Pioneers Off to Strong Start

by Missy Booth

A 33-15 win over Cumberland College marked the second game of the season for the Glenville State College team. The Saturday, September 4, game took place at 1:30 p.m. and was, for the GSC Pioneers, the best start to a season since 1987.

With 13:18 left in the first quarter GSC safety, Richie Martin tackled the Cumberland punter for the first score of the game.

With a 2-0 lead and 11:40 remaining in the first quarter Jed Drenning threw a 46 yard pass to Aaron Simpson for the first touch down of the game. A successful field goal kick by Charles Weems left the Pioneers with a 9-0 lead.

Shane Haddox scored the final touch down of the first quarter with 2:04 left. A 6 yard run and a failed field goal kick left GSC with 15 points, Cumberland 0.

A five yard pass, together with a two point conversion, put Cumberland on the board early in the second quarter with a score of 15-8.

With 5:46 left in the second quarter Drenning completed an 85 yard pass to Simpson leaving the score at 21-8.

Bringing the second quarter to an end, Haddox completed a one yard run, the two point conversion failed when Drenning was sacked. With 32 seconds until half time the score remained 27-8.

With a 28 yard run, Joe Starkey scored leaving the score at 33-8 with 4:07 to play in the 3rd quarter.

The final touchdown of the game was scored on a 5 yard run for Cumberland. With 6:15 left in the fourth quarter the score remained 33-15 for a GSC win.

Drenning accomplished 296 of his 330 passing yards in the first half of the game.

Three touchdown passes were caught by Simpson this year, all of which were 44 yards or more.

Mike Milliken led in tackles with 13. Chris Barbark and Perry Jeter have 11 each.

Haddox rushed for 75 yards on 19 carries while Starkey had 48 yards on 10 carries.

The highlight of every fall semester is the Homecoming festivities and this year the crowning of the 58th Homecoming Queen will top off a weekend of activities.

The tradition of Homecoming began at Glenville State College on October 14, 1931, 59 years after GSC was founded. However, not until 1938 was the title of Queen given. Until then only class princesses had been selected. The first Homecoming Queen was Lois Mason Mace, currently residing in Elizabeth, WV. The only time that Homecoming was suspended was during the years 1943-45 during World War II.

This year there are seven young ladies vying for the title, all having met the requirements for entry: a full time student with senior rank and have at least a 2.0 overall grade average.

Cathy Hoffman is from Charleston, WV, and is the daughter of Danny and JoAnna Hoffman. She is majoring in education multi-subjects K-8 and is sponsored by Kappa Delta Pi.

Mindi Pickens is from Vienna, WV, and is the daughter of Robert and Patricia Pickens. She is majoring in sports medicine and is sponsored by GSC Track Team.

Rebecca Hufford is from Sissonville, WV, and is the daughter of Frederick and Susan Hufford. She is majoring in biology and marketing is sponsored by The Glenville Mercury.

Tricia Stout is from Jane Lew, WV, and is the daughter of Dave and Margaret Hughes. She is majoring in business management and is sponsored by the Delta Zeta sorority.

Cathy Harbert is from Lumberport, WV, and is the daughter of David and Linda Harbert. She is majoring in education multi-subjects K-8 and is sponsored by the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, Pickens Hall Governing Board and the Pioneer Programming Board.

Annette Withrow is from Chloce, WV, and is the daughter of Carol Withrow and Nancy Shelton. She is majoring in business education principles and is sponsored by Phi Beta Lambda.

Record Enrollment At GSC

The unofficial enrollment at Glenville State College for fall 1991 has reached a record high of 2280. This represents the sixth consecutive year that the enrollment has exceeded 2000.

The enrollment, which includes representatives from every county in the state, also boasts a record-setting freshman class of 619.

The fall time equivalent (FTE) is also a strong 1886, up from the fall 1990 FTE of 1776, representing an all-time high FTE. The FTE figure is determined by dividing the total number of hours for which students are enrolled by 15. Fifteen hours represents the Higher Education Board's figure for a full-time student.

CAMPUS KIBITZ

by Missy Booth

In the Wednesday, September 4, 1991, edition of USA Today President George Bush warned of the danger of television on the family unit. He was quoted as saying, "I am convinced that the excesses are having a bad effect on our children and family stability and learning." In what ways do you agree or disagree with the president's view?

Name: David Ball
Hometown: Elkview
Rank: Freshman
Answer: "It used to be that families were together more. I think it's bad in ways and in others I think it's good. It depends on the content of what you're viewing."

