"Lion in Winter" Next Theatre Production

By Chris Harper

Glenville State College theatre department will present James Goldman's "Lion in Winter" at 8:00 p.m. in the College auditorium on March 8, 9, and 10.

Written in 1964 and first performed in 1966, "The Lion in Winter" chronicles on Christmas with the Plantagenet family, Henry, Eleanor, Richard, Geoffrey and John. It is a remarkable family, because Henry is King Henry II of England, Eleanor is Eleanor of Aquitaine, Richard is Richard the Lion Hearted, Geoffrey is the Duke of Brittany, and John is King John of Magna Carta fame.

This is a historical play that one doesn't need a history lesson to understand. The play manages to capture the spirit of its age, time and characters, while having fun with human beings, life, love, death and other such things.

"The play is set in 1183 Chinon France" stated Wemm. "The plot consists of strategies and counter strategies that 3 brothers use to become King after King Henry's heir dies." "The intricate part of the play is that Eleanor - the princess' mother wants Richard the Lion-Hearted for throne; While Henry wants John the youngest son to be King and poor Geoffrey is stuck in the middle," said Wemm. The other prize besides the kingdom is Alice the family whore. When asked what made this play different "I like the way it brings history to life, this all could happen today," stated Wemm.

The production is directed by Dennis Wemm, set designed and lighting done by Dennis and Nancy Wemm. Stage managers are Kris Rogers and Trey Simonson.

The cast includes James Cooper, a senior computer science major from Clear Fork High School as King Henry; Tracy Samples, a

INTERVIEW DAY HELD

Director of Career Planning and Placement, Barbara M. Forinash, is completing plans for Spring Interview Day which will be held March 7, 1989 in the Ballroom of Pioneer Center.

Fifty-four interviews from twenty-one West Virginia and fourteen out of state school systems will be on campus March 7 to interview approximately fifty candidates for available teaching positions. Two of the recruiters are former Glenville State College faculty members. Dr. Gary Adkins and his wife Roma, presently assistant principals in Broward County Florida/Fort Lauderdale, will be returning to GSC to interview candidates. Dr. Adkins was a faculty member in Education from 1970 to 1974 when he became the Director of Student Teaching. In 1975 he was named Chairman of the Division of Education which position he held until 1984.

Roma Adkins was on the faculty of GSC in the Home Economics division from 1970 until 1976.

Candidates will receive completed interview materials during registration March 7, in the Ballroom.

Please note the following changes in the mid-term schedule. Mid-term has been moved to Friday, March 10, 1989. D and F grade reports will be due prior to noon on Monday, March 13, 1989. The last day to drop with a "W" will be Friday, March 17, 1989. This arrangement should relieve some of the pressure on those faculty and students who are required to attend the WVIAC tournaments.

Tracy Legg Named Miss Kanawhachen For 1989

By Carmen Wager

Miss Kanawhachen was crowned on Thurs. Feb. 23 when the Glenville State Pioneers hosted Shepherd.

Miss Amy Nichols was named as the second runner-up. She is the 18-year-old daughter of Brisen and Nancy Nichols of Maysel. A freshman at Glenville State, Amy is on the Mercury Staff, a GSC cheerleader and a member of the Pioneers in Nursing.

Miss Cheryl Amos was the first runner-up. A junior at GSC, she is an active member of PCPB, Governing Board, SAS, PBL, Kanawhachen Staff and the Ladies of the White Rose.

Miss Tracy Legg was crowned Miss Kanawhachen 1989. Tracy is the 19-year-old daughter of Lynn Legg of Welsburg and Beverly Legg of Gassaway. She is a freshman at GSC majoring in Physical Therapy. In her spare time, Tracy enjoys dancing and her hobby is collecting clowns. As Miss Kanawhachen, Tracy received a crown, sash and silk roses. She will be recognized with two color pages in the campus yearbook, the Kanawhachen.

Miss Kanawhachen 1988 Allison Johnson, was unable to attend the game due to the fact that she is teaching in South Carolina. Tracy was crowned by Carmen Wager, Editor of the Kanawhachen.

Other young ladies competing for the title were: Miss Lisa Crutchfield, Miss Crystal Kitzmiller, Miss Phyllis Parsons, Miss Kathy Sealey and Miss Rhonda Simmons.

