Homecoming Activities-- Something For Everyone

by Debbie Johnson

Get ready for the Hoe-down Showdown! It's Homecoming Week and there are activities abounding for everyone to enjoy.

The week started off Monday evening with Bingo Night from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m. Chris Simpson won a whopping $40. Tuesday evening was Movie Night at Pickens Hall with "Universal Soldier" featured as the movie of the week, accompanied by free popcorn. It was a "popping" good time.

Wednesday, there was a Pool Party at 10 p.m. at the GSC pool, and Thursday (today) the fun began with The Banner Contest. This evening, at 4 p.m., there is a picnic in the Amphitheater with a country menu. The Joe Martell Magic Show will follow at 7 p.m. in the AB Auditorium.

Friday brings lots of activity, starting at 6 p.m., with the Pioneer Pigskin Roast. For those of you wishing to see string bands, the GSC Auditorium is the place to be at 7:30 p.m.

The Bonfire and Pep Rally will begin at 7:45 p.m. at the practice field beside the stadium, to stir up some "Pioneer Pride."

Saturday, the Pioneer 10K Run kicks off the festivities at 7:45 a.m., followed by the parade at 10 a.m.

Homecoming Queen Tina Messenger, and the Court will receive coronation at 11 a.m. at the Amphitheater. The Pioneers will kick-off at 1:30 p.m. against WV Wesleyan in the Homecoming Game.

At the game, the 1973 Pioneer Football NAIA runners-up will be honored. There will be a reception for them, following the game, at the Alumni House.

Homecoming Week will conclude with the "Hoe-down Showdown Dance" at 9 p.m., Saturday night, in the Ballroom of the Heflin Center. Everyone is welcome to come out and enjoy the festivities.

The barn, constructed by GSC students, will be part of Homecoming activities at the dance Saturday.

On the morning of the Homecoming game, Dr. James Hilgenberg will be in the GSC Bookstore from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. October 16, autographing his book, From Enemy to Ally.

Dr. Hilgenberg said, "I'm happy to have done the book and I'm looking forward to signing copies for students, faculty, friends and alumni."

He added, "I would like to thank Debbie Nagy for her cooperation and support, and for giving me the opportunity to see old friends."

It is an honor to have Hilgenberg, a long-time member of the GSC faculty, autograph his book during this time. This is the perfect opportunity for everyone to show appreciation for Hilgenberg's contributions and dedication to GSC.

Planning Underway For Behavioral Science Major

by Rick Conklin

This summer GSC took the first step in creating a Behavioral Science major. An intent to plan for the degree was submitted to Chancellor of the State College System of West Virginia Paul Marion--a process which is required by the State College System. A tentative approval was given by Marion to go ahead with the plan.

The planning of the new program was prompted by a combination of growing employment opportunities and student interest. If the proposed plan is accepted, a Bachelor of Science in Behavioral Science may be obtained in the fields of Criminal Justice or Psychology/Sociology. Previously a student could only achieve an Associate Degree in Criminal Justice, and minors in Sociology and Psychology.

At this time, students wanting degrees in these fields must get into the Interdisciplinary Studies Program. The new program is designed to allow students to combine fields that do not exist as a major field of study.

Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. James Peterson, said, "This has been a major part of our argument, (for the Behavioral Science Program) we have already demonstrated that student interest is there, by the large number of students who have opted to go into the interdisciplinary program."

According to Peterson, "There are a number of employment opportunities in criminal justice and also in the behavioral sciences." These opportunities lie in both the public and private sectors. And, with the increased opportunity of working at the Flatwoods Jail, and the FBI on the way, it would be very beneficial for GSC to offer this degree to students. It would draw more students to GSC, and provide them with opportunities for success in the field.

Upon approval of the Behavioral Science program, additional staff will be needed to teach upper division classes for Criminal Justice and Sociology. "We will be looking at, in the very near future, an additional faculty position devoted to a combination of Sociology and Criminal Justice," Peterson explained.

The formal Behavioral Science Program plan will be submitted to the Board of Directors of the State College System in December. A decision will be made on the plan sometime in January or February. If approved, admission into the program will begin in the latter part of the spring semester, and the program will go into full swing in the fall semester of '94.

