by Tracey Moats

The National Intercollegiate Drug Awareness Week is set for March 2 - 6. This week is observed not only on the Glenville State College campus, but on campuses across the nation. Dr. A.T. Billips, dean of student services, stated, "It is a time when all campuses throughout the United States can make drug the placement center, worked with Student Congress to arrange the distribution of the ribbons. She commented that brochures on various drugs will also be distributed. information available to students on campus and try to encourage good choice by the student." By providing accurate information to the students, they learn more about the risks involved with drugs.

Drug Awareness Week is a follow up week to the Alcohol Awareness Week, which was held on the GSC campus and campuses across the nation in October, 1991. Although alcohol is a type of drug, this follow up week focuses on the wide variety of drugs and their harm.

GSC Student Congress will be distributing red ribbons during the week with the reading, "MY CHOICE DRUG FREE!". Billips commented, "Student Congress, for the student body, is more than just an entertainer, they are a source of information." Jennifer Nottingham, director of Conrad, who was a 1991 freshman counselor, will be attending the conference with Nottingham. Nottingham stated that each year a freshman counselor will be chosen as counselor of the week. The student chosen will win the expense paid trip to the conference.

Toward the end of March, a group of speakers will be on the GSC campus to speak on Drug Awareness.

The Office of Student Services has available a display of pamphlets on various drugs. The pamphlets are free of charge and offered to GSC students, faculty, and staff. Nottingham added, "I'd like for everyone to participate by wearing red ribbons. Any student or employee may stop by the Placement Center to pick up a red ribbon."

Pioneers End Season With Winning Record

The WVIAC Men's Basketball Tournament was held last week in Charleston. The GSC Pioneers came into the tournament seeded fifth with a record of 17 - 10 and had to face WV Wesleyan on Wednesday. A sluggish first half found the Pioneers trailing at halftime 29 - 36. But with more defensive intensity the offense came around and the Pioneers pulled away down the stretch winning 81 - 65. Freshman Steve Shuff led all scorers with 22 points and Mike Fallon added 14.

On Thursday the men had to face one of the hottest teams in the tournament in Alderson-

Broadus. The Pioneers got out of the gate slow and fell behind by as much as 10 points in the first half and were down 32 - 42 at the intermission. The Pioneers made a run at the end but came up short 88 - 89. Dedsa Saunders led in a losing cause with 21 points and

GSC Scholarship Raised to $50,000

President Emeritus of the George Washington University and President of the National Geographic Education Foundation, Dr. Lloyd H. Elliott established a $25,000 endowed scholarship fund for Glenville State College in May 1991. Recently Elliott contributed an additional $25,000 to the scholarship known as the Evelyn E. and Lloyd H. Elliott Fund. Dr. Elliott and his wife Evelyn, both graduates of Glenville State College, have established the fund to create similar educational opportunities for others.

Concerning the contribution, Raymond A. Oliverio, executive vice president of the Glenville State College Foundation Inc., said, "We are very indebted to Lloyd and Evelyn Elliott for their generosity. The Evelyn E. and Lloyd H. Elliott Fund is rapidly becoming the preeminent scholarship at Glenville State College."

Recipients of the scholarship are chosen by a committee of faculty members appointed by the president of the college. Academic promise and financial need are primary criteria in making the award.

(L. to R.) William K. Simmons, president of Glenville State College; Oliverio, Elliott.

4. Your door is locked (and windows).

Please note that the college is not responsible for anything stolen from your room. We will be checking your rooms to see that you have complied with the above requests.

Letter to the Editor Reader Concerned About Missing Text Books

Dear Editor:

I think there is a severe problem on campus. Many students have suffered academically and financially from this problem. This problem is the missing books and belongings that have disappeared from the cafeteria book shelf and other such places on campus. I think that students need a safer place to put their belongings while eating in the cafeteria. The book shelf can not be monitored adequately where it is presently located and due to this many things are stolen. I am not blaming the cafeteria staff for this wrong doing.

Sincerely,

Pi Gamma Mu Recognizes Excellence in Social Science

by Anthoney Riffe

Pi Gamma Mu is a social science major's society which encourages excellence in undergraduate and graduate students in social science fields. Pi Gamma Mu's main objective is the recognition of outstanding social science scholarship and is a lifetime association.

