Arnold Increases Scholarship Funds

by Don Hays

Recently, Robert D. Arnold, publisher of The Glenville Democrat/Pathfinder, increased the amount of funds available in the Carolyn H. Arnold Memorial fund. The fund, which was originally set up in 1989 in memory of Arnold's first wife, Carolyn, was established to provide a scholarship program for incoming freshman in the nursing program.

Carolyn Arnold was a graduate of St. Mary's School of Nursing in Huntington and among the first certified nurse practitioners in West Virginia. She was also a 1985 Board of Regents graduate of GSC.

The fund, which was originally set up containing approximately $3,000 in 1989, has now grown to about $15,000 with the help of Arnold's recent contribution. The purpose of the fund is to attract the best possible students to the GSC nursing program. If for some reason the GSC nursing program should be terminated then this money would be used to reward academic excellence and be given to the summa cum laude graduating senior with the highest GPA.

For more information about this scholarship program, contact the Alumni Foundation.

Russell Retires After Seven Years of Service

by Sharon Gladwell

Two farewell parties were given by student and staff workers of the R. F. Kidd Library to honor Public Services Librarian Richard Russell on his retirement after seven years of service.

During his years at the library, Russell taught library science courses, assisted patrons with reference questions, gave tours of the library, supervised student workers and much more.

Russell attended Canisius College for a while, but he received his bachelor's degree in library science at State University of New York at Genesee and received his masters from Clarion University. He is a veteran of the U.S. Navy and Air Force. Before he came to work at GSC, he worked at Buffalo Public Library, Niagara University and BroDart (a company which serves libraries nationwide).

"My only regret is that I had not worked here earlier in my career. It has been an enjoyable experience serving the students, the faculty and the townfolk," said Russell.

Russell will spend his retirement years in Jersey Shore, Pennsylvania, with his wife Nancy. They have spent the last few weeks repairing their house so they can move in.

Russell plans to do either volunteer work at Sheldon-Jackson Junior College or work at a small college library. He will probably spend a lot of time with his children since he will be living close to them. He will also spend time trail riding on his dirt bikes and collecting radio-controlled model airplanes.

FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

First Semester 1992-93

Examinations will begin at 8:00 a.m. on Monday, December 14, and end at 12:10 p.m. on Thursday, December 17.

The schedule given below will be followed. Students in courses having multiple sections must take the examinations at the time scheduled for the section in which they are enrolled.

Examinations in evening classes are to be given at the last regular class meeting. In arranged classes the final examinations may be given at the last regular session(s) prior to the final examination period.

In case of a conflict in the schedule, the instructor concerned should see his Division Chairperson or the Dean of Teacher Education, and the Vice President for Academic Affairs about special arrangements.

Each examination will be held in the room where the class has been meeting. Final examinations are to be given in all classes unless waived by the Division Chair or the Dean of Teacher Education, and the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

All classes meeting at:

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE

An Archaic Relic of the Stage Coach Era

by Ken Hechler

At 11 a.m. on Monday, December 14, five prominent Democrats will file into the "Eagle Room" of Governor Caperton's office. There they will solemnly mark their ballots for Bill Clinton and Al Gore. The five votes they cast will officially be more important than those of the 327,054 West Virginians who voted for Clinton and Gore on November 3, because these five men and women are members of that exclusive club called the "Electoral College," which actually chooses the president and vice president.

In all 50 states and the District of Columbia, a total of 538 "electors" will assemble on December 14. Presumably, they will cast 370 votes for Clinton-Gore and 168 for Bush-Quayle. I say "presumably," because in 1988 a West Virginia elector, Mrs. Margaret Leach of Huntington, kicked over the traces and cast her presidential vote for Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas instead of the Democratic presidential nominee, Governor Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts.

It Becomes Official

The formal process of electing our new president and vice president does not end on December 14. The votes are duly forwarded by registered mail to the nation's capitol, where a joint session of Congress assembles on January 6, 1993. Vice President Dan Quayle has the dubious honor of intoning the results, as each total is announced to him by the bipartisan "tellers," starting with Alabama and working down the alphabet. Even though everybody in the nation knew who the winners were on the night of November 3, it does not become official until the very formal ceremony when the totals in the Electoral College are announced on January 6.