Name: Dr. Chris Orr
Hometown: Glenville
Rank: Professor of English
Answer: "Given the number of choices people have, there is material out there for all needs and demands. TV is far more democratic than it have ever been, particularly in the case of cable. Bush is asking for limited or even eliminated choices. I think it's corrupting those who want to be corrupted."

Name: Kim Isaacs
Hometown: Russellville
Rank: Senior
Answer: "No, I don't think he's right. Parents should watch what children are watching. But the people putting the shows on should consider the effects also."

Name: Drema June Conaway
Hometown: Glenville
Rank: Secretary for the Gilmer County Industrial Development Association
Answer: "I agree to a certain extent. Studies have shown children repeatedly exposed to violence become immune to it. In that capacity I think it may be harmful. In other respects I think the effects can be positive. With a parent as a censor television may be a valuable teaching tool."

Name: Melinda Bennett
Hometown: Braxton
Rank: Junior
Answer: "I agree to a certain extent. TV has the right to put on whatever is approved. The parents have the responsibility to decide what their children watch."

Strive to Make Television a Positive Force in Your Life

by Rebecca Hufford

Do Americans watch too much television? Perhaps we are asking the wrong question. Perhaps we should be asking if Americans are watching the wrong kinds of television.

The key to watching better television may be including a variety of different programs in your viewing schedule. There is a wider variety of programming available today in this country than ever before. There are programs to suit every taste and lifestyle. There are programs for adults, for children, and for families. There are programs that educate as well as those that simply entertain.

Television is such a powerful force. It influences our lives every day with so many opportunities to learn. It is up to us to make it a positive influence, rather than a negative one.

Glenville Grad Opens Art Gallery Season

During the 1991-92 school year the Art Gallery, located in the Fine Arts Building at Glenville State College, will be featuring various artists and their work. The hours of the Art Gallery are Monday-Friday 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

The featured artist for September 3-25 is Mrs. Kathryn (Kay) Gillespie. Her exhibition of watercolors and prints will be on display. Gillespie graduated from Glenville State College in 1968 with an Art Comprehensive Teaching degree. She went on to West Virginia University where she received a Masters degree in Art.

Gillespie has equal enthusiasm for pottery, oils, and watercolors. She uses vivid colors and energetic designs. Most canvas sizes are average and her prices are moderate. Her choice of subjects reflect the native West Virginians' interest in the wildlife of the state.

Gillespie's work has been exhibited widely in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland. A number of magazines have been interested in her paintings using subjects from nature. Her work has been sold in state parks, the Cultural Center in Charleston, and various other shops.

On Wednesday, September 25, at 1:15 p.m., Gillespie will be holding an Artist-Talk and Demonstration in room 235 of the Fine Arts Building.

County and State Join in Education Project

by Missy Booth

A Friday meeting was called to establish a program between Gilmer County Early Education Teachers and Glenville State College Officials.

Kathy Butler, Head of Student Teaching and Director of Field Experiences, along with Pam Cain, Assistant Professor at GSC, conducted the meeting designed, "to help foster positive relationships with the County school system," Butler said.

The objective of the program is to provide the county involved in an education program for four and five year olds with assistance through GSC students.

A list of teaching students interested in offering their time and service to kindergarten classrooms was given to teachers and aids attending the meeting. Those chosen to take part in the program will be required to design four lessons and deliver them to their classroom. These lessons will be evaluated by the permanent teacher.

This is the first year that the program will be put into action but plans are already underway to "develop a grant for Early Education programs at GSC next year," Butler announced.

Video Dance Hits GSC Campus

by Lesley Welton

The Student Congress of Glenville State College sponsored a Video Dance on Wednesday, September 11.

Students danced in the Robert F. Kidd Library parking lot from 7 p.m. until 11 p.m. The music was up beat and loud, which seems to be very popular with GSC students.

Students danced in front of two large video screens. The screens were illuminated with music videos corresponding to the music being played. As the students danced and worked up a sweat, free ice cream was served as a refreshment.

The DJ from the Electric Video Company made his way through the crowd to socialize with the students and join the fun.

Intramural Program Strives for Participation in Various Activities

"Be A Part of It All... Get Involved in Intramurals" is the theme of this year's Intramural Program. Maximal student body participation is strongly desired, and a wide variety of activities have been planned to achieve this goal.

Activities will be available for the highly-competitive sports fanatic as well as the non-competitive, health-conscious student. Both individual and team sport competitions will take place. In addition, year long activities in aerobics, weight training, swimming, and jogging will be offered.

For the competitive individual, activities such as golf, horseshoes, ping pong, billiards, punt, pass, & kick, basketball, and tennis have been planned. And for the team oriented individuals, titles will be contested in volleyball, basketball, bowling, softball, swimming, and track & field.