In My Opinion...

by Melissa Riggleman

For so long, ever since I've attended GSC, Greeks have always been given a bad name. Much of this criticism stems from lack of proper knowledge. One of these comments is that we "pay for our friends." This is totally untrue! No amount of money that each member pays goes to any one person of a sorority or fraternity. Each organization has a National Headquarters and Philanthropies, which this money goes toward. Below is an outline of where our money is spent:

Pinning Fee
National Fee	$50.00
Insurance	$15.00
CSFF (Convention)	$5.00
Total	$70.00
Initiation
Badge	$68.90
Initiation	$30.00
National Collegiate Dues	$50.00
Loyalty Fund	$30.00
Convention Savings Fund	$5.00
Total	$183.90

As you can see, none of this money is for us personally. We do not "pay for our friends." If you have never been in a sorority or fraternity, you couldn't even begin to know of the close bond that is woven between members of Greek organizations.

We would do anything for our sisters and brothers!

We don't befriend people in the sorority or fraternity just because they are in our organizations. We like them and love them because of who they are inside. I personally couldn't find better friends than the ones I have now. I know I can trust them; they know what honesty means. Today most people lack these qualities, and you don't know whether you can trust them or not. But I do know I can trust my sisters; when I need them they will always be there. Of course, everyone has their differences from time to time, but in the end we will always be there for each other.

So, please, if you do not know about Greek life first hand or do not have adequate proof to justify your statements, keep them to yourselves. We don't presume to know everything about your life; so don't presume to know about ours. You know what they say about people who assume everything...

"Love which grows through shared experiences and deepens through the years is the true essence of Greek Life. It is synonymous with honor, truth, and idealism which does not end with college. It's principles are reflected in the lives of the members and carried on through the love of it's members."--by Leslie Dolan, Gamma Eta.

Staff Editorial ...

by Lisa Hayes

The opinions submitted by The Mercury staff could only reflect one obvious idea; that Greek life is not for everyone. Through the differing opinions however, some major themes surfaced, and good points were made.

The predominant issue expressed about Greek Life at GSC was the issue of cost. Even Greek members of our staff mentioned cost, though they felt it was worth every penny. Non-greek members often alluded to the idea of "buying friends."

Only Greek members could validly comment on greek relationships, and all Greeks on our staff were very positive about the bonds formed within a fraternity or sorority.

Our non-greek staff suggested other less expensive groups where lasting relationships can be formed, such as: Student Congress, Governing Board, Literary Society, volunteerism, church groups, 4-H and FFA. Being active in any group can provide opportunity. All of them look good on a resume!

While one person suggested that the Greeks should "Step back and re-evaluate" their partying life-style, another argued that "no one seems to acknowledge" that Greeks promote just causes and volunteer as a group. It was also mentioned that "TKE's have a prohibitory underage drinking policy for their members."

So, as no surprise, The Mercury staff has all different opinions on Greek life. Our Greek members feel the student body needs to be properly educated about it, and express a need for faculty support. Some staff would go-greek "if campus was bigger." Some feel Greeks look down on the rest of the student body, and some "just aren't joiners." Obviously, Greek life is not for everybody.

What's up with Vending Machines in Pickens?

by Sean McAndrews

There is something very wrong with the vending machines located in Pickens Hall. The problem is with the price, variety, and no change in the machines.

The price is up at least a nickel across the board. The variety is very limited. Last year a junk food junkie or chocoholic (ME), could find a variety of snacks to satisfy ones cravings. Even for the health conscience, the machines had juice and healthy snacks. The lack of a change machine forces students to go to the Library off campus for change.

Part of the problem comes with the state system of bidding for contracts. Glennville State's vending contracts were due last year, so, the low bid won out. Obviously, the company that won this year's bidding war under bid the competition so much that the only way they could make a profit was to raise the price to the consumer. The resident is stuck between going down to Go-Mart (late at night could be dangerous), or paying an absorbent fee for a limited product.

Is there any way to protect the student from such exuberant prices? Can we force the company to lower its price, or did somebody forget to read the fine print on the bid? What's up?

Scratching the Surface

by Lisa Hayes

I was a legacy to the Owls my freshman year at Otterbein College. Years before, my mother was an Owl on the campus. I was an easy in. The Greek organizations at Otterbein were referred to by their mascot or a nickname; one fraternity was proudly referred to as the Rats. But my mother, she was an Owl, a member of a sorority on campus, and I was a legacy.

As I attended my classes in my sweatshirts, jeans and tennies, I don't think I ever saw an Owl wear anything other than a monogrammed sweater, dress pants and penny loafers (shiny pennies included). Rush week was coming and I could tell that the Owls didn't want me; almost as much as I didn't want them. But I was a legacy.