Although Americans revere our 205-year-old constitution, the Electoral College is the craziest, undemocratic product of the 1787 convention, and should be abolished as a useless relic of the horse-and-buggy era. It should be replaced by direct popular vote, especially since three times in history the presidential candidate who got the most popular votes lost the presidency to the victor in the Electoral College.

Wise, White Men Choose

How did the framers ever settle on such a weird system? Despite the sound arguments of James Madison that popular election was the best way to go, the delegates from small states argued that the top prize would always go to the more populous states. Then there were the followers of Alexander Hamilton who proclaimed: "Your people, sir, are a great beast," and fear of "mob rule" caused the delegates to reject Madison's advice. They concluded that wise, white men should be choosing our chief executive.

The Electoral College has no campus, no curriculum, no cheerleaders and not even a Higher Education Advocacy Team to look over its shoulder. Each state is assigned the number of electors which its U.S. Senators plus its House members, which means West Virginia has 5, and the largest state, California, has 54. Whichever candidate has the highest number of votes in the general election gets 100 percent of the electors, so the 238,918 West Virginians who voted for Bush and the 106,488 who voted for Perot come up completely empty-handed.

Each political party chooses its electors at a state convention. At its August 8 convention, the Democrats picked former Governor Hulett Smith, AFL-CIO President Joe Powell, Fayette County education activist Lucile Meadows, former head of the Federation of Democratic Women Yolanda Napple of Fairmont, and Berkeley Springs real estate agent Connie Perry.

Majority Candidate Loses

In 1824, Andrew Jackson got the highest popular vote, but had to wait four years before becoming president because he didn't get a majority in the Electoral College. When this happens, the House of Representatives is allowed to choose with each state getting one vote. Henry Clay threw his electoral votes to John Quincy Adams (who had come in second in the popular vote), and Adams won the top prize, promptly naming Clay as his Secretary of State. In 1876 and again in 1988, Hayes and Harrison won the Electoral College, even though they had come in second in the popular vote.

In West Virginia, we used to put the names of the electors on the ballot. This had a very strange result in 1916 when Charles Evans Hughes carried the state in the popular vote, but an unusually popular Woodrow Wilson elector managed to win, thereby splitting West Virginia's electoral vote seven for Hughes and one for Wilson.

When Ross Perot shocked his supporters on July 16 by announcing his withdrawal from the presidential race, he gave as one of his reasons his fear that the election might be thrown into the House of Representatives. In 1968, when George Wallace received 46 electoral votes, it spurred thoughtful observers to try and change this archaic system. I led an effort in Congress to try and restore the popular vote as the main test of choosing a president, and our efforts succeeded in the House of Representatives with only 70 votes in opposition. Then the measure got bogged down with a filibuster in the Senate, where it died as a result of determined opposition from those southern Senators who feared a Federal takeover of the election process.

Now Is Time To Scrap It

Now that we will have a new president and a new congress, 1993 will be the time to scrap this outdated and undemocratic system in favor of "we the people."

Political scientist Ken Hechler served in the U.S. House of Representatives and is now West Virginia's Secretary of State.

In My Opinion . . .

Stress No Excuse

I'm sure that by the time this is all over everyone will be sick of hearing about "the incident downtown." I can only hope that a court of law never accepts stress as a justifiable defense to every little criminal act. I'm sure that our "gauntlet of football playing sharks" as under considerable stress, since their season was over. Hmmm. Let's see. No game, no stress.

Football players are trained to be aggressive. So?! High school wrestlers aren't doing double-leg take-downs on people downtown, and they're trained to be aggressive.

The majority of people at Glenville are going into debt trying to go to school, holding jobs and hard class loads. I think they could tell our "stud sharks" a thing or two about stress.

Bottom line: stress is no excuse for what happened. As for the people who were directly involved, I guess they were lucky that our injured friend didn't have an urge to retaliate. But, I guess any retaliation would be a necessary evil, "albeit a terrible shame," all because of stress.

