Tedford Edits and Writes Forward for W. Va. Author

by Robert Perrine and Sharon Gladwell

Barbara Tedford, GSC Professor of English, recently wrote the forward and edited "The Embassy Girls," by West Virginia author Julia Davis.

Davis is the daughter of the late American ambassador John W. Davis and is the author of many books.

In "The Embassy Girls," Davis unfolds events that occurred between 1919 and 1920 as she and a friend "set out to be a credit to their country while having the time of their lives." They meet notable people and discover London, Paris and the India of the British raj.

"The Embassy Girls," the twenty-fourth book written by Davis, was published in December 1992 by West Virginia University Press. Other titles by Davis include "The Swords of the Vikings," her first book, "No Other White Men," "Eagles on the Sun" and "Between the Shenandoah and the Potomac."

"The Embassy Girls" is available in the R. F. Kidd Library.

Tedford resides in Glenville with her husband Sidney.

Maintenance Department Receives $3,200 Grant For Recycling Bins

by Tim Marks

When the mandate came last July that no more aluminum could be sent to a Clarksburg landfill, Bruce Hathaway, director of the physical plant, and the maintenance department went to work on a solution.

After looking into several types of recycling collection bins, Hathaway decided on two types for the GSC campus. One is constructed of fiberglass and has a can crusher attached. Twenty of these bins were purchased as well as 250 pasteboard bins.

The pasteboard bins will be placed around the campus where they are needed most, based on input from custodians and faculty.

Funding for the bins was provided by a $3,200 grant from the Lewis-Gilmer Regional Solid Waste Authority. Hathaway said they were very cooperative in providing the grant.

The maintenance department hopes to expand the recycling program to include bimetal cans, plastics, glass and certain kinds of paper. The success of the program depends on the participation of the students, faculty and staff.

Three GSC Forest Technology Students Receive National Recognition

by Sharon Gladwell

GSC forest technology students David M. Evick, Sue Grafton and Gregory M. Hively were recently named to the Forest Technology National Honor Society.

The Society, created by the Council of Eastern Forest Technician Schools in 1986, is a national organization for promoting and recognizing high standards of scholarship, leadership and character among forest technology students in the United States and Canada.

Eligibility for achieving the honor includes being a second-year student of the forestry program and having a 3.3 gpa in major courses.

These students are among 167 members nationally honored.

"They're all good, motivated students. We're real pleased they could be honored with the small group of students in North America," says Ed Grafton, GSC chairman of the division of land resources and executive treasurer and faculty adviser for the Honor Society.

David M. Evick is a native of Parsons, Tucker County. Evick is interested in West Virginia wood industries.

Sue Grafton, from Heat-ers, Braxton County, intends to work with the U.S. Forest Service. She is currently a part-time worker at the Cranberry Glades Visitor Center.

Gregory M. Hively is from Pocahontas County. Hively is also interested in West Virginia wood industries.

All students are second-year forestry students and enjoy plants and the outdoors.

Help for the Middle Income American

To the editor,

I am writing to let you know of legislation that affects all students and parents who have borrowed money to finance higher education costs. You all know that more and more students are using loans to pay for college and university. Although the average cost of going to college ranges between $6000 and $22,000 per year, the average middle-income family has only about $60,000 in net worth, most of it in home equities. This reality has led to the soaring student debt burden.

This enormous debtload not only affects you now, but it will continue to affect your decisions after you leave school. Many of you who face substantial interest payments may be discouraged from pursuing additional degrees; others may feel that they cannot consider careers in public service, teaching or research because these jobs, while important to our society and rewarding, do not command sufficiently high salaries.

On February 2, 1993, I introduced, with Senator Grassley from Iowa, a bill to provide a student loan interest deduction or tax credit (S. 271). H.R. 1667 is a companion bill introduced by Representatives Cardin and Bunning. These bills would help both those who itemize and those who do not.

If you have enough debt and other deductions to itemize, you could deduct the full amount of student loan interest. If you do not itemize, you could receive a credit equal to 15 percent of your interest, up to a maximum of $300 per year.

Quite simply, this would represent real relief for middle income Americans because it encourages investment in the most important resources of our country—an educated workforce. A highly educated work force is crucial to this country's economic growth and its ability to compete in the international marketplace. We simply cannot afford to deny a generation of middle-income Americans the opportunity to contribute to this country's future, equipped with the best education available.

While you may wonder who would be opposed to such a sensible proposal, I want to urge you not to take this issue for granted or assume its passage is assured. We were successful in getting a very similar bill passed by the Senate Finance Committee and the full Congress last year. However, the final bill was vetoed by President Bush. The Clinton administration, although committed to proposals that make education more affordable to all Americans, faces many competing priorities and tight budgetary constraints.