My mother must have loved being an Owl. For years after college she collected owl figurines, and I remember how they spread throughout our house. Owl clocks, coffee cups, umbrella holders; I loved them all as well. Once, a church lady commented to my mother that owls were the spawns of the devil somehow, and soon enough the owls faded into the attic. I was heartbroken and angry, but the owls are still in our thoughts.

Well, at Otterbein, I didn't go through rush. I did not fulfill the legacy. My mother was heartbroken and angry; I could not truly explain. That dream my mother had for me is now boxed in the attic with others, and the owls.

Sometimes I wonder how my life would be now if I had listened to my mother, but I do not regret the decision I made. I only regret that she was hurt by it.

Some people think my mother and I are very much alike, but she had enough class to be an Owl, and I could never have even compared to the Owl that she was.

Happy Birthday Mother, I love you.

Lynch, Remish Receive Scholarships

by Amy Jo Rowan

Two Glenville State College students have been selected to receive $1,000 scholarships from the West Virginia Sheriffs Association. They are among only eight students from the state chosen each year to receive this award.

Seniors Lucinda Lynch and Kelly Remish were notified of their scholarship awards in July. This was after completing an application process which eliminated over 60 other students.

These applicants had to be Criminal Justice majors, currently enrolled in classes. Winners of the award were recently honored at a banquet in Nitro. The scholarship of $1,000 is applied to this year's tuition.

Lynch is the daughter of Robert and Earline Lynch of Arnoldsburg. She is a Criminal Justice and Behavioral Science major.

Upon graduation, she plans to work in community-based correction, and hopefully with a halfway house.

"I was very surprised to be chosen, and I'm very appreciative of the scholarship. I would also like to encourage everyone else who fears applying for scholarships, to do so. They, too, may be pleasantly surprised," Lynch stated.

Remish is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Remish of St. Marys. She is also a Criminal Justice and Behavioral Science major.

However, she plans to attend the State Police Academy in hopes of working for the Drug Enforcement Agency.

"I felt very surprised and honored to receive the award, due to the heavy competition," Remish said.

Executive Director of the Sheriffs Association, Paula Crawford, reported these scholarships to be one of the department's top priorities. Criminal Justice majors currently enrolled in classes may apply for the award each spring.

Eight scholarships of $1,000 each are awarded for a one year period. Winners may also apply for repeat awards.

Explore France in New GSC Program

by Craig Craft

International relations are rapidly expanding in our "evolving" world, and you can experience it by participating in the GSC Travel/Study Program, leaving March 11, 1994, for France.

I spoke with Dr. Duke Talbott, director of the GSC Community Services and Continuing Education Office, about the upcoming GSC program. He discussed the details of the upcoming scheduled excursion to Europe. He noted that the program has been in operation since 1986 and said, "It is rewarding to see people growing culturally due to the traveling experience."

The trips vary from year to year and, as a result, the themes vary accordingly. Next year is the 50th Anniversary of the World War II Normandy Invasion. Hence, the "Tour de France" on this expedition.

Many historical sites will be visited. Once in France, field trips will include visits to Paris, invasion beaches, cemeteries, memorials, museums, cathedrals, abbeys, fortifications, as well as other points of interest. Cities to be visited include Paris, Bayeux, the Beaches of Normandy, and Versailles. However, the schedule is subject to change due to factors beyond the control of the college.

Talbott feels that we are somewhat isolated here and believes programs such as this are beneficial, (especially for those who have never traveled outside of Central West Virginia), to learn more about other cultures and other times in history via historical sites, viewing the modernized regions, and genuinely experiencing the growth of international relations. "To see people adjusting to a changing world so quickly is exciting," commented Talbott.

The trip for 1995 has not yet been scheduled, due to the tremendous travel arrangements, scheduling, accommodations, etc.; this is a monumental task to undertake. However, credit for Social Sciences 399 or History 399 may be accrued by entering this program. For Continuing Education students, CEUs may be gained.

There are no pre-requisites for this program. If you would like complete information, you may contact Dr. Duke Talbott at 304/462-4105 or 304/462-7361, ext. 105.

Stop by and talk to him at his office, which is located one floor above the Personnel Office in the Business/Finance Wing of Louis Bennet Hall. The information and registration flyers are waiting for you.

Coach Tim Carney Leads GSC Golf Team to Victory

by Sandra Gibson

The GSC Golf team have won their way to national tournaments ten times straight, creating a legacy where winning is an everyday word.

Their coach, Tim Carney, has led them in their efforts since 1988, making himself an unquestionable asset to the team, and the GSC community.