Letters to the Editor

First floor R.A. Gary Messenger would like to thank all the residents of first floor for staying under control this weekend while I was gone for the State R.A. Conference. When I lived in Pickens Hall last semester I heard quite a bit of talk about the "animals" and "the zoo", as Louis Bennett Hall is commonly referred to by the residents of Pickens Hall. When the news of my being hired as the first floor R.A. at LBH got around, I was commonly being wished "Good Luck at the 'zoo'" followed by a snicker of confidence in my ability to handle the residents. I also overheard people wondering how long I would last at LBH in making my first few months at LBH almost a pleasantry. I have the unique pleasure of congratulating the residents of first floor LBH on having a damage-free floor so far this semester, keep up the good work guys!

I would also like to ask the residents of first floor to start thinking of ideas for a floor activity. Just write your ideas on a piece of paper and put them in the envelope tacked on the bulletin board. We will have a floor meeting after I receive a few ideas and decide what we will do.

Also, the residents and myself would like to wish William Jackson (room 104) former resident Mike Hughes, and the rest of the GSC basketball team Good Luck in the tournaments. We would also like to wish Richard Maxwell (2nd floor RA) and the rest of the GSC cheerleading squad Good Luck in their competition. Lets Go Pioneers!

Again, Thank alot guys for the good behavior and making it a pleasure to work as a first floor R.A.

GUEST EDITORIAL

By Sally Robinson

There are lots of little details that we often overlook in our daily lives. Have you ever noticed, for instance, how many different ways there are to eat a fried egg? And, how the way a person eats his egg gives clues to his character? Watch for example, Miss Prim and Proper as she cuts off little bits of toast and daintily dips them into the yolk, being very careful that none drips as she lifts it to her lips. We have all seen Mr. Hungry Bear who starts with fork and knife, then proceeds to cut and slash the eggs to bits, dumps catsup on top, stirs until he has what could pass for a bloody mess, and then shovels it in as if there would be no tomorrow.

Every mother has watched Miss Pinky eat all the white in little bites around the yolk, and then leave the yolk intact because she can't stand to have it mix with the bacon or toast on her plate. And mom has watched Little Boy Blue who stabs the yolk first so it will run all over the plate and then uses his toast like a sponge. Of course there is always Mr. No Couth with both elbows on the table balancing the whole greasy, dripping egg on top of a full slice of toast, and believing that he must eat it all in three bites and he gets egg on his face.

If all this has you wondering about your own egg eating style, take heart, most people don't notice, and you can always go to a busy restaurant or cafeteria, choose the character you want to imitate and adopt his or her style. But do this unobtrusively if you want to avoid getting "Egg on Your Face."

The House Director of LBH would like to say thank you to the residents of both dormitories for their behavior this past weekend. An R.A Conference was held in Morgantown and only one person was left in each residence hall. Thanks go out to Karen Ash and Mike Fling for handling their jobs so well over the weekend as well. And how about those residents? It seems their maturing and starting to gain control of their lives and academic well-being. And to update damages in the historical "zoo" called Louis Bennett Hall one would have to say amazing. Now 2 months into the semester LBH has incurred a total of $47.00 in damages. At this point last semester a grand total of $789.67 in damages had taken place. Again-"Ain't it amazing." Thanks guys-we don't care what anyone says- we love ya! Thanks and best wishes also go out to the Pioneer basketball teams and the cheerleading squad in Charleston for the season they've given us and the championships they hope to bring home. Go get'em Pioneers. Good Luck also goes to Richard Maxwell and William Jackson. We love you guys too!

JUDGE STEVENS

Distinguished Judge to Speak

Booker T. Stephens, of Welch, McDowell County, West Virginia will speak on Thursday at 4.00 in the Ballroom on "Black Students on Campus."

Judge Stephens takes great pride in being a co-sponsor and Floor Leader of the Bill that made Martin Luther King's Birthday a State Holiday. He was an Adjunct Professor at the West Virginia University College of Law in 1974 and 1975 having taught a course in Employment Discrimination and an Adjunct Professor at Bluefield State College in 1976 and 1977, having taught a course in criminal law. He was elected Circuit Judge of the 8th Judicial Circuit in November 1984 and assumed that office on January 1, 1985.

In February, 1985, Judge Stephens was appointed by Supreme Court Chief Justice Richard Neely to serve with a panel of four other Circuit Judges, on the West Virginia Supreme Court of appeals to hear a case in which the present Supreme Court disqualified itself from hearing. This made him the first black judge in the history of the State of West Virginia to sit on the Supreme Court of Appeals.