To be eligible to become a member of Pi Gamma Mu, one should be a junior, senior or graduate student with at least 20 hours in the five main areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations), and in other social science courses such as social psychology, criminal justice and geography. They must also have an average of a B (85%) in those courses.

When Robert Sirk, faculty advisor and assistant professor of geography, was asked why it is important to have a Pi Gamma Mu chapter he commented, "This is one of the few life time recognitions for outstanding scholarships in the social sciences. The individual disciplines have recognition, but this is the only social science wide recognition society."

Pi Gamma Mu was founded internationally in 1924 and now has 130,000 members and 160 active chapters. The West Virginia Zeta chapter was chartered in 1980.

If you are interested in petitioning for membership into Pi Gamma Mu or if you would like to know more about the chapter you can contact Sirk in the Department of Social Science located in Louis Bennett Hall.

Media Center Offers Variety of Materials

by Becky Richards

Is it possible for there to be a place in a library that is not totally quiet? In our library there definitely is such a place, the Media Center, on the ground floor of the RFK Library.

Many media materials that are here may be checked out or viewed right here in the Media Center. There are records, cassette tapes, media kits, film-strips, slides, transparencies, 16mm films, and even a picture file. Various types of subjects are covered in these materials. All of these materials in the Media Center are indexed in a card catalogue on the ground floor. There is even a television set here, for anyone to watch.

Many people think this part of the library is not for studying, but actually many classes do take place here. Professors often hold class in the media class room, to watch films or videos that give additional information to class material. Many professors even require that certain videos be checked out as an assignment for their class. This information usually cannot be found in any written text. The materials may be viewed in the viewing room of the Media Center, for your convenience.

So if your professor ever says that class will be in the library on the next class meeting, don't think you won't miss much if you aren't there. Much of the material in the media center is entertaining.

CAMPUS KIBITZ

How do you think the college should handle vandalism on campus?

Campus Vandalism Affects Everyone

by Rebecca Hufford

What exactly is vandalism? According to Webster's New World Dictionary, vandalism is the malicious destruction or damage of property. Examples of vandalism on our campus include slashed tires, broken elevators in the residence halls, text books stolen from the cafeteria, journals stolen from the library, and damage to the lawn in front of Clark Hall.

If the person or persons who commit these crimes are caught, they are required to pay for the repair or replacement of whatever was damaged. Otherwise, the college pays for the damages with money from a special fund designed for this purpose.

How does this effect you? Although the cost of campus vandalism does not affect the cost of tuition, it does affect us in other ways. Damage to state vehicles results in fewer off-campus excursions. Loss of library journals means they won't be available when you need them. Extensive vandalism could cause a cap on enrollment, discontinued programs, and even a reduction in staff members.

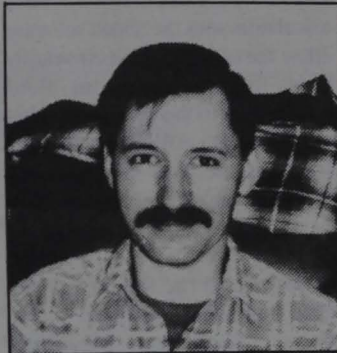

Among local colleges and universities, Glenville State ranks the lowest in campus crime. Although this is something to be proud of, any crime is too many. Total damages to the residence halls for last semester totalled $2,852.

Still think campus vandalism does not affect you? Then wait until you can't find that expensive text book, or the materials for your term paper just aren't there. Then you will realize this is something that affects us all.