Carney is a 1962 graduate of Glenville State College. He taught 6 years of public school in Maryland, but, in the fall of 1988, he was asked to return to GSC to instruct PE and serve as Associate Coach of Basketball and Golf.

During his career at GSC, Carney has coached these two different sports simultaneously. He has proved very successful, receiving Coach Of The Year titles in both sports. He also made Honorable Mention Coach for 3 years.

He does admit, however, that, "it was too hard to give equal emphasis to each of them, so I chose to stick to golf."

There is hardly a question as to what Carney's favorite past-time is. Golf is definitely it. "I enjoy poker, but don't seem to have as much success with it," he quipped.

A winning golf team seems to be an understatement, with GSC shooting well enough to have taken themselves to the National Tournament ten times. Four individuals on the team have played well enough to compete individually in the National Tournament. This past season, GSC finished with a second place position in the nation. To further verify the many accomplishments of Coach Carney and the golf team, merely take a look at the many trophies that adorn Carney's office, as well as the several student names that grace his wall on All-American Golf Certificates.

Carney attributes this high level of success to his dedicated team. He also acknowledges the six international students on the team, five from Ireland and one from Canada.

Carney places a strong emphasis on teaching and education and adds, "teaching students academically is my top priority." He stated, "Teaching and coaching intertwine with one another and I hope all coaches strive to keep this in focus."

Golf is now nearing the close of the season, finishing in mid-November, but the season will begin again March 1. The team will continue shooting around the country, hoping to make enough wins to place them in the National Tournament.

Carney is proud of his choice to be at GSC. He is also proud to claim Glenville as the place he, his wife and three children have called home for 26 years.

"So far, all has been very well," Carney says.

Learn About GSC Greek Life

by Melissa Riggelman

For many people, Greek life is a part of college that is not familiar. Each sorority and fraternity has its own ideas, loyalties, and charities by which it abides, and to whom it caters. The misconceptions about Greeks range from "all they do is party," to "I don't need to pay for my friends."

In truth, non-Greeks have no idea what the money each member puts into the sorority or fraternity goes toward. The money paid out goes to national headquarters, chapter activities, rush, and to philanthropies. None of the money is personally used by any member of the sorority or fraternity.

Here is a little information about each Greek organization on campus, beginning with Tau Kappa Epsilon. The fraternity was founded by five men in 1899 in Bloomington, Indiana. These men wanted to form a bond of friendship that would last a lifetime. Eventually this bond progressed to schools all over our nation.

At Glenville State College there was an organization entitled the Holy Roller Court, who in 1964 became the Iota Omega chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon. The members of Tau Kappa Epsilon are, "driven by principles of love, charity, and esteem." This is also their creed. TKE's colors are cherry and gray.

The Iota Omega chapter has fourteen members, but is now rushing to greater numbers. Their overall G.P.A. is a 2.6. As a fraternity they participate in many activities to better our community. The Adopt-a-Highway Program, and their philanthropy, Special Olympics, are just a few of the many activities in which they participate.

The sorority of Sigma Sigma Sigma was founded April 20, 1898 by eight women at the State Normal School in Farmville, VA, which is now Longwood College. The Delta Alpha chapter at Glenville State College was founded in 1970. Before the decision to join Sigma Sigma Sigma nationally, it was Nu Lambda Psi.

Tri-Sigma's colors are royal purple and white. Their flower is the purple violet. The national symbol is the sailboat, which stands for "Continual Forward Motion."

Sigma Sigma Sigma's national philanthropy is the Robbie Page Memorial Fund for seriously ill children, and their theme is, "Make a child smile." Tri-sigma's creed is, "Faithful Unto Death." Delta Alpha currently has 21 members and an overall G.P.A. of 2.54. Sigma Sigma Sigma stands for truth, honesty and loyalty, and to give all that they have.

Delta Zeta was founded in October, 1902 at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio by Alfa Loyd, and a group of women who wanted to form a bond of friendship. The Theta Xi chapter was founded at Glenville State College in May, 1963.

Delta Zeta's colors are old rose and green, and their flower is the rose. DZ's philanthropy is assisting the hearing and speech impaired.

Their creed is, "The articles of incorporation outline the purpose of Delta Zeta to build the character and cultivate the truest and deepest friendship among it's members, and to stimulate the pursuit of high social, personal, and academic standards."

Each Greek organization has its own special qualities. Anyone interested in Greek life is urged to find out what it is about. One of the fraternities or sororities could be just for you!

