Employment Assistance at Placement Office

Higher education, business, technical/science, general education, health/social services, and civil service job openings, as well as employment security job announcements are now available in the Office of Career Planning and Placement. The recent purchase of computer equipment allows communication between the West Virginia Micro Education Network (WVMEN) and the Glenville State College Placement Office, enabling the office to obtain current job openings on a weekly basis. Director Jennifer C. Nottingham invites all persons interested in employment opportunities to stop by the Placement Office and look through the current listing. The Placement Office also has other job opportunities available for consideration, many of which do not require a degree. Director

Nottingham, Secretary Eleanor Nicholas or any one of the student assistants will be willing to aid any persons seeking employment counselling.

A resumé and letter writing guide are presently being compiled for the use of students, faculty and staff. The new guides contain the most current ideas and tips for the preparation of resúmes and letters for the job search.

Luzader, Marks Dedicate Years of Service

In a few weeks, it will be time to say goodbye to Mr. Jack Luzader from the Personnel Department and Custodian, Mr. Tom Marks.

Mr. Luzader will be retiring on December 31, 1989. He has been working for Glenville State College since September of 1974. He says that he has some mixed feelings about his retirement because he will miss the people here at GSC. His favorite things about working at Glenville State College are the people and students that he has come to know. Mr. Luzader plans to spend time with his recently

Second Annual Madrigal Presented

The second annual Madrigal Dinner held Dec. 7-9 was deemed a success. The meal was great and the entertainment was terrific. The jestors kept you laughing while the chamber singers, herald trumpeters, brass quartet and the recorder consort livened the place with their beautiful music. Elaborate costuming effectively set the tone for the Elizabethan Era and the food service made sure each guest was enjoying the meal.

With Lord Jamison's permission, Lord Richard's and Brother Edward's musicians, the mirth of jesters Kirk King and Kris Rogers, and the long hours of practice and generous help of many more, the Madrigal Dinner was once again successful.

OFF THE BEATEN PATH

Something Needed to Relieve Registration Chaos

by Paul Biser

Once again students have managed to endure registration. Each semester the system for registering classes changes, but each new system entails the same problems time and time again--long lines, closed classes, conflicts in schedules, students begging teachers to let them in class, and dwindling numbers of upper level courses. All of the problems seem avoidable in a college the size of GSC, but they manage to appear every semester. Since GSC is a small college with only eight divisions, why not put all the classes listed in our catalogue into semester sequences which will then be fed into a computer? The computer could prevent required courses from being scheduled at the same hour, it could use the same index numbers each year, and students could access semester requirements in their majors without the hassle of new schedules printed every semester.

To help eliminate the problem of long lines, why not let students register according to class rank? In doing this, juniors and seniors are able to get the classes they need in order to graduate on time. Since there are so many classes which freshmen and sophomores can take this would not be unfair.

So many sections of general studies requirements are offered each semester that not enough upper level classes are offered to juniors and seniors. So few sections of required education classes are offered that they always seem to conflict with the times the few upper level classes are offered. Why can't the faculty solve these conflicts before the schedules are printed? Since few sections of some classes are offered, they fill up quickly, and classes are closed. Students then beg teachers to get into classes. If teachers do not admit them, students may be required to attend another semester or year.

Do these problems occur because of a lack of communication among the small number of teachers and administration? When a much larger college can offer hundreds more classes each semester without the general confusion, GSC should be capable of conducting our registration of limited course offerings more efficiently. Our registration problems need to be noticed and acted upon by our administration.

Forestry News

The holidays are fast approaching as is the end of the semester and everyone in the Forestry Department is feeling the pressure of the heavy course loads. I'm sure the entire student body as well as the instructors and administrators are looking forward to the Christmas break. The time off to spend with family and friends is an occasion that we all cherish and enjoy greatly. From the festivities to the remembrance of the meaning of Christmas, it is a time of joy and good cheer. With brightly decorated homes and the gala of Christmas carols, shopping for gifts for our loved ones and those that are less fortunate, each Christmas season is a time of renewal for me.

My favorite part of the Christmas season is the fun I have decorating a Christmas tree and engulfing the sweet aroma of the tree each time I enter my home. The tradition of the Christmas tree for placing gifts under is just one of many that make this season a special and meaningful time.

In the spirit of the holiday season, and since trees are our business, the Forestry Club is offering live Christmas trees for sale as a means of raising funds for the club. The Scotch and White Pine trees will be available as long as supplies last for a special price of only $15.00 for trees 6-10 feet in height. The trees will be displayed behind Eberle Hall on Mineral Road. Attendants will be on duty until 9:00 p.m. each evening while supplies last.

