by John Putnam

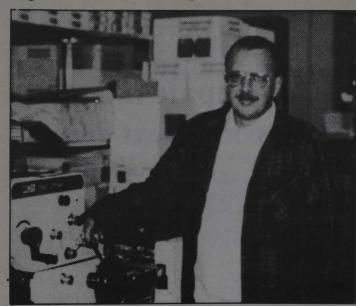

On Thursday, October 22, as a part of the Multicultural Fair taking place on campus next week, there will be a panel discussion on "Humanities' Role in Multicultural Education." The discussion will attempt to answer questions such as "What do History, Art and Literature tell us about the diverse cultural makeup of our country and world today?" "Can each ethnic group's uniqueness be celebrated without devaluing that of others?" and "How is it possible to ensure a future that is free of cultural stress without diminishing cultural diversity?" Four humanities scholars will serve as panel members: Jude Binder, Norman Jordan, Jack L. Hammersmith and Carols Diaz.

Jude Binder, a professional dancer, artist, writer and teacher, is from Big Bend in Calhoun County. Binder plans to stress the importance of the arts in the understanding of diverse cul-Continued on Page 2

Gary Kight, Manager of the GSC Print Shop

Kight and Crew Keep Print Shop Humming

by Stephanie Phillips

Do you ever wonder where your tests come from? Most come from the GSC Print Shop, along with 99 percent of all the other department brochures, absence slips, letterheads, envelopes, football programs, admission applications and brochures for the whole campus.

The person who oversees all this is Gary Kight. Kight started working at GSC in April of 1967 as an inventory clerk. In 1969, he took over the management of the Print Shop. At that time, everything was done with the offset printer. The Shop didn't get a copier until 1979.

The new copier, which was submitted by Wednesday at 4:00 p.m.

installed this fall, puts out an average of 7,000 copies a day or an average of about 925,000 copies a year. The offset printer produces an average of 50,000 pieces a day or 5 million pieces a year. All of this volume of printed material is produced by Kight and his five student assistants.

Kight enjoys his job, and especially the people he works with. He feels, however, that much of the equipment needs to be modernized and updated. Kight attended Glenville State College for two years as a student prior to his employment. His hometown is Glenville, where he lives with his wife, Reta, and daughter Michelle.

Applications Now Being Accepted for Legislative Internship Programs

Stan Watson, instructor of political science in the social science division, announced this week that applications are now being accepted from students interested in participating in the Frasure-Singleton Legislative Internship Program and the Judith A. Herndon Legislative Fellows Program. These programs provide-a rare opportunity for students to get a closeup look at our state government in action.

Under the Frasure-Singleton Program students get an opportunity to observe for one week the West Virginia Legislature during the 1993 regular session. According to Watson, students work on a one-to-one basis with legislators, and they observe committee meetings, floor sessions and hearings. Legislators are available to answer questions, explain strategy and discuss procedures. The scheduled activities include discussion sessions with members of the executive, judicial, and legislative branches of state government as well as with lobbyists and the press. Students can earn one semester hour of credit for participating in the program.

The Frasure-Singleton Program is open to full-time sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Applicants must be in good academic standing and have successfully completed at least one course in political science or government. Housing, two meals and transportation while in Charleston are provided by the program. All other expenses must be absorbed by the participants.

The Herndon Program provides an opportunity for students to participate in a 16-week work assignment with the Legislature, beginning in January 1993. Watson said that participating students will receive a $175 weekly stipend and can earn up to 12 semester hours of academic credit for this program. Students will be assigned either directly to a legislator or to a legislative agency, performing research and various staff functions. Among other things, participants will be introduced to and develop an understanding of the politics of legislation, legislative research, bill drafting, the role and function of committees, and executive-legislative liaison. Through the work assignment and a complementing academic program, students will have a unique opportunity to study in-depth the operation, role and functions of the legislative bodies.

The Herndon Program is open to full-time undergraduates who have completed at least 60 semester hours of academic credit, have achieved a grade point average sufficient for admission to their degree program. have successfully completed a course in political science of government, and will be in good social and academic standing during the period in which they would be serving the internship. Students participating in the Herndon Program will be responsible for making their own housing and transportation arrangements while in the Charleston area

The selection process for these programs is competitive, and only one or two students from GSC will be selected for each. Interested students should contact Watson for applications and further details about the two programs. Applications should be submitted to Watson by October 20 for the Frasure-Singleton Program, and by October 26 for the Herdon Program.

Editorial by Sharon Gladwell

The presidential election is not too far away now. Choosing the right man for this position is a big concern that each voter must take seriously and, yes, this requires a lot of research and keeping up. I've somewhat kept up with the candidates, but the recent presidential debate helped me in making my decision of who I will vote for.

Governor Bill Clinton would say anything to gain a few votes. During the debate, he tried playing with the feelings of the viewers and listeners by talking about his rough childhood life and his brother who is a recovering drug abuser. President Bush shot down a lot of Clinton's plans. Only few of Clinton's plans sound effective. The only thing Clinton does well is make good eye contact with the audience he is speaking to.