Pioneers Start Slow, Finish Strong with 28-17 Victory

by Sean Davis

It was a tale of two teams that showed up at the Glenville State Pioneer Football Stadium Saturday. In the first half, the Pioneers struggled both offensively and defensively, and closed trailing the West Liberty Hilltoppers 17-6. The second half proved the Pioneers worthy of being ranked second in National NAIA Polls, as they roared back to a 28-17 win at Pioneer Stadium.

The Hilltoppers opened the game with two quick touchdowns, and led 14-0 before GSC Quarterback, Jed Drenning, scored on a one yard run. West Liberty added a field goal in the second quarter. That is all the Pioneers would allow, as they took control in the second half.

The offense scored two touchdowns, and the defensive also added a score to lead the Pioneers over the Hilltoppers. Shane Haddox accounted for both second half touchdowns; one on a two yard run, and the second, a 9 yard pass from Drenning. Defensive end Chuck Hython returned an interception 37 yards for a touchdown to close out the scoring. The Pioneers move their record to 5-1 overall, and they are in first place in the WVIAC with a 3-0 record.

Haddox not only scored two touchdowns Saturday, he also carried the ball 23 times for 213 yards rushing. He caught five passes for 69 yards giving him 282 of total all-purpose yards. Quarterback Jed Drenning completed 20 out of 34 passes for 238 yards. Wide receiver Chris George caught 12 passes and rolled up 143 yards receiving on the afternoon.

The defense, after giving up 17 points and 209 yards of total offense, hampered West Liberty's offense by shutting them out in the second half. They gave up only 62 yards of offense in the third and fourth quarters. Leading the way on defense was linebacker Shane Beatty, who was questionable to play on Saturday, with 12 recorded tackles. Hython had the interception for a touchdown, and also added six tackles and two quarterback sacks. Defensive end Roger Cunningham recorded three quarterback sacks, along with six tackles.

This Saturday is the Homecoming game for the Pioneers, as they host the WV Wesleyan Bobcats for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

1973 Pioneers to be Honored

by Debbie Johnson and Holly Wilkewitz

The Pioneers rush to the field with visions of clenching the WVIAC Championship. They want to be the National Champs, and the WVIAC is the only thing standing in their way.

Sounds like the Pioneer team of today, doesn't it? With a record of 5-1 (3-0 in the WVIAC), these thoughts must ring true. But these visions, exactly twenty years ago, were also shared by the 1973 team.

Around the time most of us were being born, or just little children, the 1973 Pioneers boasted a 9-0 record. The WVIAC Championship game against Fairmont was lost, but dreams weren't, as they received a NAIA playoff bid. The Pioneers defeated Carthage 14-7, taking them one step closer to being National Champs, but they couldn't quite hold on when they lost to Northwestern in Huntington December 1, 1973, to become a still boastful second in the nation.

Now, twenty years later, the Pioneers seem to be following in their footsteps, with every win taking them a little closer to seeing National action.

Honoring the efforts of the 1973 team, players, coaches (Head Coach Bill Hanlin of St. Mary's, and Earl "Whitey" Adolphson, assistant), cheerleaders, the Pioneer, and the Queen have all been invited back for Homecoming Week by the GSC Alumni Association and the Pioneer Athletic Club.

It should be a good turn-out. GSC Alumni Director Thelma Samples remarked, "Everyone who contacted me about returning was real excited." So far, 32 players and coaches, one cheerleader and the 1973 Pioneer plan to return for the festivities.

The Honorees will ride in the parade, be introduced at the game and have a reception at the Alumni House following the game. Bob Hardman, a member of the 1973 squad and now a member of the Business Department at GSC said, "I think it's good to bring the '73 team back; it's good to recognize teams that have done well in the past."

"I feel it will be a good experience for the present team and will hopefully inspire them. I'm excited, and all the other people I have talked to are also looking forward to it!" He added.

And, maybe 1993 will be the year the Pioneers clench that Championship and fulfill the dreams of '73.

Lady Pioneers End Skid Against WV Tech

by Sean Davis

The GSC Women's Volleyball team ended a four game losing streak on Monday, as they beat WV Tech. The scores against the Lady Golden Bears were 15-9, 15-9 and 15-12. With the win over WV Tech, they picked up their first WVIAAC win, as the record moved to 1-2 in conference play.

Nikki Hardman had 10 kills and four blocks in the match, while Tracey Fluharty added seven kills. Setter Pasty Buckles recorded four serving aces while she also added a team high of 24 assists. Kim Sees had 16 digs in the match.