I believe that no tax package will be complete without some provision to lessen the tremendous burden on financing higher education for many Americans. It is a proposal consistent with and complementary to the goals of increasing access to education and developing a national service plan. It certainly helps promote our country's economic goals. I appreciate your help in getting this important legislation enacted.

David L. Boren

Editorial

Clinton is Losing Traction As Well As Time

Just as a toddler struggles to take his first step, President Bill Clinton backs down from all his efforts. His proposals turn out to be compromises. Instead of making critical decisions, Clinton wants to play follow the leader, trying to convert people to his cause.

During his campaign and the presidential debates, Clinton had all of America talking about his wonderful plans for the country. But, as his presidency nears the 100-day mark (April 30), his approval rating is at record lows.

It seems as though other people are making more contributions, whether good or bad, to the country than the president. Ross Perot is using his money to dabble into major issues, as well as being a thorn for the president. And although Vice President Al Gore doesn't know the price of bread, gasoline or a brand new car, he sure does know the value of a tree. Even intelligent and well-accomplished First Lady Hillary seems to be doing more than the president.

Perhaps Clinton is working hard at pleasing the Democrats concerned about the spending programs. But, let's face it, Clinton is quickly losing traction. With all his back downs and compromises, it will be surprising if he makes it to the top of any proposal.

Terrible Ted May Be Barred From Fighting at Kanawha County Club

According to a story in the April 14 issue of The Charleston Gazette, Terrible Ted, a 600-pound Siberian grizzly who travels from town to town engaging in fights, may not be allowed to appear in a Kanawha County club.

Terrible Ted has had his claws and front teeth removed, and the tendons of his back legs have been cut so he can't rear up on two legs, the story reveals.

A staff writer for the Gazette reported that Ted's owner was charged with disorderly conduct and cruelty to animals by Illinois authorities prior to a scheduled appearance in that state.

A scheduled appearance in Kanawha County may also be prohibited in light of the state law which forbids any fighting of animals, according to the report.

Terrible Ted has made two appearances in recent months at the Derrick Lounge in Glenville, one last November 13 and one on March 26.

Coach of the Year Steve Harold got a victory ride around the track in a grocery cart, compliments of the GSC men's track team following the WVIAC Regional Field and Track Championship last Friday.

Coach Steve Harold Named Coach of the Year

GSC Men's Track Team Wins WVIAC District Championship

The GSC men's track team, picked to be an underdog at the WVIAC District 28 Championships, blew out the four-team field and won by 17 points.

Head coach Steve Harold was named coach of the year for the second consecutive year.

Harold praised all his squads' efforts. "It's a tribute to the guys and how hard they work. We stress that track is a team event and not an individual event. It was a real sweet victory," he said.

GSC's Chup Robinson was named track athlete of the year, and GSC's Randall Olds was named athlete of the year in field events. Robinson also earned high point honors with 20.5 points.

Harold praised seniors Jesse Giles and Richard Clark. "They were solid in their careers at GSC and will be missed greatly. You could always expect great efforts from both of them."

The Pioneers out-pointed West Virginia Wesleyan, the pre-meet favorite, 93-76. Wheeling Jesuit scored 34 points and West Virginia State 0.

GSC's Chris Cress turned in a 55.7 in the 400 meter hurdles and placed first.

Golfers Claim Central Region Title

GSC golfer Vance Fitzsimmons shot a four under par 70-70--140 to capture medalist honors in the WVIAC center as the Pioneers cruised to win the central title.

The squad trailed Fairmont State by two strokes after the first day but came back strongly to win by 13 strokes, 581-594. Fitzsimmons, along with Colin Cassidy, who finished third, shot a 74-73--147. Both were named to the all-tournament team.

The tournament was held at Canaan Valley State Park in Davis. Other GSC scores include Patrick Geraghty 75-72--147, Michael Barrett 75-72-- 147 and Stephen Maloney 76-76--152. Andy Brode was placed in the tournament as an at-large bid and shot 78-81--159.

Women's Track Team Places Second at WVIAC District 28 Championship

GSC's women's track program finished second in the WVIAC and District 28 Championships last Thursday and Friday at the Pioneer stadium.

West Virginia Wesleyan proved to be too strong as they scored 100 points to GSC's 57. Wheeling Jesuit scored 35 and West Virginia State, 1.

GSC's Shelley Coffman was named track athlete of the year. She also claimed high points honors with 19.5 points.