Non-Stressed Student Apologizes

In response to a letter to the editor on December 2, you said, "I don't think football players can turn off their training just because the season is over." Does this mean our soldiers cannot turn off their training in civilization? Or what about the actors who play Jason, Freddie and Michael, do they continually perform grisly (if unbelievable) murders? Get real. That is the poorest excuse I've heard yet!

Those football players were and should be held accountable for their actions. Yes, Glenville State College financially supports the city of Glenville, but it's no wonder the locals have a negative opinion of the school when instances such as these are blown over by the college. Glenville, I would personally like to apologize for the behavior of my classmates, and hope you do not hold a grudge against the rest of us "non-stressed" students.

Editorial

Hunting is a sport like no other simply because of the fact that killing is the object. I find nothing wrong with the sport as long as it is used as a means of killing for food and is not abused.

Recently, a bald eagle was shot in West Virginia. Although the bird was not killed, it may never be able to fly again. This is not the first case this year in Wild, Wonderful West Virginia that a bald eagle has been shot, but the eleventh. The bird was taken to a rehabilitation center where its caretakers hope it will recover. One man who is aiding in the bird's recovery said that shooting a bald eagle, the nation's symbol, is "like burning the American flag." He went on to say that shooting this species is even worse than burning a flag; it is easy to make another flag, but you cannot restore a life.

Anyone who could do such a barbaric act is not a sportsman, but truly a criminal.

If the species were overpopulating our state, there may be the need of legal control by means of hunting, but this is not the case. This species is an endangered one, and, I hope the criminal is found and that due punishment is carried to the greatest extent.

Pioneers Up Record to 3-1

The GSC men's basketball team picked up wins against West Virginia Wesleyan and Indiana University, Pa., last week.

On Wednesday, the men hosted the Bobcats of WV Wesleyan in a WVIAC match-up. Led by point guard Bruce Boldly's 14 points, the Pioneers held on for a 67-63 win. Jeremy Rodda added 12 points, and Mike Fallon chipped in with 10. Head Coach Gary Nottingham was pleased with his team's efforts. "We played hard and well defensively. We still had too many turnovers," he said.

The Pioneers were on the road Saturday as they traveled north to battle Indiana University, Pa. The squad put four players in double figure scoring and posted a 91-81 win to move their season record to 3-1. Steve Shuff led the balanced attack with 23 points and 4 rebounds. Bruce Boldly and Deds Saunders tallied 16 points each, while Joe Hampton added 11. Nottingham commented on the win. "It's the best we've played so far, but we still can play better," he said.

The men held IUP to just 37 percent shooting from the floor and matched up rebounding totals against a much bigger IUP team with 49 rebounds for each team.

Coming up for the Pioneers are matches with Salem-Teikyo on December 9 and the University of Charleston on December 12. Both games will be played at home beginning at 7:30 each evening. These are the last games until January 1, 1993.

1992 WVIAC All-Conference Selections Made

The 1992 WVIAC All-Conference Football Teams were chosen, and members of the GSC football team were well represented.

Making the First Team were wide receiver Chris George who led the country in receptions with 90. Junior quarterback Jed Drenning was named to the First Team as well as being named Offensive Player of the Year. Drenning has broken all but one conference passing mark except career passing yardage which he is only 200 yards away from breaking.

The defense placed two Pioneers on the First Team in defensive lineman Randall Olds and defensive back Jerry Pitts whose seven interceptions put him in the top 10 nationally for interceptions.

Three more Pioneers were named to the offensive Second Team in Shawn Robinson, offensive lineman, Chuck Weems as place kicker, while Kevin Blanding and Shane Haddox were placed as running backs. One defensive player from GSC made the Second Team in line-backer Perry Jeter.

Head Coach Rich Rodriguez was pleased with the selections but thought several more Pioneers should have been picked higher. Another eight Pioneers also made the Honorable Mention List.

Pioneers Rank Third in Conference and Among the Top 20 Nationally

The 1992 season for the GSC Pioneer Football team ended the year with a 6-4 record and 5-2 in the conference and played good enough for third place. It marks the first winning season for the school in many years.