Last Tuesday, the Lady Pioneers played well, but the Lady Battlers of Alderson-Broadbuddus College proved to be too much, as they won in three straight games by scores of 12-15, 9-15 and 13-15. Hardman was the leader in kills with 13. Shelley Coffinan and Hardman each contributed with four kills. Sees had 15 digs and Buckles added 21 assists. The women's record now stands at 8-11 overall, while holding down a 1-2 mark in the WVIAC.

Benny and Joon 1993 MGM Romantic Comedy, starring Mary Stuart Masterson, Johnny Depp, and Adrian Quinn.

Benny (car mechanic) and Joon (mentally ill artist) are a brother and sister who were orphaned young and now live together, with the occasional help of a string of housekeepers who are scared off by Joon's erratic antics.

In the most unbelievable scene in the movie, they win a human being (Sam) in a card game. Sam has a severe reading and writing disability, but a wonderful memory for films (he can recite whole scenes and perform Chaplin-esque mime sequences).

Sam turns out to be an eccentric but able housekeeper and stays on, falling in love with Joon and enabling her to gain a measure of independence from her brother. The brother also falls in love with the waitress at the local diner, giving the desired happily-ever-after ending.

Given the constraints of the romantic comedy genre, this is an engaging film, creditably acted by Adrian Quinn, Mary Stuart Masterson, and Johnny Depp. It even flirts with a social issue (institutionalization of the mentally ill) and seems to answer that de-institutionalization is fine as long as people can find romance.

So much for Hollywood answers to pressing local issues. The most serious flaw is not developing the character of Sam. When Sam first enters the scene, he appears to be crazier than a Junebug, or at least crazier than Joon. But he makes a rapid and unexplained change of character to become a responsible adult. He is there at every turn to solve the problems of Benny and Joon, sometimes by clowning, sometimes by serious reasoned response.

How did he get this way? The movie would have been stronger if it had let us know. No car chase, no blood, 2 1/2 stars out of 4.

Stallone Explosive in "Demolition Man"

by David Graham

Somewhere between "Total Recall" and "Blade Runner" lies Sylvester Stallone's latest box office entry "Demolition Man." This movie is neither as exciting or visually creative as the two afore mentioned films, but it stands alone as a memorable sci-fi-action-romance-comedy-thriller. I have to use so many words to describe it, because as many moviegoers are finding out, Hollywood rarely makes a movie that is focused into one particular genre these days. Because these movies are so extremely expensive to make, (Sylvester Stallone's salary alone is reported to be 15 million dollars picture) the studios try to target as many demographic groups as possible: women, men, teens, in order to maximize their profits.

The end result is a confusing mess of politically correct heroes and villains who very hard not to offend one another, or the audience. Yes, this is an enjoyable action movie with plenty of explosions and gun fire, but the juvenile humor that this movie uses as comic relief is reminiscent of grade school and, if anything, only distracts from the menace Stallone's character is trying to convey. For example, one scene involves a confused Stallone trying to figure out how to use the toilet paper of the future. I, for one, can't foresee that technology will make great strides in that area: if it ain't broke, don't fix it.

Wesley Snipes, however, is very effective as the psychotic terrorist from the past, (Well, our future--1996), named Simon Phoenix. Stallone's plays John Spartan, a cop who is sent to Phoenix warehouse hide-away to arrest him and rescue hostages being held there.

The mission is unsuccessful in an explosive way and the hostages die. Phoenix is captured but Spartan is held responsible for the deaths of the hostages. Both men are sentenced to be frozen and rehabilitate with things that ate stuck to their heads, I'm a little cloudy on that part but they receive subliminal training that way.

Today's scientist had better get busy if this is going to be around in '96.

Anyway, Phoenix is up for parole 2032, instead of being reformed so one has programmed him to be worse, and he escapes. Since there is not violence in the future the police are not prepared to handle this maniac, so "Who ya gonna call?" You guessed it, they defrost Stallone and the movie takes off.

A lot of the movie focuses on the two foes trying to adapt to the technology of the future. Stallone pouts a little about the wife he had but soon forgets her when he is introduced to his beautiful partner.

The special effects are worth the ticket price alone, the future comes to life because of them, and so does this movie. I'm not a great admirer of Stallone's work, but he's pretty good doing what he does, and there are plenty of celebrity cameos to watch for if you get bored.

If you haven't liked Stallone's past attempts at broadening his artistic gifts by appearing in comedies, you'll be pleased to know he is back where he belongs--Hey, "Ahnald" take notes.