The club is also still offering firewood for sale for $30.00 per pick-up load split and delivered in the Glenville area. Contact Eberle Hall for more details. The response has been good and I thank all those who purchased wood for their support.

The club has also placed an order for some caps that display a sugar maple leaf and GSC Forestry on the front. We have ordered two styles, a black corduroy and a black mesh type. We hope to receive the order in time to have them available before Christmas break. The prices are $7.50 and $6.00, respectively. The caps will make nice Christmas gifts and the proceeds from the sale will help in funding club activities and events.

Although the Surveyors and Petroleum Engineers defeated the Foresters in the annual football game, it was an enjoyable time and to top off the evening we all met at the Commonplace restaurant afterwards for pizza. There was a good turn out and the fun and fellowship was a welcome relief from the pressures of schoolwork. A special thanks goes out to the Commonplace for arranging the dining area and for keeping the food and beverages coming.

That's all for now, so until next time remember: Protect the integrity of the forests of West Virginia. They're some of the richest, renewable hardwood forests in the world!!

Signed,

Michael Nutter

Forestry Club President

Hart's Headlines

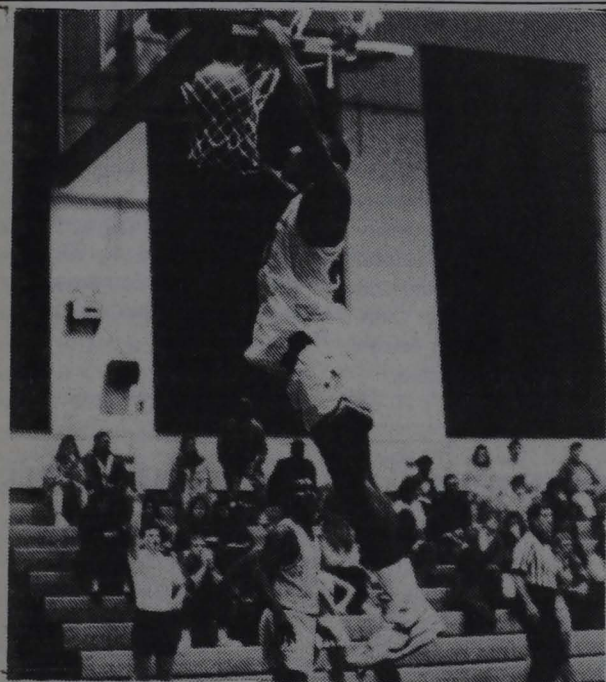

As the college football season comes to an end, the picture for the national championship is beginning to come into focus.

With eighteen bowl games being played from December 9 until January 1, only three major bowls have any effect on the national championship picture. The Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl, and Orange Bowl will have games with national championship hopes.

Alabama, in losing to Auburn, lost its opportunity for a championship, but now they can spoil the University of Miami's championship dreams. The front-runner for college football's biggest award is Colorado. If Colorado defeats Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl, they will be outright champions of college football. If Colorado loses to Notre Dame, then two other teams have national championship hopes. If Notre Dame defeats Colorado, Miami will be champions with a victory over Alabama. If both Colorado and Miami lose, Michigan has an outside chance to be champions with a victory over Southern California.

Which team will it be? It could be Colorado or Miami, while Michigan and Notre Dame both have outside chances. Look for Notre Dame to hand Colorado their first loss of the year, while Miami goes on to dominate Alabama for their second national championship this decade. For the rest, well, there is always next year.