Head Coach Rich Rodriguez expected the team to finish higher than they did. "We had higher goals of winning the league and to make the national playoffs," he commented.

This year's team was ranked in the top 20 teams in the nation nearly all-year. The Pioneers are very close to putting the program over the top. Next year's team will add probably 40-50 new players.

Rodriguez added what it would take to put the program over the top: "We must execute in big ball games, because the commitment by the players is there."

The run and shoot offensive attack is putting up some big numbers, breaking nearly every school record and many conference marks as well. This year's team averaged 453 yards a game total and finished second nationally for total yardage.

The defense made the greatest improvement from last year as they scored more points than the 1989 offense did all year. "We did what we could, but we're not happy because we did not win conference championship," commented Rodriguez. The 1993 season will be the year to bring it all home.

GSC Pioneers Open Season With a 1-1 Mark

The GSC Pioneer Basketball team lost its season opener at the hands of the Lakers of Mercyhurst College, Pa. on November 24 by a count of 72-93.

"We didn't do the things that it takes to win," commented Head Coach Gary Nottingham following the team's first loss. Leading the way in the loss was Steve Shuff who poured in 26 points with Bruce Boldley adding 15 points and 7 assists.

The Pioneers evened their season mark as they out-scored the Ohio Valley College Squad by a 75-62 margin to even the record at 1-1. Shuff was again the high-point man as he scored 21 points, Deds Saunders added 17 points, while Joe Hampton chipped in with 15 points. Shuff also had 10 rebounds and 7 steals in the game.

Lady Pioneers Now 5-1

The GSC women's basketball team finished last week 3-0 as they beat Marietta College, Alderson-Broaddus and West Virginia Wesleyan.

The Lady Pioneers were on the road to battle with Marietta College and came away an 83-70 winner on Tuesday. Senior Nikki Cale hit five of 9 three-point shots and finished the game with 29 points. June Shriver added 19, and Jackie Meyers contributed 14 for the cause.

Thursday found the women at home to play a WVIAAC game against Alderson-Broaddus, and they coasted to a 93-62 win. Cale led all scorers with 31 points and 10 rebounds. Shriver scored 20 while Myers chipped in with 12.

The Lady Pioneers moved their winning streak to four games in a row as they beat WV Wesleyan, 84-74 at Buckhannon. Shriver turned in her best performance of the year scoring 26 points grabbing 14 rebounds and dishing out seven assists. Myers scored 22 points and 10 rebounds, and Cale added 21. Their record for the season stands at 5-1 and 2-0 in conference play.

Coming up for the Lady Pioneers are games with Salem-Teikyo on December 10 at home beginning at 7:00 p.m. and Bluefield State on December 12 at home beginning at 3:00 p.m.

Evening of Song and Praise for Christmas at Wesley Foundation

Eagerly expecting Christmas and grudgingly preparing for finals, the folks at the Wesley Foundation want to spark up Finals Week with some Christmas cheer.

Students, faculty and staff are invited to come out Tuesday, December 15, to the Wesley Foundation. Anyone who has a musical talent is needed. We want those with a favorite Christmas carol to take our minds off finals so we can focus on the reason for the season. Persons with uplifting stories or poems about Christmas should also come and share them.

We are expecting a large crowd of stressed-out individuals. So please let us know ahead of time what you would like to share. Some of you will be singled out by us for a personal invitation. Get ready for it; get a song ready! For anyone else, please call 462-8496 and leave a message.

The time will be from 7:00-?, with egg nog to be served afterward. Plan to come out. We all will need a study break during finals!

Mullens to Present Senior Recital Sunday, December 13

by Sharon Gladwell

Tim (Tiny) Mullens will present his senior recital at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday, December 13. Mullens, who has played the saxophone for nine years, will be accompanied by Ed McKnown, an associate professor of music at GSC, and a sax quartet. Among the pieces he will perform is "Aeolian Song," by Warren Benson, a world-known saxophonist.