Weekley Finalist in Photography Contest

by Anthoney Riffe

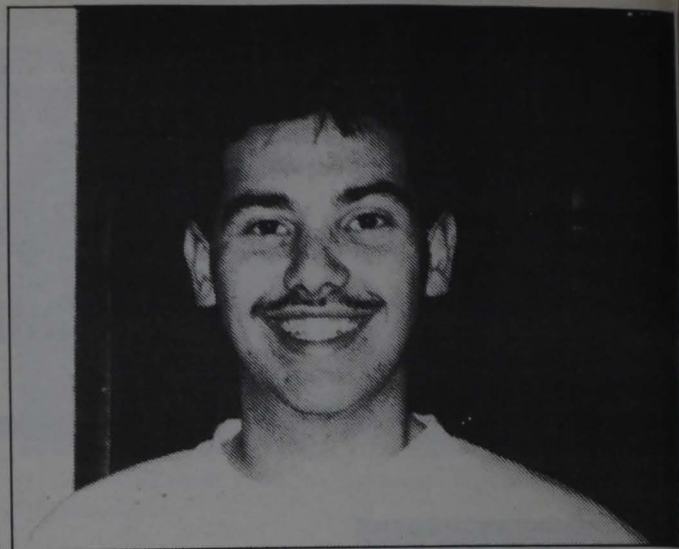

Recently James Weekley, student at Glenville State College, was notified that he was a finalist in a photography contest held by "Photographer's Forum Magazine for the Emerging Professional."

Over 24,000 photographic entries were sent in from all around the nation by college photographers hoping to win the 12th annual College Photographers Contest held by "Photographer's Forum Magazine" and Nikon. Out of the 24,000 entries Weekley's photograph was chosen as part of the top six percent selected as finalists. The final decision regarding the winners will be announced February 18 by mail. Weekley hopes to hear the results soon. Weekley commented on hearing about being a finalist by saying, "I was excited and I really didn't expect to really hear anything from it. I more or less just started into photography as a hobby this summer. Photography has just been something I've been interested in and I just took the classes to learn more about it."

The photograph Weekley submitted was of an old lighthouse type barn on Route 19 going toward Spencer on the way into Lockney, WV. Charles Scott, a professor of art at Glenville State, recommended that Weekley send the photo in to "Photographer's Forum Magazine" in Santa Barbara, California after seeing it in his art 210 class. If Weekley wins first place he will receive $5,000 and a Nikon camera.

Land Surveying Seminar Held on GSC Campus

A series of land surveying related seminars were held at Eberle Hall, on the campus of Glenville State College, from February 18 through February 22.

The first two days concentrated on computer assisted drafting techniques and software. The software for the surveying program had been previously donated by Carlson Software Systems and has been upgraded for the last several years. Bruce Carlson, president of the nationally known company, conducted the seminars.

Tom Snyder, GSC land resources division, taught a seminar on Thursday morning concerning wood identification. The topic is of importance to surveyors who many times have to identify remnants of corner trees that may have been used many decades ago.

Stanley Trent, a nationally known expert in the field of computers, has developed software systems for the HP48SX and HP41CX calculators. These calculators with the added software allow the surveyor to electronically load information from field instruments to the calculator which acts as a data collector and then transfers the data to computers for map making projects. The data from the computer can then be transferred back to the data collector and the instrument for field stake out of projects.

Trent had previously donated approximately $9,000 worth of software and connecting cables through his company, Surveyors Module Inc., to the surveying department for student use with the stipulation that it be returned when it is no longer needed by the program.

The seminars held on Friday and Saturday were a review of surveying topics for applicants who are going to take the 16-hour examination to become professional surveyors. These were given by Kevin McCartney, instructor, and Rick Sypolt, associate professor, in surveying.

According to Sypolt, the seminars were well attended and well received. The department feels fortunate to have the cooperation of leading surveying software companies and the surveyors of the state. Approximately 75 percent of the surveyors who have associate degrees and been licensed in West Virginia have graduated from Glenville State College.

Timberline Announces Spring Ski Packages

Get ready for the best spring skiing in Timberline's history for only $10 a day. Starting March 1 through the end of the season (Timberline closed April 14, 1991), any college student with a current valid ID can ski for $10 a day.

Timeberline is also offering a spring season pass for just $50 which is good any day March 1 through closing.

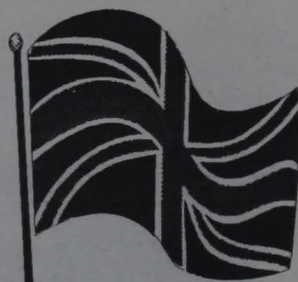

Timberline General Manager, Fred Herz says, "Our base is in great shape compared to the same time period last year. Currently 24-60 inches, the base is twice the depth as late February 1991 and we're anticipating skiing well into April."