JUDE BINDER

Dance Class Offered

One of the highlights of the Glenville State College Continuing education Spring schedule this year is the Movement for Health and Centering class taught by Jude Binder. Jude is based in Calhoun County where she is artistic director and teacher at Heartwood Dance Center, Inc. In addition to the Movement Class, Jude also has taught Theatre Dance for Children and Adults, Creative Arts for Children, Introduction to Dance for Children, Exercise for Woman, Mask Making, Creative Dramatics and Music, Movement for Actors, and Anatomy for Children.

Jude began her studies in the field of dance in 1951 at the Venable-Fokine School in Washington, D.C. and continued through 1972 at various schools in Philadelphia, Michigan, Texas, and New York. Her independent study of dance began in 1973 and Jude continues to participate in classes and workshops in various states including West Virginia, Kentucky, and New York. Jude has had extensive experience as a solo artist in her original works throughout this state and the state of New York. In addition to original works, she has been the featured and principal dancer with numerous dance groups, including Philadelphia Lyric Opera, Wallflower Dance Collective and Crowsfeet Dance Collective. Jude has been the dancer-in-residence for the past two years at West Virginia University.

Glenville State College Office of Continuing Education has been fortunate that Jude has been willing to share her talents for several years now teaching both children's and adult's classes. Anyone interested in joining Jude for The Movement for Health and Centering class may contact Arlene Briski, Office of Continuing Education, Glenville State College, Glenville, WV 26351, 462-7361 ext. 173 for details.

Ladies Nip Bluefield

Having already clinched the regular season title in the WVC, the Lady Pioneers wrapped up their regular season on Tuesday (Feb. 21) when they played at Bluefield State.

Glenville, which beat the Lady Blues 83-72 on December 1st, trailed most of the game. With ten minutes left in the contest, Bluefield was on top 71-61.

However, the Lady

Pioneers showed why they have the best record in the conference, when they ran off a 25-11 spurt over the final ten minutes to nip the Lady Blues 86-82.

Monique Johnson fired in 24 points to pace the GSC attack, while Niki Randolph and Tammy Pence added 23 and 19, respectively. The Lady Pioneers improved their overall record to 17-5 and their conference mark to 14-1 with the win.

Pioneers Fall in OT

Heading into Monday's (Feb. 20) clash with the University of Charleston, the Pioneers had won five of their last six contests.

The Golden Eagles played well on their home court in the opening half, and as a result they owned a 41-40 advantage at the intermission.

In the second half, Coach Gary Nottingham's club shot the ball very well, gaining a 78-70 lead with 1:40 left.

Unfortunately for GSC fans, Charleston reeled off eight unanswered points to tie the game and send it into overtime.

With 3:50 left in the extra period, Charleston guard Lenard Goode connected on a three point goal, which gave the Golden Eagles an 83-82 advantage. Glenville was unable to catch their opponent down the stretch and eventually fell to Charleston 91-86.

The Pioneers were led by William Jackson who pumped in 19 points and grabbed 8 rebounds. Bernie Rees added 18 markers, including 5-6 three point goals, while David Hall netted 16.

Buser's Briefs

Dick Vitale, ESPN's outspoken basketball announcer, often calls certain players prime-time performers (PTP). After watching Head Coach Dale Brown of Louisiana State University lead his team to several upsets in the last few years, I am convinced Coach Brown is a prime-time coach. (PTC)

Who can forget the 1986 NCAA Tournament when Brown's 11th seeded Tigers upset Purdue (6th seeded), Memphis State (3rd seeded), Georgia Tech (2nd seeded) and Kentucky (1st seeded), to advance to the Final Four before losing to eventual champion Louisville?

Of course LSU's miracles have not ended. A month ago the Tigers grabbed a missed Georgetown free throw and connected on a short jumper to upset the Hoyas in front of a national television audience.

On Saturday, Coach Brown's club was coming off a thrashing defeat by Vanderbilt, but the veteran coach was quite optimistic about his team's chances against 19th ranked Nevada-Las Vegas. After all, it was a nationally televised contest.

As could have been expected, the Tigers executed well down the stretch and trailed by only one point with nine seconds to play. Coach Brown called a time-out and could be heard on TV predicting to his players that UNLV would miss their free throw. Sure enough, the 'Runnin' Rebels misfired from the line on their attempt, and LSU nailed a three point goal at the buzzer for a one point victory.