Mullens is a member of the Jazz Band, Marching Band, Concert Choir, Sax Ensemble, Barber-shop Quartet, Collegiate 4-H and Alpha Psi Omega. He enjoys composing music, plays and poetry, bike-riding and participating in GSC festivities.

Mullens, a 1989 graduate of Nicholas County High School, is the son of Gale and Charlotte Mullens of Summersville.

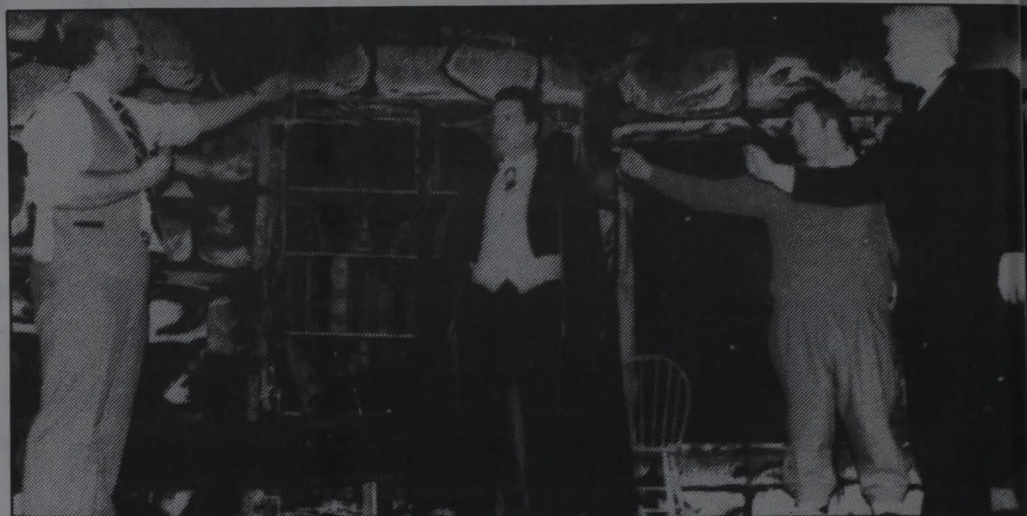

The recital is open to the public with no admission charge. A reception in the Fine Arts lounge will follow the recital. "My friends of GSC, your presence will be significantly appreciated," says Mullens.

If you're looking for happiness here, you're just scratching the surface.

It takes more than luck to find happiness. We suggest you try Jesus Christ. You'll find he's just the ticket for lasting joy.

Dracula-Enjoyable Entertainment

by Don Hays

On Wednesday, December 2, the play "Dracula" was performed in the theater of the Administration Building. I must admit I was quite pleased with the play and the way in which it was performed. The cast and crew did an excellent job in the performance and I was particularly impressed with Renfield, played by Katherine Burgess, and Count Dracula, played by David Miller.

Normally when one thinks of Dracula, or vampires in general, thoughts of blood and wooden stakes through the heart usually top the list of things which are most often reflected upon.

Although the play did contain certain amounts of these doings, it didn't seem to rely on them for effect as is the case in most of today's movies involving vampires. Instead, it used other effects like moving chairs, howling wolves, flying bats and changes in lighting to give the viewer a certain feeling of apprehension.

The audience appeared to enjoy the performance along with the surprises that came with it, especially when Count Dracula shattered the mirror hanging on the wall. These and other similar effects kept the audience on its toes all night. All in all, Mike McKibben and the cast and crew of "Dracula" provided an evening of enjoyable entertainment. Thanks for the great show.

Review

Dracula-Real and Horrifying

by David Graham

As Mike McKibben pointed out in his director's notes "Dracula" was Mike's last play at GSC. I take this time to acknowledge the work he has accomplished in GSC Theater. (I remember being in children's theater with him. Gosh, I can say I knew him when.)

When I heard that "Dracula" was to be performed in the A.B. building, I was perplexed. Although, after viewing the play, I see now the intimacy of the play suited the smaller stage.