The 1991-92 ski season is by far the best in Timberline's six year history as the skier visits are up approximately 75 percent over the 90-91 season. Several factors are attributed to this season's success including fantastic weather, great natural snowfall and snowmaking conditions have been excellent. In addition, the product, Timberline's 20 slopes and trails and true 1,000 vertical feet on a tremendous base have created the best spring skiing anyone could hope for. Most of Timberline's surveys say that the reason people are skiing Timberline is because of word of mouth.

Also included within the March ski savings packages is a $15 lift and rental deal which lets you ski for the day with skis, boots and poles included.

Make arrangements early and bring a group for even bigger savings. Always call ahead for current ski conditions at 1-800-435-7641 or Timberline snow phone at 304-866-4828.

'Steel Magnolias' last GSC production of semester

GSC Theatre Receives More Applause

by Tracey Moats

The Glenville State College Theatre presented their last play of the season on February 26, 27, and 28. Their production of "Steel Magnolias" took place in the GSC Art and Music Building Auditorium at 8 p.m. each night.

The play, written by Robert Harling and directed by Nancy Wemm, was based on six southern women and the trials in their lives. The scenes took place in Truvy's Beauty Shop, where the women let their true feelings and emotions show. Derrick Bellamy, GSC freshman, commented on the production, "I really liked the play, but I don't think it followed the movie very well."

The cast of characters included Lori L. Crouter as Truvy, Kristi Wheeler as Annelle, Marille Motto as Clairee, Katherine Burgess as Shelby, LeeAnn Carr as M'Lynne, and Tracy Samples as Ouiser. Dee Rowley, another GSC freshman, remarked about the actresses, "The characters of Shelby, Truvy, and Annelle were portrayed extremely well." Claudia Phillips said about her perception of the title "Steel Magnolias," "The steel symbolizes the strength that each woman holds during the trials of her life and the magnolias symbolize the caring of the six women toward each other."

Movie Review

'Wayne's World'

by Anthony Riffe

"Wayne's World" was released to theaters around the nation February 14 and the cinemas were packed full of "Saturday Night Live" junkies seeking a full 90 minute fix of Wayne and Garth's wild times.

It's hard to explain the plot of "Wayne's World" because it never quite becomes clear.

Basically, the locally televised cable show, "Wayne's World" begins to attract national interest and takes off into big time television. Wayne and Garth find themselves faced with the problems of national celebrities.

"Wayne's World" is not an adult spin off of "Bill and Ted's" but it bares the same head-bangers dream qualities. "Wayne's World" is not a movie for serious drama lovers, obviously, but if you are in the mood to party hard, defy all authority, and see a Spring-time fun movie, this is the flick for you.

"Wayne's World" definately recieves a double-upper if you're in the mood for a wild picture, but even if you're just looking for a change of pace it's a movie that keeps you laughing.

NEXT WEEK: Target Found

Guns and Revolution

(Editor's note: In celebration of the Bicentennial Year of the Bill of Rights, the following article has been reprinted with permission from the "West Virginia Lawyer" magazine.)

The American revolutionaries who fought the British at Concord and Lexington in 1775 didn't belong to any official army. They were local men who had drilled in the town square. They waged war with their own guns brought from their homes.

They were the militia. Disorganized and ill-trained, these Minutemen drove out the British and launched a new nation. They left a legacy of independence and self-reliance still treasured by Americans, yet their legacy in the United States Constitution sparks more anger than almost any other provision:

"A well-regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms shall not be infringed."

The two sides in the gun-control controversy are set out in the two halves of the amendment. The first talks about the need for a "militia," while the second declares "the right of the people."

The question is, which half is the amendment really about? That is, does an individual have a right to keep and bear arms, or only the states, through their militias?

The meaning of the Second Amendment was clear in 1791, when the Bill of Rights was ratified. It meant, in Samuel Adams' words, that every "peaceable citizen" could have a gun, because every citizen - or at least the able-bodied men - belonged to the militia. The amendment meant that the new federal government could not outlaw the militia.