The Intramural season has already begun, but it is not too late to get involved. Team entry in the sport of volleyball has been closed; however, participation in all other activities is open for entry. For more information on the program and its activities, please see or contact Coach Harold in the Physical Education Building, Ext. 282.

Sound Advice Given For Theater Audience

by David Graham

I have been attending Glenville State College since the fall of 1989. Granted that has not been a very long time, but it is long enough for me to get a feel for the typical GSC audience. My first experience with GSC theater was "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum." I drove in to see the show from Spencer. I thought I was going to be late so I drove at breakneck speed all the way into Glenville. I arrived on campus at 7:45, found my seat in the theater at a safe 7:55. Five minutes; just enough time for me to catch my breath and flip through the program before the show started.

Boy, was I wrong! People were still coming in at ten after. I think that whether you live on or off campus you should try to make it to the theater on time. It is a sign of courtesy not only to the people waiting to see the show but to the actors and crew of the show as well.

Once the show started everything went well until three gentlemen, who I didn't know, decided they were bored with the show and began yelling cat calls at the actors on stage. I sat there in my seat wondering if, in my haste to get there, I had made a wrong turn somewhere on the way and found an elementary school instead.

A college audience is surely above this. The cat calls continued to get worse and eventually Dennis Wemm was forced to come over and stand beside them to quiet them down.

Finally it was intermission. I stayed in my seat and pondered the set while the majority of the audience withdrew into the hall (to do whatever they do). I won't discuss how long it took for everyone to find their seat again. Maybe they got lost on the way back?

I honestly think that TV has ruined live performances. People today are used to getting up to get a drink during a slow part in the program or carrying on a conversation while keeping one eye on the screen. Even worse, people are used to changing the channel if they don't like the show. I too have often sat in the audience and wished I was watching something else, but I can't change the play. If you don't enjoy the play, at least appreciate the work that went in to it. The main thing to remember is that theater is live. Flesh and blood are spouting off the lines, not a box hooked up to your cable so it should be treated as such.

Here is a simple list of things to remember to follow at any live event (maybe not a rock concert):

1. I cough, you cough, he and she or it coughs, but hold it for the theater.

2. If you're going to take a little snooze, don't bother to go in the first place (theater seats are uncomfortable anyway).

3. Be prompt.

4. Like my grandmother used to say "If you can't say anything nice don't say anything at all. Laugh, cry, and clap but don't yell things at actors out of boredom.

5. This is a little note for the symphony-don't clap between movements. Wait for the entire piece to finish.

I really believe that this is going to be a very nice year for entertainment. That is if you help it's all for you.

Modern Technology Worth the Investment

by Jim Shock

A lot of us may wonder how we would cope in a world without vcr's. Well, there is something available to movie lovers that just may make everyone's favorite entertainment appliance obsolete.

The laser disc player is unlike anything you've ever seen or heard before. If you've ever listened to the superior sound quality found in compact discs, then you know what to expect from the audio sound of the laser disc player. Add a 60% sharper image than any vcr picture, to the purest digital sound available, and you have cinema quality picture and sound in your home. Sound too good to be true? Well, it isn't. It's available and surprisingly affordable.

Lasers are the key to this expanding horizon of home entertainment. The video and audio signals are placed on the disc, and a computer guided beam of laser light tracks the disc and translates the signals. It's the same technology used in compact discs. In fact, the laser disc player was on the market before the compact disc. The eventual popularity and availability of the compact disc has led to the resurgence of the laser disc player. The laser technology allows the virtually indestructible disc to produce an image that is sharper, clearer and cleaner than what is now available on vcr tapes. Not only does the laser disc provide an unparalleled picture and sound but it also offers a number of features that aren't possible on any vcr. The laser allows complete control of the picture, as well as the sound. Basically, anything your stereo can do with a compact disc, the laser disc allows you to do with a movie, and it plays all compact discs as well.

If the laser disc has a down side, it would be the availability of the discs. There is no place in this area that rents the discs, yet. However, the price of the majority of discs is far less than video cassettes. Most laser disc owners are avid movie fans and prefer to start their own video libraries, and the discs never wear or tear like many over used vcr tapes. There are well over 4000 movie titles available on laser disc, with many more to come.

If you get an opportunity to view a film on laser disc, it will sell itself. You may be so impressed that you decide to invest in one yourself. You won't regret it.

"Misery" Does Love Company

by Jim Shock

Most of Stephen King fans know that the films inspired by his novels rarely translate the macabre mood that he has become a master at creating in his books. "Misery," however, is one of the films that gets closer than most to the eerie atmosphere found in the novel it was inspired by.