GSC Theater Slays You With "Rehearsal For Murder"

The cast of "Rehearsal For Murder," in the FA Auditorium.

by David Graham

Up for a good murder mystery? Leave your Sherlock Holmes and Agatha Christie novels home for one evening, and come to see the GSC Theater Department perform a suspenseful murder play, "Rehearsal for Murder."

The clever GSC players have chosen a play in which the theater becomes the set for the play. The playwright turns on the stage work light and prepares for the first reading of his new play. The actors, producer, director and others connected with the show come onto the stage and the tension grows.

The audience discovers that everyone connected with this play was also involved with another play by the same playwright. At its opening night, exactly a year ago and in this same theater, the leading lady was murdered.

The main players are as follows: Grayson Samples--Alex Dennison, Lori Crouter--Monica Wells, Heath Hershberger--Lloyd

Andrews, Derek Igo--Leo Gibbs Collen Vance--Karen Daniels Stephanie Johnson--Bella Lamb Joshua Bonnett--David Mathews Other cast members include: Ezekiel Flowers, Daniel Palm, Rick Phebus, Jamin Pack, David Rich, Holly Riley, Wanda Roff, and David Sagan.

"Rehearsal for Murder" will be presented October 20-22, 1993 at 8 pm in the Fine Arts Auditorium. The play is free to GSC students. General admission is $3. Senior citizens and high school students pay only $2.

String Bands to Perform at Glenville

by Mack Samples

Three of West Virginia's premiere old time string bands will be in Glenville Friday evening, October 15, for a concert in the Glenville State College Auditorium.

The program is being sponsored by "Patchwork in the Glen," in cooperation with West Virginia Parks and Tourism.

The three featured bands will be The Bing Brothers, The Morris Brothers, and the Samples Brothers. There will also be some fine flatfoot dancing featuring Katie Ashley, Christine Morris, and Mack Samples. For those who enjoy good acoustic music, played in the West Virginia Tradition, it should be a delightful evening.

All of the bands feature native born West Virginians. The Bings are natives of Wayne County and feature Dave, Mike, and Tim Bing, along with Danny Arthur and Greg Gibson.

They are probably West Virginia's finest old time string band, and they are getting a national reputation in traditional music circles. They were heavily influenced by the Hammond Family, who lived on the Williams River and were legendary musicians. You will not hear the old fiddle tunes played any better than they play them, and they also sing some pretty good harmony.

The Morris Brothers feature Dave and John Morris from Ivydale, WV, in Clay County, along with strong supporting musicians. Dave is well known as a single performer, as well as a member of the band. He has devoted his life to music and performed widely in the state and the southern Appalachian region. He sings some old folk songs with true Appalachia flavor and gets excellent support from the band.

His brother John is one of West Virginia's finest old time fiddlers and has more soul in the fiddle than you will hear from anyone who plays the old tunes. He comes from the area which produced such legendary fiddlers as Doc White, French Carpenter, Lee Triplett, Ira Mullens, and Wilson Douglas. You cannot get better influence than that.

The Samples Brothers grew up on the Clay-Kanawha County line along the beautiful Elk River. They were influenced by musicians from both sides of the family and have developed their own unique style of playing many of the old tunes. They do some intricate trio guitar work on some songs, and they also do some of the old hard driving fiddle tunes.

The band consists of Mack, Ted, and Roger Samples, along with Dave Bing on fiddle and yet unnamed bass player. Buddy Griffin, who used to work with the Samples Brothers, is now in Branson, Missouri and is no longer a member.

Katie Ashley from Roane County and Christine Morris, whose roots are in Summers County (and who is now working on a Ph.D. in folklore at Penn State), are both fine flatfoot dancers. They are not cloggers in the more southern Appalachian tradition, but they do the steps that were done by the old square dancers in West Virginia, as they went through the routines. It is indeed a pretty sight to see.

The program dovetails nicely with the "Hoedown/Showdown" theme of GSC Homecoming weekend. It should get everyone in the mood for the theme. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. and there will be a $3.00 cover charge.

Multicultural Fair Deemed Success

by J.P. Shock and Lisa Hayes

The Second Annual Multicultural Fair was held September 20 through September 23 to expose the GSC campus and students to cultural diversity. Despite the scattered rain showers, attendance was excellent, and over 120 students and scholars participated in Thursday's activities alone.

The Multicultural Fair is funded by a grant from the West Virginia Humanity Council, the college, the Education Department, Continuing Education and United National Bank. It is intended to give people a chance to experience new cultures and to promote multiculturalism.