It was inherently revolutionary. It exalted the people's authority to revolt against the government, as they had against the British.

The meaning grew muddy after the Civil War, when states in the South passed the first gun-control laws as a way to disarm blacks. The federal government in the North opposed the laws but also opposed the rebel spirit behind the Second Amendment.

The amendment's meaning became muddier still as the meaning of "militia" changed. What had been a disorganized group of all citizens in the 1700's turned into an organized force under federal control when Congress set up the National Guard in 1903.

Most courts and most constitutional experts today believe the Second Amendment only protects the right to arm the National Guard. "There can be no serious claim to any express constitutional right of an individual to possess a firearm," declared a federal appellate court in 1971.

Recently, a few law professors and historians have begun to question that idea. They say it doesn't make sense to give the power to overthrow a corrupt central government just to the state governments. "The language [of the amendment] doesn't talk about the right of the state," says Yale Law Professor Akhil Reed Amar. "It talks about the right of the people."

A San Francisco lawyer who represents groups opposed to gun control, Don B. Kates Jr., argues that the amendment is rooted in the right to self-defense. "The right of the militia to overthrow the government is a right to self-defense," he says.

So should "militia" really still mean every armed citizen? No, says Dennis A. Henigan, a lawyer with the Center to Prevent Handgun Violence in Washington, D.C. "Those people are not 'well-regulated'."

Both sides say that the main U.S. Supreme Court opinion this century on the Second Amendment supports their positions. The court ruled in 1939 that "the obvious purpose" of the amendment was "to assure the continuation and render possible the effectiveness" of the militia.

But the opinion also noted that history showed "plainly enough that the Militia was comprised of all males physically capable of acting in concert for the common defense."

No one is sure how the current Supreme Court might interpret the Second Amendment. Henigan noted that last year, in a case dealing with a different constitutional provision, the Court affirmed that the National Guard is the same as the militia. But Kates said that in a different case last year, the Court in passing described the right to bear arms as an individual right.

So the debate continues.

Phi Beta Lambda

The Glenville State College chapter of Phi Beta Lambda held its meeting on February 18. The minutes were read from the last meeting and the treasurer's report showed a balance of $360.15. The fundraising activity for March will be to sell Easter candy.

Members who wish to compete in a competition for State Conference must have their dues in by March 23. Dues are $15 for all year.

All business majors are welcome and encouraged to attend our next meeting.

Delta Zeta

The chapter meeting of the Theta Xi, Delta Zeta Sorority was held February 24, at our chapter house. Plans were made for State Day being held at Cedar Lakes, Ripley, West Virginia on March 27-29.

We would like to congratulate our newest pledge, Monica Langford on her pinning. We love you Monica.

We are collecting aluminum cans to help support burned children. We challenge Tau Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Sigma Sigma to save aluminum to support this cause. Cans can be turned in to Glenville Foodland.

Thank you to the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity for their invitation to Greek Retreat. Hope to see you there.

Congratulations to the Glenville State College Drama Department. We enjoyed your production of "Steel Magnolias."

Congratulations to Tricia Stout and Mikki Sandwall on their upcoming marriages.

We wish everyone a safe spring break. Enjoy it while you can. We are anxious to see everyone after spring break.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Monday night February 24, the fraters of Tau Kappa Epsilon held a formal meeting in the basement of Louis Bennett Hall. One point of business brought before the Iota Omega Chapter was voting on a new and larger meeting place. Room 302 of the Administration Building is the location of the TKE meetings hence forth.

A "job well done" goes out to all the new actives, to their performance during their two week indoctrination into the fraternity. It's good to welcome men of caliber aboard. Formal initiation is set for Thursday, March 19. Welcome to: Rin, Stimpy, Mr. Peabody, Pops, Burhead, Mortis and Rookie Roo.

The Red Carnation Ball, set for the 25th of March, is still a go. We hope to have good Alumni participation. Dinner is set for 4 p.m. at the Main Event Sports Lounge. The dance is set for 7 p.m. in the Ballroom of the Pioneer Center.

There will be a rush seminar Wednesday, April 1 at 8 p.m. in the recital hall in room 107 of the Art and Music Building.