President George Bush did mention a few bills that have been passed since he has been in office, the deal he made with Boris Yeltsin and his concern with the starving in Bosnia. Only a few good things has he done for our country. He has taken so many trips that did not profit our country anything. As a matter of fact, his visit to Panama over the summer caused several of the nation's service men to get killed. This man, who has been leading our country for four years now, had to answer most of his questions during the debate by referring to his notes!

Texan Ross Perot, though, kept trying to talk about several important issues that the other two candidates avoided. He had a lot to say about capital gains reduction and said "divided teams lose, united teams win." He went as far to say, "If you hate people, I don't want your vote." All that Perot said was encouraging and, he gave good advice that our nation so desperately needs to heed. Perot knows the needs of our country and is ready to put them in motion: he's the man we need!

Karate Class Learns From World Champ

by Sharon Gladwell

On October 2, the karate class took a field trip to Calhoun County High School for a seminar conducted by Tokey Hill, a karate instructor from Ohio.

Hill trained with GSC's karate instructor, Don Underwood. He is a three-time lightweight karate world champ, the only American to win the All-Japanese International Karate Tournament, was coach of the Budweiser USA Karate Team and has sparred on occasion with Mike Tyson.

During the seminar, Hill taught the class several revolutionary fighting techniques such as improvements on traditional methods, how to employ strategy to defeat opponents and how to turn ordinary movements into effective, even lethal, attacks. commented Hill that Underwood has very talented black belts and promising lower ranks. Attending from GSC's karate class were senseis (black belts) Michael Newell, Thomas Barnes and Sammy Gray and lower ranks Jim Weekly and Kermit Moore.

On Tuesday, October 6, ick Sypolt took the silviculre class of the forestry divion on a field trip to the Northstern Forest Experimental Staon of the Monongahela Naonal Forest next to Parsons.

There, the foresters obrved different types of fortry management. The stuents were guided through six ifferent forest stands, which ere each managed by a differat technique. While there, they ere shown the largest area of unning Buffalo Clover found anywhere. This particular speters of clover is presently listed on the endangered species list. The last stop was a visit to a huge white pine stand. These unique pine trees were planted in 1929 by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Ben Williams, a secondyear forestry student, said, "It was a good educational experience seeing the different types of forest stand management methods. It is a shame that the college sold our own 750-acre experimental forest at Jake's Run. Seventeen years of hard work went into it, and now all we have is a brush farm for our forestry lab work."

October 14, 1992 - The Glenville Mercury - Page 5 GSC's Nursing Program Offers Attractive Options

by Melissa Riffe

Glenville State College offers a four-year degree in nursing in cooperation with West Virginia University. Nursing students spend two years in the nursing program at Glenville and complete their four-year program at Morgantown or Charleston. However, most of them return to GSC to graduate.

In 1984, the first class made up of about 10 students enrolled in GSC's nursing program. At present, there are 22 students enrolled whose ages range from 19 to 50. Of these 22 students, three are males. Findings show that more men are entering this so-called "female profession."

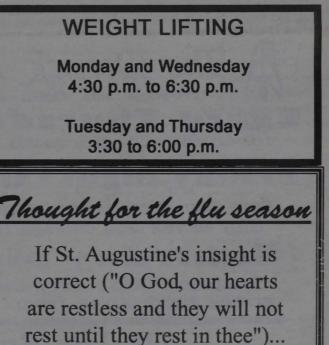

One of the main reasons for the increasing amount of students is job opportunities. Nurses are needed throughout the state, and because of this, the job market for nurses is good in this area. Salaries for registered nurses have also improved.

Nurses may choose to work night shifts, weekends or day shifts. St. Joseph Hospital in Clarksburg is now offering a mommy/daddy shift, which allows nurses to spend more time with their families.

The WVU School of Nursing is now offering the Kellog Community Partnership. In this project, the students are assigned to teams of four undergraduate students, four graduates, and one faculty field professor to each primary care site. Currently the selected sites are located at Camden-on-Gauley in Webster County, Spencer in Roane County and Rainelle in Greenbrier County. One additional site will be selected for each of the three final years of the Community Partnership project.

GSC's nursing instructors are Theresa Cowan, R.N., M.S.N., and Alison Witte, R.N., M.S.

Movie Review 'The Last of the Mohicans' -

by Melissa Riffe

Last Of The "The Mohicans" is, to say the least, different from any movie you will see this year. The film portrays the fictional historical character Hawkeye. The time is set in the year of 1757, with the French and English armies persuading rival Indian tribes to battle for control of the country.

Although the movie began to become a little trivial due to an over abundance of hero and fair maiden scenes, it kept you locked in your seat with the fiery action shots that put you in the mind of the film "Glov" "The Last Of The Mohicans rated R because of the grap violence. Unlike gory slase movies, the violence showr this film is to set a tone who depicts the era.

If you are looking form escape from the regular, bran dead movies which seem to ke pumping out faster than we reject them, I strongly sugg you catch this film. "The Li Of The Mohicans" is an exe lent film but again be warne is not for the squeamish.
