next issue is Mark's personal attack on athletes. Perhaps there are some athletes here like Mark described, but are there not bad eggs in all walks of life? Just like the drug issue, I think the focus of the problem should extend beyond sports. Why are athletes always singled out? There are several athletes here who are very quality individuals...as human beings as well as in the classroom.

Hopefully all of this over generalizing and stereotyping has not extended to how people feel about our coaches. We have some fine people working up there in the Athletic Department and they all should not be judged by the actions of one or two.

On the outside, our Athletic Department may give an appearance similar to a zoo, but on the inside it is a different story. Basically, these folks are kind and caring family people. When you get right down to it, loving the Lord, your family, and your fellow man is all that really matters when it comes to judging people...whether you are talking about athletes or not.

In summary of this, I just want to say Zorro, I can see where you are coming from. Mark Holcomb, I can see some of your points, but not all of them.

Department for the slap in the face this weekend. It seems that being a track athlete is like being a second class citizen. It became very apparent this weekend when the 9 basketball players and 4 coaches got the bus to travel to Salem while the 30 track athletes had to crowd into a van and two state cars to travel to WVU. Glenville step into the future, Mr. President it is time for you to step in and say we have someone who wants to coach and recruit lets hire him as a full-time track coach so that the track team will get more respect and reach their potential through better guidance and better traveling conditions. The college can only gain through these steps because of the increase of student-athletes through recruiting and the college will get the benefit of using the facility it bought to make the track team a national contender. Incidentally what other team has won the WVIAC championship, 2 out of the last 3 years?

Control Room Improved

Have you seen it? It's a new look in an old room. It is more efficient, better equipped and it is exciting. In case you haven't guessed, it is the control room in the Media Center which is located on the ground floor on the RFK Library.

The control room now has two new editing monitors and an IBM-PC graphics. It is also capable of editing audio and video, as well as, producing quality videotapes.

The Media Center is open Monday through Friday from 8:00am - 4:00pm. During regular class sessions, extended hours are from 4:00pm - 7:00pm Monday through Thursday.

Come down and let us show you what else we have to offer!

In Search of WGSC: The Adventure Continues...

The control room of WGSC looks as if it is ready for operation, except for the heavy coating of dust throughout the room.

On Thursday, February 12, we made a journey to a land forgotten. Our journey began at the maintenance building, where we met our tour guides - two keys. Our maps showed us the way to the forgotten land of Room 212, Pioneer Center.

With the key, we unlocked the door to our precious land. Lo and behold we found ourselves in a land of...records. Yes folks, records, not only records but 8 track tapes, files, cue cards, written commercials, and Halloween interviews with Sis Lynn.

In awe we wandered around the small room, poking our noses in cabinets (hoping nothing would poke back). To our good fortune another door was found. Just beyond us was the most sacred room. We took the next trusty key and thrust it into its slot; with a click the door opened. It was as if someone had just walked through the wall, leaving all for us to discover. Two 45's were still on the turn tables. The culprit had left his headphones laying on the console.

Dust was inches thick and collecting on everything. A musty smell invaded our nostrils as we looked around in astonishment. Our hearts were beating like tattoo drums in the jungle from our excitement at the sight of this treasure. Yet all around there was an eerie feeling that something was left undone. Enter stage right.

Enter stage left: interview Ron Roth.

On Saturday, February 14, we made another journey, this time to WBUC, Buckhannon, W.V., in hopes of discussing a revival with a fellow "crusader."

Upon entering WBUC, we were informed by a receptionist that Ron Roth had begun working at WPDJ in Clarksburg. Coming to our rescue, the receptionist gave us Mr. Roth's phone number.

Ron Roth came to GSC as an undecided freshman. Here he met Buddy Griffin and they started talking radio. When their dreams of WGSC came true, Ron decided to go to broadcasting school.

Mr. Roth told us that WGSC was "absolutely" a positive learning experience, that could only be done by "hand-on" work. He stated that learning about radio was "like driving a car - you can read all you want about it, but you can't learn without doing it."

Mr. Roth is willing to help us - the crusaders, the "rebels with a cause" - to re-open WGSC. Let's go for it.

Note: Anyone interested in organizing information please contact Jackie Roth in room 304 Scott or the Mercury ext. 290.

area at GSC. He feels that increased demand for teachers will lead to growth in the Education Department. He also cited increased interest in GSC's Forestry and Land Surveying programs as a factor in increased enrollment.

Another area for growth, pointed out by Dr. Simmons, is the Nicholas County Center. Currently, there is a lack of resources to greatly increase enrollment at the Center. However, Dr. Simmons feels that if funds were available to double the budget and the building space, enrollment at the Center could be doubled.