"Ernest Saves Christmas" - A Movie Review by Jim Shock

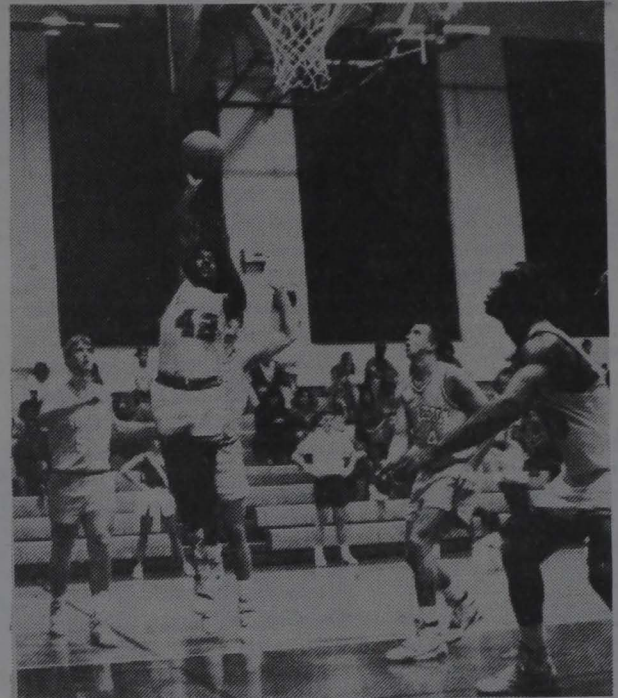

This delightful holiday farce has arrived in video stores everywhere, just in time for Christmas. The title says it all. Ernest P. Worrel, (Jim Varney), teams up with Santa Claus to help him in his search for a replacement. It seems Santa is losing his touch and must pass on his magic sack to a younger person before the magic dies. It's up to Ernest to help Santa find the man he has selected. The two of them encounter a few obstacles along the way. Santa has trouble convincing anyone in Orlando, Florida that he is the real Saint Nick. Although Santa has a passport, it isn't enough to assure the disbelievers of his identity, and he gets arrested as a lunatic. If the passport wasn't evidence enough, his fingerprints, which are shaped like snowflakes, should have been a sure giveaway. Come on, what more proof do you need? Despite the overwhelming evidence, Santa is placed in a cell containing every type of street punk imaginable. Not to fear, ol' Saint Nick soon has the convicts singing Christmas carols in three-part harmony. This should give you an idea of the kind of humor that makes "Ernest Saves Christmas" a pleasure to watch. Alright, it's not a comedy classic, but it is entertaining. Adults may find some of the humor better suited for children, but there are a lot of laughs for adults as well.

This movie isn't entirely full of laughs. What kind of Christmas movie would it be if it didn't have a message. However, the message in this film is not a new one, in fact, it is probably one of the most common themes found in movies about Christmas. Yes, you've guessed it. It's the "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus" message. It's been done hundreds of times, but never quite like this. Since it is a Christmas movie, you can bet your button nose that there is a happy ending. I won't give away the hilarious climax, but it is well worth the rental price to see Ernest try to drive Santa's sleigh (watch the elves).

Anyone who has seen Jim Varney's Saturday morning television show should recognize several of the characters in the film. Varney portrays many of the characters himself and has been awarded an Emmy for his Saturday morning show. It is amazing to see Varney transformed as Ernest into a back woods redneck rattlesnake breeder, and later as a big chested hypochondriac mother. They are only two of the hilarious characters that help to make "Ernest Saves Christmas" so much fun to watch. If you're tired of holiday films like "It's a Wonderful Life" (sorry Drew), or "White Christmas," I suggest you check out "Ernest Saves Christmas" and be prepared to laugh.

Mt. Olympus Comes to Glenville State

The Glenville State College Ballroom served as Mt. Olympus for all the gods and goddesses to gather for a great feast. Students of Mythology 455, as part of their class requirements, participated in a 'Feast of the Gods' held December 12 at 6:30 p.m.

The gods and goddesses enjoyed ambrosia and nectar to begin the evening's festivities. The "Myth Rap" was performed by Monna Beamer, Sharon Smith and Crystal Taylor. Each person revealed the identity of his character before the meal was served.

The gods and goddesses feasted on Shepherd's salad, Chicken kabobs, zucchini, Vrasta Sasolakia Friska, Vasilopitta, Greek coffee and tea and baklava for dessert.

"The Alchemist's Shop," an original skit, was presented by Kristi Horsley, Chris Jamison, Kate Jennings and Jim Shock. Following this entertaining skit, all of the gods and goddesses participated in a Greek dance led by Chris Jamison.

Some of the gods and goddesses represented were: Zeus, Hera, Bubo, Pandora, Mercury, Athena, Perseus, Neptune, Pan, Aphrodite, Cupid, Demeter, and woodland nymphs.

Committees from Mythology 455 organized the evening's festivities. Members of the entertainment committee were: Kathleen Jennings, Chris Jamison, Kristi Horsley and Clara Brown. Crystal Taylor, Sharon Smith and Monna Beamer designed and delivered formal invitations and Jim Shock was in charge of costuming. The program committee consisted of: Traci Probst, Marilouise McNeemar and Charlina Adams. Chris Jamison, Pam Short and Carmen Wager decorated for the event and Sally Robinson and Susan Powell compiled the menu of real Greek food.

A special thanks is extended to Food Service for their cooperation.

retired wife, Betty Luzader, and to spend time with his family.

Mr. Tom Marks has been working at GSC for 22 and a half years and is also retiring on December 31, 1989. He says he feels joyful about the idea of retiring so that he can have some time for himself to relax, but he will miss his friends at GSC. He says that his plans for the future aren't quite decided yet but he's thinking of doing some travelling with his wife.

Mr. Jack Luzader and Mr. Tom Marks may not realize how much they are valued here at GSC. They will both be greatly missed.