Coordinated by Brenda Wilson and Deanna Foxworthy, the fair included activities and workshops. Many of the workshops were taught by some of our own instructors, but other speakers were enlisted from outside the campus and the state.

One highlight for Foxworthy was the film and lecture/discussion led by Dr. Chari Lucero from the Philippines, on "The Philippine Ethnic Tradition in Post-Colonial Culture."

Lucero commented, "In the Philippines, students are active in social change. Here, [in the United States] students are more passive or not as active."

Another successful part of the festivities was the presentation of Daughters in the Dust, a film about slavery and how it affected thoughts and dreams of the future.

The theme of the 1994 Multicultural Fair will be based on family, and will keep the workshop atmosphere. There has also been a soccer game requested by students for next year.

Also stemming from the fair is the beginning of a Multicultural Club, which will discuss how people can create better relations among culturally diverse campuses, such as ours. The first meeting will be held October 21 from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. over lunch, in the Verona Maple Room of the Heflin Center.

Thursday, October 21, from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Verona Maple Room, there will be a meeting of students, faculty and staff to consider the possibility of forming a new campus organization to break down the boundaries (social, racial, and others) that keep people apart, and to increase acceptance of others' uniqueness. If you are interested or even just curious, come and bring a friend.

Look not mournfully into the Past. It comes not back again. Wisely improve the present. It is thine.

The Non Traditional Viewpoint

by J.B. Parker

Time is a precious commodity around our house. I race home from class to pick up the kids. Home work is the first order of business. Spelling, math, phonics... Supper is next. Well, what I call supper. I have my children convinced that a peanut butter sandwich is a balanced meal if you drink milk with it. Then it's off to a game; right now it is soccer. After the hour long match, which reminds me of twenty puppies frolicking, we head to the house. Showers done, teeth brushed, we finally get to spend an hour together. Bedtime, 9 p.m. Kisses good night, leave this light on, close that door, "Daddy, just one more kiss." Finally at 9:30 I start to read American Literature. The Puritans, ughh. Suddenly, I hear bells ringing. Cotton Mather and Jonathan Edwards resting on my chest. Boy I hope osmosis works.

Up to thirty fellowships of $5,000 each will be awarded between the two categories offered this year—painting and works-on-paper—to artists living in the mid-Atlantic region. The awards are offered in cooperation with the National Endowment for the Arts and state art agencies in Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Completed applications for both categories are due in Mid-Atlantic Arts' offices by 5:00pm on December 10, 1993. Winners will be announced no later than June 30, 1994. For information and applications contact the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation, 11 E. Chase Street, Suite 2A, Baltimore, MD, 21202

Students Announce New Empowerment Group

Organizers have launched a national group to amplify the voices of students on Capitol Hill. The fledgling organization, known as the National Coalition for Student Empowerment, has formed to increase student lobbying power and to provide a national clearing house for information regarding student government and services.

NCSE is the product of dissatisfaction with the United States Student Association and the belief that the changing student population is no longer being adequately represented.

"In the past, we've had the feeling that the United States Student Association has been a group that expects it's members to serve the organization," said Phil Neiswender, an International Studies/Russian major at the University of Washington. "We would rather have NCSE be a group that serves it's members." Students interested in NCSE can contact Neiswender at (206) 543-1780 or Grabel at (602) 621-278

Arts And Crafts Show

The 1993 North Bend State Park Arts And Crafts Show will take place October 15-17, 1993. Everyone is invited to come and display your craft or simply browse through all the original West Virginia Crafts.

The show will be held in the North Bend conference room, on the lodge patio and outside on the front lawn, if weather permits. Cost for displaying a craft will be $10.00 per table indoors and $5.00 per table outdoors, so sign up early, as space is limited.

Railfair 93

Railfair will be held Saturday, October 30 in the rail station vicinity of Glen Elk in Clarksburg. This is the second annual Railfair street fair and rail trip. This year round trip motor coach-train tickets are available, making the rail experience less time consuming than the rail round trip. The coach will depart Clarksburg in early morning to take passengers to Parkersburg in time for the 8 am train departure. After a journey over the West Virginia Short Line, the National Limited will arrive in Glen Elk at 2 pm to a welcome of music and celebrating. These excursion tickets are available from the Visitors Bureau at 842-7272. Adult fare is $59 and child fare is $35. This is a rare opportunity for youngsters of all ages to experience rail travel as it was in the golden days of railroading.

The world will never starve for wonders, but only for want of wonder.