Scott, who was a passenger in the car, were injured. Scott Triplett was treated and released at Summersville Memorial Hospital.

Triplett taught history at the GSC Nicholas County Center. He graduated from Marshall University.

He formerly taught at Charleston High School and was a graduate student in counseling at W. Va. College of Graduate Studies.

He attended the Memorial

United Methodist Church in Summersville, was a member of the church choir and was a volunteer at the Summersville Memorial Hospital.

Triplett is survived by his wife, Teresa White Triplett; a son, Scott, at home; and Heather, a student at West Virginia Wesleyan College.

The funeral was held on Thursday, April 22, at Memorial United Church in Summersville. Burial was at Mount Vernon Cemetery at Glade Creek.

A Majority of Students Attend Large Public Colleges

Students in public colleges and universities--84 percent of all students in the SREB states--are most likely to attend large institutions. Fifty-five percent of the region's public college students (59 percent nationally) enroll in the 101 institutions where there are at least 10,000 students.

In the public and private sectors, there are 3,494 four-year and two-year colleges and universities in the United States. The 383 institutions (11 percent) with 10,000 or more students, enroll over half of all college students.

Among students attending public four-year colleges or universities in the region (42 percent of all students), over two-thirds attend the 71 institutions with enrollments of 10,000 or more. Nationally, the concentration of students at large institutions is even higher--almost 75 percent.

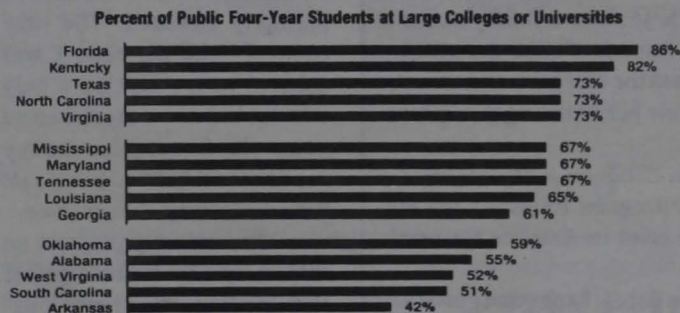

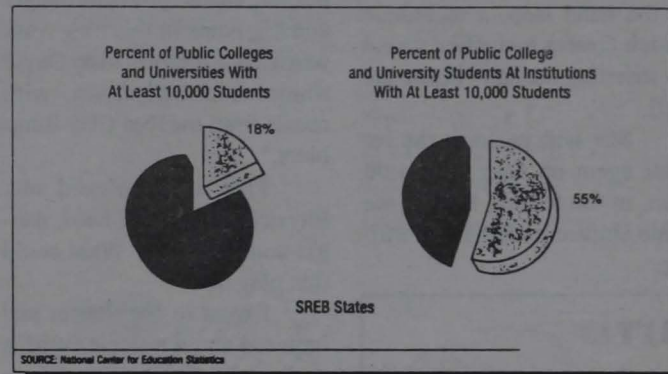

Among public two-year college students in the SREB states, 36 percent attend the largest 30 colleges (at least 10,000 students).

In only one SREB state (Arkansas) do fewer than 50 percent of the public four-year college students attend large institutions. In Maryland, Mississippi and Tennessee, two-thirds or more of the students attend large colleges and universities. In North Carolina, Texas and Virginia nearly three-fourths are enrolled in such institutions. In Florida and Kentucky over 80 percent attend institutions with at least 10,000 students.

As concerns about the costs, quality and effectiveness of instruction continue to amount, attention must be focused on the large public four-year colleges and universities. These institutions (and their public two-year college "feeders") serve the highest concentrations of the region's undergraduate and graduate students.

1991 GSC Graduate Gives Horn Recital

by Tim Marks

French hornist Tonya Gray, a 1991 GSC graduate, gave a recital Sunday, April 25, in the Art and Music Building Recital Hall. She was accompanied by West Virginia University and University of Kentucky graduate Janice Robinson, who is currently the organist at the First Presbyterian Church in Athens, Ohio. She also serves as a free-lance accompanist for School of Music students at Ohio University.

The recital was part of Glenville's Alumni Recital Series. Gray is currently working on her Master of Music degree in both education and performance. She studies French horn with Professor Scott Smith and will graduate in June.

The recital featured pieces by Beethoven, Strauss, Persichetti, Hindemith and Bozza. Although she likes them all, Gray's favorite pieces were the "Parable for Solo Horn" by Persichetti because it uses many facets of the horn and Strauss' "Nocturnes" because of the beauty of the piece.