But in looking back at the performance, I have to start with the simple critique that I did not really care for the play adaptation from Stoker's original novel. I feel that although it is a well-written play, Hamilton Deane and John L. Balderston strayed too far from the original Gothic novel.

McKibben's production had some strong and weak points. The strong points were David Miller as Count Dracula, Dennis Wemm as Abraham Van Helsing, and a stunning performance by Katherine Burgess as the insane Renfield. I thought casting Burgess as Renfield was a grave casting mistake, and I am more than happy to be proven wrong. The main problem with the production was that Wemm, Miller and Burgess had a monopoly on the energy. While their performances continued to excel and develop throughout the play, the other characters fell flat. The other performers lacked the ability to make their characters interesting. Although I don't entirely blame the actors, I think their cockney accents got in the way at times and hindered their performances. I don't think the audience would mine if the accent was cut out of the play. The audience would still believe the actors were in England without the clumsy accent. After all, unless accents are done very well, they usually take away from the play.

The set was the standard layout, nothing really outstanding. What did impress me though was the way Miller dashed around the set with such ease and grace. This made his vampire all that much more real and horrifying. The smashing of the mirror was surprising and impressive, and I think that was my favorite scene.

In all, McKibben put on a fine production of "Dracula." I hope to see more of the actors who were in "Dracula" in other plays in GSC's future.

Organizations

Tri-Sigma

The sisters of Tri-sigma Sorority would like to thank all the girls who came out to our Rush Party last week. We had a great time and hope to see all of you again soon. Also, a special thanks to all the members who made this party such a success.

Congratulations to Barb Sturms and Sandi Jones on their recent initiation. We knew you could do it.

Bravo to Jill Harman and Stephanie Adams on their performance in the Chamber Singers Concert and again to Stephanie for her part in 'Dracula.' Great job girls. We love you.

Anyone interested in joining Tri-Sigma Sorority can contact any Tri-Sigma or stop by the Vandalia Room in the Heflin Student Center any Wednesday at 5:00, and we will be glad to talk to you.

Delta Zeta News

The Theta Xi chapter of Delta Zeta had a meeting Tuesday, December 1, at the Delta Zeta house to discuss future plans and activities. We want to thank everyone who joined us for our make-up party. We had a great time. We want to congratulate the pledges on receiving their heart sis.

A reminder for all Delta Zetas: a mandatory meeting with the house corporation will be Thursday, December 10, at 7:00 p.m. at the Delta Zeta House. Also, at 9:30 that same night we will have our Christmas Party. Can you guess who your secret Santa is?

Any girls interested in Delta Zeta should contact a sister of the sorority. We will be glad to help you. If you're coming back for spring semester watch for rush posters. Take advantage of college life- go Greek.

We wish everyone good luck next week on semester finals. Study, study, study.

See you next semester, and we hope everyone has a safe and joyous Christmas and New Year. Happy Holidays from the sisters of Delta Zeta.

Baptist Campus Ministry

Hello from BCM. This week the members of BCM went Christmas caroling at the nursing home and took the residents homemade crafts.

Tuesday night was our Christmas party at the First Baptist Church. Everyone enjoyed pizza and decorating the Church's tree. When we return from break, BCM meetings will be on Wednesdays. Watch for posters with the time. Have a great Christmas, and we hope to see you at our next meeting.

Rutherford Named Secretary For GSC Foundation, Inc., Development

by Stephanie Phillips

Joanne Rutherford was recently named secretary for the Glenville State College Foundation, Inc. and the Office of Institutional Development at Glenville State College. She began her employment on September 1, 1992.

In her new position, Joanne is responsible for administrative duties, processing requests for advances from faculty and staff and bookkeeping functions for the Foundation. She is also converting the Foundation's operations into a computer-based system.

Joanne is very excited about the opportunity to work for GSC Foundation, Inc. and looks forward to a future here at Glenville State College.

Joanne and her husband Michael have been in the veal business since moving here six years ago. They currently have 225 head of calves. They also enjoy raising Rottweilers.

Rutherford, originally from Boston, resides in Orlando with her husband, 11-year-old son, Matthew, and 5-year-old daughter, Sarah.