Paul Sheldon (James Caan), has decided to quit writing a very successful series of romance novels that has made him famous. To do this he decides to kill off the lead character named "Misery Chastain." While returning from a ski lodge where he has finished his newest work, he loses control of his car and wrecks. Luckily, his "number one fan" finds him unconscious and decides to nurse him back to health in her home.

Annie Wilkes (Kathy Bates) is, indeed, his "number one fan." In appreciation for being rescued, Paul decides to let Annie read the final installment in the "Misery" series. That's when his real misery begins. When Annie realizes that "Misery" is dead, she convinces Paul to bring the character back. I suppose having a quart of lighter fluid poured on his bed may have persuaded him a little.

Realizing that Annie is crazy, Paul must comply with her request, at least until his broken legs heal, so that he may escape. Annie's manicured fits grow worse, and Paul must not only endure the pain from his injuries, but also the pain he receives from Annie during her schizophrenic outbursts.

This psychological thriller's relentless suspense propels this movie. Even if you've read the book, there are plenty of surprises.

This is what movies used to be, before slashers and gallons of blood replaced character, motivation, realism, and most importantly, suspense. Fans of Hitchcock should check this one out. I believe director Rob Reiner borrowed, if not stole, from the late director, but you'll forgive him when you see the results. Kathy Bates' performance as the crazed Annie Wilkes won her an Oscar, and James Caan's performance is as good as anything he's done. I strongly recommend "Misery" to anyone who enjoys a movie, for any reason, because it has everything.

State's First Lady Kenotes Conference

The planning committee for the West Virginia Association of Women in Higher Education announces that the Fall conference will be held at the Jackson's Mill Conference Center in Weston on Thursday, Sept. 26 and Friday, Sept. 27, 1992. The conference theme, "Women in Education: Leaders in the '90's" is open to women in all levels of higher education throughout West Virginia. Registration begins at 12:30 p.m. on Thursday.

The keynote speaker for the conference will be West Virginia's First Lady, Maestra, Rachael Worby. Ms. Worby will be speaking on women in leadership roles impacting education. Her emphasis will be on barriers, discrimination and the challenges that women are still facing them despite their changing status in the educational hierarchy.

Worby is deeply committed to educational issues. She served as a charter member of the Board of Trustees, the governing body for the State University System, and was active in the Governor's education town meetings which were held throughout the state in 1990.

She is also playing a major role in the effort to improve the literacy rate in West Virginia. This summer, Ms. Worby launched a campaign to raise one million dollars to fund statewide literacy programs.

A graduate of the State University of New York and Indiana University with degrees in piano and conducting, Ms. Worby has completed course work for a doctorate in musicology. She served on the music history faculties of the New England Conservatory of Music, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Massachusetts, Tufts University and Empire State College.

The second session for the conference is a panel of Legislators and Senators discussing the pro's and con's of lobbying. Members of the panel include: Del. Roman Prezioso, Senator Sondra Lucht, Del. Barbara Warner, Del. Bob Conley, Del. Ron Fragale, and Sen. William R. Sharpe. The panel members will make brief statements regarding their personal preferences and observations and will open up the floor to questions from the audience.

The dinner banquet speaker will be writer and folk singer, Kate Long. Long is popularly known for her tongue-in-cheek commentaries on National Public Radio. She will be commenting and entertaining the audience with some of her own work which will also be available for purchase.

Also planned for the conference is a seminar on creative stress management for women with Barbara Bonasso RN. Ms. Bonasso is a well known public speaker and also has been involved with several universities as a highly rated instructor for Satellite presentations.

Another key feature in the conference line up includes an informative session on an upcoming week long women's symposium planned for 1992 on the West Virginia University campus with Sue Day-Perroots, planning chairperson.

"This annual conference provides a system of networking for women in higher education as well as a provocative way to keep up on state of the art issues which impact education. We try to host the conference in the North Central part of the state on alternating years," stated conference co-chairperson Cheryl Bell Daquilante.

The executive planning committee for the conference consists of a panel of educators representing several major public and private institutions. The agenda is planned to try and provide drawing power for women from all over the state at every level in the university hierarchy.

"We have tried to have a conference which is worthwhile for someone from the southern or eastern part of the state to travel several hours to attend. We have had a very positive response so far in part because our registration fee is very reasonable and in part because the agenda proves to be exciting," said Adele West Fisher, Conference co-chairperson.

Women who are interested in more information or in receiving registration materials may contact Cheryl Bell Daquilante, at the WVU Off-Campus Graduate Center or Adele West Fisher at WV Institute of Technology.
