New Computer System at Library to Speed up Check-outs

by: David Riffe

Students and library staff members of Glenville State College recently began using a new computer system in the library, called VTLS (Virginia Tech Library System).

The VTLS is an on-line system that will handle the circulation of all library materials and will provide an on-line card catalog replacing the old manual catalog. The student can search for information by the name of the author, title or subject. The instructions are clear and easy to follow, so one can easily tell where the book is, if it is available or if it has been checked out. The computer terminal at the reference desk can locate books at other libraries such as at Marshall University, West Virginia State College, West Virginia Tech, Concord College and Bluefield State College. It can also tell if a book is owned by public libraries in the state in case the patron would want to fill out an interlibrary loan request.

The bar code on student and staff ID cards will speed up the process of checking out information and reduce errors. Students not eligible for ID cards will have a special card provided upon request. Each book will need a bar code in it before being checked out for the first time. Initially, it will take a little longer than the old manual way, but once books and I.D. cards have been bar coded, the process will move more quickly.

Patrons can use the terminals located by the card catalog to see if they have any books that may be late, simply by entering their bar code and social security number.

The VTLS went into use the first day of classes. Even though the bugs are still being worked out, it is doing extremely well. There is one terminal on the ground level of the library, four on the first level, one on the second level and one on the third level.

The West Virginia State Library Commission provided thousands of dollars of free computer consultant services to train and staff ID cards will speed up the process of checking out information and reduce errors.

Students not eligible for ID cards will have a special card provided upon request. Each book the library staff and help them install the VTLS. Without their assistance Glenville State could not have afforded to computerize library operations at this time.

Rick Tubesing, library director, said, "Everyone will benefit. Students will be able to find out information about books more quickly, including if the books have been checked out and where they are located in one step. Students will also be able to find out immediately what books they have checked out and when each is due. The staff at the circulation desk will be able to check out books more rapidly, check on individual patron files more thoroughly and perform a number of routine manual tasks like compiling and typing overdue lists--all can now be done in a matter of seconds."

Tubesing added, "Computers don't make mistakes, but people working with them do. If there are any questions about your computer records, do not hesitate to ask."

McAndrews Appointed Asst. Director of Pickens

by Stephanie Phillips

Sean McAndrews is the new assistant director of Pickens Hall, student activities and programming at Glenville State College. McAndrews just finished his bachelor's and master's degree in student personnel at WVU. He was active in a fraternity, Delta Tau Delta, worked for the Recreation Center and was a student teacher and tutor for the education department.

Upon graduating, McAndrews wanted an entry level position at a college or university dealing with student personnel. Since he liked the perk and location of GSC and didn't want to start paying on his student loans, he interviewed for the job.

Some of McAndrews' duties include setting up student activities, planning dances on campus and trips to basketball games and concerts. Some of the activities that are being planned are: a trip to the Reba McIntire concert on November 9, an NBA game, a Pirates post-season game, a Steelers game, student night at Weston Cinemas, a spring break trip, a ski trip, WWF wrestling, a hockey game and a Browns game. He is also in charge of Homecoming, GSC week and movies shown every Tuesday night in the Wagner lounge.

"There is no place that the programming and activities board will not go unless the students will not get involved. If the students get involved, we can do a lot," McAndrews stated.

McAndrews is formerly from Weirton. His office is located in Wagner wing of Pickens Hall. McAndrews invites any students who have any ideas for activities or just want to get involved to stop by for a visit.

RA's, Freshman Counselors Honored At Banquet

by David Riffe

The R.A./Freshman Counselor Appreciation Banquet was held on September 9 in the Verona Maple Room of the Heflin Center to honor the resident assistants and freshmen counselors. The banquet was held to pay tribute to their hard work during the past months.

Some of the jobs a counselor does includes answering questions that freshmen have about the college and playing games to help new students of Glenville State get to know each other. Counselors and residence assistants also give tours of the campus. Lori Nicholas had this to say about counseling, "I really enjoyed working with the group I had." She went on to say that they needed more help

EDITORIAL

by Sharon Gladwell

Each semester, students are faced with what seems to be a worsening situation--parking on campus. Over the last few semesters, the number of students has increased, making parking places even more scarce to find. Yes, this is irritable and teeth-gritting to most commuters. Whether or not you have an early class or just have to go to work, you have to get to campus quite early just to find a parking space.

One approach to improve the parking situation was tried during the '92 spring semester. For one day students, faculty and staff were asked to park at the football field. There, they were picked up and transported to campus by a shuttle bus. This eliminated a lot of the hastle. I believe that this approach was an effective one, and should be used for the busiest days, if not five days a week. Students could be hired to drive the buses, thus eliminating the need to hire additional full-time staff.

Another approach to this problem is to ask students who live in the dorms and own vehicles to park in a specified parking area, leaving the rest of the parking for commuters. This would eliminate a lot of stress caused by driving from one parking lot to the next or just parking illegally because there is no other place to park.

There is still another way to improve the campus parking situation—car pooling. I've seen posters hanging on bulletin boards around campus asking if there is anyone from a certain area who would like to car pool. This is an excellent and considerate idea which should be encouraged.

Although there have been no resolutions to this problem so far, I believe that one day this campus will have to investigate ways to provide additional parking.