She began her graduate work at OU as a trumpet major but found that certain aspects of her embouchure lent themselves more to the French horn. She was reluctant to switch at first, but a year and a half after doing so she says she'll never go back. One of her favorite thing about the horn is its lyrical, singing quality. The thing she finds much challenging about the horn is the hand stop, a technique which creates a muffled sound by inserting the hand inside the bell.

She will perform the recital again on May 9 at 4:00 p.m. in the Recital Hall at the Ohio University School of Music.

Fool Moon

by David Graham

In a recent trip to New York, I stumbled across an ad for a play that read as follows: "Fool Moon"—two physical lunatics enjoy an evening of sly humor, chaos, physical danger and big pants in this new work written and performed by David Shiner and Bill Irwin, with music from the Red Clay Ramblers."

This ad perplexed me. Physical lunatics? Chaos, danger and big pants? What could this play be?

I went to the theater and inquired about a ticket. With a stroke of luck there was one lone seat waiting in the center of the seventh row which I promptly snatched. The time came to take my seat. I was ushered to my seat by a lady who looked no younger than 99 years old. She handed me my program and I settled in my seat for a Broadway caliber show.

As I read my program on the history of the Richard Rogers theater (Wow! "Guys and Dolls" opened here.), I overheard a couple discussing what a talented mime Bill Irwin was. My stomach instantly fell right through my seat, through the theater floor and into the subway below. Two hours of those annoying white faced idiots pretending to walk a tight rope and to be trapped in a box--how could I stand it? Terror. To my dismay the lights went down.

The audience waited. Nothing. Then, suddenly, a man in goofy clothing and a small hat with a ticket held firmly in one hand and a box of popcorn held in the other started to climb and, in the process, spilling popcorn everywhere. As soon as an usher sent his off, Irwin appeared on stage with a mike and instantly tangled himself up with the loose wire. The audience roared and so did I. The act snowballed from the word go. The performers chose members of the audience to act in their zany skits which included a romantic dinner destroyed by a jealous waiter and a re-creation of a silent movie scene.

I was amazed at the elasticity of the dance and movement. They could create the illusion of their bodies' growing in height, first growing taller then shrinking to half the original size, then becoming taller again. I was in utter joy and amazement.

The Red Clay Ramblers, which provided live music for the show, specialized in traditional and original string band music. The five-member band played a variety of instruments including the fiddle, piano, bass, tin whistle, drums and banjos. The band was fantastic and the perfect complement to Shiner and Irwin's antics.

As I left the show, I was embarrassed at my previous attitudes toward it. I intensely suggest trying to see this performing art phenomenon. I realize that just taking off to New York is not very practical, so here is a partial list of Bill Irwin's work which you can "look up." Movies: "Popeye," "A New Life," "Eight Men Out," "My Blue Heaven," "Scenes From a Mall," "Stepping Out," "Hot Shots," and Sam Shepard's upcoming "Silent Tongue" (which also includes David Shiner and the Red Clay Ramblers).

Artsbridge Presents Emmylou Harris in Benefit Concert At Ban Johnson Field House

Five-time grammy winner Emmylou Harris and her band the Nash Ramblers will be appearing in concert Friday, April 30 at Ban Johnson Field House on the campus of Marietta College as a benefit for Artsbridge.

Proceeds from the concert will be used to support seven cultural organization in the Mid-Ohio Valley. Tickets will be sold for $18 and $15 on Saturday, April 3 at all Peoples News locations in Wood and Washington Counties and Dominos Pizza in Athens, Ohio. Additional information and tickets are available at the Artsbridge office in Parkersburg, Monday through Friday.

"We are thrilled to have the opportunity of presenting someone of the stature and quality of Emmylou Harris to this community", Artsbridge Executive Director Bob Hill said. Even more heartwarming is her willingness to come to the area and give us a hand in trying to make up for reductions in funding from many sources due to the economy of the past eighteen months. This concert will give us a real boost in keeping the programs of our Funded Members strong in the Valley."

After nearly fifteen years of touring with "The Hot Band" all over the world; after twenty albums which sold millions of copies; after winning five Grammys and countless awards from the Country Music Association and the Academy of Country Music, Emmylou Harris decided to take stock and think about what she was doing.

"I had been working with an electric band since 1975. I think we were one of the first bands to play traditional, hard-core country music with a rock and roll attitude. The emphasis was on driving electric guitar, hot pedal steel, country piano and lots of rhythm."

A couple years ago Emmylou got a bronchial infection, and realized that a quieter sound would keep her voice in better shape. So a decision was made to form a totally acoustic band--"The Nash Ramblers". She drew on her network of friends in the bluegrass and acoustic music world to steer her to the right combination of musicians.