Never count out LSU and Coach Brown, especially if it is on national television and at the Pete Maravich Assembly Center.

What famous basketball team never plays a home game? Answer is the Harlem Globetrotters who tour the world and have no home court.

Pioneers Throttle Rams

by John Buser

Playing in their final regular season home contest, Glenville's four seniors all turned in dazzling performances on Thursday (Feb. 23) to lead the Pioneers to victory over Shepherd.

Paul Grier, Kirk Zellous, David Hall, and Clinton Hinton all concluded their home careers in impressive style with their inspired play. Grier's three point goal, which gave GSC a 9-5 lead, sparked the Pioneers in the opening minutes.

With 10:54 remaining in the first half, Kirk Zellous hit a fast-break lay-up in traffic widening the Glenville lead to 18-9. Three minutes later, Clinton Hinton powered his way past Shepherd center Rob Leavitt for a five-footer off the glass for a 27-13 advantage.

Grier, who finished with 4 three point goals in the first half, connected from the top of the key at 5:14, and again from the wing in three point land shortly thereafter, to help widen the Pioneer lead to 41-26 at the half.

After owning such a comfortable advantage, Glenville started rather slowly in the final period. Consequently, the Rams exploited GSC's lethargic play and trimmed the deficit to ten (47-37), when Bobby Chuey nailed a three point goal.

Following a time-out by Coach Gary Nottingham, the Pioneers responded by raising their intensity level, displaying their superior talent in the process. David Hall's tip-in at 10:49 halted a ten point Shepherd run.

With Glenville clinging to a 55-43 lead, Paul Grier took control of the game. The Pioneer guard hit ten consecutive GSC points with a lay-up, a crowd-pleasing jam, and two more three point goals in a two minute span to make it 65-45 with 6:32 to play.

Coach Nottingham's squad extended their lead in the final minutes when Clinton Hinton scored several post-up baskets, and Todd Layhew connected on a free throw, which sent the crowd into a frenzy.

In the end, Glenville had gained an 84-61 victory over the visiting Rams. All four Pioneer seniors were in double figures led by Paul Grier's game high 29, including 7-8 from three point territory. Clinton Hinton added 22 markers, while David Hall and Kirk Zellous netted 13 and 10, respectively.

It's Tournament Time!

February has come and gone, so that means it is time for the annual trek down I-79 for the WVIAC Basketball Tournament. The Lady Pioneers enter the event with a 17-5 record (14-1 conference) and are the top seeded team. The women will play on Thursday at noon against the winner of the Wesleyan-Concord game.

Glenville's men cagers are 15-12 (11-8 conference) and are the sixth seeded team. The Pioneers face Shepherd today (March 1) at 2:00 p.m.

The following is a portion of Monday's interview between Pioneer Head Coach Gary Nottingham and Mercury Sports Editor John Buser. (Coach Shepherd, the Head Coach of the Lady Pioneers, was in Charleston at a meeting and was unavailable for an interview). JB-Are you happy with your draw in the tournament?

GN-Not really, it is always difficult to beat a team in back to back outings (Shepherd).

JB-Do you feel the Pioneers have some momentum entering the tournament having won 10 of their last 14? GN-Yes, I think we are playing well now. Our seniors need to be complimented for taking charge after a rocky 5-8 start. JB-How would you evaluate the 1988-89 season. GN-Although we wound up with an average 15-12 record, we could have very easily won 19 games. We lost two games in double overtime, another in overtime, and by one point in a home game against Fairmont.

JB-What must you do to defeat Shepherd? GN-We have to control the tempo, rebound, and play solid defense. Shepherd shot the ball very poorly against us last week, but they will be better in the tournament. Just because we beat them earlier, we can't expect to just show up to win. In the first round, every team is pumped up and prepared, that is why so many upsets occur.

JB-Any final thoughts on the tournament?

GN-Glenville has won their first round game in the last four years, and we have made it to the Final Four twice since I have been the coach. I think we have a chance to win the tournament if we play four games like we are capable of playing. We can't afford to take anybody lightly, but we have to believe we can beat anybody, while still fearing them.

Chi's top TKE's

On Sunday February 26, the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity pulled away with a 50 to 47 victory over Tau Kappa Epsilon. Good sportsmanship and a well fought battle was seen between the two fraternities.