Lady Spikers Finish Week at 1-6

The GSC women's volleyball team traveled to West Liberty for a quadra match last Tuesday. The Lady Pioneers went 0-3 as they opened their week. They were dealt a 12-15, 14-16 setback by host West Liberty. They then lost to Wheeling Jesuit 8-15, 10-15, and finished the night with a 11-15, 6-15 loss to Washington and Jefferson of Pennsylvania. Head Coach Kenny Osbourne commented on his team's play on Tuesday, "We were flat and just not ready to play."

Saturday found the women on the road again with another quadrangular match at Bluefield, VA. They opened against Emery and Henry of Virginia and lost in 3 sets: 10-15, 15-11, 8-15. The Lady Pioneers finally got a win against host Bluefield College of Virginia with scores of 15-13, 15-9. The Lady Pioneers then lost to Concord 5-15, 16-14, 10-15 and finished the day losing to Lee's McRae 15-13, 7-15 and 10-15. Osbourne said this about the play on Saturday, "I was pleased with the play against Lee's McRae who is probably the best outfit we've faced." He added that one of the keys for the rest of the season would be "to find a way to win the close ones."

The Lady Pioneers will hold their home opener on Thursday, September 24, against the Lady White Falcons of Fairmont State. Game Time is set for 7:00 p.m. at the Pioneer Gym. The Lady Spikers record now stands at 4-5 for the year.

Go Pioneers!

Turnovers Key In Pioneer Loss

"We just gave it away. We gave Shepherd an early Christmas present," commented head football coach Rich Rodriguez about the Pioneers' loss to the Shepherd Rams in Glenville on Saturday. Plagued by seven turnovers, eleven penalties and a last second field goal by Shepherd's Chris Doran, the Pioneers faced their first loss of the season, 20-23.

Defense was the name of the game as Shepherd held a 20-17 lead at halftime. However, the defense was turned up a notch for both sides in the second half. Each team was held to three points each but the final three points by the Ram's came on a 35-yard field goal by Doran with six seconds left in the game.

Pioneer quarterback Jed Drenning completed 30 out of 59 passes for 368 yards, two touchdowns and five interceptions. Drenning connected with Chris George on a six-yard scoring strike and Shane Haddox on a five-yard scoring pass. George on the day hauled in nine passs for 118 yards and Derri k Bellamy caught six passes for 102 yards.

If there was a bright spe, it was the play of the Pioness defense. "The defense play dwell enough to win, but we make critical errors on scoring opportunities," commented Rodriguz on the play. Leading the defesive charge was Chuck Hythowith four tackles, six assists and three passes broken up. Randa Olds added six tackles, (three for losses), and Rogo Cunningham had four tackles and five assists.

Next up for the Pionees will be WV State. The garm will be played at home on Satuday at 7:00 p.m. The kickoff set for the second night game of the year. The Pioneers cam into the week ranked 15th in the nation and their record move to 1-1 on the year.

Jim Forshey and the Tributes

by Delbert Starcher

I will admit that I was never a big Elvis Presley fan, but Jim Forshey and the Tributes gave me a realistic look at the "King."

He appeared in a jumpsuit styled after one of Presley's own. Like Elvis, Forshey glided across the stage and induced a lot of audience participation. He handed out scarves and pillows to the women hovering at his feet.

Not only did Forshey look like the "King," he sounded like him too. He sang each song as if he sang it from the heart. Although I've never actually before, Jim Forshey and the you, thank you very much.

Tributes almost made me feel as if I had. When asked if he enjoyed impersonating Elvis. Forshey replied, "I don't think of myself as an impersonator. I am just making atribute to Elvis for all of the great music he gave

The audience appeared to enjoy Forshey's performance. Some of them seemed as if they were reliving some of their old memories. These memories and people like Jim Forshey and the Tributes help us remember how great the "King" was, that his spirit will never die.

The only thing I have to seen Elvis Presley in concert say to Mr. Forshey is, "Thank

Rapid Fire

by Melissa Riffe

Brandon Lee, son of the late Bruce Lee, stars as leading man in the latest intense action film, "Rapid Fire".

Lee, plays a role of a college student who is unwillingly swept into the unlawful world of organized crime. Lee's character witnesses a murder by a godfather, which sparks the beginning of the action.

Lee, unfortunately, is better at martial arts than acting, though he does show potential. Lee's theatrical capabilities are similar to those of Arnold Schwartznegar during the early days of "Pumping Iron" and "Red Sonya." For a well-spent entertainment dollar sit this one out and catch it later when it comes out as a rental. "Rapid Fire," at best, receives an average rating.

The 1992-93 President's Cup Challenge Competition is Announced

by Jason Fisher

Every year since the start of the President's Cup competition in 1983, the Intramural Office has given a challenge to all students, athletes, faculty, staff and townspeople to take part in a very tough and exciting physical fitness test.

The President's Cup competition is a year-long intramural activity that requires the participants to meet pre-set standards in a minimum of 20 activities. The activities include weight lifting, gymnastics skills, jogging, cycling, track and field events and swimming. The purpose of the President's Cup challenge is to identify Glenville State's best male and female athletes. President William K. Simmons will present the winners with a trophy and a certificate.

The past President's Cup winners were Larry Taylor, 1983-84; Shawn Shockey, 1984-85; Andy Pefferkorn, 1986-87; and Scott Hardinger, 1986-87. Forthepast five years, Harold Hixson has been the sole winner.

To sign up or for more information, contact Coach Harold in the Intramural Office at extension 282. The competition will end May 7, 1993. Watch next week's issue of The Mercury for the President's Cup requirements.