Sam Bush on mandolin and fiddle was the founder of "The Newgrass Revival," the outstanding acoustic band in America for nearly two decades.

Al Perkins on dobro, banjo, and guitar had been a member of the "Flying Burrito Brothers" and "Manassas" with Steven Stills.

Randy Stewart on harmony vocals and acoustic guitar was a fresh young face highly recommended by Carl Jackson.

Larry Atamanuik on drums had been a member of "Seatrain" and had come to Nashville at the urging of Peter Rowan.

Mark Winchester on upright bass is the latest addition to the band. Mark is self-taught and comes from a "rock-a-billy" background.

A firm commitment to classic country and folk styles throughout a more than twenty-year career has not always kept Emmylou Harris in the music establishment spotlight. Nevertheless, she has made an indelible mark on the industry through her influence on contemporary stars Ricky Schaggs, Vince Gill and Rodney Crowell who were former band members, as well as a new generation of singers such as Garth Brooks.

Now Emmylou is a formidable force in modern country music; a member of the Grand Ole Opry, the president of the Country Music Foundation, and by consensus the Godmother of country's vital New traditionalist movement. With her new band, "The Nash Ramblers" and her recent live "At the Ryman" album and video, she's leading the trend back to acoustic, tradition-steeped bluegrass music.

Tuesday, May 4, at 8:00 p.m. in Pickens Lounge.

DILBERT's Denver Fans Show Their Strength

What's quiet when happy, but springs into action when angered? Fans of the United Feature Syndicate comic strip DILBERT® by Scott Adams! When The Denver Post dropped DILBERT on March 9, outraged fans reacted. The Post received more than 350 calls and letters from fans demanding the return of DILBERT within the first week.

"I didn't realize DILBERT's popularity," said Jeanette Chavez, associate editor/features of The Denver Post, "because we hadn't received mail about the comic prior to dropping it." Responding to the fans' outcry, Chavez said, "It's wonderful. They're out there reading and they care."

DILBERT was reinstated on March 22 and The Post has received "thank you" calls and letters from grateful fans. According to cartoonist Adams, this shows DILBERT readers are outspoken, but polite.

DILBERT, a comic strip about a rectangular-headed, bespectacled geek and his cynical, streetwise dog, Dogbert, is distributed to more than 130 newspapers by United Feature Syndicate. UFS is a division of United Media, a Scripps Howard company.

First Annual Women's Institute Planned

The first annual Women's Institute will be held on Saturday, May 15, at the Charleston Civic Center. The theme of the women's issue conference is "Imagine the Possibilities!"

The West Virginia Women's Commission, the CAMC Family Resource Center, and twenty-nine women's organizations are sponsoring the day's events that will feature presentations of the 1993 Celebrate Women Awards and thirty educational workshops.

Dr. Judith Briles, an author, researcher and national speaker, will deliver a keynote address about confidence and self-esteem.

"We are bringing together almost 600 participants of diverse backgrounds to promote an exchange of ideas and to address a wide range of issues facing women," said Adrienne Worthy, executive director of the Women's Commission. "Our workshop topics include such diverse topics as domestic violence, rape, long term care, budget vacations, compulsive behavior, public speaking, diet and exercise. We will have something for everyone."

"Our goals for the conference are to provide a forum for issues of concern and to inform women of services available in the state," Worthy said. The day-long Institute will feature health, social, educational, business and financial workshops.

Registration will be limited to 600 participants due to space limitations. The conference fee is $20 with special discount rates available for mothers and daughters, seniors and students.

Registration is on a first-come, first-served basis, and pre-registration before May 7 is recommended.

On-site registration may be possible pending availability. Call the West Virginia Women's Commission at 558-0070 for registration information.

GSC Forestry Department Hosts Nationally Recognized Instructor

by Sharon Gladwell

The GSC forestry department hosted Soren Eriksson, a worldwide known instructor of timber harvesting, two weeks ago. The forestry department was one of five schools chosen nationally to participate in Eriksson's teachings.

Eriksson, originally from Sweden, along with two aids, runs a training school called "The Game of Logging".

The purpose of his training is to promote safety and environmentally sound timber harvesting. His training includes tips on how to keep a landscape in place without destroying the productivity of the site.

In October, 1993 two of GSC's best students will compete in a national competition, determining the best person at operating a chainsaw. The winner will receive a $1,000 scholarship toward one of five schools at which Eriksson has lectured.

Eriksson will return in September to continue his series of instructions.