The Chi's led at intermission by a score of 28 to 21. The leading scorers for the victorious Chi's were Drew Taylor with 16 points followed closely by Mike Miller with 15 points. For the Teke's, Jerry Burkhammer tossed in 17 points followed by 14 from Mark King and 12 coming from Kevin King. Both fraternities would like to thank Todd Smith for his time to officiate the game.

Not all young men know exactly what they want to do with their lives, but Coach Gary Nottingham knew when he was in high school that he wanted to coach college basketball.

Coach Nottingham was raised in Braxton County where he played high school basketball. He came to Glenville State College and graduated with a B.A. Degree in Physical Education, Health and Safety. He then went to Western Kentucky where he received his M.A. Degree also in Physical Education with a minor in Education. He has been the head coach at Glenville State since June 1983. This interview centered around his ideas and feelings about coaching, but there is a surprise hobby, and he revealed what he believes is his biggest fault. Question: If you could coach anywhere in the country where would you like to go?

Coach Nottingham: Where you live is of no importance if you're having success. Still, I would want no part of the West Coast or Eastern United States. I'd want to be at Notre Dame, North Carolina, Indiana, or Duke because they have established good programs, are in good basketball regions, and have great fans. These schools have great academics and great traditions. Question: When you are losing a game, what are you thinking?

Coach Nottingham: You are always thinking of a way to win it - something I can do that would change the flow of the game in our favor, either by changing defenses, changing personnel, or take a time out and change attitudes. I think in this business you can't be afraid to lose and when you get in a situation where you are losing, you can't be afraid to try anything. And that's difficult in coaching, you can't just sit there and hope it will get better. Question: When you are winning what are you thinking?

Coach Nottingham: You hope the clock will tick faster and try to make sure the team doesn't lose concentration or start doing things differently once they are ahead.

Question: What is the hardest part of coaching?

Coach Nottingham: The hardest job is getting the team members to understand the value of hard work, to make the long term commitment as opposed to the short term success. It's hard for me to accept how easy it is for the guys to quit. All four of our freshmen have quit this year and left school. Question: Do you deal as much with student's minds as their physical training?

Coach Nottingham: Yes, the game of basketball is, at this level, probably 60% mental. In terms of mental preparation, getting the team ready to play, thinking in terms of we, not becoming selfish. To be successful in basketball, members have to have the same goals in mind, they don't have to like each other, but have to have the same goals in mind. Selfishness is a difficult problem.

Question: If you could have dinner with any coach past or present, who would you choose?

Coach Nottingham: There are two. John Wooden of UCLA. He is very organized and very motivated. And Bobby Knight of Indiana, he's very controversial, but he is the best in the business. Question: What do you do to stay in shape?

Coach Nottingham: My best dieting plan is work that begins around October 15 and continues until the basketball season is over. I'm too busy to eat regularly. Sometimes it's jogging, sometimes weight training, other times it is swimming. Whatever I am doing, I do it consistently. I don't do as much as I use to, I'm getting lazy.

Question: If you were a young man of 13 or 14 and money was no object, and you were aspiring to be an olympic athlete, for what event would you train? Coach Nottingham: Decathlon. Because it would mean I was the world's best athlete.

Question: If you were to win the lottery tomorrow night, what would you do? Coach Nottingham: I've thought about that. I'd definitely finish the season here as coach. I'd never give up that obligation. This team I have now I really enjoy. Then I'd take a long look at what I'd like to do. I'd like to continue to coach if I didn't have to recruit. Coaching is the greatest thing in the world by itself. It's all the other things that go

The Glenville Mercury with it that makes it so disappointing. It's petty jealousy, lack of commitment, people wanting to see you fail when you are succeeding, but coaching for me is the greatest thrill, and the second greatest thrill is preparing a team for the game. I guess I would probably build a home in a rural area, very scenic. Colorado is a place I've always liked. Maybe West Virginia. I would probably take a year off and travel all over the country and watch every good, small and major college practice, just to reevaluate what I've been doing for the past six years. Question: What other interest would you pursue? Coach Nottingham: I'm a big fan of landscaping and greeneries. I'd build a greenhouse. I'm interested in architectural design. I've kept for years, copies of house designs. I like anything that has art form to it. I am a big reader, especially about people in my field. Not exclusively about my field, but a lot of books about basketball and coaches. And I like to refinish furniture. I like to do things over -- comes from my competitive nature. Probably my biggest fault is that I always think I can do something better than anyone else.
